OLD TIME RAILROADING

TRIALS OF THE DAYS WHEN THE ENGINES BURNED WOOD.

In spite of white hairs and snowy moustache, his eyes shone clear and keen as in the days when on their ceaseless vigilance depended the lives of scores of passengers. As he reminisced to a reporter a far-away look came into those once watchful orbs, and the old engineer imagined himself as of yore, back at the throttle, gazing out of the cab window at the twin ribbons of steel along whose shining course the locomotive would rush quivering like a living thing.

"Railroading. Ah! It has changed a whole lot since I first started into it as a call boy over half a century ago in England. I got my first engine when I was only nineteen years old," said the veteran with pardonable pride. "Then, soon afterwards, I emigrated to this country and joined the Grand Trunk. There was no starting in as fireman in those days and working yourself up to engineer as they do now. No, sir, leastways on the old Great Western. A man had to know all about it before ever the officials would allow him to take a train out.

"They burnt peat in those days running out of Montreal. That was back in '60," said the old railroader. "Some of the officials had got hold of the big peat bogs around about the city, and they sold it to the company, and the dirty stuff was handed out to us to fire with. Leaving St. Lambert, we had our tenders to load up with this muddy fuel; but it didn't last long. You can bet the firemen knew how to get rid of it in a hurry, for just as soon as the tender got partly empty we could load on cord wood. You should have seen the way they dumped that peat out by the cart load. It lay so thick in places along the right of way that the company sent about special trains to gather it up.

"Well, one fine day, just about the time that every fireman on the road had got good and sick of the dirty, crumbly stuff which was just a mess composed of mud and grass roots cut into little square-like bricks, some fellow on a locomotive threw a piece of blazing cotton waste right into the big stack where over a thousand tons of peat were stacked. The whole thing caught fire. There was an awful blaze, and the windows of passing cars were cracked by the heat. But that was the end of our troubles. No more peat was used on the Grand Trunk.

It was well on into the seventies before Canadian locomotives began using coal to any extent. The years '73 and '74 saw its introduction, but it was not until about '80 that it came into general use. Before that the cumbrous looking old wood-burners familiar only to the present generation from pictures, lugged the trains of box-like cars.

"Those wood-burners were all smokestack, and they were a terror for puffing out hot cinders," said the old man. "That's why the Government made them put on those wire bonnets on top of the stacks. But they were very serviceable little engines, too, though they only weighed thirty-five tons. In those days each engineer had to look after his own locomotive and try and keep it in repair. He would get down out of the cab and tighten up a nut or adjust a bearing, and generally keep his eye on the whole machine. You didn't see any hammer marks on the wheels in those days. If the big drivers showed the least dint you can bet the engineer would hear about it. We were provided with lead hammers to do our testing, so that we wouldn't mark things.

"How did you ever manage in the days before the air-brake was invented?" asked the reporter.

"Oh, we did well enough. The engineer knew his crew, and when he whistled 'on brakes,' the boys were all on the job. It certainly seems pretty crude compared with what we have nowadays—the running along over the tops of moving cars, and the twisting and turning of the old 'Armstrong' brakes on the platforms, but we seemed to get along with it.

"And let me tell you," said the old man, "up to the time of the Great Western's amalgamation with the Grand Trunk, in '80, we hadn't had a single rear-end collision on my division—St. Thomas to the Falls and Buffalo. And there was lots of freight traffic over that line then, too. That was the great stock route from the American west. In those days there were big herds of cattle on the plains, and hundreds of train loads used to pass through from Detroit east."

But if collisions were few, accidents of other kinds there were a-plenty. "The St. Thomas division was built in the early seventies," said my informant, "and the road was a sure enough rough one then. There was something running off the track all the time. It was only used for freight in the beginning; and I can tell you we freight crews had our own time of it.

"A man starting out never knew just when he was going to get back. Once I was a whole week making the round trip. Just think of it. St. Thomas to the Falls and back, seven days. There were five crews tied up all near each other for over a day. We hadn't any provisions with us, and had a hard time foraging for food at one of the few settlers' houses in the vicinity. Twenty hungry men finally deserted their trains and went over in a body to a farmer's place. We were nearly starved, being a good day and a half without food, and I can tell you the pork and potatoes that farmer set out for us fairly melted away when our gang got after them."

DRIVING BIG PILES

New Swiss Invention Which Will Probably Economize Labor

A new type of concrete pile has been put on the market by the Steg[illegible] Company, of Lucerne, Switzerland. The new pile utilizes the bulged bottom principle common to several patented piles, but is novel in that the enlarged base is formed by the use of explosives. The process of making the pile is described as follows:

An iron tube containing a wooden pile with an iron point and a device at the upper end for deadening the blows of the pile-driver, is driven into the ground. The wooden pile is then removed and the cartridge, provided with an electric detonator, is fixed in position at the bottom of the hole, and the tube is filled with wet concrete, a little above the level of the surface of the ground outside the tube. The iron tube is then drawn up some feet to prevent its end from being shattered by the force of the explosion. After the detonation the concrete sinks downwards, filling up the space hollowed out by the explosion. Finally the tube is little by little filled with more concrete, and is drawn up gradually at the same rate as the concrete is filled into it.

After the completion of this process, and after sufficient time has been allowed for the hardening of the concrete, there is in position in the ground a pile with a base of greater lateral diameter than it is possible to produce by any other means. Moreover, on account of the action of the gas formed by the explosion, these piles will give the best possible results in compressing the earth. In fact, one pile on this system serves the purpose of several piles on any other system, thus insuring a great economy. By using cartridges of greater or less strength the size of the excavation made by the gas is controlled at will; by the use of a cartridge 600 to 700 grams in weight there is, for instance, made a spherical hollow of 3 to 4 feet in diameter, according to the quality of the ground material.

Largest Hoist in the World

There is now building at Schenectady the largest electric hoist in the world. This hoist, which is to be installed in the Crown Mines at Johannesburg, is designed to raise 16,000 pounds of ore per trip from a depth of 2,450 feet at a speed of 3,500 feet per minute. The tare weight of the skip is 8,700 pounds, and the winding rope, which is 2 inches in diameter, weighs 614 pounds per 100 feet. The total weight of the winding motors, including bearings and shafts, will be 234,000 pounds, and the maximum intermittent output from these machines will be 9,000 horsepower.

An Italian who kept a fruit stand was much annoyed by possible customers who made a practice of handling the fruit and pinching it, thereby leaving it softened and often spoiled. Exasperated beyond endurance, he finally put up a sign which read:

"If you must pincha da fruit, pincha da coconut."

Twenty Years in Chains

A woman dwarf has been discovered in the Village of Olivet, near Orleans, France, who has been kept chained to a trestle bed for twenty years, by fetters which allowed her to move only three yards. The prisoner's stepmother and a half-brother are responsible for her captivity and are supposed to have acted in this way to have the benefit of an annuity of $140, left to the dwarf by her father. A commercial traveler selling sewing machines, was passing by a lonely barn when he heard groans and, going in, saw, in the gloom, the pathetic figure of the dwarf raising imploring arms to him. He went to the Paris police and next day ten people listened outside the barn and heard the dwarf moan. They then asked the old woman and her son for the stepdaughter, who had not been seen for twenty years. With complete cynicism the pair confessed that she had been chained all the time in the barn.

T[illegible] Was Not Fulfilled

An amusing story is being told of Sir Douglas Dawson, who had so much to do with the preparations for Prince [illegible] wedding. Sir Douglas had [illegible] time, and the story goes that one day he went into a room in the Palace where a friend was sitting, and, sinking into a chair, he remarked wearily:

"If anyone so much as breathes the word 'wedding' in my presence I'll knock him down!" He had scarcely uttered the words when the door opened and King George came in looking worried.

"Oh, by the way," he began at once, "about this wedding—"

His Majesty got no further than the word, for, in spite of all his efforts, Sir Douglas's friend was forced to laugh. The King glanced at him in surprised annoyance, but laughed heartily when Sir Douglas explained what he had just threatened.

Historic House Destroyed

A house with many historic associations—No. 35 St. Martin Street, Leicester Square, where once Sir Isaac Newton and Dr. Burney dwelt—is now being demolished. Newton lived here from 1720 to 1725, and used to say that the happiest years of his life were spent in an observatory on the roof. Dr. Burney, the musician, friend of Dr. Johnson, afterwards lived in the house, and here was born his daughter Fanny, afterwards Mme. D'Arblay, who wrote her first novel, "Evelina," in the house.

"Making Good" in Toronto—Letter to the Scotsman

In reference to a letter in Club of 6th December, entitled "Keep Away from Vancouver," it is true no doubt that there are many out of employment there, as in many other large and growing cities, but this is no reason for them being in want. When in Vancouver in 1912 I had a chat with a carpenter, a Scotsman, of course, who was doing a little job for our landlady. She always employed him "because he was reliable." I found that this man was worth nearly 100,000 dollars (£20,000.) Instead of building a costly house, getting an automobile, etc., he was far happier going on as he had commenced. He was an honest, industrious man.

For a month before Christmas there was ample evidence provided of the prosperity of this city (Toronto) in the spending of money by all classes of citizens. In summer time it is the same. It is not the well-to-do who spend their means in this way. No, it is the wage-earners, and they simply spend, spend. When winter comes work is slack, and the army of unemployed is increased.

Four or five years ago, a young Englishman came to my home asking for work, says K. S. Scott, Toronto, writing to The Scotsman. He was a window-cleaner, had a tidy little business in Brighton, England, and made "about $5 a week." Thinking to do better he, with wife and one child, came to Toronto. He worked all summer. As winter approached he was laid off. A second child arrived. The family of four were living in one room. Their landlady, a charwoman, from whom they rented a room at 2 dollars a week, was good to them. I saw he was a decent-looking young man. I made some work for him, and told him to come back and that he must not allow his wife and children to be hungry. With the charwoman's help he struggled along, and by March he had a prospect of getting work. I loaned him something to help to furnish some rooms. He rented four and sub-let two. I made work for him in the garden, and ere long he was out of my debt. He did such good work in putting down cement walks that he had all he could do. I helped him to purchase some building lots and a bit of land, and very soon he had a comfortable house on one-half the lot. Next spring he built a good brick house on the other lot, moved into it, sold a cottage on it for $1,900, has since sold brick house for $2,500, bought four lots near by, built two houses during the past summer, both of which are now sold, and he is now busy preparing to build other two. He has succeeded so far even with the scarcity of money. This man does not say, "Keep away from Toronto." I may say candidly any man or woman coming to Canada wishing to get on can do so if they are true Scots. It is true, only too true, that there are a good many in all our large cities out of work just now, but Canada is not alone in this respect. As soon as the wave of depression passes there will be work for all who are willing to work. There is much being said about the high cost of living. Our tastes are getting more expensive than they used to be. When I think of the waste that goes on, I am not surprised at the high cost of living.

Light Hats Prevent Baldness

Medical men have agreed that baldness is largely a matter of headgear. It is a rarity for a woman to go bald, notwithstanding that her hats are often heavier and bigger than a man's. But her hat is fixed to her hair, not to her scalp, the veins are not constricted and ventilation is permissible. Men's hats, with their hard, tight-fitting brims, make it impossible for the blood to circulate properly, and consequently there is a congestion of blood in the scalp.

At any time it is more difficult for the blood to circulate properly in the top of the head than in other parts of the body, for the simple reason that it has to be pumped up higher there than anywhere else, and, if its course is restricted, the consequences cannot be wondered at. A tight hat also keeps the head hot—another fatal condition. If you would avoid baldness wear light, well-ventilated, soft-brimmed hats.

TANGO CREPE AND SATIN STRIPED VOILE TWO FABRICS MUCH IN VOGUE FOR EVENING.

Tiered skirts still hold their own—in fact, have taken precedence over draped models. This should come as cheering news to the woman who, in spite of dieting and strenuous exercise, has not been able to entirely do away with her curves.

An artistic evening gown is shown in No. 8196-8117; it is developed in white Tango crepe, shadow lace and black satin. The bodice shows a drop-shoulder and a well cut overblouse. A line of gold ball fringe outlines the first tunic and harmonizes well with the creamy white of the lace and crepe.

Crepes of all variety are popular; there are Tango, Egyptian, Georgette and many other weaves, all of them averaging 40 inches in width and ranging in price from $1 per yard and up.

This gown requires for size 36 1⅝ yards of material with 1⅜ yards for the overblouse; the skirt requires for size 24 3⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

Smart and attractive for afternoon is this costume, No. 8176-8151, of black striped voile over a foundation of plain white silk; the overblouse and tunic are of black taffetas. There is something about black taffetas that renders a frock or suit smart and dressy.

This costume may be copied in size 36 with 6 yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8196—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8117—sizes 22 to 34.

LONG SLEEVES A FEATURE OF MOST AFTERNOON AND SOME EVENING GOWNS.

Many of the French houses favor this idea of long sleeves for afternoon and evening gowns; Worth, for instance, uses no short ones and is very partial to frocks of taffetas with transparent sleeves of net or chiffon. Doucet and the other designers use both. It is not necessary to predict, however, that a little later the short sleeve will take the lead. Another thing which is marked on the new designs is the bringing of the drapery to the back, often leaving the front entirely plain.

Both of these touches are shown in the afternoon frock of taffetas illustrated in No. 8339. There is a suggestion of drapery over each hip, full length sleeves and a box-pleated panel in back which is cut off to give the new "hiked" up appearance.

This frock may be copied in size 36 with 5⅝ yards of 42 inch material.

Taffetas, plain and figured, range in width from 22 to 45 inches and in price from $1.25 and up per yard.

A quaint little bolero effect is brought out in the young girl's dress, No. 8236. Dark blue gabardine is the material used, with the underblouse of shadow lace; by way of trimming, a silk soutache braid is used and a line of Chinese buttons.

For a girl of 16 this design requires 4⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

OIL IN CANADA

Resources Are to be Conserved For War or Emergency

In the oil regulations of Canada are several clauses of an Imperial nature looking to the question of defense and designed to conserve the oil resources of Canada for the use in time of war or emergency of the British Admiralty. One regulation requires that any company holding a lease under the regulations shall, at all times, remain a British company, registered in either Great Britain or Canada, and having its chief place of business in His Majesty's dominions. The chairman of the company and a majority of the directors shall always be British subjects and "the company shall not at any time be or become, directly or indirectly, controlled by foreigners or a foreign corporation." This is to enable the Crown to obtain, in time of war, a reliable supply of oil fuel when most needed and also to prevent speculators taking advantage of an emergency to put a prohibitive price in force. Another section of the regulations gives the Crown power to assume control, in time of emergency, of any lease or works, and to operate and maintain them. The compensation in such a case is to be fixed by the Exchequer Court. A further [illegible]

FRENCH AND ENGLISH

Mr. Henri Bourassa and the Rev. C. Amaron have had an interesting correspondence in the Montreal Gazette in reference to the present relations between the French and English in Canada. Mr. Bourassa complains of the social exclusion of his people by the English-Canadians, and, of course, lays the blame upon the latter. But the Christian Guardian thinks that he chooses to forget the fact that such exclusion is desired and most carefully planned for by the ecclesiastic authorities of the Church to which he belongs. Even in New Ontario to-day, we are told, there is a very determined effort being made to plant solid blocks of French-Canadians in certain sections. Certainly the English are not to blame for this; in fact, they would gladly see it otherwise, but it is being done largely for ecclesiastical purposes. Mr. Bourassa complains that in Ontario there is a very strong prejudice against the French language, but Mr. Amaron explains that this also is due to the fact that the French language is determinedly associated with the Roman Catholic religion, which to Protestants appears just as wrong as Protestantism does to Roman Catholics, and Mr. Amaron points out that at the "Parler Francais," held in Quebec, the 20,000 French Protestants were barred because of their religion, just as they are barred from the St. Jean Baptiste Society. Speaking of the treaty rights of the French to their language, Mr. Amaron pronounces them a myth. One thing is sure, that the English speaking section of Canada is not prepared to admit that in any of the provinces save Quebec French has equal rights with English, while to compel our new immigrants to learn French is a thing undreamed of.

"Nerviline" Cures Cramps End Misery Instantly

NO REMEDY SO SPEEDY OR EFFICIENT.

A real cramp cure?

Yes, a real one—in a twinkling the cramp is a dead one, and the last squirm is over, once you get a stiff dose of Nerviline on the inside.

This isn't mere talk—it's a solid truthful fact. No other remedy—not a single one—will cure cramps so quickly and harmlessly as Nerviline. It hits the spot in a jiffy and saves a heap of misery.

"Last Saturday night my stomach felt like an infernal machine," writes T.P. Granger from Hartford. "I was awakened from a deep sleep and found myself suffering the worst kind of torture. I was so doubled up I could hardly cross my room. I had used Nerviline before for the same thing and took a real good dose. Once I felt the warm, soothing sensation of Nerviline in my stomach I knew I was all right! It finished the cramps—just one single dose."

Sickness at night is rendered a nightmare of the past if Nerviline is handy. It may be earache, toothache or cramps. Nerviline in every case will cure at once and save calling the doctor. Nerviline is a family physician in itself. The large 50c. family size bottle, of course, is most economical. Small trial size costs a quarter. All dealers sell Nerviline.

Household Hints for Busy Women

Sometimes boot polish becomes quite dry with keeping. Moisten it with a little turpentine. It softens the polish, making it usable at once, and also gives good gloss to the leather.

If at any time you should have a gathered finger or poisoned hand, take a cabbage leaf, roll it out with a bottle until the juice comes and tie it on the affected part. This will draw and cleanse it far better than a poultice.

When using oil stoves to prevent them from smoking, dissolve one tablespoonful of common salt in every pint of paraffin oil that you use. This also gives a much clearer light, and it prevents the oil vessel from rusting.

Never have linen starched if you are going to put it away for a long time. It is apt to crack and even to rot. Rinse the articles quite free from starch, dry, and fold up in blue paper, as this keeps them from turning yellow.

A capital cleanser for varnished and stained woodwork is tea water. This may be made by pouring boiling water on spent tea leaves, straining the liquid afterwards through a cloth or muslin. The tea water loosens the dirt quickly.

To free the hands from disagreeable odors such as that of onions, cod liver oil, etc., mix a little ground dry mustard with warm water and wash the hands well with it. The saucers of scales or vessels used in cooking can be freed from odors by the same method.

If you possess a hot water bottle that is cracked, fill it with sand instead of water. You will find it is quite as useful for warming a bed as when it was new. The sand retains the heat longer than water does.

CHILDREN AT THE TABLE

Things They Should Learn About Their Actions at Meal Time

The proper position at table is to sit erect with the waist or chest just a few inches from the table. Never lounge or slip down in the chair. The hips should touch the back of the chair near the seat and the body should bend from the hips. Never support the elbows on the table. It may be comfortable, but it is very ungraceful.

Teach the young sons to remain standing until the mother and sisters are seated. This custom should be strictly regarded.

The proper place for the knife and fork when not being used is to place them on the plate, together with the tips in the center and handles on the edge.

The proper way to dip soup from the plate is away from them instead of towards them and it should be taken from the side of the spoon, not from the end. Never tip the soup plate or cup to get the last drop. Never crumb crackers into the soup.

Eat slowly always. 'Tis best for your digestion. Eat slowly for appearances' sake. Never allow children to spread a slice of bread and bite and cut it. Bread should be eaten by breaking off small pieces. Butter them just before placing them in the mouth. Teach them to peel and quarter apples or peaches and cut into mouthfuls.

When finished do not push a plate away nor toy with the crumbs. Allow children to enter into the conversation but also teach them to be attentive listeners. Teach them to appear at meal time—on time—with neat appearance and a smile. The dining-room should be sunny and bright, and children should be the same.

Move chairs carefully and noiselessly and let each one assume his share of responsibility of properly passing the food nearest him. Never allow them to sit down, eat the food hurriedly and leave the table before others are finished. If once they leave the table do not allow them to return at that meal.

Teach your children to try all kinds of foods. One may learn to like most any of them, and a sad thing is a child whose table manners have been neglected, as these are the test of culture.

Keeping Leather Soft

Boots and shoes are apt to get hardened when not in use. To make them recover their original softness, brush them over in warm water and then rub castor oil well into them. After a little while the leather will become more pliable, and then if the boots are cleaned and polished in the usual way they will be easy to wear.

To Take Castor Oil

Mix the oil with orange juice and a very little sugar. Children will take castor oil prepared this way when they refuse it otherwise.

Big Tobacco Bill

In a year Uncle Sam smoked just 7,707,000,000 cigars and 14,000,000,000 cigarettes.

The Candy Kid

The candy bill of the American gis is $124,000,000, $10,000,000 more than the cost of the nation's paint and varnish.

India Uses Quinine

India alone uses one-sixth of the world's supply of quinine.

DOWER CHESTS

Every Girl Should Have Something to Begin Housekeeping With

Every girl ought to begin a dower chest when she is about twelve years old, says the Pictorial Review, that is, as soon as she can sew without assistance, tell the difference between linen and cotton, and be given a definite place in the home to keep the things that shall be her very own. Whether she ever marries or not makes no difference. In this day of business girls' and bachelor maids' apartments, it is quite conceivable that a girl who does not wish to marry would have very good use for her own household appurtenances just the same. More and more professional women find it convenient and desirable to set up establishments of their own.

Even a stay-at-home girl likes to have her own personal belongings in daily use, and the time of the hall bedroom occupant can be made much sweeter if it be brightened with a few little accessories like bureau scarfs, dainty towels and simple curtains from the treasure chest.

Why not have your daughter from early girlhood make and select things to be laid aside—not necessarily for the time she is to "get married," but to "begin housekeeping" with? Why not choose a special emblem—a rose, a chrysanthemum, a daisy, a violet, or some other sweet and girlish flower, and work it into every piece that is laid away? What a delicate personal touch you could obtain by always embroidering a wreath, a fleur-de-lis, or a group of butterflies on all your underwear or linens? It is little individual notes like these that give a woman's clothing distinction and charm.

As a piece of ordinary bedroom furniture for every woman the red cedar dower chest is invaluable. It provides a place to store the spring sewing as fast as it is completed; to tuck out of the way the tablecloths and ginghams and curtainings that you pick up at midwinter sales, and to assemble the needful travelling outfit ready for the summer vacation. And when all these materials are put into use it is the only place to pack away the winter clothing during the warm weather. Another use for a dower chest is as a gift box.

SOME HEATING LORE

How to Make the Best Use of Your Heating Facilities

A furnace authority says: "In mild weather it is not necessary to 'shake down' the furnace fire. You can economize on fuel and still have a fire ready to start full blast should the north wind begin to blow. With the furnace poker rake down only part of the ashes, forming a sort of crater by poking out the ashes thoroughly from the bottom and the top. Into this 'crater' put the fresh coal. This is really a sort of furnace within the larger one and holds the fire without using coal to heat the whole furnace. When the cold snap comes shake the grate thoroughly, shovel on fresh coal and open the drafts."

Another point is that coal that is kept in a dry and airy place will burn much longer than that which is kept in a close cellar with no ventilation. When coal is stored in an airless place it gets rid of its gas, and the absence of this renders it less powerful and more wasteful when burned.

Although the iron of your gas and oil stoves is a good conductor of heat, it is not a good radiator. To increase the radiating power of your stoves, firebricks or tile may be laid on top of the heaters. These bricks or tile are the best of radiators, holding the heat for hours, and will help materially in keeping your rooms at an even temperature.

Where the heat of the kitchen range is utilized to warm adjoining rooms place a number of firebricks in the oven. When the oven is not in use open the door and you will have a constant wave of heat even after the fire is out. On very cold nights these bricks may be wrapped in newspapers and flannel and used as bed warmers. The stone radiators that are used in the fireless cookers are also useful for this purpose.

Rough Edges on Collars

How many are bothered with that sawlike roughness at the edge of collars after being laundered several times? A complete cure may be effected by merely rubbing the edge with a piece of ordinary paraffin wax. Thus the collars do not soil so readily and the material lasts much longer, for the wax in a wonderful way fills up the roughness of the edges and greatly enhances the comfort of the wearer.

Cook cauliflower in milk and water; it gives them a better flavor, and they look whiter than when cooked in water.

Love

Love came at dawn, when all the world was fair,
When crimson glories, bloom and song were rife;
Love came at dawn when hope's wings fanned the air,
And murmured, "I am life."

Love came at even when the day was done,
When heart and brain were tired, and slumber pressed;
Love came at eve, shut out the sinking sun,
And whispered, "I am rest."

CIVIC GOVERNMENT

Dr. Horace L. Brittain, a native of New Brunswick and an authority on municipal questions says his experience in the United States had shown him that civic officials and the public were anxious to co-operate in an effort to secure efficiency in the control of municipal business. In only one or two cases had he encountered mulish officials who planted their feet and refused to leave the old beaten track. Cities did not lose much by graft. The major part of the waste was incurred by honest inefficiency. Nine-tenths of the loss in New York City had been due to inefficiency, although there was an idea that the place had been one large hot bed of graft. People became interested in municipal affairs at election time, and then let the subject go to sleep.

FORESTS OF BRITISH GUIANA

Supply Many Varieties of Wood to Lumbermen

The forests of British Guiana cover about 80,000 square miles of country. The workable area is confined to 11,000 square miles in the more accessible parts. Though the variety of valuable trees found in these forests is large, at present there are a few only within reach of the lumbermen and of sufficient commercial value to command a market. Of these greenheart is the most important and is rated as a first-class wood at Lloyd's. Logs of greenheart can be obtained which will square 25 inches and have a length of 65 feet. There are two varieties, yellow and black, the black possessing greater hardness but being more difficult to obtain. A large quantity of both varieties still remains in the interior waiting the advent of the lumberman.

Crabwood has within the last few years attracted the attention of lumbermen. Though not properly a hardwood like greenheart or mora, it is nevertheless, easily worked, and takes a finish that resembles mahogany. It will no doubt have a large export when better known.

Wallaba occurs more frequently throughout the colony than any other tree. Several varieties exist and all have a resinous nature and an unpleasant odor that disappears after sufficient exposure. The wood splits easily into shingles, palings and staves, and is made use of for building purposes and for firewood. A considerable quantity is exported.

Mora and bullet tree are dark and close-grained woods of firm texture. Both are heavy and durable. The bullet tree, however, is furnishing a valuable product—balata—and is hardly to be considered therefore as lumber, but the mora tree, which is larger in size, is useful for many purposes, for wharfs, steamship building and railway sleepers. It is among the best woods of the colony.

In addition to these woods there are a large number of other varieties suitable for furniture, cabinet work and general building purposes, which up to the present are only obtained for local use.

Buffaloes in Captivity

Within the three National parks in which the Dominion Government maintains the buffalo in a state of semi-captivity there are 1,287 buffalo. An estimate of the number of wood bison in Mackenzie River territory and of those loaned by the Dominion Government to city parks, etc., makes the total number of pure bred bison in Canada about 1,600.

COAST TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

Southern American Markets for Canadian Exporters—Railways and Shipping

Trade opportunities in South America were discussed by Mr. H. R. Poussette, Canadian trade commissioner to that part of the world. He has travelled in nearly every republic of South America and reports that the political unrest is subsiding and better conditions are apparent. This is particularly [illegible] on the Atlantic side, and is being followed by the investment of large sums of money, especially by British interests. They have invested about five hundred million pounds in South America, the larger portion of which is in Argentina. That part of the southern continent competes with Canada in so far as wheat, [illegible] and cattle are concerned, but on the other hand it imports large quantities of agricultural implements and machinery, with mill[illegible], motor cars, carriages, lumber, paper, wire, [illegible] hardware and food stuffs. Mr. Poussette thinks Canada should be able to capture some of the trade of that part of the world, both by the Pacific and Atlantic routes. Mr. Poussette adds that a fair amount of flour can be marketed in Ecuador and Panama, as well as in countries on the Caribbean Sea, when the Panama Canal is open for traffic. He says the British traders have already built up an excellent name for themselves which will confer an advantage on Canadians.

USEFUL NEW INVENTION

Enables Anyone to Play Piano or Organ Without Lessons

A Detroit musician has invented a wonderful new system which enables any person or little child to learn to play the piano or organ in one evening. Even though you know absolutely nothing about music or have never touched a piano or organ, you can now learn to play in an hour or two. People who do not know one note from another are able to play their favorite music with this method without any assistance whatever from anyone.

This new system which is called the Numeral Method, is sold in Canada by the Numeral Method Music Co. of Canada, and as they are desirous of at once making it known in every locality, they are making the following special free trial and half-price offer to our readers.

You are not asked to send any money until you have tried and are satisfied with the new method. The Numeral Company is willing to send it to you on one week's free trial, and you will not have to pay them one cent unless you desire to keep it. There are no express charges to be paid, as everything will be sent by mail. Simply write a letter or postcard to the Numeral Method Music Co. of Canada, 198B Curry Hall, Windsor, Ontario, saying "Please send me the Numeral Method on seven days' free trial." Fancies of Fashion

New Gowns Effect Full Bustle Lines

By Madge Marvel

WHAT a sly trick the bustle played womankind! While we were all ridiculing the idea of its return and criticising its presumption in planning another dress invasion in these days of artistic enlightenment, it slipped into the folds of our Easter frocks, and now we are wearing it with proud consciousness and enthusing about it.

And it will become more evident instead of less. There is a decided change in skirts on the way. It will be most apparent before the end of summer, and the bustle and the hip fullness and the slight increase of foot circumference are but the first hint of it.

The new bustle has no suggestion of the old-time monstrosity of the early eighties, but is simply clever manipulation of draping at the back of the skirt, which brings the fulness and a tucked-up effect usually just above the knees.

Old Frocks Useful

In taffeta and the new Pompadour silks it is delightfully quaint.

The combination of fabrics makes it possible for the home dressmaker to utilize all her old frocks and be ready with all old gowns used when the greater changes come. There is a decided fancy for blouses and tunics of striped or plaid silks to be worn over a plain skirt of the prevailing color. When the tunic has a bit of brightness such as a stripe of blue or dull red or yellow the mode becomes quite effective. Some gowns show the tunic of silk and the skirt of serge, and I have seen several taffeta suits with borders of fine light-weight chiffon broadcloth on the ruffles.

The combination of moire and taffeta also is favored. There seems no set rule as to which should be which, for sometimes the underskirt is taffeta and the tunic moire, and sometimes the materials are reversed.

Almost every ruffle has a binding or a bias fold. A stunning example of the corkscrew skirt is developed in black net. The foundation is of black taffeta and the upper part of the bodice is of the silk, and the ruffles, of which no less than seven encircle the skirt, are of net, each bound with moire, while the broad girdle is of the same silk.

One sees a good many attractive gowns of plain silk with the upper part of the bodice made in some of the gay striped or flowered silks.

New Hat Styles

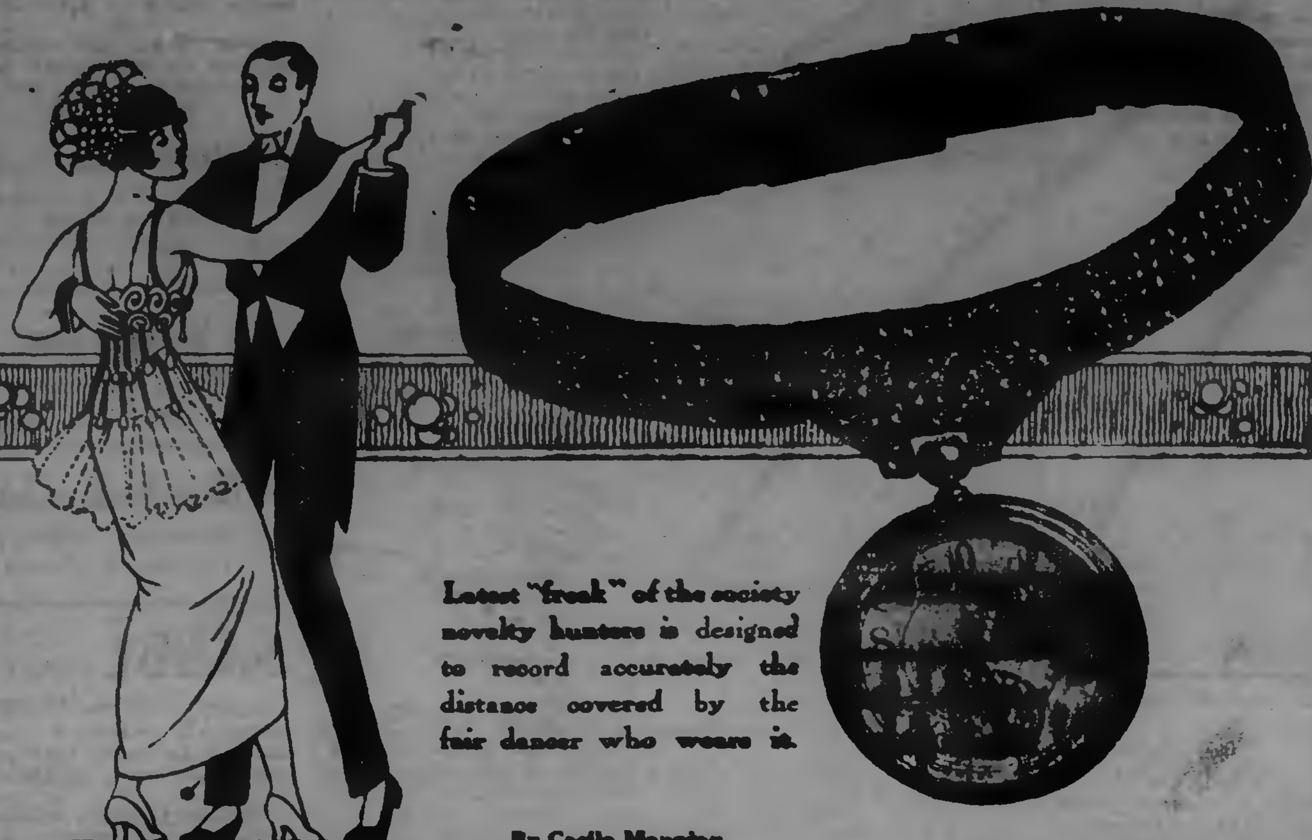
The dear little silk coatees to be worn over the white lingerie frocks are the most alluring things, and will be quite the rage for the summer. Some of them reach the hips and others are little bob affairs ending at the waist line. They are made with bias ruffles about the bottom and ruchings of the silk or of silk and net as a neck finish. The sleeves flare in bell shape.

One I saw was of dull blue and gold changeable taffeta. The back was loose and had a deep shaped ruffle. The fronts were plain and just below the waist line was hung a deep flounce of tarnished gold lace and a tassel and cord of gold fastened the garment just below the full ruching of the silk.

Just now all the little straw hats are worn with a saucy tip-tilt over the right eye, which means that the left ear becomes a reality and the "beau catcher" curl is securely plastered against the left cheek. But already the summer hats are more generous. With the heat of midsummer sun they promise to be quite picturesque, big, floppy and flower-laden with or without long ribbon streamers. You may find the inspiration for them in the paintings of old-time shepherdesses.

Colored blouses will displace white in the favor of discriminating women. There is a new Roman stripe wash silk on the market which makes the loveliest plain blouse for wear with the tailored suit, and is splendid for travelling. It can be easily laundered. The Gladstone is the latest fashionable collar.

HERE IS THE TANGO-METER GARTER



Latest "freak" of the society novelty hunters is designed to record accurately the distance covered by the fair dancer who wears it.

By Cecile Manning

THE tangomaniac tacks a speedometer on her garter and knows exactly what she accomplishes.

Keeping tabs on the tango is the latest indoor sport. The long distance tangoist enjoys a certain fame and glory which makes her the envy and despair of her less strenuous and enduring sisters.

There is no guesswork about these records when one wears the tango speedometer garter. It gives the exact number of miles covered by its wearer in a tango day or night or week. Every slide and glide, every kick and dip, every twist and turn is clicked up to the credit of the owner of the nimble feet and the speedometer. There need never be a dispute regarding one's prowess on the floor. There is the meter, and one has but to read the figures and it's an old s. w. that "figures won't lie."

Moreover, the tango speedometer garter is a most fascinating bit of useful finery to possess. It is an ornate little gimcrack, and its elaboration is just what the purchaser's purse wishes it to be. It may be of gold set with diamonds. It won't tell any more wonderful story than the one which is of base metal and has the glitter of genuine glass, but it is more beautiful.

The garter is not the thing that counts anyway, and the tick-tock is the same whatever the setting. However, it gives another opportunity for gewgaws that gleam with jewels, and where is the woman who can resist the dress accessory that has the appearance of jewelry?

To be sure, the speedometer tango garter is quite out of sight when properly worn, but it is a comforting fact for a woman to know that clasped about her knee is a dainty band of silver or gold, gem-incrusted, from which swings a tiny watch-like affair that goes on merrily ticking up the story of her tango tripping.

Nobody knows how many of these speedometers are worn—nor by whom. That adds the delightful element of mystery to their possession. You may be the only woman in the room who has one. Then half the pleasure of its possession is lost, for there will be no chance to compare notes, and your wonderful record will lose its meaning.

However, the experts say every real, genuine, dyed-in-the-wool tangoist has the speedometer tucked just below her knee, and that the consciousness that every step punches the time clock is a tremendous incentive to further effort and makes her practically tireless.

For the past few months young men have been wondering how it happens that all the girls have talked with such perfect surety of their tango mileage. "I did five miles this afternoon and seven tonight," has sounded like an idle boast. Now the Doubting Thomases learn that all the time they were calling the records the idle chatter of girls they were dealing with facts. The speedometer has been telling the story.

In the shops they sell the tango speedometer garters without so much as the flutter of an eyelid. They used to wonder and explain when the first few were bought, but now the speedometer is looked upon as just so much of the dancers' "props." One might just as well go without a tango cap as without a tango garter. Truly, that's so. Ask the next tangoist you meet.

Some of the speedometers have been worn at a point midway between knee and ankle so the slit skirt displayed it. This is not considered good form by the most fastidious and correct tangoists. To be correctly worn it should be out of sight, and reading the meter during dancing hours is strictly taboo in the best circles.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

JOE, the huckster, turns into the street these mornings just as I am leaving for the office. Usually in the clear cool of the early morning things look fresh and green and mighty good, and possibly that's why I notice him so frequently. Then, too, a block or so up there's a smiling little woman who comes tripping out in a neat morning gown and a fresh white apron and hails Joe in a sweet, cheerful voice, quite as pleasant as the birds chirping in the trees.

I like the business-like way in which she goes over that wagon, discovering for herself just what he has to sell and what the quality of it is without any assistance from Joe. Watching her, I learn considerable about Joe's cargo. Indeed, I know more about it than my wife does.

For instance, one morning last week I was surprised to see corn—early corn, to be sure—but corn just the same. It was stacked in a great green heap at the side of the wagon, and looked mighty inviting as the first things of a season usually do. Likewise the trim little woman down the street was busily inspecting it, and that picturesque circumstance no doubt helped print it more firmly on my mind.

The days crept by, as days will, but at home we didn't seem to get any of that inviting corn. I thought of it one night at dinner.

"Mary," I suggested, "why don't we have some corn?"

"Canned?" asked Mary with the slight tinge of defiance she instils into her voice when she thinks I'm going to be critical.

"Eared!" said I flippantly. "I'm very fond of it."

"You might know you would be fond of something it's too early for," said Mary with an air of matronly rebuke. "That's the way with all men, Peter! They're always demanding things out of season and wondering why their wives can't get them. I'm not a magician, dear knows!"

Mary thinks that sort of thing is humorous. I don't. And I said so. Neither Mary nor I have the same ideas of humor. She doesn't appreciate mine, and I don't care for hers. Humor, I believe, has sex.

"Besides," I added, with a glint of triumph in my eyes, "corn is in the market. I've seen it."

"It's a great mystery to me, Peter," exclaimed Mary suspiciously, "where you see all these things that I don't. You're always seeing things out of season."

"Hum!" said I, and shot my final barb with married jubilance. "I happened to see this corn on the wagon of Joe, the huckster."

Mary looked annoyed.

"Well," she said helplessly, "I don't see why Joe didn't tell me. He certainly hasn't ever had any in the basket of stuff he brings round to the door."

"Why not go out to the wagon and look it over?" I suggested bluntly. "Then you wouldn't miss anything. You can't expect a man to carry samples of everything around to you in a basket of fairly limited capacity. It would be pretty tough in watermelon and pumpkin season." The last was meant to be humorous, but it didn't get over.

"Peter!" exclaimed Mary, and once more I was subtly aware that I had run aground some perverted notion of respectability with which my wife pampers a curious domestic snobbery. "You don't expect me to go out there and stand peering into a horrid jumbled load of vegetables like—like a servant!"

"Why not?" I begged.

"It's undignified and common!" said Mary. "Mamma wouldn't think of going out to a huckster's wagon."

There you are! Fool notion, isn't it? Mary would sooner sacrifice my comfort than her own mistaken sense of pride. Lots of women, I take it, consider it plebeian to go forth into the dusty road and inspect a huckster's cargo, even if, by so doing, they get the best choice of the morning.

Mary would rather sleep late, let me get my own breakfast, come trailing down in disordered negligee and take Joe's word for everything. More and more I take off my hat to that trim little woman down the street with her candid sense of values and her democratic independence. She knows her business.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

CLEANSING laces and embroideries is not difficult, if one understands just how to go about it. If they are very much soiled it is best to place them in white soapsuds in a glass or china bowl and stand in the sunshine for a day. At the end of that time shake them in the suds and, if the spots are not all removed, make a fresh bowl of soapsuds and repeat. Rinse in clear cold water and pat between towels in the hands till the water has been absorbed. Cover a glass milk bottle, or fruit jar, with an old napkin and wind the lace about it, being sure to have it smooth. Let it remain till it is thoroughly dry and never iron.

Embroideries require a different treatment. They should be ironed on the wrong side, while still damp, on a thickly padded board with a moderate hot iron. Don't rub the iron back and forth, but press it on each portion of the embroidery till it is dry.

Some things are so delicate one fears to wash them. If they are very soiled, shaking them in a jar of gasoline will cleanse them. If they are only a little soiled, mix cornstarch and magnesia calcium and bury the articles in the powder for a week, then shake till all the powder is removed and press under a weight.

Wine stains on table linen may be removed with a thorough soaking in alcohol followed by an hour's soak in cold water. Then hold over a bowl and pour boiling water through it.

There are many simple articles to be made at home which make life much easier for the houseworker. Many women complain of aching feet when they are obliged to stand in one place, as when ironing. This can be remedied by making a thick pad of denim filled with cotton and stitched or tacked. It will also lessen the discomfort of cold feet where one has to stand on oilcloth.

A small tin sprinkling pot, such as is used by the window gardener, is of much use in the kitchen. It makes the sprinkling of clothes an easy and expeditious task, and it is equally helpful in dampening the carpet or rugs before sweeping, as is often done to avoid the raising of dust.

Ink spots on a carpet or rug strike terror to the average housekeeper's heart. Keep your head and work quickly is the first rule to follow. First take up all the ink with cloths wet in warm water and don't rub. If there is enough ink to have soaked into the weave, let the cloths remain on until it is absorbed. Then rub the stained place with plenty of sweet milk. Afterward, when the ink is apparently gone, wash out the milk with very hot water. If there should be any grease marks remaining sponge with alcohol till they disappear.

There is nothing more irritating than to find sewing machine oil on some fine bit of sewing. Gasoline is the best way of removing it unless the material will stand washing, when white soap and cold water will usually take out the stain.

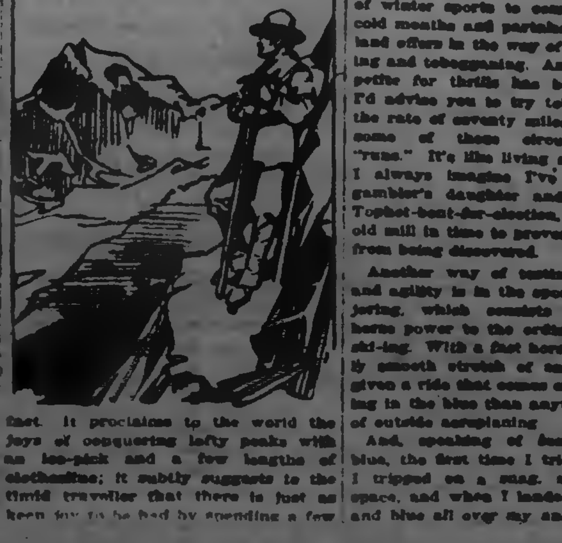
Three Minute Journeys

The Theater of the World

By Jonathan MacFarland

IF Shakespeare were living today, and were about to make his celebrated observation that the world is a stage and the inhabitants thereof merely players, he would be understood as having special reference to Switzerland, for no land on earth presents such a striking analogy to a theatre. Switzerland is a great big scenic drama, and its stage managers, property masters and actors lead the world in producing a spectacle that attracts a larger number of spectators than any theatre ever could.

Now Switzerland is a wondrously beautiful country. I can say that, I think, without fear of contradiction. If it wasn't, there wouldn't be hotels to the value of $200,000,000 sprinkled all over its surface; there wouldn't be hundreds of miles of cliff-scaling railroads that every year carry hundreds of thousands of tourists up to the regions of eternal snow and magnificent views.



The railroads of the country are owned by the government, and as a press agent the Swiss government is hard to beat. It is unequalled, in fact. It proclaims to the world the joys of conquering lofty peaks with an ice-pick and a few lengths of clothesline; it subtly suggests to the timid traveller that there is just as keen joy to be had by spending a few quiet weeks at a hotel on the shores of Lake Geneva; it calls to the lover of winter sports to come during the cold months and partake of what the land offers in the way of skating, skiing and tobogganing. And if your appetite for thrills has become jaded, I'd advise you to try tobogganing at the rate of seventy miles an hour on some of those circuitous Swiss "runs." It's like living a melodrama. I always imagine I've rescued the gambler's daughter and am racing-Tophet-bent-for-election, to reach the old mill in time to prevent the papers from being discovered.

Another way of testing your skill and agility is in the sport called ski-joring, which consists of applying horse power to the ordinary sport of ski-ing. With a fast horse and a fairly smooth stretch of snow, you are given a ride that comes closer to soaring in the blue than anything I know of outside aeroplaning.

And, speaking of soaring in the blue, the first time I tried ski-joring I tripped on a snag, shot through space, and when I landed I was sore and blue all over my anatomy.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

How to Obtain Relief From Itching Sensations

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D., (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

IT SEEMS that one essay upon the itch is far from enough. There are as many causes to come to the scratch as there are fleas upon a tomcat's back.

One little itch is enough for scratching and scraping, but, my hearties, what is to be said about every whipstitch of your skin itching? The Emperor Hadrian went once to the public baths. While there he saw an old Roman soldier scratching himself with a potsherd for want of a flesh brush. So he presented the bewitched fellow with some money.

The next day the public bath was crowded with potsherd scrapers. When the Emperor saw them he laughed, and said: "Scrape on, gentlemen, but you will not scrape an acquaintance with me."

Although most itching does not signify vermin and subdermal parasitic "itch" mites, ringworm fungi and bacteria, there is no doubt that where personal cleanliness is considered a superfluous nuisance, itching and scratching, those reigning twins of filth, are relatively less common.

Almost any sort of disturbance in the skin will incite itching. Chemicals from within the body may cause it. These collect in the course of liver troubles, kidney disorders, sugar stagnation, brain maladies, or stomach and intestinal distempers, which arise after you eat certain kinds of food.

Local anaesthetics, such as carbolated water, carbonate of soda, vinegar water, lime water, black wash, ice water and perspiration itself, all contribute in a way to stop itchy sensations.

Have you not observed that at times just before you perspire you "itch all over"? As soon as you break out into a sweat this disappears.

Itching somehow seems to be due to a poisonous irritation which stirs up the nerve ends. When due to such a source, hot sweat baths will relieve it.

A mixture of vinegar water and glycerine stops itching. Eau-de-cologne is also a sedative to the skin if there are cracks and crevices in the skin. These mixtures will burn like heaping hot fire-coals.

Absolute alcohol, although a powerful poison, in eczematous states of the skin, proves to be an angel of relief. It not only alleviates the itching of eczema, it hardens the skin and tends to aid other remedies in the cure of some varieties of this protean ailment.

Calomel ointment relieves the itching in some cases. Why it should do so not even an expert can tell. Yet it does. Ice sprays, such as carbonic acid ice, also relieve itching.

Beware of dope drugs. True enough, they stop the itching. In doing so, though, they make a slave of you and work incalculable damage.

Above all, do not consider "itching" a disease. It may be the symptom of different ones, from mere jaundice to Bright's disease. It is as much of a real malady as is "nervousness," "rheumatism," "uric acid" and "biliousness."

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

MISTER BEAVER was gnawing the bark off a tree when Brer Rabbit came along very slowly.

"What's the matter with you?" asked Mister Beaver. "You look very sad."

"My wife played a joke on me last night. She made me put a piece of wood on my back when I started out skating," said Brer Rabbit.

"That's too bad," replied Mister Beaver, still gnawing at the tree.

"I don't like to have jokes played on me," said Brer Rabbit.

"Is that because you like to play jokes on other people?" asked Mister Beaver, as he stopped his work.

"No," answered Brer Rabbit. "I don't play many jokes."

"You better run along now, for I am very busy. If you had something to do, you wouldn't have time to play jokes or have jokes played on you."

"If you will lend me your skates I will just skate around here without any wood on my back and my wife won't know anything about it."

"I don't mind how much you skate," said Mister Beaver, "so long as you don't bother me."

Brer Rabbit put on Mister Beaver's skates and went sailing around the pond.

By and bye Mrs. Rabbit came along on her way to see Mrs. Squirrel. She saw Brer Rabbit whirling around and she hid behind a tree to watch him. Pretty soon Brer Rabbit slipped and fell. "Bang!" went his head on the ice and there he lay stunned.

Mrs. Rabbit and Mister Beaver picked him up and carried him home and put him in bed.

When Brer Rabbit woke up Mrs. Rabbit was standing over him.

"Where am I?" he asked.

"You are at the bottom of the pond—drowned," said Mrs. Rabbit.

"Ouch!" said Brer Rabbit.

"What's the matter?" asked his wife.

"It hurts my poor head to laugh," said Brer Rabbit, as he turned over and went to sleep.

ALUMINUM COOKING VESSELS

Tests Show They Are Safe From a Medical Standpoint

Medical men have made tests of aluminum cooking vessels under the varied working conditions of the kitchen, and carefully determined the amounts of this element taken up by the different materials in contact with the vessels.

From the results, it seemed to be necessary to give warning against only carbonate of soda in aluminum and the long standing of pure water. Common salt, beefsteak, tomato soups, brussels sprouts and apples cause some darkening of the vessels but the slight traces of aluminum absorbed were not deemed sufficient to affect health.

With acetic or tartaric acid, there was no darkening or other indication of any action. Carbonate of soda alone gave strong blackening and showed much dissolved aluminum, and against the use of this dealers in aluminum ware have often given caution.

Water boiled in the vessels seemed to have no effect. It was on standing twenty-four hours exposed to the air that cold water caused a white gelatinous substance to be sweated out, and this proved to contain aluminum and silica. Even this combined action of water and air may be avoided by a film of oil over the water.

Beer or a Pension

"If a man was to save the price of a pint of beer a day from the time when he is 18 years old, he would have an old-age pension of $2.40 a week at 70," said Dr. Fraser, of the local government board, at the National Society, London.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a basket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always effects a cure. PLAYING THE FLUTE THROUGH THE NOSE

Strange Custom of Tribe of Agricultural Experts in the Philippine Islands

The Tinguians, who live in the northern part of the Island of Luzon, one of the Philippine group, are by no means savages, even if they do prefer a fashion which does not include much clothing. They are really expert farmers. Their country gets very little rain. So they terrace the rich soil on mountain sides from hill to hill down to the valleys. Then they divert mountain streams, controlling their flow [illegible] so that the streams [illegible] from one terrace to another, making the [illegible] and making it bloom like the rose.

Tinguian Playing Nose Flute

There are [illegible] interesting things to say about the Tinguians, but we started out to tell you about the Tinguian musicians who play flutes with their noses. This is the music which is played at the people's dances.

A plaintive little tune is played on the nose flute by gently blowing with one nostril while the other nostril is blocked with wax or any handy substance.

Lawyer and Suffragist

MISS SONYA LEVIN

Miss Sonya Levin emigrated from Russia at the age of five. She has managed by the hardest kind of work to climb the ladder. She is a lawyer connected with a big New York firm which on several occasions has entrusted her with important missions to Europe, because as they say, she "always comes back with the goods." Miss Levin in public speeches always denounces the anti-suffrage statement that the "working women do not want to vote."

WASHING BLANKETS

Windy, sunny days are ideal for washing and quickly drying blankets. An easy method to do this heavy work and have the blankets as fluffy and attractive as they were when new is first to see that the boiler is full of hot water. A package of borated soap powder is needed for every two pairs of blankets.

Into the first laundry tub, put not quite half a package of the soap powder, see that it is perfectly dissolved in a little warm water, then half fill the tub with warm, not hot water. Immerse one pair of blankets, pound and squeeze until the soapy water has thoroughly reached every inch of the surface. Now wring out the blankets. Two people can do this work so easily, one wringing in one direction and the other in the opposite. Never under any circumstances use a wringer, as doing so mats the fibre. Never rub soap on the surface. After wringing them out put in the second tub. This second tub contains the remaining half of soap powder and is three parts full of warm water. Thoroughly rinse the blankets in this soapy water, wring out and hang up to dry. Leave them on the line for a whole day and air again the second day before using them on the beds. If one adheres faithfully to this plan the result will be all that the most careful housewife can desire.

Gradation

Heaven is not reached at a single bound,
But we build the ladder by which we rise
From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies,
And we mount to its summit round by round.

I count this thing to be grandly true;
That a noble deed is a step toward God,
Lifting the soul from the common clod
To a purer air and a broader view.

We rise by the things that are under our feet,
By what we have mastered of good and gain;
By the pride deposed and the passion slain,
And the vanquished ills that we hourly meet.

Wings for the angel, but feet for men!
We may borrow the wings to find the way;
We may hope, and resolve, and aspire, and pray,
But our feet must rise or we fall again.

Prince as Mentor

On one occasion the present Prince of Wales and Prince Albert stayed in a nobleman's house in charge of their tutor. The princes were then quite small boys. They were given porridge at breakfast, and when the footman put the porridge—which was served in silver bowls—before Prince Albert, his Royal Highness said, "No, thank you!" The man just removing the bowl when the Prince of Wales, who was sitting opposite his brother, said: "Don't be an ass, Albert! Eat that porridge; it's good for you!" And his brother obeyed him.

OIL AND GAS

The Bureau of Mines Reviews Prospects in Canada

The annual report of the mines branch of the Department of Mines makes the statement that Canada possesses gas and oil fields of considerable value, which, if developed, may rival those of the United States. Hitherto, oil as liquid fuel has been used in North America only in the United States, and the report states that there is no reason why Canadians should not also avail themselves of its advantages. It also points out that an increasing demand for liquid fuel has of late constituted one of the outstanding features in power development; and observes that, while the oil business has generally been viewed as a gambling enterprise, and many companies have conducted it as such, the days of taking great chances are past. Dealing with the possibilities of the different Canadian provinces, the experts in the employ of the mines branch, who have compiled the report, say that in Alberta deposits are considerable, but the cost of drilling is high. Of the northern Alberta field, they point out, that it has as yet produced no oil in commercial quantities. The same is true of British Columbia and Manitoba. The district between Regina and Moose Jaw and the Alberta border in Saskatchewan is reported to offer chances for oil operators. The province of Quebec gives no indication at the present time of developing fields of either petroleum or natural gas. New Brunswick oil fields, however, show considerable promise, and of Ontario, the statement is made that "the production both of petroleum and natural gas is on the decline and the total depletion of the underground supply is approaching."

Bobcaygeon Man Hurt

A Bobcaygeon despatch says that Mr. Hamlet Freeman received a severe kick from one of his horses in the [illegible] on last Saturday, while he was working in the woods on the Galway Road. They drove him to the village with all haste and summoned Dr. Thorne, who applied all medical aid, and we are glad to state that he is doing as well as could be expected.

A Bad Accident.

Mr. Ward Graham of 561 Harvey street, was yesterday unable to work at his former job at [illegible]'s planing mill. His face was almost entirely bound up in bandages. It seems that whilst at work in the factory a piece of wood was flying from a saw [illegible] and struck him on the chin. His lower lip was cut open for an inch in length towards the chin. Dr. [illegible] attended him.

Six Years Too Long.

Messrs. Lake and Doherty from a town west of here, the identity of which for business reasons is omitted, arrived in the city yesterday morning and arranged with Messrs. C.J. Mr. Lake, asked by The Times "how are things in your town?" replied "Well, I've been there just six years too long. "How long have you been in that town." "Six years 'and I am now coming to Peterborough."

It would seem that Peterborough is to have four days of good racing next June. The Turf Club held a meeting at the Montgomery House. There were present Messrs. Valuable Horse Shot.

Yesterday morning P. C. Sills, at the request of Mr. Robert Gibbs, shot the fine white mare belonging to the latter's well known team. The mare had got a diseased leg and had to be put out of misery. The affair, at first could not work the mechanism of his "automatic" and had to go to the station for another gun. When the animal was shot, it took three bullets to end its misery. Mr. Gibbs and the man he bought the team from both cried. When a van came to take the dead horse away, after it was placed in the rig, Mr. Gibbs reverently covered its body with a tarpaulin, saying "There never was such a team in Peterborough before and there never will be again."

When The Sap Failed.

A married woman, living on Brock street, yesterday got a new ambition. In her back yard is a maple tree, with a trunk about as slim and graceful as what Sadie displays by her new slit skirt, when the weather changes. Yesterday this lady did what had she been a man, women have been characterised as, swerted. jShe remarked to her first born boy. 'What do you think of maple syrup at 40 cents a quart. You go out and tap that maple and we'll make our own syrup." The boy, knowing his mother's love of viewing a neighbor's doings, and, not liking the job, took a set of sleigh bells, and standing on the backsteps jingled them loudly. His mother asked: ";What on 'earth are you making that noise for, "Oh" replied the lad. "I thought our neighbors might like to see that tree tapped." It was not tapped.

Indian Not Arrested.

Yesterday a well known farmer of Otonabee was in the city on business. In conversation with a Times representative, the Otonabee man told of an Indian episode of some days ago. It seems that an Indian from Hiawatha had visited the city. Whilst here the Indian got outside of more whiskey than the law prescribes for our red brothers. On his way home, as he got near Zack Burnham homestead the alcohol imbibed got the better of the Indian. Several inches of snow lay on the land. Still the Hiawatha man peeled off every stitch of clothing he wore and "ran amock." A telephone message was sent to the city to the local police. Two officers responded to the call. When the cops got to Burnham's woods they drew their trusty automatics and did a sleuth act. With crouched bodies they slid from the cover of one tree to that afforded by the next. They discovered the Indian's clothes on the roadway. That's all.

Some Important Facts about the Silver Black Fox Industry

The Motto of Every Canadian Should be "What We Have, We INTEND to Hold"

In so far as it applies to Canada's national wealth, our forests, and more particularly the protection of our fur-bearing animals, which, however, would soon become but evidence of a great past unless husbanded by the foresight of men.

To the foresight of Prince Edward Island's practical men two of the most famous of Canada's fur-bearing animals, the Black and Silver Fox, have been saved to future generations—and as a consequence Canada will unquestionably furnish the world's great demand in future, for this princely fur exceeds its weight in gold!

Concerted action by shrewd Canadians now engaged in this industry in Prince Edward Island will shortly control all the available Black and Silver Foxes wherever found on this continent, a fact generally conceded by persons in authority—consequently this announcement is of great interest to the careful investor and believer in Canada's vast Fur Wealth.

The first island ranch was started with two pairs of Anticosti Silvers, bought from a trapper for experimental purposes solely, and same proved so successful that the fox industry started to be developed.

In the year 1910 a pair of breeders could be bought for $4,000.00; in 1911 the price went to $6,000, a pair, during 1912 a pair at $10,000.00 was considered high but not unusual and at the time of writing (January 28, 1914) live breeders can bring any price from $15,000.00 to $35,000.00, according to fecundity, and options on the unborn of next year are selling for $12,000.00 a pair.

About $16,000.00 is said to be invested in the fox industry on Prince Edward Island, showing a gain of over $2,000,000 inside a year.

Official returns for the present year show that the 277 fox ranches on the Island contain 899 silver breeding foxes (441 males and 458 females). The total number of silver offspring for 1913 was 788, and the average assessed value was $4,892.82 per fox.

The total valuation of the young silver black foxes for the current year is $3,249.440. The total number of silver foxes in the ranches for 1913 is 1,683.

Pelts from ranch-bred Prince Edward Island silver black foxes have sold at the London auction sales as high as $2,600.00.

ASSETS OF THE COMPANY

The Company has TEN PAIRS of high-grade PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND silver black foxes, EIGHT PAIRS are now on the ranch and two pairs of breeders under option all are eligible for registration under the select class "A" of the FOX BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION. These foxes have been selected with special regard to parentage, and consist of the following well known strains:

Gordon, Dalton, Tuplin, Oulton, Raynor and Champion. These names are conspicuously prominent in the Fox Industry ranches which in 1913 paid from 45 per cent to 900 per cent.

THE INDUSTRY

No industry in recent years has made such wonderful strides as the Black-Silver Fox Industry, and the reason is that it offers larger financial returns than any other business in the Dominion. Moreover, its future possesses unlimited opportunities, as the demand is constantly increasing, while the supply has reached almost a minimum until a few companies undertook the breeding and rearing of these valuable animals. Everyone who is alive to the opportunities of enormous profits without risk will readily appreciate the advantages of investing in the R. J. McNeill Black and Silver Fox Company, Limited. It is a fact that every bona fide fox company organized within the Province of Prince Edward Island has paid dividends of from 45 per cent to 300 per cent and some companies have even done better than this.

ONLY ONE CLASS OF STOCK

There is only one class of stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every shareholder participates pro rata in all dividends paid by the Company, and the latter has no authority to issue either Preferred Stock or Bonds.

FUTURE POLICY

The Company expects to earn large profits from the sale of these rare black and silver foxes for breeding purposes, while each year a percentage of the production will be retained, placing the company in a position to pay large dividends from the sale of furs alone. The object of this policy is to place the fur farming industry on a substantial commercial basis.

THE COMPANY'S RANCH

The Company owns outright a fine 211-acre farm with complete farm buildings—one of the most up-to-date ranches on the Island. It has an experienced and highly skilled keeper whose services have largely contributed to the present satisfactory condition of the business.

Clerks in the employ of Sinclair and Stewart, a big dry goods house at Summerside, formed a silver fox company in 1912. This company is popularly referred to as the "Widows" Fox Company, as nearly all the stockholders are women, a dividend of 900 per cent was their reward.

Three sisters of Alberton, P.E.I. who were employed in the United States, sent their spare earnings home two years ago to be invested in the fur farming business and their profits have averaged $25,000 yearly since.

A bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Fred L. Rogers, the Governor's son, of Alberton, invested $300 three years ago, and is now worth $45,000 directly from this source.

Mr. Frank Hall, clerk at Holman's, Limited, received $80,000 from an investment of $300 made in this business three years ago.

The Rosemount Live Stock Co., Limited, of Alberton, P. W. Turner, treasurer, has paid a dividend of 1,000 per cent this year.

Seven clerks and managers in Summerside pooled $300 each in 1910 and purchased a pair of silver foxes for $2,500. The seller, feeling that he had driven a splendid bargain, cared for the pair for a year. The first litter consisted of seven pups. The seven owners have received $236,000 each dividends since and the pair bought for $2,500 could be sold for $35,000 to-day. Mr. Austin Scales, of St. Eleanors, is a member of this Association.

SENATOR LODGE IS NOW OUT IN DEFENCE OF PRESIDENT WILSON

Treats With Lofty Contempt Opinion That U. S. is Subservient to England

Washington April 9.—Senator Lodge, ranking Republican member of the Foreign Relations Committee, addressed the Senate to-day in support of President Wilson's Panama Canal tolls policy. He maintained vigorously the legal right of the United States to exempt its shipping foreign as well as coastwise, from tolls, but declared that a decent respect to the opinions of mankind, and the "distrust" with which the United States is regarded abroad, demanded prompt repeal of the exemption clause of the canal act.

Regain Former Advantage.

"I am not in the councils of the President of the United States, but I believe that during the past year the present position of the United States in its foreign relations has become very apparent to him, as it has to other responsible and reflecting men, and with this appreciation of our present position has come the earnest wish to retrace some of our steps, at least and to regain so far as possible the high place which we formerly occupied.

Distrust and Dislike.

"It would be an obvious impropriety to point out the specific conditions of our present relations with the various nations, both in the old world and the new; it is enough to note the fact that we are regarded by other nations with distrust and in some cases with dislike. Rightly or wrongly, they have come to believe that we are not to be trusted; that we make our international relations the sport of politics and treat them as if they were in no wise different from questions of domestic legislation.

Would Call It "Truckling."

"I suppose that at this moment, in the midst of the adroitly stimulated passions raised against the President's recommendation that we should repeal the toll exemption, it will be thought very poor-spirited and even truckling—I believe that is the accepted word—to suggest that in deciding this question we should take into consideration the opinions of other nations."

A GOOD CANDIDATE

It would seem to be generally understood that an early election for the Ontario Legislature is within the horizon. Several names are on the "tapis" as possible candidates for Parliamentary honors for West Peterborough. Prominent among the names mentioned is that of Mr. R. J. Soden, the George street bookseller. Mr. Soden is a fluent debater and a successful business man and should make a strong bid for the nomination.

WORLD KNOWN DOWAGER EMPRESS OF JAPAN IS DEAD

Her Majesty Passed Away Suddenly From an Attack of Bright's Disease

Tokio, Japan, April 9.—The Dowager Empress of Haruko died at the Imperial villa at Numazu to-day. Following the usual custom in the case of the death of a member of the Imperial family, the official announcement of the event will not be made until the body has been transferred to the capital which is expected to take place to-morrow.

Emperor Was Present.

Her Majesty passed away suddenly in the presence of Emperor Yoshihito, the Empress and the other members of the Royal Family, who had been summoned from the Capital.

The Imperial patient had developed deceptive symptoms. She displayed increased vigor and asked for food. A short time afterwards her Majesty became unconscious. The doctor in attendance applied restoratives, but without avail, and she died without recovering sensibility.

Bright's Disease Cause.

Her Majesty had been suffering for a considerable period from angina pectoris, but the official diagnosis declared the direct cause of her death to be Bright's disease

The late Dowager Empress Haruko was the widow of Emperor Mutsuhito who died on July 30th, 1912. Her Imperial Majesty was born on May 28th, 1850.

Not of Royal Blood.

She was a daughter of a nobleman, Ichijo Tadado. In 1869 she was married to the late Emperor and was declared Empress.

Haruko, by the side of her husband passed through the troubled period of the transformation of Japan at the beginning of Mutsuhito's reign. She saw him transfer his capital from Kioto to Yedo, which was later renamed Tokio

CARRIES DEAD BABE IN ARMS TO BURIAL

New York, April 9.—"This package contains the body of my baby Carmella," said a ragged Italian today when he walked into the Coroner's office in the Bronx and laid a little bundle on the desk of Clerk William Brown.

"I am too poor to bury my baby," the man went on while Brown gasped "I am John Grasso, of 2477 Belmont avenue, I am tired. I cannot go further. I walked 31 blocks to the board of health and they told me they could not bury my baby until you gave me a permit. So I walked the long way back again."

ASTOR SETTLES $10,000 DAMAGE SUIT FOR $2,100

White Plains, April 9.—Vincent Astor settled for $2,100 a damage suit brought against him for $10,000, C. E. Palmer claimed young Astor in 1910 drove his automobile from a side street in Irvington out into the main thoroughfare and struck a motor cycle Palmer was riding, breaking the machine and injuring Palmer.

A jury in supreme court has been drawn to try the case when counsel agreed upon a settlement.

JACK KRAFCHENKO IS FOUND TO BE GUILTY OF MURDER

Man Who Held Up Bank and Killed Manager Arnold is Convicted

Morden, Man., April 9.—After a 20-day trial Jack Krafchenko was today declared guilty of murder. Krafchenko is the bandit who on December 3, last, held up the Bank of Montreal at Plum Coulee and shot dead the manager, H. M. Arnold. Later he was arrested in Winnipeg, but escaped in a sensational manner from Winnipeg jail. Caught a week later he was held for trial here. Two aides, Hasel and Westlake are serving terms for helping him.

The case went to the jury at noon. About two hours elapsed before a verdict of guilty was delivered.

No Room for Sentiment.

"There is no room in the jury box any more than is on the Judge's bench for weak sentimentality," said Chief Justice Mathers. "The duty may be stern, it may even be repugnant to our natural feelings, but it is a duty which must nevertheless be personally and fearlessly faced."

His Lordship pointed out that a manslaughter verdict might always be found on an indictment for murder though this right was not to be exercised arbitrarily.

Either Murder or Acquittal.

"To justify a verdict of manslaughter in this case," he said, "you must conclude that the shot was fired without any intention either to kill or to do bodily injury, likely to result in death."

"I must say that I can see nothing in either the sworn evidence or circumstances that would reasonably support such a finding.

"In my view your verdict must either murder or acquittal.

"The question, however, is one for you to decide. I do not withdraw the question of manslaughter from you."

FLYING BEATS TANGO, SAYS GIRL AFTER TRIP

Gulfport, Miss., April 9.—Flying over the blue waters of the gulf of Mexico, Miss Elsie Gary, a New Orleans and Gulfport society favorite, created a mild stampede here Saturday morning when she made her first aeroplane flight.

Dared by several of her girl friends, Miss Gary told Aviator Maroney she would be his passenger for his morning flight over the waters of the bay and while her companions gasped Miss Gary mounted the Curtis machine and took her place beside the aviator. The next minute the machine was bounding over the sands of the beach and with propellor whirling the biplane took the air and the daring girl in another moment was waving her handkerchief to her girl friends, hundreds of feet below her.

After the flight, which was of some duration, Miss Gary said she had had the experience of her life.

"I am no longer a tender-wing" she said laughingly, "but a sure enough aviator and I'm simply dying for another chance to fly. As for sensation it is way ahead of the tango and the one-step and I am now in favor of flying machine cotillions."

OWNER CANNOT BE HELD LIABLE IF NOT IN AUTO

Washington, April 9.—The supreme court has annulled as unconstitutional a section of the Michigan automobile law making the owner of a motor car responsible for injuries irrespective of who was running the machine.

Expenses of Hotel Inspector in Scott Act Contests Worries Member--Mr. Snider Must Explain

Toronto, April 9.—Mr William Proudfoot Liberal member for Centre Huron, is worried over the actions of Mr. W. K. Sidney, Inspector of Hotels and Hotel Equipment, during the recent Scott Act campaign in Huron, Peel and Welland counties. Mr Snider has been instructed to present his expense account for the year ending October 31, 1913, to the Public Accounts Committee. The Liberal member urged in the Accounts Committee this morning that Mr Sniders expenses for the present year should also be presented. Mr G. Howard Ferguson, the Chairman objected and laid down the rule that only matters that had to do with the public accounts for 1913 should be dealt with.

Mr. Proudfoot then asked that the committee request the House to give them the power to investigate the accounts of Mr. Snider during January, 1914. Mr Ferguson ruled the Liberal member out of order and was sustained on a vote of the committee by 9 to 4.

Mr. Proudfoot then asked that the investigation of the license inspector stand over until he could bring the matter before the House. He based his arguments for an investigation of Mr. Sniders actions during the recent Scott act campaign on the reports in the newspapers and the introduction of the subject into the debates in the Legislature. This request was granted.

No Hairs Will Remain If You Apply This Method

(Beauty Notes.)

For ridding the skin of ugly hairy growths, there is nothing better than this quick, painless, inexpensive method: Make enough paste with powdered delatone and water to cover the objectionable hairs; apply, and after 2 or 3 minutes, scrape off, wash the skin and it will be left smooth, clear and hairless. By having a small package of delatone handy, you can keep the skin free from hair or fuzz with very little effort.

INTERESTING BIBLE LECTURES

General Public Invited to Opening Of Bible Lecture Course on Sunday at the Royal Theatre.

The International Bible Students' Association, comprising Christian people from all denominations, is this year forwarding a world-wide movement to advance public education in the Bible. Many ministers and laymen are uniting their efforts, selecting the most important themes, giving the scriptures on these subjects the most careful study, and presenting the results of their research to the public in all nations and languages. A series of these unsectarian Bible lectures has been arranged for this place the opening lecture discussing the subject, "Beyond the Grave." It will be delivered Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Royal Theatre, by Pastor T. P. Yates, of Hamilton.

The speaker is said to be very able on the platform. He has spent much time in Biblical research, travel and evangelistic work. Unsectarian in his Christian people can enjoy alike. His only creed is the Bible and he advobeliefs, he has a message which all cates that all Christian people lay aside petty differences and study the Scriptures together. The opening of the lecture course will be in the nature of a mass meeting. All who are desirous of hearing the Bible harmoniously interpreted are invited to attend. No charge will be made for admission and no collection mentioned.

Owing to the Union Service in the Murray street Baptist Church, the W.F.M.S. meeting in St. Paul's Church has been postponed until April 17th.

IRISH CATHOLICS OF OTTAWA AROUSED OVER CHURCH ORDER

Brother of Bishop Fallon, Himself Asked to Leave Capital, Moves to Quebec

Ottawa, April 9.—A sensational incident in connection with the bilingual issue developed here to-day in the announcement that Father James Fallon of Ottawa University, brother of Bishop Fallon, of London, who took a prominent part on the side of the Irish ratepayers in the recent separate school trustees election in St. George Ward, bitterly contested between French and Irish candidates, had been removed from Ottawa under orders from the provincial of the Order of Mary Immaculate, Rev. Father Wm. Charlebois, of Montreal.

PASTOR YATES
Who will deliver a series of Bible Lectures in the Royal Theatre

He Obeyed at Once.

Father Fallon received his "obedience" yesterday afternoon, instructing him to proceed not later than this morning to a parochial house under the provincial's jurisdiction at Cap de la Madelaine, Que. He immediately obeyed, leaving Ottawa at 8 o'clock last night. Rev. Father Roy, rector of the University, declined to comment on the affair to-day, but it is learned that Father Fallon will probably be sent to a mission station in the west.

Irish Clergy Roused.

The incident has created a furore of indignation among the Irish clergy and laity of Ottawa, and it is probable that a strong protest will be lodged with the church authorities. A similar incident surrounding the removal of Bishop Fallon, then parish priest at St. Joseph's church here, to Buffalo some years ago, caused much ill feeling in Roman Catholic circles.

STOP
Tea and Coffee Drinkers,
And think a minute!

Some persons seem able, for a time at least, to get along with tea and coffee, but they contain a subtle, habit-forming drug, caffeine which sooner or later is pretty sure to rob one of health and comfort.

If you know tea and coffee don't harm you—if you feel prime and fit under their continued use, well and good—stick to 'em.

BUT—if you are sometimes a bit "off color" and irritable nerves, disturbed heart action, biliousness, headache, or symptoms of liver and kidney trouble make you wonder what's the matter—

Better find out what tea or coffee has to do with it.

Some people are learning the truth about tea and coffee, for there's a mighty army of former tea and coffee drinkers who now use and enjoy freedom from their old aches and pains.

Postum made of whole wheat and a bit of molasses, is a delicious table beverage absolutely free from the drugs, caffeine and tannin, which make tea and coffee a menace to health.

If you are interested in bettering yourself—think it over!

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder, requires no boiling. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

QUEBEC FORESTRY

Forestry Engineers Who Work on Scientific Principle

The day of the ruthless pioneer is long past in the Province of Quebec, and the valuable forests which densely clothe such an enormous area are no longer regarded as an obstacle in the path of civilization. On the contrary, they are being carefully conserved, and forestry engineers, working on scientific principles, are being increasingly employed. The old haphazard methods are giving place to organized effort. There are six million acres of private forests in the province, and seventy-nine million acres of forests under government control. The work of classification and exploration will necessitate the employment of a great number of agents for a long period. Retimbering is beginning to assume truly colossal proportions, no less than 200 firms at the present time being engaged in lumber work in the Province of Quebec. Seven of these firms are now employing forestry engineers, and it is certain that several of the owners will soon follow their example, thus affording excellent opportunities for the engineers, who are being trained at the Forestry School.

BEDS OF IRON ORE

Ungava Bay Islands Are Believed to Have Great Wealth

Two islands in Ungava Bay are said to contain about 465,000,000 tons of iron ore. The manager of a company there was the pioneer in that country, going north in 1907. He made several expeditions to explore the country, and located minerals. A number of claims have been staked, and from $50,000 to $60,000 expended on work on Clarke, Armstrong and Curran Islands. The three islands, which form part of the Nastacoka group on the eastern side of the Hudson Bay, are part of the Dominion lands. The eastern mainland, however, which was Ungava, is now part of the Province of Quebec. The islands are about five miles from the mainland. Clarke Island, which is the largest of the three held by the company, measures about 2,960 acres; Armstrong Island, farther north, measures about 500 acres, and Curran Island, north of that, measures 890 acres. All the ore is of the finest quality. The beds vary from 7 to 15 feet in thickness. It is thought that the ore will be smelted on the islands. An expedition will leave Montreal probably in April.

Our Sermon for the week

BY REV. BYRON H. STAUFFER

Pastor Bond Street Congregational Church, Toronto

WHEN JESUS PAID HIS TAXES

Text: "Notwithstanding, lest we should offend them, go thou to the sea and cast an hook, and take up the fish that first cometh up; and when thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt find a piece of money; that take, and give unto them for me and thee."—Matt. XVII. 27.

So Jesus paid His taxes. He might have refused and said, "I am the Son of God; kings' sons pay no taxes." But He didn't claim His right. He might have drawn sixty cents, by miracle, from His pocket. But it pleases me to think that He had Peter go back to his trade for the moment and there find the means to pay the assessment. It was a Jewish head tax which they thus paid. It was for the maintenance of the temple and its services. But what it was for does not so much matter, for at another time He conceded the equity of the Imperial tax as well. It is enough to remember that He paid it.

So the simplest lesson I can draw is that Jesus paid His taxes. That may be the narrower lesson of the incident. But we can afford to stand and look across the landscape of this bare proposition a moment. He paid His share. He "held up His end." He didn't look the other way when the plate was passed. I am very sure that He was public-spirited and unselfish. Do you know what the worst part of the treating system is? It is that it calls out, at an unfortunate time, a very desirable quality of character. The last man in the row (pronounced to rhyme with ho and not with how) in front of the bar, must encourage excess to prove himself fair. Three friends have "treated" him. If he walks away he is thought unfair, and he thinks himself unfair. He must say: "Another round, boys!" That's the bad part of the treating system, even if "soft" drinks are indulged in. I think Jesus would have refused the first drink. But I am sure that if He drank in the first round, He would have paid for the last. He would have paid His share, out at Scarboro Beach, at the Exhibition, anywhere where He participated in the benefits.

The temple had to be maintained, with its beauty, its utility, its services. The church must be supported in its various purposes. So the city in which we live, and the country which claims our loyalty must be maintained. And it is a very large indication of Christian spirit to bear one's part of the cost of maintenance without evasion or whimpering.

Taxation is a blessing of civilization. Baffin's Land has no taxes to meet, but nobody is there to pay them. A few years ago the Temiskaming country had no taxation, but with the advent of the sturdy settlers, roads and bridges were needed, then schools, public buildings, asylums, jails, poorhouses; then sewers and waterworks, street pavement and lighting. Thus the taxation of New Liskeard and Cobalt will grow higher as the conveniences of civilization grow more imperative. When you get to Toronto, you find advantages still running neck-and-neck with taxation. The house-holder may boast of the city's schools, its libraries, its streets, its city hall, in one breath. He may complain of the assessor's office in the next breath, but he has an honest pride in the joint wealth of the city. The city hall tower and clock is a necessity, not an ornament. Public buildings of dignity help to maintain the proper respect toward the commonwealth, just as people are less boisterous in a tapestried drawing-room than they would be on a barn floor. The Legislature might meet in an old rink, but it would not be seemly, and you would blush with shame if you found the fathers of the province sitting in quarters out of keeping with this great state. Similarly the pride of the Jew was his temple. And the Master, in paying the head-tax, was saying: "I hold up my end; I pay my share."

So a considerable part of patriotism is to shoulder one's share of the public expense. National loyalty does not consist in making faces across Niagara's gorge, nor in singing the national anthem in the presence of foreigners. I knew an old Yankee who never could see a church concert or lecture close without shouting: "Sing 'My Country 'Tis of Thee.'" But the old rascal also "swore off" his taxes. Patriotism isn't even standing in your place and joining in singing, "God Save the King," while ill-mannered folks are moving toward the door. It is rather a proud sense of co-partnership with the crown in maintaining the essential honor of a country.

It is wicked to avoid taxation. Everybody knows that, you say. But evidently everybody doesn't feel that it is very wicked. I think I can convince you of that. It is estimated that in every large centre of population there is four times as much personal property as there is real property. Yet in this city, as in nearly every other metropolis, only about one-fourth as much personal property appears on the assessor's books as there does real property. Hence by far the majority of mortgage and bond holders forget to make returns of their holdings, while their neighbors cannot avoid an assessment on their property, because it happens to be real estate.

Hence one class of investors endeavor to saddle the support of the city and nation on the other class, and usually the poor man must pay the taxes. I say, in the end, the man who can ill-afford it, pays the taxes. Poor John Jones is struggling to pay for his house, assessed for $3,000. Rich Peter Smith holds a mortgage for $2,000 on that house. Poor John Jones pays $100 taxes on the house in which he [illegible] only a third interest, while rich Peter Smith escapes taxation entirely, though he has two-thirds interest in that house. It is just so with every species of indirect tax. The poor man cannot avoid any part of it. The rich man pays only a small part of his just proportion. All schemes of assessment seem to fail to reach the dishonest man who chooses to be selfish enough to let his poorer neighbor pay for his share of police and fire protection and other blessings of the municipality or commonwealth.

A little broader lesson of the text is that we should deal squarely with the Government. There are people who fancy that it is no very grievous offence to smuggle a fur coat or a gold watch across the lines. They are the people, very often, who would scorn to cheat their neighbors or steal from a stranger. But when it comes to wearing three suits of underwear or staggering under the weight of two silk dresses while crossing Niagara's gorge—why they boast of it as soon as they get back to their country. They think they are justified in robbing the government. They think the same about the street railway company. A man, his wife and his little boy mounted a Parliament street car during the exhibition. He was evidently not a resident of Toronto for he prepared to pay cash fares and got ready his change. The conductor passed him by, evidently thinking that he had already collected the fare. Then that man quietly turned his hand over so as to hide the coin; then slowly drew the hand back until he could drop the silver into the pocket from which it had come. And when the conductor had disappeared, the little boy put his mouth up to his father's ear and whispered, "Daddy, you didn't have to pay, did you?" Some day that boy's dishonesty may land him in jail. Then the parents will say, "Alas, how could he do it, in spite of all our good training."

Stealing from the treasury of country or city should be looked upon as a serious crime. Yet right here in Toronto and Ontario are many fairly decent citizens who listen to stories of corruption or waste with a smile. It seems almost impossible to arouse the public conscience on matters of graft. Even the church is not yet quite prepared to denounce this species of sin. It is safer to declare against the brewer than against the corruptionist. The exposures of methods in several civic departments of Toronto have neither aroused the citizens nor prompted the authorities to attempt a thorough reform.

The lesson broadens until it teaches us unselfish honesty in discharging all obligations. The honesty of the individual is the only cure for all oppressions. Under any system of government we would still be dependent on the honesty of the individual. Men should remember that the only road to happiness is along the line of unselfishness. No man can really enjoy wealth which is obtained by defrauding commonwealth, corporation or individual.

I know a man who will never dare to flourish a roll of bills. He will always be compelled to turn away from the gaze of bystanders when he draws out his pocketbook. He never can boast that he is comfortably fixed. And, by the way, have you ever noticed how few people, comparatively, can be induced to confess that they are well off? They seem to fear that making the admission may shortly cost them something. The assessor, too, might hear of it. Methinks if I were rich I should like to tell about it once in a while; point to you house and announce that I am going to have a new veranda added next spring; comment on the price of New York Central and say that I expect to buy a little more of it if it goes down to a hundred.

Well, this poor fellow I was speaking of dare never indulge in that kind of pleasure, though I suspect that he could do so truthfully. The reason is that he had not paid what he owes. He has unsatisfied judgments out against him. There are those who are watching him, hoping to discover where he keeps his pile, so he keeps the location of the pile a secret. He has no employment; he must be classed as a vagrant, having no visible means of support. Yet he looks very comfortable. He wears good clothes, and dines on succulent steaks. He and his wife take rather extravagant vacations and go to the best shows. But for fifteen long years they have never been heard to say one word about their circumstances.

Is not that an awful life to live? And all because he holds what someone else ought to possess. He never intends to pay up. Consequently his life is dwarfed; he has no close friends; he lives alone in the world to about the same extent as if he had absconded to New Zealand. He is being automatically punished for having broken God's law.

Oh that our preachers would say more about this class of sins! We have bitter denunciation for transgressions that vividly appeal to our imagination. We can easily arouse [illegible]

[illegible] look with horror upon them, forgetting that they are really abnormal phases of virtues. But the meaner sins of selfish greed cast men into an earthly hell which makes the drunkard's lot look like paradise.

For remember that God is the author of all rules of commercial morality. He framed the first statute against short weights, and wrote it upon the fleshy tables of our hearts. All who break His code lose the seat, [illegible]

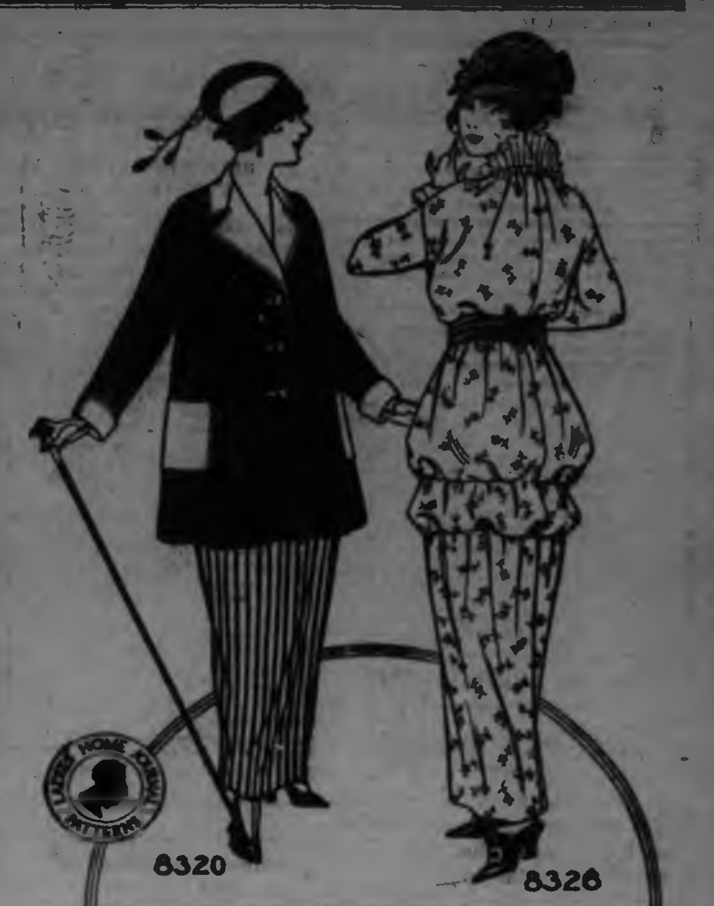
EDDY'S FIBREWARE TUBS

AND PAILS RETAIN THE HEAT OF THE WATER MUCH LONGER THAN THE WOODEN OR GALVANIZED IRON ONES — ARE CHEAPER THAN THE LATTER — WILL LAST LONGER AND DOES NOT RUST THE CLOTHES.



THE FLARE GIVES THE NEW NOTE TO THE SPRING COAT.

Although the sports coat of brightly hued, light-weight wool is still popular, there is a new top-coat, cut on somewhat more conservative lines, fashioned of covert or tweed which promises to be a general favorite this spring. These coats, as a rule, show the raglan shoulder, deep cuffs, large patch pockets and a decided flare at the bottom. They are smart and English in appearance to a degree. For general wear, of course, the almost invisible tweed mixtures and plain coverts are the thing, but there are also some unusually attractive colored checks that will be seen a great deal.

A single breasted coat with raglan shoulder, broad cuffs, fashioned of plain covert is shown in No. 8320. It requires for size 36 3⅝ yards of 42 inch material. The dainty frock of flowered crepe illustrated in the other number, 8326, is suitable for afternoon at the present time or a little later in the season. It would be quite as attractive fashioned of a plain material, and if taffetas were used it would be appropriate for almost any occasion. The straight front and the puffed effect in back is one of the season's new features.

This dress requires for size 36 5⅞ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8320—sizes 34 to 44.
No. 8326—sizes 34 to 42.
Each pattern 15 cents.

A CLEVER CUT RENDERS A SIMPLE FROCK DISTINCTIVE.

While there is nothing especially new in the cut of the little maid's frock, there are novel touches here and there that count for much. The straight lined little dress with long, French waist, belted or sashed with a contrasting color or Roman striped silk, is one of the most favored models, although there are some short-waisted designs that are extremely dainty. The model shown in No. 8353 is a semi-princess dress showing an unusual cut to the front of the bodice; the one piece skirt is cut in one with the lower part of the bodice. There is a short peplum in back which is cut in one with the back of the waist.

For a girl of sixteen this dress requires 4⅝ yards of 36 inch material. This is an excellent design for a lingerie material, cotton voile or one of the new sheer crepes; these range in width from 36 to 42 inches and may be purchased from 75 cents a yard and up.

A low belted frock of figured crepe is illustrated in No. 7837. There is a drop shoulder, a tucked yoke and an elbow length sleeve. The Roman striped sash is one of the new features and a very pleasing one indeed.

For a child of eight, this design requires 2¼ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8353—sizes 14 to 18.
No. 7837—sizes 4 to 12.
Each pattern 15 cents.

BRITAIN'S "MONA-IDEAISTS"

A British authority on insanity says that the militant suffragettes are not insane, their acts of violence being merely the expression of a deviltry which is "the essence of all fanatics and faddists." He defines this as a condition of "mona-ideaism," and if he is correct in his diagnosis it should have the effect of inducing the British law-makers to revise their statutes so that fanatics and faddists who commit crime as a method of drawing attention to themselves can be punished in a way that is not farcical.

During the past two years Mrs. Pankhurst and her followers have, it is claimed, destroyed property worth $2,500,000, and as they show no indication of changing their ways there are likely to be large additions to this total before they can be brought under control. It is a disgrace to British civilization that these female cranks should be permitted to run at large destroying property at will, and when put in jail to starve themselves out in a few days.

This is too true to be questioned. Mrs. Pankhurst may be a "mona-ideaist," but at the same time she is a common criminal, not on whit better than the hundreds of law-breakers confined in British jails, of whom the world has never heard.

Magic "Nerviline" Cures Toothache, Earache

IT RELIEVES EVERY EXTERNAL PAIN

Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Tight Chest and Hoarseness

It's when sickness comes at night, when you are far from the druggist or the doctor, that's when you need Nerviline most. Experienced mothers are never without it. One of the children may have toothache. Without Nerviline—a sleepless night for the entire household. With Nerviline the pain is relieved quickly. It may be earache, perhaps a stiff neck, or one of the kiddies coughing with a bad chest cold. Nothing can give quicker results than vigorous rubbing with this old-time family remedy.

Nerviline is too useful, too valuable to be without. For lumbago, lame back, sciatica or neuralgia there is no liniment with half of Nerviline's power to penetrate and ease the pain.

As a family safe-guard, as something to ward off sickness and to cure the minor ills that will occur in every family to cure pain anywhere, you can find nothing to compare with old-time Nerviline, which for forty years has been the most widely used family remedy in the Dominion. The most economical size is the large 50c. family size bottle, small trial size 25c. All dealers sell Nerviline.

MALDEN OFFICER KILLS HIMSELF

Assistant Inspector Perham Puts Bullet in Brain When Wife Leaves Room.

Boston, April 4.—While his wife had left the supper table to go to the cellar Assistant Police Inspector Arthur E. Perham of Malden stepped into the hall and put a bullet through his brain, at his home on Mt. Pleasant avenue yesterday evening shortly after six o'clock. He died instantly.

His wife, coming back, saw the flash of the revolver, but could only call help. Perham had been ill for about three weeks and had been to the hospital for an X ray examination Sunday, after it was feared that Bright's disease had set in.

He was an efficient officer of the Malden force, and was on the promotion list, as within a year he had been advanced to the position of assistant inspector. He joined the Malden police department in 1894 and remained as a special officer for about 2 years until the department changed over. In 1904 he was reappointed, this time as a regular patrolman and was assigned to headquarters, where he was janitor for a time and later drove the patrol.

He leaves besides his wife, a son A. E. Perham, Jr., a daughter, Gladys, in the Malden high school, and a daughter Mrs. Arthur Boutellier, all of Malden. He was a past councillor in the Knights of Pythias and the member of the Golden Cross.

SANCHEZ AND DODD DEATHS NOT SUICIDE

Miss Anna Burke Demands Inquiry Into Double Tragedy.

New Orleans, April 3.—The Roman Catholic church refused Friday to bless either of the bodies of Rivers P. Sanchez or Mamie Dodd. The refusal was based on the presumption the two who were found dead in City park Thursday afternoon had entered on a suicide pact. As a result both went to their graves without the last rites of the church being performed over their bodies.

A second sensation followed this announcement, when Miss Anna, better known as "Baby" Burke, Sanchez's sister-in-law, asked for a reinvestigation by the police into the shooting, on the theory that the bodies might have been placed in the park by unknown persons, or that the girl, instead of Rivers, might have done the shooting. Miss Burke found bruises on his body, which she said could have been sustained when he fell lifeless to the ground. The police have agreed to a further investigation, but hold to the theory of a suicide pact.

POLICE SAY MAN DID KILLING

Police Superintendent Jas. W. Reynolds and Assistant Coroner C. William Grostech scoff at theories other than those already advanced. They say it is plainly shown that the man killed the girl and then himself, after she had written the farewell note to her mother.

At the home of Miss Dodd early Friday, neither her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dodd, at 816 Port street, nor her two sisters, Mrs. J. Hannon, Miss Elizabeth Dodd or her brother, Theodore, would have anything to say to reporters. Thursday night Mrs. Dodd had made the statement that Mamie was a good girl, at least up until the time she met Sanchez. She admitted his having called upon her at their home, and of Mrs. Sanchez, his wife, having told her that he was a married man. Reporters calling at the house before the funeral received rebukes from those in the house.

Mrs. Sanchez, the widow, was in tears when seen Friday. She begged that she be quoted as saying that Sanchez's sisters were responsible for the trouble on account of their inviting her husband to entertainments where he was introduced to young girls. Then she gave the warning to young girls, advising them to restrain from having anything to do with married men if they did not want to bring ruin upon themselves, the men and all concerned.

CHILD A BAR TO AN EASY DIVORCE

Judge Petit Says All Minors Should Be Provided for or No Decree

Chicago, April 9.—No divorce should be granted any person who has a minor child unless the child shall have been provided for to the satisfaction of the court is the conclusion of Adelor J. Petit, chief justice of the circuit court, in an analysis made public today of the first annual report of the new municipal bureau of divorce and marriage statistics.

The close relations between divorce courts and the juvenile court, as indicated in the number of petitions for the care of dependent or delinquent children is the outstanding feature of Judge Petit's analysis. Juvenile court records since July, 1899, showed 50,368 petitions for the care of children Of these, the report indicated approximately 33,750 cases were the direct result of divorces or the neglect of parents through drunkenness, or desertion, which would have constituted sufficient grounds for divorce.

"Twenty cases were selected at random from the 340 cases filed in the juvenile court in January," said Judge Petit. "We found six children were in the hands of the court as the direct result of divorce, five as a result of fathers' drunkenness and four because of desertions.

"This same ratio in the 50,368 cases in the juvenile court would have made 33,750 children there for the causes which either led to a divorce or would entitle a woman to divorce.

BURNS TO LIFT VEIL IN FACTORY MURDER

Attorneys and Friends of Leo Frank Expect Report Before Sunday.

Atlanta, Ga., April 9.— Attorneys for Leo M. Frank, under sentence of death for the murder of Mary Phagan said today that the results of Wm. J. Burns' investigation of the case had not yet been made known to them. They predicted, however, that the detective's findings would be placed in their hands soon after the arrival of Burns from Chicago.

Burns, who has been investigating the killing of the little factory girl for nearly a month at the instance of Frank's friends, was quoted in press dispatches from Chicago as saying he had submitted his report to the Frank attorneys. It is thought he may have forwarded a report by mail, and later decided to deliver his conclusions in person.

His lieutenants, who have been at work here several weeks, said to-day the investigation was practically complete, and reiterated the declaration of their belief that a report would show conclusively who killed Mary Phagan.

They would not intimate, however, whether their findings showed the condemned factory superintendent to be the murderer.

Frank's execution is set for April 17, but an extraordinary motion for a new trial to be filed on April 16, will automatically stay his sentence.

GIRL WIDOW GETS FORTUNE

Oswego, N.Y., April 9.—Rose Bequillard Woodruff, the 19-year-old Syracuse University student whose marriage to George Norman Woodruff of Mexico, this county, was revealed at his funeral fourteen months after the ceremony, receives about $25,000 from his $70,000 estate. Woodruff, at the age of 18, was attending Hamilton College when he inherited his fortune recently from his uncle. His bride was a friend of the Woodruff family and reputed fiance of the wealthy young Mexican at whose home she lived and whose mother was believed to be paying her expenses through Syracuse University.

What Are Meteors

Meteorites, or air stones, are metallic or stony masses of matter falling from the sky, and the fire meteors, which are occasionally seen rushing through the air with an average velocity of more than 30 miles per second, seem to be aeroilites, which have escaped contact with this planet. The latest theory of earth origin, the planetismal hypothesis, considers the earth as wholly made by an the infall of meteoric matter. Physicists consider meteorites as merely fragments of the innumerable interplanetary bodies, which form a part of the solar system.

Hindoos Like Soda Water

India has succumbed to the lure of soda water fountains. Religion forbids the use of alcoholic beverages and there is nothing that prohibits the use of aerated waters. Even the high caste natives raise no objection to it, having been made by machinery, they consider it is free from the contamination of strange hands.

CANADIAN DON'TS

Useful Hints to Intending Emigrants From England

Some useful hints to those contemplating investments or settlement in Canada were given by Hon. W. R. Scott, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for British Columbia, in an address in London:

"Do not," he said, "put money into anything without careful investigation of its merits."

"Do not expect 100 per cent. profit in a short time without risks."

"Do not buy agricultural lands without first seeing them and satisfying yourself that they are as represented. If you want to buy land and cannot inspect it for yourself, employ a competent judge to report as to its capabilities and value."

"Do not expect to get the best results from farming and fruit growing if you have no knowledge of this business."

"Do not believe all the statements you hear as to profits. There are good profits to be made, but there have been a number of statements circulated which are not justifiable."

"Do not put all your money into land. Enough should be retained to provide for stocking, implements, and living expenses until the returns begin to come in."

Mr. Scott added some "don'ts" for parents who are thinking of sending their sons overseas:

"Do not send your boy out just because you do not know what to do with him at home," he said. "Satisfy yourself that he has a natural liking for outdoor life and is physically adapted for it."

"Do not send him out with plenty of money, knowing that he has only to apply for more to get it. Throw him on his own resources."

"Do not pay a premium. If the boy has anything in him at all he is worth his board."

"Do not send a boy to an agricultural college in this country. Conditions of farming here and in Canada are altogether different."

CHEAP MONEY FOR FARMERS

The movement for cheaper money for the farmer is attracting the attention of many not closely identified with agriculture. Prof. H. Michell, Kingston, makes a strong plea for the farmer in this connection. He said: "A farmer is not in the position of a merchant with a large and quick turnover, with money coming in every day over the counter, who can discount a bill of lading and obtain advances from the bank if his credit be good, readily and at reasonable rates. What is more, the banks are prohibited by law from advancing money on mortgage, and can only make loans on personal security, thereby cutting off the farmer's chief asset. We find the farmer, therefore, in peculiar need of credit facilities, and also peculiarly handicapped in his ability to obtain them."

Society Nicknames

The Duke of Portland is known among his intimates as "Jumbo," on account of his somewhat stout and rubicund appearance. Nicknames are growing even more popular than they have been in society circles. The Marquess de Soveral is known as "Blue Monkey"; Lord Stamfordham, King George's private secretary, as "Stammy"; the fondness of Lord Lonsdale for horseflesh has led his being dubbed "The Groom"; Prince Albert, second son of King George, is known as "Lobster"; and the Marquess of Crewe as "Robin." The fact that the editor of "Punch" is now Sir Owen Seaman promptly led his friends to give him the nickname of "S.O.S."

Mixed Bathing

Mixed bathing was a question that caused trouble under the Roman empire. It came in with the collapse of austere republican manners, and the Emperors Hadrian and Marcus Aurelius found it necessary to issue orders against it. Alexander Severus also forbade the opening of "balnea mixta" in Rome. Later on we find great diversity of view in Europe on the matter. In the fifteenth century Bohemian and Spanish travellers were astonished at the goings-on at Bruges, Malines and Brussels. The public baths at the Swiss Baden, where only a railing separated the sexes, scandalized Poggio Bracciolini.

Pilgrims to Mecca

The annual number of pilgrims to Mecca often exceeds 100,000, the greatly number coming from the far east and the middle east, and of these the last census included about 15,000 from Bombay, 14,000 from Singapore and about 12,000 from Batavia.

Cement Record in States

FIVE ROBBERS RAID PRIVATE POKER DEN

Make $4200 Haul and New Proprietor Seeks Patrons Jewelry.

New York, April 9.—Five masked and armed robbers, who raided the "Merchants' Club," a private poker place in West Seventeenth street here last night, are credited today with having made the biggest haul of any stick-up party in New York in many years.

While 25 men were playing in 'Beaney' Rosenfield's place the five men entered quietly, tied and gagged the doortender, stood up the gamblers along the wall, and then, all with guns prominently displayed, robbed the keeper of the "bank roll" of $700 and a $500 diamond ring.

"The first man that puts his hand down," said the leader of the hold-ups, "will get a bullet through him." This warning was sufficient and no one moved for defence. Then every player was searched and loot estimated at $3000 was secured.

Still menacing the frightened players, the hold-up men backed into the hall of the place and four vanished The fifth, a two-gun man halted long enough to say, "The first man who sticks his face out this door will get two bullets in it," and then he, too, fled.

Do Men Like Compliments From "Gushing" Women?

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

TWO women have just come back from a trip around the world. They are fair widows who are out for a good time, and having it. They gave interviews to all the western papers the other day when they landed in San Francisco, and the interviews were all about men.

Not men in particular—but men in general—and, oh, the sweet, sugary things they did find to say about "the men."

"Men are the most amiable beings in the world," said one.

"Men are dears," said the other. "We've been all around the world and not a single man has been anything but too perfectly sweet for words to us."

"The Japanese men are darlings," said one. "Englishmen are such sweet brutes," said the other

"The East India men are perfect pets," declared the first speaker.

"The Russians are delightful bears," announced the second.

"And the Frenchmen—" Both ladies sighed, cast up their eyes and could speak no further.

Most of the women I know are divided into two classes—those who hate men and pretend to like them, and those who like men and pretend to hate them.

To which class do I belong? That depends—upon the man.

Are Such Women Liked?

Tell us, brethren, you of the mystic order of the masculine who walk beside us down the road of life hooded and cloaked from our close observation, tell us, do you really like the sort of women who say that sort of thing about you?

I've seen women make awful fools of themselves over men, but there's one thing to be said about a woman and her fool season—it doesn't last long.

She's generally by somewhere near thirty.

A man gets "foolier" and "foolier" the older he grows.

Who ever heard of a sensible woman of forty making a perfect idiot of herself over a boy of nineteen—just because he has pink cheeks and a pair of soft eyes?

And who hasn't heard of men of forty who make a specialty of turning themselves into blithering idiots every time they meet even an ordinary girl anywhere from twenty-two to fifteen?

I hate the sort of man who always answers to the toast of "The ladies, God bless them," at the public dinners.

He always seems to me to be a good deal of a goose, and, whisper, sister, how do you like the man who can talk perfectly good and perfectly interesting sense to another man and who always acts as if he were going to say, "Oos pitsy, itsy doll baby is oo?" the minute he begins talking to a woman?

The Right Sort of Man.

I have usually observed that the sort of person who's always asking blessings on the ladies is usually spending a great deal of his time in doing his very best to keep them from being blessed at all.

When a man begins to look reminiscent and talk about "the ladies," I have a mental picture of his wife rise before me like a ghost.

By some strange and uncanny prescience I know, though I have never beheld her, that she's the sort of woman who makes over her own clothes and irons her husband's shirts herself so as to save money for him to pay the taxi when he takes some of "the ladies" he's so fond of talking about out to expensive suppers.

I like a man who treats a woman as if she were a human being with a human brain and a human heart, and not as if she were some little mechanical doll invented simply to amuse and entertain him.

The sort of man who does that sort of thing is going out of fashion so fast that he'll soon be as obsolete as a kerosene lamp with a red flannel wick.

I thought the sort of woman who said that all men were "perfect dears" had gone out of fashion, too.

It pays to read the newspapers, doesn't it? If you don't do it, you don't know half that's going on in the world.

POWER OF SONG IN DAILY LIFE

Arline Fredericks of the New York Hippodrome

Prima Donna Explains Her Formula for Happiness

By ELEANOR AMES

Sing a song of gladness,
Youth is always here.
Sing away all sadness,
Song keeps beauty near.

THAT little bit of doggerel is my philosophy of life," says Arline Fredericks. "I felt the need of something to hold me up when I was in danger of slumping. Whistling to keep one's courage up is a proverb, but I would rather sing than whistle. I've always sung myself through any particular discouragement, and I've worked out most of my problems through song.

"One day that funny little rhyme came into my head, and I scribbled it down on a bit of paper, for it seemed so full of inspiration, that quality we all know as 'uplift.' I made it my motto. I have dozens of tunes for it. Sometimes I chant it in a slow chant. Other times I make an aria of it. Sometimes it is a simple sentimental ballad, and sometimes, it is a wild, weird folk song. Naturally, one can't solve all problems to the same tune. But the words never vary. You may say 'badness,' or 'madness,' instead of 'sadness,' if the words seem to fit your case better. Singing will work equally well in correcting any one, or all three states of mind.

"Singing will bring something akin to happiness if you persist in it and sing with your heart as well as your voice. Perhaps it is better to make your heart always stronger than your voice. Most of us like to hear our voices so well there is never any fear but the volume of noise will be sufficient, but in this song noise doesn't count half as much as the heart back of it. You've got to feel those words or the song won't work. Once catch the spirit, however, and the tune will take care of itself—and the magic of the formula will be apparent.

"It stands to reason, if one is happy all the time, one will defy age. If your heart is young your face can't really grow old. Drive sadness, the 'blue devils' out of your system and make joy take the vacant place, and you'll be so peaceful in spirit you can't help being serene in countenance.

"There are so many snarls in life, so many petty trials, so many big discouragements and disappointments and real tragedies, we all need help—all we can get. I have found it in the singing jingle. Lots of other folks have told me it has helped them. Just try it with your head thrown back and your heart singing. You've got to put your heart into your work if you want to glory in results.

"One blessing about singing when things go wrong is that it keeps one from saying unkind words.

"A woman told me she used to quarrel with her husband and say things which made them both unhappy for days. She commenced to sing whenever she felt like quarreling. At first he was angry, then amused, and finally he laughed and the quarrel was over. After a few such experiences they both saw how foolish such childish disagreements were and never disputed any more.

"Another good thing about singing is that it keeps you from brooding over fancied injuries and pitying yourself into the belief you are a poor, much abused and unappreciated person. The 'nobody-loves-me' attitude is the worst state a woman can get in who wants to be a success. Let her go around with such an idea in her poor muddled head and the reflection of it on her face and she'll get her wish. Nobody will love her. They'll run when they see her coming.

"I know a woman who heard that her summer home was burned to the ground. She burst into song. 'She's gone mad, poor thing,' said those who heard her. Later she confessed she would have cried if she hadn't sung, and crying always made her upper lip swell most unbecomingly.

"Every woman looks better when she sings than when she cries.

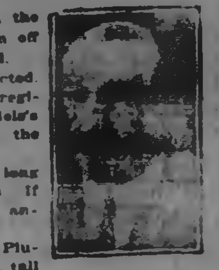
"And if you are determined to be sad, I defy you to put any more heartache into real boo-hoos than you can into a song. If there is real heart reason for sobs it will come out in the song, and the relief will be just as great as if there had been a deluge of tears."

Secrets of Health and Happiness

If You Are Undersized, Try "Stretching" Exercises

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).



DR. HIRSHBERG

THE Emperor Frederick the Great selected all the tall grenadiers he could find and married them off willy-nilly to all the tall milkmaids he could find.

The result was not as successful as he expected. True enough, he succeeded in making a Prussian regiment of giants. He also anticipated Secretary Daniels's dictum that "bachelors are an encumbrance of the earth."

But there are just as many short offspring as long ones from the mating of Brobdignagians, or Titans. If this were not so, eugenics would, like thoroughbred animal breeding, have been solved 50,000 years ago.

While few mortals would care to be as tall as Plutarch's Antaeus, who measured 60 cubits, or 30 yards, tall in his stockingless feet, still to be grand and handsome is a worthy ambition possessed by all.

Rabelais tells you that Gargantua, himself father of the giant Pantagruel, was so large that it required 900 ells of linen for the bosom of his shirt, and 200 ells more for the tail.

For his shoes 406 ells of velvet were necessary and 1100 cow hides for the soles of his shoes. His toothpick was an elephant's tusk, and 17,913 cows gave him his glass of milk.

Plainly, Rabelais knew how to conceive a real giant! The giants of these days are not for us. They were hurled into Tartarus by Jupiter. There they belong.

The Gland of Growth.

Possibly at that distant day, the little egg of living texture which lies hidden beneath the human brain—it is called the "pituitary" gland—assumed an aggressive activity which nowadays it has not.

The huge mountains of flesh seen in China, Tartary, side shows, museums and the circus, some of whom reach nearly eight or nine feet, are attributed to the over activity of this little nest of textile units, situated above the inside nose bones.

Massive heads, monstrous bones and gigantic structures in man usually accompany some pathological state of affairs in the pituitary gland.

Despair, however, is not necessary. If you are dwarfed, you need not hope for some malady to make you taller. If you are tall, it is not necessary to suspect that some sickness in the internal bodily textiles is responsible.

It is as Avon's actor puts it, an excellent thing to have the height and strength of a giant; but it is inhuman to use it like a giant.

"His angle-rod made of a sturdy oak,
His line a cable, which in storms ne'er broke;
His hook he baited with a dragon's tail,
And sat upon a rock and bobbed for whale."

There are many persons so self-conscious, by virtue of their shortness, that they think themselves as small and thin as Philetas, who wore leaden shoes to prevent being blown away.

Exercises Work Wonders.

Advice and hope may be given to these. Physical exercises, gymnastics, such as swinging on the trapeze, swimming and stretching themselves before they leave their twenties, all contribute to the elasticity of their spinal column and the growth of their bone.

Many a midget, by a diet of fresh thyroid, pituitary and other animal "glands," has taken on a new growth.

This is, perhaps, why high-strung, nervous families are inclined to be taller than dumpy, dull, sluggish, apathetic, fat ones.

The thyroid and the other groups of tissues, which make powerful juices, all work overtime in people who carry their nerves on their sleeves, who cry ethically for sympathy and pseudo-martyrdom.

Prominent chins must not be allowed to droop or sag. It should not be thrust forward.

If you are inclined to sneer, or read ugly motives into the actions of others, you must change your thoughts. Hypocrisy and insincerity soon reflect themselves in the muscles of the face.

Sincerity, generosity of mind, freedom of suspicion, prudery, bigotry and jealousy will soon remove the sharp lines of the chin. Honest, frank thoughts tend to make dimples and round chins.

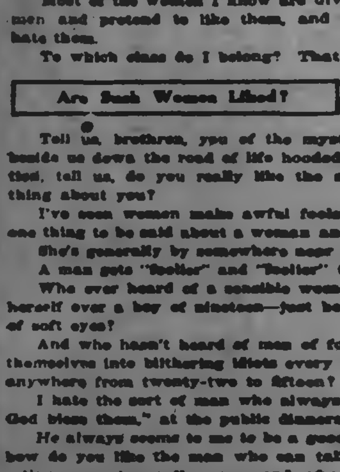
Three Minute Journeys

The Last Absolute Monarchies

By Jonathan MacFarland



WHEN I was a kid, I used to have an idea that the United States of America was the only free country in the world, and that the star-spangled banner was the only flag that waved over perfectly happy and unfettered people. I even pictured every kingdom of Europe as a land where the ruler alone made the laws and the people were ground down by tyranny and oppression. It was the greatest surprise of my life when I learned that the President of the United States had more real governmental power than the King of England. And I must confess that it was somewhat of a disappointment.

A few years ago I went to the country which is practically the last remaining absolute monarchy in the world—Abyssinia, whose ruler, Menelik II., recently died. Menelik, by the way, has been reported dead so many times that his subjects are no longer impressed by the manifold reincarnations of the tabby cat.

The Emperor was an extraordinary character, exhibiting in his rule the wisdom of Solomon, from whom he claimed to have descended, and showing a keen partiality for toys of a mechanical design. He had an automobile in which he took great delight, and among his other treasured possessions was an old model of an American typewriter, useless except as an exhibition, for he could not write on it. His domain covered nearly half a million square miles of territory, but his subjects were fewer than the inhabitants of New York state. There is not enough railroad in the whole country to reach from Chicago to St. Paul, so that for the most part transportation is as primitive as it was in the days of Solomon. Goods are shipped by camels, pack horses and mules.

The government may be despotic, but I failed to see that the black people of Abyssinia were oppressed to any extent. They seemed happy and contented, and that is more than I can say for the Russians, who enjoy what is technically a constitutional monarchy.

Afghanistan completes the list. Unfortunately, I am not one of the handful of white people who have ever gone there. A buffer state between India and Asiatic Russia, it is almost an impossibility to enter it from either side, if one does elude the vigilance of the British and Russian authorities.

But at this minute I think I'd rather be in any one of these countries than in Mexico.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Reviewing the First Year.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

IT is June again and I have been married a year. I can scarcely credit it.

The roses are all in bloom around mother's old-fashioned garden. How long ago it seems that I wandered about among them fatuously planning my married life with Mary. Why I am blue tonight, or what impels me to scribble down my introspection in a diary, I do not know. I only know that I have been thinking over the year that is gone and wondering why my married life has been so different from what I planned.

Marriage, I thought, was a shoulder to shoulder partnership. It isn't. Mary thinks and plays upon the weakness of her sex. She wants to be petted like a doll and not treated as an equal. I thought marriage would be wonderful mental partnership. Again, it isn't. Mary's brain is too laden with effeminate frivolity to bother much about the sterner stuff of life. I thought my wife and my mother would be firm, strong friends. They are not.

I have tried to think it all out patiently tonight. One fact stands forth in pitiless severity. I am disillusioned. Mary did not go into marriage with a full sense of its very real responsibilities.

She hates housework and is indifferent to children. She is not interested in anything that I am. Nor is she willing to be. Mary loves me in her way, I think, but she is femininely selfish. By that I mean a graceful, pretty selfishness that only women know how to swing successfully. Mary married, I take it, because the natural instinct of every normal girl urges her to marry. She married me because Fate threw me in her way and I pursued with the deadly persistence of the primal male.

And I? I must at last face the fact that I married Mary because she had a beautiful face. I deliberately ignored the little tell-tale shallow things that peeped and stared from Mary's velvet eyes and sought to warn me. I did not realize how relentlessly they would glare in the white light of marriage. Centuries of civilization are futile. After all, I was still the primal male won irresistibly by the feline beauty of another sex.

Mary saw a certain sentimentality in marriage; she hates its burdens. I saw a great, beautiful romance that has failed to mature.

Yet for all I am disillusioned, I am honestly fond of my wife. I take the greatest possible pride in her beauty. I am ready to sacrifice much to her whims, and they are many. It bothers me when she is tired or unhappy, but I do not take any great delight in her conversation, nor do I find that rest in her companionship that I had hoped to find. Now that the piquant charm of her beauty has grown familiar there is nothing left. I like to think that Mary is home waiting for me, but I would rather play billiards at the club than stay home with her.

Mary still wants me with her, I confess, but there is a different psychology underlying that. It isn't because she enjoys my conversation or my companionship—for she frequently goes to sleep. It is chiefly the gratification of that sense of proprietorship that women seem to love.

Mary hates me to have an interest that she cannot share—it hurts her vanity. She likes to think that I am always at her beck and call. Moreover, she detests solitude. Mary, I fear, has very little mental resource.

She is jealous of my occasional diversions—of my business—of my newspapers—of my books—but she is not willing to make a great, sturdy effort and learn to like those things with me.

The whole truth is I have married a woman who was never taught to think, a pampered, pretty, spoiled doll, and at the end of one year of marriage with her I am facing the cold, hard facts.

Hard Luck.

"That's just my luck," growled [illegible].

"What's the trouble?" asked Stuberg.

"I took out life insurance a month ago and I never felt better in my life than I do now."

Looking Ahead.

Old Millyuns—But if you marry my daughter how will you support your family?

Cubson—Oh, Mabel says that she has been able to save money from her allowance.

Not a Sacrifice Hit.

"Here is a tough problem."

"Yes?"

"Yes, indeed. When a man is swatting flies, hits one but does not kill it until he hits again, how should he figure his batting average?"

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

WHAT in the world is the matter with Billy Bantom?" asked Mrs. Golden Rod of the Little White Hen one day.

"He has a secret," laughed Mrs. Golden Rod, "and it is bursting his head. A young fellow like him can't keep a secret."

"Let's get the secret out of him," said the Little White Hen. "I will tell you how to do it."

"All right," replied Mrs. Golden Rod. "What will we do?"

"Let's cackle as loud as we can and he will come to see what is the matter."

The hens began to make a great fuss when Mrs. Golden Rod stopped. "What are we cackling for? We haven't laid any eggs," she said.

The Little White Hen stopped and said: "We don't have to lay eggs in order to cackle. Sh—keep still! Here comes Billy Bantom. We must get that secret out of him."

Billy came on the run. He had never run so fast in his life before. "What's the matter?" he asked, all out of breath.

"Nothing is the matter. We were not calling you. But look at your head! It is all swollen up. It looks as if it were going to pop open," replied Mrs. Golden Rod.

"Yes," began the Little White Hen. "You look as if you had something in your head that ought to come out."

"You look as if you had a secret that wanted to come out," said Mrs. Golden Rod. "Good-by, Billy Bantom, we must go now," and with that the two hens started off.

"Wait a minute," said Billy. "How do you know I have a secret?"

"Why, we can see you have a secret in your head because your head is swollen up. Better tell it now before that secret begins to hurt you."

"I know where there is a sunflower just ready to eat," said Billy Bantom.

"I love sunflower seeds!" exclaimed Mrs. Golden Rod.

"So do I!" shouted the Little White Hen.

"Come on, then, and I'll show you where the flower is," said Billy, as they all started off on a run.

THE WHOLE ART OF DYEING

"There's not a blessed thing in this world worth having without sacrifice. The big people, the people that have the big things in life are those that have paid, or are prepared to pay the big price for them."—W. J. Locke.

There has just been republished an old book, which originally appeared in the year 1705, and which deals with the subject of dyeing, a subject in which women are all interested more or less. In this book the reader is let into the secrets of the wonderful old dyes, the first half telling of the experimental discovery of all the most useful secrets in dyeing silk, wool, linen, and the manufactures of these fabrics as practised in England, France, Spain, Holland and Germany, while the second half is devoted to general instructions in dyeing wools and woollen manufactures, and to the cultivation of the drugs used for making these dyes. In the early part of the 18th century, blue was perhaps the most popular of colors and no less than twenty-two shades of blue are mentioned; according to the writer the blue dyes are made from a plant called "Pastel" which grows in the upper Languedoc Valley, also with "vouede" found in Normandy, and with "Indigo" obtained from the West Indies. "Woodland brown," a shade very popular to-day was equally popular in 1705, and was then known as "walnut-tree brown" and was made from the root, bark, and leaves of the walnut tree and with nut shells. A good brown too, we are herein informed, can be made from chimney soot, and this will also produce olive green or olive colors. Perfuming silks is also dealt with in this fascinating volume the recipe being as follows: "When the silk is dyed, for every pound of silk take an ounce of orris, dry it well, lay the silks in rose water in a thick sieve and betwixt every row strew powder of orris, and shut it up close in a box or chest till next day and the silk will emit an agreeable odor." The wonderful lustre on the old time silks was produced by adding an ounce of isinglass for every pound of silk to the water in which the latter was steeped. No wonder the silk dresses of our grandmothers were things that were cherished for a lifetime and still retain their fragrance and brilliance. The name of the book is "The Whole Art of Dyeing" and is well worth reading.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a maker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, [illegible] a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¼ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people with strong constitutions have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always effects a cure. Further information free. [illegible]

Sanol BLOOD SALT

No Indigestion can exist if this remedy is taken according to instructions—and there is no known remedy to take its place.

This Blood Salt is a mixture compounded so as to resemble in essence and effect, the salty parts of the human blood. It is well known that our vitality is normally kept up by means of the natural blood salts.

Hence a lack of the latter will always superinduce a loss of the former. It is also a fact that with each quart of urine we lose about 18 grams of blood salts. Accordingly we must gradually become weak and sick, unless we provide a substitute for these salts in the blood.

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbance of digestion such as Dyspepsia, Gastric Catarrh, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, etc., and as an aid to digestion, in wasting and nervous diseases.

TIPS TO HOUSEWIVES

Fresh cabbage is crisp and of bright color.

Try lemon and salt for ink stains on the fingers.

If corns are rubbed daily with toilet pumice, they will disappear.

If plants are washed in soapsuds, they will not have insects on them.

Sifted wood-ashes put on a damp cloth will remove stains from tinware, agate or crockery.

To give plaster casts an alabaster effect, dip them into a strong solution of alum water.

Two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar to one white of egg will make excellent meringues.

Use warm water to sprinkle starched clothes, and the effect will be twice as satisfactory.

An apron made with a bib of table oilcloth is a great saver to wear when washing dishes.

If grease is well rubbed on the stove before polishing the polish will not burn off so quickly.

To make marmalade look clear without skimming it, add a piece of butter the size of an egg before removing the fruit from the fire.

If a rug curls, moisten it and wrap it around a broomstick, in the opposite way from its desires, then tie and let it dry.

Tarnished silver can be brightened if placed for a short time in boiling water in which a fair-sized lump of washing soda has been dissolved.

After cleaning brass or copper with salt and vinegar, rub with olive oil and the metal will not tarnish for a long time.

To keep the table salt dry and soft, dry it, then crush it under a rolling pin till perfectly free from lumps and sift into it a tablespoonful of corn starch.

It is a convenience to make vegetable bags of cheesecloth, into which you put celery, tomatoes, lettuce and other fresh vegetables before placing in the refrigerator.

A good play dress for a child can be made from a man's worn shirt. Cut it Dorothy style, and the work is very little, not to mention the saving in the youngster's clothes.

A recipe for axle grease is a pound of tallow, half a pound of castor oil, quarter of a pound of black lead. Melt the tallow and rub the whole well together.

If mirrors are very dull and speckled the following method is excellent: Take a small portion of whitening and add sufficient cold tea to it to make a paste; rub the glass with warm tea, dry with a soft cloth, then rub a little of the paste well on the mirror and polish dry with tissue paper.

For a disinfectant for a sink, pour down a gallon of boiling water mixed with two tablespoonfuls of soda and a teaspoonful of ammonia. This will dissolve all greasy matter in both sink,

APARTMENTS IN WINNIPEG

Winnipeg is a city of apartm houses. The devotees of a life f from coal bills fill every new bl erected there, and new ones are go up all the time. In this respect W nipeg partakes more of the charac istics of the typical American city t of its eastern sisters, and it may that the presence of large number Americans there has something to with it—or it may be the weat There are approximately three h dred and fifty apartment buildings Winnipeg, some big, some little, s —a few—solidly constructed, w with walls and floors which keep the noises from adjoining suites as well as would paper partitions is safe to assume that these struct would average twelve suites to building, which would give 4,200 s contained apartments, and the sumption of five members to the means that something like 21,000 nipegites are "cliff dwellers." T are, in addition to the real apartm houses, hundreds of private dwelli with separate quarters for familie let, and one is probably not far w in estimating that not far from th thousand people in Winnipeg liv suites. If their rent averages, s is easily will, $35 each a month, are paying something like two a half million dollars each year the landlords.

EFFICIENCY IN SELLING

Qualities Which Are Needed by the Ideal Salesman

Lack of courage is the cause of many failing to become competent salesmen. The great difficulty nowadays, according to Mr. F. W. Moore, a London expert on advertising, is to secure a really competent staff which posses the two essential qaulities of tact and knowledge. Efficiency in selling means the ability to create a demand. If only salesmen would sit down and study their subject before beginning to try to sell there would be fewer failures. A good salesman should not only be able to serve his regular customers, but he should possess the power to keep stray customers. The customer should be so treated that he would willingly walk a mile in the rain to come again to the same shop.

The great difficulty nowadays is to get the right man who will put aside all ideas of business science and get to the foundation of sense in selling. The salesman who does not think quickly is hopelessly handicapped. He must forget the clock and irregular business hours. The born salesman works by instinct, not by teaching. He may be a brilliant man for a time, but he is apt to be superficial and effervescent, and a greater value is attached to the less brilliant but more regular and steady producer.

The properly productive salesman should possess a well-trained mind and a well-controlled business sense. Business science is most desirable, but it must be based on a foundation of business sense, and this is best attained by the cultivation of the habit of analysis. The salesman must be able to analyse himself, his goods, and his customer. Mr. Moore concluded his lecture with a spirited appeal to employers and employes to approach the question of selling from a common-sense standpoint.

A Slippery Mystery

After years of study scientists are still in ignorance as to the origin of the eel, which is in many ways an exceedingly puzzling creature.

For instance he will reside for years in the dark depths of the ocean, and then suddenly adjourn to the sur face for a couple of years.

He is a born wanderer, and apparently quite indifferent to changes of climate; for he will warm himself in the Gulf Stream for a time, and then, all of a sudden, make tracks for cold water.

After that he may decide to try fresh water and proceed to take up his abode in a river, travelling sometimes 3,000 miles to do so!

Neither does the eel mind very much whether he is in the water or not, for he will make his way over damp grass, even when quite young, to a pond or lake miles away. Here he may stay for years, but eventually he will probably return overland to the nearest river, and from thence once more to the sea.

SINGER ANNOYS DUKE

An amusing incident took place in a London music hall recently. The Grand Duke Michael of Russia was in the front row of stalls accompanied by his young son and his very pretty daughter. The star came along the passage in front of the footlights, and quite close to the audience, to sing her song: "I Love my Bonnie Blue-eyed Boy." On Saturday night she made a great hit by stopping in front of the grand duke and singing the words with mischievous intensity. The house was quick to appreciate what in reality was a compliment, and meant one; but the grand duke seemed a little disconcerted and turned his head persistently aside, though his daughter evidently enjoyed the fun. When the singer had gone back to the stage Lord Lonsdale, who was also in the audience, went across and spoke to the grand duke, apparently to persuade him that only a compliment was intended.

DANGERS IN ANAESTHETICS

Only Trained Physicians Should Them

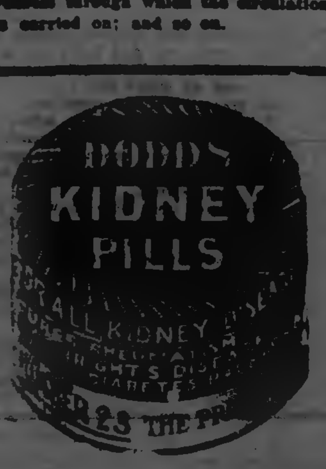
Enormous numbers of anaesthetics are given annually and fatalities are proportionately very rare. Yet every anaesthetist knows that there are many more fatalities than ever reach the public eye. Moreover, he knows that, short of death, there are illnesses, disabilities and discomforts that frequently follow the employment of anaesthetics by those not properly skilled in their use.

Considering, indeed, the power for harm, as well as for good, that these drugs possess, it is astonishing with what indifference the public at large submit themselves to their action without enquiring to what extent the administrator is acquainted with the agents he uses and is skilled in controlling them. For it must be clearly stated that on this depends almost entirely the danger of taking anaesthetics.

Some authority has said, tersely and with truth, "the anaesthetist, not the anaesthetic, kills." Danger in the hands of a skilled administrator is practically negligible. There are no "nevers" in medicine, and no one can say that there is never a death in the hands of the competent, but the chance of it are infinitesimal. They are the chances that existed in the pre-anaesthetic days of patients dying from fright before the operation had begun. Such cases occurred and were recorded, but they were extremely rare.

If people generally were a little more conversant with the action within the body of anaesthetics they would realise better the need for knowledge and skill on the part of those who wield these agents.

Nearly all the known anaesthetics are what are called tissue poisons. They have the power of destroying life if taken into the system in sufficiently strong doses or over a sufficiently long period of time. They produce their deadly effect in varying ways. One anaesthetic acts on the muscle fibres of which the heart is composed, gradually softening and weakening them until the whole organ is incapable of proper contraction; another gradually paralyses that nervous centre in the brain by continued action of which the breathing is normally carried out; another affects the vessels through which the circulation is carried on; and so on.



FARMS CHANGING

A Woodstock Man's Observations on the Subject

"The farm is changing because it is ceasing to be the farm. That is why the farmer refuses to remain on the farm," said Mr. Markey of Woodstock. "Modern conveniences, such as the elaborate implements, telephone service and such devices are taking away the old style of farm life. I can remember when agriculture was born. The farmers were once farmers, but years ago they became agriculturists, and then the vocation gave way to science. The man who worked the soil began to see how much money he could make out of his land instead of how much pleasure he could find in taking care of it, and the tendency leaned toward immigration to the city. Even in the public schools the beauty of nature is being shattered. The schools are botanizing the beauty out of the world. Every pupil knows the geological formation of the rainbow but he does not know the poem 'My heart leaps up when I behold a rainbow in the sky.'"

Mr. Markey could remember when hogs sold for $6. Whether it was $6 a ton or $6 a bushel, he did not remember. "While I was still a journalist, an important incident happened in my life," he said. "When a young lad gets a job in a newspaper office he becomes a journalist. After a few years he realizes that he is a newspaperman. I got a report for my paper that hogs were selling at $6. When the report was set up the six dropped upside down and read $9.

"A farmer outside of Woodstock read it. He went out and killed everything on his farm that looked like a hog and brought it into town. When he arrived the price of hogs had dropped beneath $6. He came into our office and threatened to sue us for $450, the difference between $9 and what he was forced to sell at."

OSTRICHES THAT WALTZ

Curious Sights on the Plains of South Africa

One of the many strange sights on the plains of Southern Africa is a party of waltzing ostriches. When there are a number of them they will start off in the morning, and after running a few hundred yards will stop and with raised wings whirl rapidly round till they are stupefied or perhaps break a leg. The males pose also before fighting, and to make their court. They kneel on their ankles, opening their wings and balancing themselves alternately forward and backward or to one side or the other, while the neck is stretched on a level with the back and the head strikes the sides, now on the right, now on the left, while the feathers are bristling.

The birds appear at this time so absorbed in their occupation as to forget all that is going on about them, and can be approached and caught. The male alone utters a cry, which sounds much like an effort to speak with the mouth shut tight.

Local Man Makes Good

Yesterday Mr. P. H. F. Spies, of this city, whi has been in Toronto for some weeks, has certainly made good. Some months ago The Times gave a description of a water wheel invented by Mr. Spies, which in miniature was demonstrated in the Otonabee river, near the Quaker Oats Co. plant. Mr. Spies has organized in Toronto the Canadian Turbine Co., Ltd. The officers are Mr. Spies, president; E. Watt, sec.-treas.; F. North, vice-president. The company has secured a three-year lease of a big factory at 815-817 Queen street, Toronto. They have the sole Canadian rights for the manufacture of the Gray Pneumatic Starter and Gear Shaft, for Canada. The company, which has recently installed a large quantity of machinery has orders for 1,000 of these gears, which cost approximately $150 each. Mr. and Mrs. Spies left last night for New York City to meet their son Peter, who is Sergt.-Major in the 7th U. S. cavalry at Fort Riley, Kan. and who has been of late on the Mexican frontier at El Paso, Texas

She Has The Very Best Of Reasons

WHY THIS MANITOBA LADY RECOMMEND'S DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Mrs. Bourbonierre had many troubles all of which were caused by sick kidneys, and she found a simple and complete cure.

St. Rose du Lac, Man., April 10.—(Special.)—Mrs. D. J. Bourbonierre, an estimable lady of this place, is losing no opportunity to praise Dodd's Kidney Pills to her friends. And she has a reason. Here it is in her owo words.

"I suffered very much from m.. Kidneys," Mrs. Bourbonierre says. "I was tired and nervous, my appetite was uncertain and my memory was failing. I had heart flutterings, my back was sore and I was troubled with headaches. Rheumatism was finally added to my sufferings and I was in a bad way indeed.

"I tried one medicine, but it did me no good, and then I was advised to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I am very glad that I did, for now after taking four boxes I am a well woman again."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mrs. Bourbonierre because all her troubles came from sick Kidneys. Sick Kidneys cannot do their work of straining the impurities out of the blood, and the result is sickness, depression and lassitude all over the body. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured the Kidneys: the purified blood did the rest.

Some Important Facts about the Silver Black Fox Industry

The Motto of Every Canadian Should be "What We Have, We INTEND to Hold"

In so far as it applies to Canada's national wealth, our forests, and more particularly the protection of our fur-bearing animals, which, however, would soon become but evidence of a great past unless husbanded by the foresight of man.

To the foresight of Prince Edward Island's practical men two of the most famous of Canada's fur-bearing animals, the Black and Silver Fox, have been saved to future generations—and as a consequence Canada will unquestionably furnish the world's great demand in future, for this peltry will far exceed its weight in gold!

Concerted action by shrewd Canadians now engaged in this industry in Prince Edward Island will shortly control all the available Black and Silver Foxes wherever found on this continent, a fact generally conceded by persons in authority—consequently this announcement is of great interest to the careful investor and believer in Canada's vast Fur Wealth.

The first island ranch was started with two pairs of Anticosti Silvers, bought from a trapper for experimental purposes solely, and same proved so successful that the fox industry started to be developed.

In the year 1910 a pair of breeders could be bought for $4,000.00; in 1911 the price went to $6,000, a pair, during 1912 a pair at $10,000.00 was considered high but not unusual and at the time of writing (January 28, 1914) live breeders can bring any price from $15,000.00 to $35,000.00, according to fecundity, and options on the unborn of next year are selling for $12,000.00 a pair.

About $16,000.00 is said to be invested in the fox industry on Prince Edward Island, showing a gain of over $8,000,000 inside a year.

Official returns for the present year show that the 277 fox ranches on the Island contain 899 silver breeding foxes (441 males and 458 females). The total number of silver offspring for 1913 was 788, and the average assessed value was $4,392.52 per fox.

The total valuation of the young silver black foxes for the current year is $8,369,449. The total number of silver foxes in the ranches for 1913 is 1,[illegible].

Pelts from ranch-bred Prince Edward Island silver black foxes have sold at the London auction sales as high as $2,[illegible].00.

ASSETS OF THE COMPANY

The Company has TEN PAIRS of high-grade PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND silver black foxes, EIGHT PAIRS are now on the ranch and two pairs of breeders under option all are eligible for registration under the select class "A" of the FOX BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION. These foxes have been selected with special regard to parentage, and consist of the following well known strains:

Gordon, Dalton, Tuplin, Oulton, Raynor and Champion. These names are conspicuously prominent in the Fox Industry ranches which in 1913 paid from 45 per cent to 900 per cent.

THE INDUSTRY

No industry in recent years has made such wonderful strides as the Black-Silver Fox Industry, and the reason is that it offers larger financial returns than any other business in the Dominion. Moreover, its future possesses unlimited opportunities, as the demand is constantly increasing, while the supply has reached almost a minimum until a few companies undertook the breeding and rearing of these valuable animals. Everyone who is alive to the opportunities of enormous profits without risk will readily appreciate the advantages of investing in the R. J. McNeill Black and Silver Fox Company, Limited. It is a fact that every bona fide fox company organized within the Province of Prince Edward Island has paid dividends of from 45 per cent to 300 per cent and some companies have even done better than this.

ONLY ONE CLASS OF STOCK

There is only one class of stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every shareholder participates pro rata in all dividends paid by the Company, and the latter has no authority to issue either Preferred Stock or Bonds.

FUTURE POLICY

The Company expects to earn large profits from the sale of these rare black and silver foxes for breeding purposes, while each year a percentage of the production will be retained, placing the company in a position to pay large dividends from the sale of furs alone. The object of this policy is to place the fur farming industry on a substantial commercial basis.

THE COMPANY'S RANCH

The Company owns outright a fine 211-acre farm with complete farm buildings—one of the most up-to-date ranches on the Island. It has an experienced and highly skilled keeper whose services have largely contributed to the present satisfactory condition of the business.

Clerks in the employ of Sinclair and Stewart, a big dry goods house at Summerside, formed a silver fox company in 1912. This company is popularly referred to as the "Widows" Fox Company, as nearly all the stockholders are women, a dividend of 900 per cent was their reward.

Three sisters of Alberton, P.E.I., who were employed in the United States, sent their spare earnings home two years ago to be invested in the fur farming business and their profits have averaged $15,000 yearly since.

A bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Fred L. Rogers, the Governor's son, of Alberton, invested $300 three years ago, and is now worth $45,000 directly from this source.

Mr. Frank Hall, clerk at Holman's, Limited, received $20,000 from an investment of $500 made in this business three years ago.

The Rosemount Live Stock Co., Limited, of Alberton, P. W. Turner, treasurer, has paid a dividend of 1,000 per cent this year.

Seven clerks and managers in Summerside pooled $500 each in 1910 and purchased a pair of silver foxes for $3,500. The seller, feeling that he had driven a splendid bargain, cared for the pair for a year. The first litter consisted of seven pups. The seven owners have received $[illegible] each dividends since and the pair bought for $3,500 could be sold for $35,000 to-day. Mr. Austin Seaman, of St. Eleanors, is a member of this Association.

EAGER TO WORK

Health Regained by Right Food

The average healthy man or woman is usually eager to be busy at some useful task or employment.

But let dyspepsia or indigestion get hold of one, and all endeavor becomes a burden. A woman writes:

"A year ago after recovering from an operation, my stomach and nerves began to give me much trouble.

"At times my appetite was voracious, but when indulged, indigestion followed. Other times I had no appetite whatever. The food I took did not nourish me and I grew weaker than ever.

"I lost interest in everything and wanted to be alone. I had always had good nerves, but now the merest trifle would upset me and bring on a violent headache. Walking across the room was an effort and prescribed exercise was out of the question.

"I had seen Grape-Nuts advertised, but did not believe what I read, at the time. At last, when it seemed as if I were literally starving, I began to eat Grape-Nuts.

"I had not been able to work for a year, but now after two months on Grape-Nuts I am eager to be at work again. My stomach gives me no trouble now, my nerves are steady as ever, and interest in life and ambition have come back with the return to health."

REV. I.B.S. YATES GIVES AN INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESS

The I.B.S.A. series of public Bible lectures opened here yesterday with a sermon on "Beyond the Grave." The audience gave marked attention throughout the entire discourse which lasted an hour, though it is said that to some the time seemed much shorter The speaker handled his subject in a very attractive manner and presented some thoughts that seemed quite new to many present.

He remarked that while no one could speak from personal experience on what lies beyond the grave, we nevertheless have a vivid description of what we are to expect in the Great Beyond presented to us in the inspired writings of the Old and New Testaments.

The Dead Are Unconscious.

Many scriptures were quoted proving that the dead are dead and not alive in some far-oy place, as was supposed. Those who are sleeping the sleep of death are absolutely unconscious, and will not be awakened until the Resurrection. "The dead know not ANYTHING." (Ecclesiastes 9:5); "For in death there is no remembrance of Thee; in the grave who shall give thee thanks?" (Psalms 6:5.) It is a mistake to suppose our dead friends are wandering around as spooks.

What About Hell?

A ripple of laughter spread over the audience, when the speaker in a manner peculiar to himself, pictured the old-time Hell of the Dark Ages. The fire-proof devils with horns, pitchforks, cloven hoofs, forked tongues and tails, shoveling coal and roasting poor mortals on their spits, are creations of error, not to be found in the Bible at all. It is on account of these wrong conceptions that many have supposed that the Devil lives in Hell and that good people never go there, whereas the Scriptures point out that Jesus went to Hell, but say nothing of the Devil ever being there.

The Hell of the Bible was shown to be a condition of unconsciousness—death, oblivion. The word Hell is translated from the Hebrew word Sheol and the corresponding Greek word Hades. The Greek word Gehenna, improperly translated Hell, is symbolical of the final destruction of the incorrigibly wicked.

HAMILTON EXPECTS POLITICAL SAW-OFF

Under the Provincial Redistribution Ward Eight Would Be Left Outside the City.

Hamilton, Ont., April 11.—The provincial government's latest move is to provide in the Redistribution bill for Ward eight to be left in South Wentworth although it has been a part of the city for years. To politicians it looks as if the government and the Opposition have arranged to saw off, Ancaster being placed in the north riding thus making it stronger Liberal than evir and Ward Eight being left in the south riding keeping it strongly Conservative.

The agitation to have Ward Eight added to the city and three members granted in both federal and provincial houses is being carried on by prominent Conservatives.

SALVATION ARMY HOLDS AN ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING YESTERDAY

Yesterday afternoon the big auditorium of the Salvation Army was crowded to capacity. The occasion was a service commemorating the 29th anniversary of the opening of Army work in Peterborough. At yesterday's meeting, that MAN, Adjt. McElheney presided. A fine musical program was rendered and greatly enjoyed by the large audience. Among the speakers were Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., Mr. E. A. Peck, M.L.A., and Ald. Johnston. A brief synopsis of their respective speeches is as follows:

Mr. Burnham.

Mr. Burnham began by comparing India under the Moguls and afterwards under Clive, and still later under the missionaries and the Salvation Army. It was a most instructive contrast. The S.A. had no denominational pride to hamper them and like the missionaries found the wonderful benefit of preaching undenominational love. The speaker said that this was God's world and should not be treated as it had been conquered by Satan. There was nothing bad here made by God. It was we made the bad, and it is for us to undo it, not to despise it and ignore it. He disclaimed any qualification as a lecturer on this topic, but perhaps was free to speak as a man of the world. Until young men took an interest in politics for the pure love of country and not for what they could make out of it, there was little hope for the affairs of state. There was a tendency, and he regretted to say, a growing one to ask other people to pay for our fun. Our needs may well be made the subject of general help and sympathy, but not our pleasures and amusements. The very suggestion of it should wound our pride. Everybody, the speaker said, praised the S.A. nowadays for its good work. It was work and fruits that told what the worker and tree were like.

Mr. Peck.

Mr. E. A. Peck congratulated them on the good work that had been done by the Army in the city. He also spoke about the great work performed by the late General Booth, how he had labored in the poor districts in the city of London, and had achieved so much good by his self-denying efforts in the cause of humanity. He also referred in a general way to the problems of the future, the necessity of the better housing of the working classes, the doing away with slum conditions, etc., and the necessity of preventing the development of such conditions in this country.

Ald. Johnston also spoke, eulogizing the splendid work done by the Army.

OPPOSITION MAY WIPE ITSELF OUT

If New Brunswick Extortion Charges Are Disproved, Two Members Will Resign.

St. John, N.B., April 11.—The presentation of his charges by L. P. Dugal, against Premier Flemming, whom he charges with extorting $100,000 from the lessees of Crown land timber limits, and the general denial by Hon. C. J. Clarke, attorney-general, on behalf of the prime minister, have now been made in the legislature, which has agreed to take up the charges again on Wednesday next.

The government, in the meantime, is considering what form of enquiry shall be held, and opinion seems to lean towards a royal commission of judges.

The charge of Mr. Dugal that money had to be paid government members before contracts on the St. John and Quebec Railroad could be secured, will also be dealt with next Wednesday.

An interesting possibility of the situation in the New Brunswick house lies in the fact that the opposition only consists of two members, both Acadian French, Messrs. Dugal and Pelletier, and if the charges are disproved, they may resign, leaving the government alone in the legislature.

DRYS TAKE ACTION ON ELECTION CASE

Long Legal Battle Opened in Civil Court by the Temperance Forces.

Toronto, April 11.—Action to declare the Welland Scott Act election last month void has been taken by the temperance forces as a sequel to their defeat in the election. In an injunction brought in the single court before Justice Lennox to restrain the returning officer from making his official returns to the secretary of state of the election under the Scott Act, the temperance forces have started what promises to be a long legal battle.

The grounds on which the temperance people hold the election should be declared void are that the ballots used was defective, as it didn't show what the election was about, that in some cases ballots were used without counterfoils, and that three of the deputy returning officers marked the poll numbers on the back of the ballots instead of the counterfoils, so rendering the ballots void.

The first count of the election in Welland showed that the "drys" had been defeated by six votes, and the scrutiny demanded gave the "wets" a majority of 115.

Justice Lennox reserved judgment on the application of the temperance forces.

CANCERS CANNOT BE CURED BY RADIUM

Leading Surgeons at Meeting Say Speedy Use of Knife is the Only Hope.

New York, April 11.—All hope of curing cancer by radium has been abandoned by some of the foremost surgeons and research workers of the country, who declared at last night's meeting of the American Society for the control of cancers that the failures of radium outnumber the cures 100 to 1.

That nothing is of avail against the most dreaded disease but the speedy use of the knife was the opinion advanced by Dr. William H, Mayo of Rochester, Minn. Operation is the only cure, bute, but radium or ray treatment is in order a temporary palliative, where operation is impossible according to Francis G. Wood, director of cancer research at Columbia University. Failures of radium outnumber the cures one hundred to one he stated. Another generation will be required to furnish knowlidge on the real cause and the actual nature of cancer, he said. Experiments for thirty-five centuries show that heredity plays a small part, if any at all in its appearance.

VILLA, LEADING 5000 TROOPS, SNATCHES VICTORY FROM HANDS OF FEDERALS; MANY KILLED

Wearied by Three Days of Heavy Fighting, Rebel Forces Were Ready to Give Up When Villa Arrived With Reinforcements

Torreon, April 11.—Driven from San Pedro by the fierce assault of 5,000 Constitutionalist troops, led by General Villa in person, the United Mexican federal forces commanded by General Velasco, Maas and De Moure have fallen back to Parras, and are fighting there for their lives to-day.

Couriers who arrived here during the night reported that a terrific battle was being fought, with the federals stubbornly contesting the steady advance of the rebels. From these messengers were obtained the first accurate details of the conflict at San Pedro, where General Velasco rallied the garrison which he led out of Torreon and was joined by the supporting troops sen from Saltillo and Monterey.

Until the arrival of General Villa with 5,000 troops to help Generals Benavides and Hernandes, the federals seemed certain victors. The Constitutionalists were wearied by three days of desperate fighting and were preparing to withdraw when Villa reached the scene with his veterans and twenty heavy guns.

Within two hours after Villa' arrival he had snatched victory from what looked to be almost certain defeat and the federals were in full retreat.

COMMITTED MURDER TO SEND FUNDS TO BANDIT GANG IN CHINA

Police Believe "White Wolf" Was Responsible for Murder of Vancouver Woman

Vancouver, April 11.—Interesting revelations of the existence of an active revolutionary society amongst the Chinese of Vancouver and Victoria have come to light in the police investigations of the murder of Mrs. Charles Millard by Jack Kong, Chinese boy, under 20 years old.

Investigation revealed the jewelry hidden in the basement of the Millard home, following its theft of three weeks ago. The police are now of the opinion that the Chinese murderer was stealing regularly from the Millards to get money to make contributions to the funds being sent regularly to White Wolf, the bandit, who is now laying waste the towns and villages in Northern China. Official enquiry turned up positive evidence that a shipment of rifles and revolvers valued at $4,000 and contributed by Vancouver and Victoria Chinamen, had been sent by steamer from Victoria in December. Chinese authorities received news of the shipment at Hong Kong, but not before it reached its destination in the interior. and have asked the British governor at Hong Kong to have any further shipments stopped.

In the meantime the Vancouver police have been warned that the society of which the self-confessed murderer, Jack Kong, is a member, is arranging to send another shipment of arms to White Wolf. The police believe that the money realized from the Millard jewels would have been used for his contribution to that fund by Jack Kong.

ROME TO BE TOLD OF FALLON AFFAIR BY THE ARCHBISHOP

Removal Arouses Strong Feeling in Ottawa University Circles

Ottawa, April 11.—It is stated on good authority to-day that the removal of Father James Fallon from Ottawa University by Father William Charlebois, provincial of the Oblate Order, for alleged activity against the French candidate in the St. George Ward Separate school election here, will be carried to Rome for final settlement. It is understood Archbishop Gauthier, chancellor of the University feels very strongly in the matter inasmuch as he was not consulted by the Oblate authorities. The Archbishop is to visit Rome in May, and the understanding is that he will take the incident up at Oblate headquarters there.

The affair has aroused strong resentment among the English-speaking Catholics in Ottawa, and unless there is some redress, withdrawal of support from Ottawa University is threatened. Some demonstration of disapproval is expected from the Irish students when the student body returns after the Easter holidays.

UPPER LAKES NAVIGATION WILL NOT OPEN UNTIL END OF APRIL

Fort William, April 11.—Although the weather conditions up to the middle of February promised an early opening of navigation at the head of the lakes, it is now apparent that the opening will be considerably later than last year, when the first steamer cleared for the east with a grain cargo on April 16th. Even with the warmest of weather, it is stated by steamboat men that navigation will not open until the latter part of this month. It is probable that marine insurance at tht head of the lakes will come into effect April 15th, but by that date it is practically impossible that navigation will be open. The steamer W. H. Dwyer is the only steamer in the two harbors here at the present time which carries ocean insurance, which will allow her to clear at any time it is possible.

THE RUSH FROM STATES TO WESTERN FARMS IS NOW ON

Saskatoon, April 01.—This city at the present time is witnessing a phenomenal influx of settlers. The arrivals, who are mostly well to-do from the United States are passing thru the city daily en-route to various parts of the province. The capital brought into the country by these American farmers is having a noticeable effect on general trade. They have evidently sold their holdings across the border to excellent advantage, as the farm acreage they are now taking up is from three to four times as great as that of the original holdings. A splendid amount of high grade stock is being brought into the country by the new comers, and it is believed they will engage extensively in mixed farming.

CONSERVING THE RACE

New Prison Treatment Economic of Citizens

Col. Clark in responding to the toast, "Canada," at the annual dinner of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association said that while in the past Canada had been prodigate of its great assets, the problem of conservation was being taken up and that the idea of conservation included the men, women and children, living and working in Canada. The speaker asserted that the new idea in treating prisoners and criminals was that every prisoner was not a criminal and that every criminal was not a prisoner. In connection with this idea he spoke of the Guelph prison farm, where men are given a fresh start.

Great Britain, Col Clark asserted, had made mistakes, but was still the greatest single secular force for good in the world. As long as Britain retained that distinction, so long would she occupy the position of leadership.

Careful But Lose

That the fruit growers who take the best care of their orchards will be the heaviest losers on account of the damage to the fruit crop, was logically explained by Prof. W. T. Macoun of Ottawa at the convention of the growers of the Niagara district, the opening session of which was held at Grimsby. The progressive grower who cultivated and pruned for fruit development, cutting back the wood, assisted in the early advance of the buds brought on by the unusually mild weather of the early winter, which was followed by an unprecedented season of zero weather which killed the premature buds.

German Women Bankers

The Berlin Woman's Bank, which is believed to be the only bank in the world run for and by women exclusively, has completed five years of existence. The assets of the bank amount to $350,000, and it declared a 5 per cent. dividend in 1913. It is the only bank in Germany where women are permitted to have a check account without the permission of their husbands.

EFFECTS OF STARVATION

Individuals Suffer in Many Different Ways

Dr. Clara C. Benson of the department of household science of the University of Toronto, in an instructive and illustrative lecture before the Canadian Institute traced the development of the science of nutrition. The first experiments were carried out in the United States in 1890, and all the work done in the interests of the science of nutrition has been done since then, she said. She showed by means of lantern slides and charts the amount of proteins, fats carbonhydrates in the different foods, and the work each food performs in the body.

One very interesting and instructive investigation was that dealing with starvation, which showed how the process affected the person. The results showed that the subject required at first a decreasing amount of protein each day, which element was absorbed from the body of the subject from its own economy until the tenth day, after which a small but constant supply was necessary. The amount of heat given out by the body was shown to be equal to the amount of energy obtained from the food by burning it in oxygen. The proportion of food value extracted from the constituent parts of the body was the factor which determined the extent of life in the body deprived of food, and depended on the individual condition of each person. No definite figures could be given, as each body depended for its life on its ability to supply the constituents of bodily life from its own composition, which varied in the individual.

What "Horsepower" Means

To many people, the engineering term "horsepower" does not convey any very definite idea. When, for example, it is said that the immense Curtis steam turbine which drives an electric generator in the Waterside station, New York, develops 30,000 horsepower the meaning is very vague and incomprehensible. Imagine this term reduced to man's power, and almost everyone can grasp its full meaning. It takes 12 men to equal 1 h.p.; then this mammoth turbine engine develops twelve times 30,000, or the whole working energy of 360,000 men. If these men worked in eight-hour shifts each day, it would require the services of 1,080,000 men every twenty-four hours to produce the working energy of this single turbine unit.

Selfridge Speaks on Business as a Game

"To me business is one of the most possible games in the world," Mr. Gordon Selfridge in the course a lecture at the Jewish Institute, "I urge as much as I can," continued, "that the work of the shall be made a game rather than drudgery. It is a jolly, good, lively It beats bridge and golf and

THE CANADIAN "MOVIE"

American Suprised at the Lack of British Scenes

An American visitor to Canada has made it his business to visit the moving picture shows in both the east and the west, and he has recorded his observations in a letter which appeared in the New York Times: "The moving pictures shown in Canadian cities, with few exceptions, are of American manufacture and depict scenes in the United States. Across the screen march our soldiers and over them waves the Stars and Stripes. It is that flag that flutters over many buildings and waves over many a battlefield. When, almost without exception, the hero dies for his flag it is the Red, White and Blue. And it is the men of Uncle Sam who arrive at the frontier post in time to save the hero and the heroine."

The events and scenes thus depicted are accorded varying receptions in different localities. "In Eastern Canada, I have seen such films received in silence or with audible expressions of disfavor. Not always is the disapproval a sign of ill-feeling. Once in Winnipeg when scene after scene from San Francisco to New York appeared, a man next to me turned to his companion. "Why don't they give us pictures of what is going on in England?" Now, that man was simply homesick. He had watched picture after picture and there was nothing of the happenings at home. In this respect the feeling that moves an Englishman is the same that would move a Swede lumber jack up in Michigan. Both simply want home scenes."

SUPERSTITIOUS YACHTSMEN

The Craft Must Have Names of Eight Letters

Yachtsmen are just as superstitious as the professional seafaring man. One thing they are sure of, and that is that to win the America's Cup, the defender must have a name of eight letters.

Reliance, Vigilant, Defender, and Columbia, all successful cup yachts, had each but eight letters in their names, while the Constitution, a cup candidate in 1901, had several more letters in her name. She was not selected. The new cup yacht ordered by George Lawley of Neponset, Mass., from Gardiner designs has just eight letters—the Defiance.

Corinthians who believe in omens are demanding that the Vandebilt syndicate yacht designed by Nat Herreshoff, and being built at Bristol, R.I., be given an eight-letter name.

Man's Best Age

Medical statistics as to the age when man has the most intellectual vigor give interesting results. It is from forty to fifty-six years that the most brilliant things have been accomplished by the majority of human beings. Chemists and physicians have made brilliant discoveries at forty. Poets have accomplished masterpieces at forty-four, and novelists two years later. Famous warriors average forty-seven, musicians are most brilliant at forty-eight, and actors at the same age. Moralists are greatest at fifty-one, politicians at fifty-three, humorists at fifty-six, thus demonstrating that the last thing one learns is how to amuse one's contemporaries.

GOSPEL OF SCENTED SOAPS

The Eskimos However Preferred to Eat It

"The most anxious moment of the year," said Rev. S. M. Stewart, Ungava, "is when the Hudson Bay Company's vessel from England is sighted, and we are waiting to know whether she brings us good news or ill."

For the last eighteen months Mr. Stewart has had a colleague to share his solitude, but for twelve years before that he carried on the work singlehanded. The missionary's preaching includes the gospel of cleanliness and he backs it up in a practical way with cakes of soap "Unfortunately," he remarked, "I gave them scented soap to start with, and they ate every cake they could get hold of. Now I have taken to carbolic, and they say they don't like 'medicine soap,' so they use it for the purpose it was meant for."

Tatooed by Insects

Commander Herbert A. Edwards, who was lent by the British Government to direct the Survey Commission, has completed a survey of 800 miles of disputed frontier between Bolivia and Brazil. The expedition suffered great hardships.

A tiny insect known as plum settled in thousands on every exposed portion, injecting a poison which, though not dangerous, occasioned intense pain and gave the explorers the appearance of having been tattooed.

Insects of every description made life almost unbearable, among these being a hornet measuring almost an inch and a half in length, and a spider whose body was three to four inches in circumference, and which left an angry red trail over the flesh.

BIBLICAL TRAINING

Give Children a Good Grounding in Principles of Morality

"My chief desire is to see the children attending public schools receive a better education in Biblical subjects, and a good grounding in the principles of morality," said Dr. Sneath, superintendent of education for Ontario, who declared himself very emphatically in favor of a public school education which would not be merely intellectual. He deplored the present serious lack of religious and moral training in primary schools, and viewed it in the light of a danger to a democratic community.

Briefly, Dr. Sneath's scheme provides for instruction in Bible knowledge and systematic training in morality. Such instruction may include denominational doctrines. The reading of the Bible at the opening of school is also prescribed, but it is left optional with the boards to require such reading at the close, the repeating of the Ten Commandments, and the memorization of passages from the Bible. At present, in the course of study, provision is made for incidental instruction in manners and morals.

NEW WIRELESS DISCOVERY

An Italian Inventor Has Perfected Musical Telephone

The Italian engineer, Signor Morretti, claims to have invented a wireless apparatus by which two or more messages can be transmitted simultaneously.

The main advantage claimed for the new ystem is that two or three messages could be sent simultaneously at little more than the ordinary cost of one.

When a message is to be sent the operator taps his telegraph key, and this liberates compressed air, which passes through a reed pipe, causing it to emit a musical note. Receiving telephones have been made which will only respond to one particular note.

When two messages are to be sent simultaneously two operators' keys operate different reed pipes, and thus messages in two distinct musical notes are transmitted, each being detected by the telephone receiver in tune with it.

STRAIGHT TALK TO MEN

This Preacher Condemns With Emphasis the Grouchers

Basing his arguments upon the story of Cain and Abel, the first brothers, Rev. Canon Dyson Hague preaches a straight-from-the-shoulder sermon to men, particularly young men. He sternly rebukes those who continually go about with a "grouch," always looking at the dark side of life, grumbling because other men, "no cleverer than they," were making five or six times as much money in a year, and generally making themselves objectionable. "If someone is making more than you are then it is your own fault, and no one else's."

Canon Hague stated there was no reason why men should not overcome habits if they honestly wished to walk the path of the righteous. "If a man wants to drink," he declared, "he will go where he is most likely to meet temptation; if he wants to steal he will go to places where he is most likely to meet others with similar inclinations. If he wants to keep straight then he will find others whose offerings have been accepted by the Lord. The sin is there, but he, in the manhood, shall rule over it."

Realistic Dogs

A few friends were discussing the merits of great painters the other night. A gentleman in the company said that Michael Angelo once painted a cherry tree outside his house which was so natural that the birds used to try to pick fruit from the tree. A carpet weaver in the company said that was nothing for being natural. He was weaving some rugs with dogs in the design, and every time the wire came across the hindquarters of the dogs to cut the pile the dogs yelped. Then there was a silence in the company that could be felt.

COLLARS AND SLEEVES MOST IMPORTANT DETAILS OF ALL FROCKS.

Kimono and drop-shoulder sleeves are so universal that the regulation set-in sleeve seems decidedly old fashioned; many tailors and dressmakers, however, predict that the set-in sleeve will be equally favored next season. In collars we are allowed to go as far as we like; many of them are very novel, some even freakish. The Gladstone is the newest collar; it is usually developed in a sheer stuff like organdy, batiste or thin muslin and stands away from the throat a bit in Japanese fashion. This fad of wearing sheer white collars with dark frocks has taken a strong hold on the fancy this season; they are seen even on the dressy afternoon frock of taffetas or other silk.

No. 8252 is smartly developed in one of the printed Egyptian crepes; the ground is a soft yellow and the figures are in green, yellow and red. Collar and cuffs are of white organdy, and as an added bit of contrast there is an effective girdle of striped silk. The blouse is kimono in raglan effect, and the skirt is in three pieces, with pleats front and back.

These crepes may be purchased from $1.50 a yard and up.

This frock requires for size 36, 5½ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8248 is a soft taffetas with a Japanese design in rich Oriental colorings; the ground is Nattier blue. A round flat collar with a frilled edge is a feature of this frock, and the two gathered, graduated ruffles over the hips are new and quaint.

Taffetas range in price from $1.35 a yard to $4.50.

In size 36 this dress requires 4⅞ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8252—sizes 34 to 46.
No. 8248—sizes 34 to 42.
Each pattern 15 cents.

THE NEW SKIRTS SHOW A TENDENCY TO BECOME A TRIFLE WIDER AT THE BOTTOM.

While still retaining their narrow line at the bottom, many of the new skirts seem inclined to allow for a more generous stride without being obliged to open the seams at the side; in fact few slashed models are seen. On many of the skirts used for sports purposes the slash is closed by invisible fasteners which may be opened if necessary.

Black taffetas is much favored for separate skirts, and there is wide variety in white materials to wear with contrasting coats a little later. White taffetas, moire, gabardine, serge, prunella and crepe will combine well with coats of taffetas, faille or golfine. These materials are wide and range in price from $1 a yard and up.

One French house is bringing out all sorts of color combinations; Callot checks are strong and stripes will be popular.

The costume displayed in No. 8273-8274, shows a coat of taffetas worn with a skirt of striped material.

To copy this coat (8273) in size 36 it requires 2¼ yards of 42 inch material; the skirt (8274) requires 2⅝ yards of the same width material.

No. 8265 is a pleasing model for cotton crepe, or a soft silk. As illustrated, the skirt is of plain white crepe and the blouse of foulard. A chic, smartly draped sash of black satin ribbon completes a very effective design.

In size 36 5⅝ yards of 36 inch material will be needed for this dress.

No. 8273—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8274—sizes 22 to 32.

World's Smallest Coin

The smallest coin in the world circulates in the Malay Peninsula. It is simply a thin wafer made from the resinous juice of a tree, and has current value of 1-10,000 of a penny. In the southern parts of Russia the peasants use a coin of such small value that a quarter of a million of them are worth no more than $1.25. The old Japanese mousong was worth [illegible] of an English penny. In Portugal the reis is the lowest standard of value, but no 1-reis pieces are coined. An 8-reis piece is equivalent to 0480 of a cent.

Sketched in a Garbage Heap

No one knows the Yellowstone Park and the interesting animals that abound there as well as Ernest Thompson Seton. And no one probably has stalked his photographic prey with more patience and skill than he.

Equipped with pencil, paper and camera he used to haunt the garbage heap behind the Fountain Hotel. At first he watched from the bushes, 75 yards away; but later he made a hole in the odorous pile itself, and stayed there all day long, sketching the bears for whom the garbage heap was a free lunch counter.

THE SLOW-RISING BREAD

In these days of pure food labels, trade marks, and the consequent standardization of nearly all staples, it is a curious anomaly that the commonest and most universal article of food has as yet suffered no restrictions. There are more varieties of loaves of bread than were ever dreamt of in the philosophy of the consumer.

The Journal of the American Medical Association calls attention to the recent analysis of 200 loaves, the product of 83 Ne work and New England bakeries, which differed widely, in composition and in nutritive value. Variations of over 75 per cent in size were noted. The moisture ranged from 27 to 40 per cent. In some cases only flour, yeast and salt were used. In others milk, butter, lard and sugar.

The significant feature of the unstandardized loaf is that while convention has fixed its price, the increased cost of living has affected it. The diminished value has come in decreased size. According to a comparison of figures in several states, the loaf has shrunk fifteen per cent. in the last twenty years. This is considerably less than the average increase in the cost of food

Do Long Breaths Hurt?

DANGEROUS PLEURISY ALWAYS BEGINS THIS WAY

Speediest Cure is Nerviline

Ouch, that stab-like pain in the side is like a hot knife blade in the ribs!

Probably got overheated—cooled too fast—now there is congestion, tightness, such soreness you can't draw a long breath.

This is the beginning of Pleurisy.

Pleurisy is far too serious to neglect a single instant.

Quickest relief will come from a vigorous rubbing with Nerviline. This rusty old pain reliever will fix you up in no time—will take away the congestion—make you well just as it did Mr. Samuel St. Johns, of Stamford, who says:—"In running to catch a train last week I became much overheated. I put up the train window and rode that way in order to get cooled off. In an hour my side was so full of pain and my breathing hurt so much that I thought I hah pneumonia. I always carry Nerviline in my grip and at destination I rubbed my side thoroughly three times. The warm penetrating effect was soon noticeable and I quickly got relief. Nerviline I consider saved me from a serious illness."

Any sort of a cold can be quickly broken up with Nerviline which is a marvel for reducing inflammation, for relieving congestion in the throat and chest, for curing stitch in the side, lumbago, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Nothing more soothing or powerful. The 50c. large family size is the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

IMPROVING THE ROADS

Autos and Farmers Responsible For General Zeal

The most conspicuous thing about the sessions of the Ontario Good Roads' Association was the business-like way in which the delegates discussed practical ways and means for road improvement. A few years ago it would have been necessary to have shown reasons why roads should be so improved, and what economic benefits would have been conferred upon the farmers by that improvement. All that is now admitted. The public interest is keenly fixed upon the practical side of financing and constructing improvements. The automobile is in large measure responsible for this awakening of general zeal, because to the natural desire it has added the energetic backing and influence of powerful urban associations and interests

TANGO BANNED

"Bad and Scandalous," Says Archbishop Bruchesi

Archbishop Bruchesi, Montreal, describes the tango as "bad and scandalous" and absolutely forbids the dancing of it. "A certain dance has invaded our society," says his Grace. "I do not know its origin, but it has spread over the whole world with incredible rapidity. Unquestionably its author is the spirit of evil. No words are too forcible to stigmatise as they deserve these unbecoming movements of the body, those really lascivious contortions, which no self-respecting person would allow."

After referring again to "this dangerous and unseemly amusement," the Archbishop goes on: "I forbid it absolutely as band and scandalous, and I likewise forbid the other new dances which resemble it. I appeal to all truly Christian women, and I beg of them to band together against these licentious dances and the indecent fashions of the day." In a reference to modern women's dress, Mgr. Bruchesi says: "The most elementary rudiments of decency appear to be completely forgotten. The modesty of feminine dress is becoming more and more marked. Women and young girls cheerfully become fashion's slaves. Do they think of the scandal which they give, and of the sins which they expose themselves to make others commit?" Speaking particularly of low-neck dresses and short sleeves, scantiness of draperies, transparency of materials used, and questionable arrangement of lines, the Archbishop asks: "What are the religious sentiments of those mothers who dare to dress their children in such costumes for holy communion and confirmation? Warn parents that these costumes are strictly forbidden, and that those who wear them will not be admitted to the reception of the sacraments."

SKYSCRAPERS' ANCESTRY

Prototypes of Modern High Buildings in 17th Century

What may be called the ancestor of the modern skyscraper was designed in 1601 by Jacques Perret, an architect living in Chambray, a small town in the Duchy of Savoy.

He planned an 11-storey building 261 feet in height, but it was never erected. According to Perret's measurements the structure was to be 164 feet long and 140 broad, and the walls were to have been over 13 feet thick.

But in 1601 the methods of building construction were by no means so modern as Perret's plans; 13-foot walls were none too thick to support 11 storeys. Here, again, however, the ingenuity of the architect showed itself, for he found a way of making use of the walls without weakening their strength. "In the thickness of the walls," he wrote, "are little stairways, cabinets and cupboards, from the bottom floor to the top floor; thus there is no space wasted."

Evidently the building was designed from a dwelling—perhaps an apartment house; for in describing his project Perret wrote: "This great and excellent edifice can accommodate comfortably 500 people."

TO EXPLODE TORPEDOES

Ultra-Violet Rays Experiment Proves Effective

A successful experiment of exploding torpedoes from a long distance by means of the ultra-violet rays discovered by Giulio Ulivi, the Italian inventor, has been carried out in Florence. Ulivi having handed over the secret to the Italian Government, preparations were made for an experiment, details of which were kept as much as possible from public knowledge. It became known, however, that Admiral Pietro Fornari had placed in the river Arno two torpedoes charged with smokeless gunpowder and two other with black gunpowder. The ultra-violet ray apparatus was posted on the tower of the Palazzo Capponi, about two miles away, where Signor Ulivi, awaited the signal from the naval officers in charge of the experiments. When the signal was given the apparatus was put into operation and in less than three minutes all four torpedoes exploded.

Testing Canadian Woods

Because of the importance of this subject to all classes of wood users, the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior is about to undertake an exhaustive series of tests at McGill University. Beginning with a few of the more important of the commercial species, every kind of wood in the country will be tested for its strength in various ways, and for different conditions of growth and moisture content. At present the only information we have on this subject is based upon tests of wood grown in the United States; many of which were grown under entirely different conditions to those found in our own country.

A STRATHCONA STORY

Lord Strathcona often declared that a Scotsman though he spent his life abroad, ever remains a Scotsman, and the ubiquity of the race was a favorite conversational theme with him. To illustrate it he told of a Scotsman in Shanghai who betted an incredulous Southerner that he would discover a brither Scot in every ship in the harbor. Going to each ship in turn and shouting "Are you there Mac?" into the engine-room, he got "Aye, aye" as answer every time.

Household Hints

Rice Secrets of Famous Italian Chefs

By Ann Marie Lloyd

WHEN in Rome do as the Romans do," is not a difficult injunction to heed when eating is the point involved.

Most Italians are excellent cooks. They are also economical to a degree which would make the average American housewife wide-eyed with astonishment. They seem to have an intuitive knowledge of food values, and they are delightfully wise in not overeating.

To those who have spent much time abroad the wonder of how they can eat so little and such plain food and be well and strong is never ceasing. Even the Italian feasts are not designed for the delight of gluttons.

When you are invited to dine with a Venetian the literal translation of his invitation is, "Won't you take four grains of rice with me?"

Rice does, indeed, form the staple of diet of the average Italian, but the ways of cooking rice are apparently infinite, and the Italian cooks have a most pleasing way of making it the accompaniment of many of their most elaborate dishes.

For example, those who have never tasted rice and mushrooms, cooked in the real Italian way, have missed a gastronomic treat. One of the most interesting old characters I have ever known, an Italian chef, gave me the rule.

Rice with Mushrooms.

Take 15 canned mushrooms or 10 fresh ones and a third of a cup of rice. The rice is to be washed and then fried with a lump of butter till it is dry, then add some boiling water, very gently, and let it boil easily for 10 minutes. At the end of this time the rice should be about half cooked. Meantime, in another saucepan, take a small onion, some celery, a small carrot and some parsley, all chopped, and put them over the fire with two tablespoonfuls of the best olive oil. After they have cooked a little add two tablespoonfuls of tomato sauce. The Italian cook would use the tomato paste, diluting it with a little hot water. Season with salt and pepper and add the mushrooms cut in small pieces and cook for 20 minutes. When the rice is half cooked, combine the contents of the two pans and cook for 10 minutes longer. Serve with Parmesan cheese.

The polenta of the Italians is nothing in the world but our Indian meal mush. Just before it is ready to serve they add grated cheese and a lump of butter. They also make the mush thick and slice it as we do for frying and serve it with a meat gravy and grated cheese. This is a substantial meal for a family.

They also have a most delicious way of serving polenta with sausages. For this the polenta is cooked and sliced.

The sausages are removed from the skins, chopped fine and fried in butter. When they are nicely browned, but not crisp, a little beef stock and some tomato sauce is added and they are cooked in it for 15 minutes. Then the sausages are used for the sauce for the polenta and Parmesan cheese is sprinkled over each layer.

Polenta with chicken is another delicacy.

There is a delicious polenta cake which somewhat replaces our "Johnny cake."

Migliacco di Farina Gialla.

To make it take two cups of Indian meal, half a cup of raisins, three tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar, half a teaspoonful of salt and three tablespoonfuls of lard.

With a big wooden spoon the Italian cook mixes the meal, salt, sugar and raisins in a bowl and pours in boiling water slowly, stirring all the time, till there is a stiff paste which uses all the meal.

A cake tin is greased well with half the lard and the meal mixture spread over it with the wooden spoon. When it is all patted in place the rest of the lard is spread over the top and it is baked in a slow oven till it is a golden brown, then eaten hot. The American palate may wish to add syrup to it, but it is delicious broken off and eaten with butter.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie.

I have been chumming with a girl a few months older than I am for about two years, and we have been the best of friends. Since the first of the year I have been going with a boy friend, and now my chum seems to think she is not wanted, although I have repeatedly told her that I want her company now more than ever, but it seems to have no effect on her.

Is there any other way besides giving up my friend to let her know that I mean it, for I do not feel that it would be right for me to turn the boy down just because my chum does not like him? PERPLEXED C. I.

WELL, Perplexed, it seems to me that you are burdened with a rude, disagreeable, overbearing, "bossy" friend, and if I were you I'd get rid of her—just as quickly and just as neatly and just as considerately as I could.

Why shouldn't you have a boy for a friend, if you want to, and why should your girl chum act like a goose about it?

There's nothing mysterious and deep and dark and romantic about her behavior. She's just jealous, that's all—just plain, old-fashioned, small-minded, green-eyed jealous.

If your boy friend is a nice chap and you like him and your people like him and he likes you, that's all that's necessary.

Let the girl friend see that she will either have to come to her senses or say farewell to you.

AND so," writes home Mrs. Newbride, "we are settled in our little nest, and SO happy! When Jack gets into his slippers and house coat, lights his pipe and settles down to the sporting pages, and when I get my chocolates and the fashion news, and settle down somewhere near him, you'd just grin to see how COMFORTABLE we are."

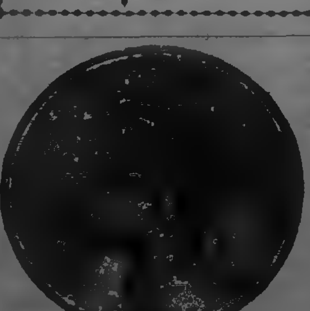
"Our little NEST!"—that's the word. How charmingly suggestive of two starlings in the Spring! No matter how little the nest is. No matter whether it's that cottage they thought of, or a four-room flat. It's the nest. He hasn't a "den"—yet. That comes later—when he has learned to stay away from her for a sufficient number of consecutive minutes.

If you're a sour person—of either sex—don't give a second glance at this picture. It will annoy you. But if you rather like birds and nests and brides—if you have FAITH in life, give it another look. Even faith can smile, you know.

Beauty's Chance for Real Happiness

By WINIFRED BLACK

(Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)



Winifred Black

THEY had her picture in the paper this morning, the beautiful senorita whose sweetheart was following her from Mexico all around the world because he loved her so.

The senorita doesn't want to marry the sweetheart; she doesn't want to marry any one, she says.

What she really wants to do is to take the veil and retire from the world, and never see any man any more.

But the sweetheart won't hear of such a plan. He sends her roses and violets and great velvet anemones.

And cunningly concealed in the violets, and sweetly hidden among the roses and carefully cloistered in the clusters of the orchids, are quaint gifts of ancient jewelry, handed down, the sweetheart says, from grandmother to grand-daughter, in his family from old Castile.

Across the continent the sweetheart has followed her, and over the mountains and upon wild seas; and now they say, the senorita says—perhaps—maybe—if the sweetheart is very, very good, and if she can accustom her mind to the idea of marriage at all—some day——!

Come now, let's talk about it—the beauty business and the love business, you and I.

Who is the prettiest woman you know? Is she married? Is she happy? Is her husband dead in love with her, or has he shown distinct signs of quite a positive interest in the latest beauty in the latest theatrical success?

Who is the cleverest woman you know, the wittiest, the most sparkling, the one you'd choose for a companion for a long rainy afternoon?

Is she married? To whom? A man or a mere imitation? Is her husband still in love with her, or does he run after every insipid little goose he sees?

Now the other women—the plain ones, the positively ugly and the merely dull. Who is the plainest woman you know? Is she married? Isn't she happy? Doesn't her husband tell everybody in the world what a perfect treasure he has for a wife, and doesn't he believe every word that he says?

The man who marries the plain woman is in love with the woman and not with the woman's looks. He knows what he wants and he gets it—and that's all there is to it.

The plain woman doesn't grow plainer; she grows better looking as the years go by. And there is no jealousy and no vanity wounded and no egotism hurt—and the plain woman lives for her husband; she doesn't expect him to live for her.

The beauty does expect husband to live for her, and for her alone.

So many men have offered to do it, you see; and she can't get over thinking that they really mean it.

It is a fine thing to be pointed out as the accepted sweetheart or the acknowledged admirer of the wonderful Miss So-and-So, but the same man who will glow with pride at being so pointed out will writhe in humiliation when somebody calls him the clever Mrs. Somebody's husband.

Why? Why isn't it just as fine to be married to a woman who is cleverer than you are as it is to be in love with her?

Ask the great actress's husband—perhaps he can tell you the answer. A woman loves to shine by reflected glory; the average man wants all the glory himself.

Don't be discouraged, little Miss Plain—you haven't so many admirers as your sister, Miss Beauty—but you stand ten chances to her one for being happy when the man with sense enough to choose you for what you are, and not for how you look, marries you and makes you happy for life.

Here's looking at you, senorita. I hope you'll wear the violets and the amethysts and the roses and the garnets and the orchids and the pearls—and wear with them in your heart of hearts the love and devotion of a true man who knows what he wants and how to take care of it when he has got it.

Partially Arranged.

"Have you planned your suburban house yet?"

"No, but I have the furniture. It will be installment."

Different Speeds.

"How fast can your auto travel?"

"Eighty miles an hour running from a policeman; 10 miles an hour after I am caught."

Pleasure Gone.

"I wouldn't want to be a king."

"No?"

"Not a bit. There would be no fun in smuggling."

Obviously.

Gobang—What is the plural of brandy and soda? Brandies and soda or brandy and sodas?

Ukerdek—Neither. Plain drunk.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Care of Your Teeth Will Insure Your Health

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

HOWEVER cherry-ripe in show the prettiest of lips may be, they are the more tempting and enchanting if lustrous white teeth glint and dazzle their way between them.

Priceless, pearly, pretty teeth over-washed with the moistened dew are like the lovable pallor of the lily. No snow or frost can be fairer. Each breath renews the feathery gloss on the enamel.

Why do teeth decay? For the same reason that Carthage and Tyre, Athens and Rome, Memphis and Nineveh decayed and because Paris and New York are now decaying.

> "Westward the course of empire takes its way;
> The four first acts already past,
> A fifth shall close the drama with the day;
> Time's noblest offspring is the last."

That is to say, the decay comes more from the inside than from without, though external influences are gigantic and only exceeded by those within.

Before decay's effacing fingers have swept the lines of the ivory mouth-guards, the little dark speckled and polka-dotted areas must be vigilantly anticipated.

It is not altogether true in the brief span of human endeavor that all bright things must fail. Nor is all that was made sweet to be lost when sweetest.

A sane discretion in physical play and work, with a modicum of care for the enamel hedge-row of your inner meads and forests, will insure you sound teeth throughout five score and ten.

Where Germs Abide.

Even though "all human things are subject to decay," and "when fate summons monarchs must obey," the double horseshoe of oral ivories may remain, like the dragon's teeth of Cadmus.

Oddly enough, though much of the decay of teeth has its source within the body, "dental caries," as dentists are prone to call it, seems eternally to begin on the outer parts of the enamel.

Your mouth swarms with a Saragossa sea of bacteria and other germs. Even the pneumonia microbe is always [illegible] around the mouth looking for odd jobs, such as to cause ulcers, tonsilitis, caries of the teeth, and a host of similar baby pneumonias.

These demons of disease—there are scores and scores of different kinds—live and have their happy being in meat fibres and other particles of victuals which lodge in your teeth crevices and in the tonsils.

The saliva is like soap or ammonia. In brief, it is an "alkali." As long as you are in health, if your tissues are sound, and all your internal machinery is well lubricated, carbureted and ignited, just so long will you have no trouble with your teeth.

On the other hand, the instant too much fuel chokes up the engine, or some stomach, liver, kidney or other derangement interferes with combustion, then the saliva loses its anti-acid—"alkaline"—power, and the germs, which thrive on the bits of food in your mouth, form all sorts of acids and salts (not "uric acid" as you are always told) from candies, sugars, preserves, pastries, jellies and starchy foods.

Causes of Illness.

Meats are the least guilty felons and criminals of all the dietary accomplices. Cakes, candies, sugary foods, bread, potatoes and other starchy pabulum cause more teeth decay than other aliment.

Adenoids, tonsil enlargements, mouth breathing, neglect to have the dentist polish the teeth every three or four months, gums that recede, overeating, poor mastication of food, chewing on one side only, omission of cleaning the teeth with some gritty paste, perfunctory or remiss attention to children's temporary teeth, anaemia or other illness, and mushy, pasty foods, all alter the saliva so that bacteria eat away the teeth and cause "caries" or decay.

Once this begins, all sorts of malignant maladies may develop, which, if not taken to task early, lead on to ruin and death.

Answers to Health Questions

MISS F. K., Bridesburg, Pa.—What will develop the bust? Deep breathing and exercise have done no good.

If you will drink two quarts of creamy milk daily, get 10 hours sleep at night and massage your bust carefully with goose grease that has been boiled and raked your whole torso will develop. Three hours a day in the fresh air and sunshine are also desirable. Drink no coffee, tea or liquors.

MRS. R., Collingswood, N. J.—I am thin and anaemic. I have been taking "fat making" tablets. Do you advise them? They claim to make flesh.

The safest fashion by which you may gain weight as well as good blood is to eat liberally of eggs, cream, butter, sweets, gravies, rich meats, olive oil and the various rich fats.

Constant Reader—What is a good diet for acidity of the stomach?

Since even the robust, well stomach makes two-tenths per cent. of muriatic acid and the digesting victuals also become acid, you evidently mean an excess of acid, or "hyperacidity."

Cabbage, cheeses, sauerkraut, soups, steaks, potatoes and other bulky as well as acid pabulum will neutralize your superacidity. When the stomach makes an overabundance of acid—due to past excesses in highly seasoned foods, too much meat eating and nervousness—it is necessary to take acids by the mouth and heavy foods as well to consume the acid.

Daddy's Good Night Story—

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

TWINKLE, twinkle, little star—'" began Brer Rabbit one night, when he was interrupted by his good wife.

"What are you saying those silly little things for?" asked Mrs. Rabbit.

"They are not silly," replied Brer Rabbit. "I like little poems just as well as the children."

"You must remember that you are grown up now," said Mrs. Rabbit.

"Never expect to grow up," replied Brer Rabbit. "You just go and tend to the house."

"'Twinkle, twinkle, little star. How I wonder what—'"

"Wait a minute," interrupted Mrs. Rabbit. "Those stars are twinkling too much."

"Never mind about that," said Brer Rabbit. "I am going to say that little piece right through. 'Twinkle, twinkle, little star—'"

"That's six twinkles and you haven't finished yet," interrupted Mrs. Rabbit again.

"Your onions are burning!" exclaimed Brer Rabbit.

Mrs. Rabbit ran out in the kitchen as fast as she could, and when Brer Rabbit was left alone he laughed softly to himself.

"We are children grown up," he kept saying.

When Mrs. Rabbit returned she said to her husband:

"How are the stars getting on?"

"They are still twinkling," said Brer Rabbit with a laugh.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prevalent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Sanol BLOOD SALT
No Indigestion can exist if this remedy is taken according to instructions—and there is no known remedy to take its place.

This Blood Salt is a mixture compounded so as to resemble in essence and effect, the salty parts of the human blood. It is well known that our vitality is normally kept up by means of the natural blood salts.

Hence a lack of the latter will always superinduce a loss of the former. It is also a fact that with each quart of urine we lose about 18 grams of blood salts. Accordingly we must gradually become weak and sick, unless we provide a substitute for these salts in the blood.

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbance of digestion such as Dyspepsia, Gastric Catarrh, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, etc., and as an aid to digestion, in wasting and nervous diseases.

Shared Her Husband's Tastes and Was Devoted Nurse

The widow of Robert Louis Stevenson, the great writer of fiction, died not long ago of apoplexy at her home in California, where she had resided since Mr. Stevenson's death in Samoa nearly twenty years ago. Her maiden name was Van de Grift, and her first husband, from whom she was divorced in 1879, was a Mr. Osborne. She became the wife of Mr. Stevenson the following year, and was during the rest of his life "a perfect companion, taking part keenly and critically in his work, sharing all his gipsy tastes and love of primitive and natural modes of life, and being, in spite of her own precarious health, the most devoted and efficient of nurses. Her son and daughter both co-operated with Stevenson in his literary labors.

MISTAKEN FOR MILITANT

London Cabby Refused to Drive Mrs. Asquith

Mrs. Asquith is laughing with her friends at an amazing incident in connection with the militant excitement of which she was the victim or the heroine. She had occasion to call on her distinguished husband and hailing a taxi-driver, gave the order, "No. 10 Downing street." The result was disconcerting. Descending from his seat, the taxi-driver motioned to his fare to alight. "Not if I know it, young woman," he said: "you'll have to get another man for this job."

Mrs. Asquith tried to explain to the chauffeur who she was but he would have none of it, and the wife of the Prime Minister was compelled to seek other means of getting to her husband's official residence.

PETS TATTOOED

The Latest Craze Amongst Society Women

The latest craze amongst smart women is to have their pet animals tattooed on their arms, ankles, shoulders or chests. Mr. South, an English tattooist, tells how he first makes a drawing of the little favorite, which he then transfers to the body of the owner, and afterwards tattoos, with the aid of electricity, into the skin. "There is quite a craze for women to have their pets tattooed on their arm," he said. "I have done this in the case of horses, dogs, cats, birds, and even wild animals, such as lions and tigers. I recently tattooed on a woman's shoulder a photograph of her little pet rabbit. It is no uncommon idea to have a 'lucky' pig tattooed on the skin. Both men and women come to me to have lucky pigs designed for them."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

Teeth Absorb Lead

A tendency of the teeth and gums to absorb lead has been observed by Victor Hinse, German dentist, among the workers in an accumulator factory. The teeth all had much tartar, and that scraped from the teeth of one man affected with anæmia and other symptoms of poisoning was found by analysis to contain about one-half of one per cent. of metallic lead. Extracting the seventeen teeth still retained by this man, the metallic lead in the crowns was shown to be 0.038 per cent. and 0.082 per cent. in the roots—sufficient to give continuous lead intoxication.

In Buckinghamshire an ointment made from mistletoe berries is still believed in as a cure for rheumatism and epilepsy.

"CATCH-MY-PAL"

"There are five men at the lamppost you ought to get to sign the pledge," said a workingman to Rev. J. R. Patterson. He went back with the speaker to the group. They talked the matter over. Signed the pledge within a week. "Next week I want you to bring in a man each to sign the pledge," said Mr. Patterson to the group. Next week there were eleven, six new men and five of the first lot. One man was away looking after a sick relative. Next week there were thirty-one men, boozers, topers, soakers of the worst type. Next week one hundred and five. Within five weeks six hundred men had signed. Within one year 140,000 men had signed the pledge in Ireland."—"Catch-My-Pal Movement."

A UNIQUE SILO

On Strath Lynn Farms, near the town of Simcoe, are eight concrete silos, all of the one type. The concrete walls at one corner of the building have been continued up to a height of some ten or twelve feet above the foundation, thus forming two outside walls of a square silo. Inside, the concrete walling has been constructed, and thus a square silo, practically a part of the wall, and requiring no separate room, is provided. The floor of the silo is level with that of the basement of the barn. Considerable economy of expense and labor is secured by this plan, which, according to the owners of the farm, has worked out well. No trouble has been experienced in feeding, the ensilage coming out [illegible]. Moreover, [illegible] filling the cutting box may be placed on the barn floor and the ensilage stowed away with very little trouble.

THE QUEEN'S UNDERSTUDY

Royalty's Substitutes Are Received With Honor

The Queen is obliged to have an "understudy" to represent her at social affairs which she cannot personally attend. The choice occasionally falls upon a lady-in-waiting, but more usually if the Queen has to be represented it is by her own private secretary, Mr. [illegible]. Etiquette requires that when the King and Queen are represented their substitutes shall be received with almost as much ceremonial as the sovereigns themselves, the host or hostess receiving and remaining with the gentleman or lady deputy as long as they remain in the place. This means only a short time, but the names of those invited to meet the royal understudy have to be submitted beforehand exactly as in the case of royalty.

There is not quite such a formal system of etiquette nowadays at court as in the days of Queen Victoria, but there is an even more emphatic desire for dignity.

LATEST ENGINE FREAK

An Engine That is Smaller Than a Fly

Tiny Tim, weighing just four grains complete, is the latest freak in engines. It is made of gold and steel, and is [illegible] large in [illegible]. It takes over 100 such engines to weigh one ounce, almost 2,000 to weigh a pound, and more than 3,000 [illegible] to weigh a ton. The shaft runs in [illegible] and ground steel bearings located in the gold bed. These bearings are counterbored from the inside to form a self-oiling bearing. The flywheel has a steel centre and arms, with a gold rim, and the complete wheel weighs one grain. The cylinder is of steel, with octagonal base, highly polished. The stroke is one-thirty-second of an inch, bore [illegible] hundredths of an inch. Seventeen pieces are used in the construction of the engine. The speed of the engine is 6,000 revolutions per minute. When running 100 revolutions per second no motion is visible to the eye, but it makes a noise like the noise of a mosquito. The horsepower is 1-489,000. Compressed air is used to run it, and it may be of interest to note that the amount required to make it hum can be borne on the eye-ball without winking.

WASHING IN GOLD

Winners of Money Take Baths in Gold Coins

A French journalist who had speculated in railway shares won a large sum of money from a lucky venture. Drawing it in gold, he proceeded to an hotel, emptied the bags of gold in the bed, and went to sleep in it.

Paganini, the violinist, when he received the proceeds of his concerts (he insisted upon being paid in gold), used to wash his hands in sovereigns. A French novelist, Soulie, wrote a book called "The Memoirs of the Devil." It was successful; the publishers paid him for the first volume $10,000 in gold. The author carried the gold to his bedroom, poured it into a foot-bath, and enjoyed for half an hour the excitement of moving his feet to and fro in a bath of gold coins.

A Chicago merchant of great wealth, believing certain symptoms indicated that he would become insane, consulted a specialist and under his advice became an inmate of a private asylum. For twelve years there his recreation was piling up gold coins and then knocking them over. At times he washed his hands in gold eagles and half-eagles. At the end of the long seclusion he returned to business, and in twelve months confirmed the thoroughness of his recovery by amassing $800,000.

In behalf of a recently invented conical dipper for removing cream from milk bottles it is contended that its shape disturbs the cream less than any other utensil.

At yesterday morning's service at St. John's church, the pulpit was occupied by Rev. Mr. Boyle, of Trinity College, Toronto. He and Mrs. Boyle were guests of Canon and Mrs. Davidson at the rectory. The holiday program of motion pictures given at the Grand Opera House were of a high class nature, and attracted large and appreciative audiences Friday and Saturday. The attention of our readers is drawn the new regulations concerning collection of local garbage. It is unwise to put vegetable cans, clothing, bottles, etc., among your ashes. The gentlemen who drive the carts will pick such articles out from the ashes and throw them aside. By observing this hint you will save your premises being ornamented (?) with such goods and, at the same time save the drivers from soiling their lily-white hands.

Port Hope Cop and Keys

Port Hope Guide: Our policemen, when out of office, seem to have a strong desire to retain the keys. It took several weeks to persuade A. W. Gunnarson to loosen up, and now acting Chief Richards is without keys. This morning he had to wait about the corridors of the Town Hall until Mr. Chesher arrived and opened the jail. Mayor Bush will take the matter up with Mr. Royce tomorrow.

Some Important Facts about the Silver Black Fox Industry

The Motto of Every Canadian Should be "What We Have, We INTEND to Hold"

In so far as it applies to Canada's national wealth, our forests, and more particularly the protection of our fur-bearing animals, which, however, would soon become but evidence of a great past unless husbanded by the foresight of man.

To the foresight of Prince Edward Island's practical men two of the most famous of Canada's fur-bearing animals, the Black and Silver Fox, have been saved to future generations—and as a consequence Canada will unquestionably furnish the world's great demand in future, for this princely fur exceeds its weight in gold!

Concerted action by shrewd Canadians now engaged in this industry in Prince Edward Island will shortly control all the available Black and Silver Foxes wherever found on this continent, a fact generally conceded by persons in authority—consequently this announcement is of great interest to the careful investor and believer in Canada's vast Fur Wealth.

The first island ranch was started with two pairs of Anticosti Silvers, bought from a trapper for experimental purposes solely, and same proved so successful that the fox industry started to be developed.

In the year 1910 a pair of breeders could be bought for $4,000.00; in 1911 the price went to $6,000, a pair, during 1912 a pair at $10,000.00 was considered high but not unusual and at the time of writing (January 28, 1914) live breeders can bring any price from $15,000.00 to $35,000.00, according to fecundity, and options on the unborn of next year are selling for $12,000.00 a pair.

About $10,000.00 is said to be invested in the fox industry on Prince Edward Island, showing a gain of over $2,000,000 inside a year.

Official returns for the present year show that the 277 fox ranches on the Island contain 899 silver breeding foxes (441 males and 458 females). The total number of silver offspring for 1913 was 780, and the average assessed value was $4,892.58 per fox.

The total valuation of the young silver black foxes for the current year is $3,349,449. The total number of silver foxes in the ranches for 1913 is 1,682.

Pelts from ranch-bred Prince Edward Island silver black foxes have sold at the London auction sales as high as $2,625.00.

ASSETS OF THE COMPANY

The Company has TEN PAIRS of high-grade PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND silver black foxes, EIGHT PAIRS are now on the ranch and two pairs of breeders under option all are eligible for registration under the select class "A" of the FOX BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION. These foxes have been selected with special regard to parentage, and consist of the following well known strains:

Gordon, Dalton, Tuplin, Oulton, Raynor and Champion. These names are conspicuously prominent in the Fox Industry ranches which in 1913 paid from 45 per cent to 900 per cent.

THE INDUSTRY

No industry in recent years has made such wonderful strides as the Black-Silver Fox Industry, and the reason is that it offers larger financial returns than any other business in the Dominion. Moreover, its future possesses unlimited opportunities, as the demand is constantly increasing, while the supply has reached almost a minimum until a few companies undertook the breeding and rearing of these valuable animals. Everyone who is alive to the opportunities of enormous profits without risk will readily appreciate the advantages of investing in the R. J. McNeill Black and Silver Fox Company, Limited. It is a fact that every bona fide fox company organized within the Province of Prince Edward Island has paid dividends of from 45 per cent to 300 per cent and some companies have even done better than this.

ONLY ONE CLASS OF STOCK

There is only one class of stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every shareholder participates pro rata in all dividends paid by the Company, and the latter has no authority to issue either Preferred Stock or Bonds.

FUTURE POLICY

The Company expects to earn large profits from the sale of these rare black and silver foxes for breeding purposes, while each year a percentage of the production will be retained, placing the company in a position to pay large dividends from the sale of furs alone. The object of this policy is to place the fur farming industry on a substantial commercial basis.

THE COMPANY'S RANCH

The Company owns outright a fine 211-acre farm with complete farm buildings—one of the most up-to-date ranches on the Island. It has an experienced and highly skilled keeper whose services have largely contributed to the present satisfactory condition of the business.

Clerks in the employ of Sinclair and Stewart, a big dry goods house at Summerside, formed a silver fox company in 1912. This company is popularly referred to as the "Widows" Fox Company, as nearly all the stockholders are women, a dividend of 900 per cent was their reward.

Three sisters of Alberton, P.E.I., who were employed in the United States, sent their spare earnings home two years ago to be invested in the fur farming business and their profits have averaged $15,000 yearly since.

A bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Fred L. Rogers, the Governor's son, of Alberton, invested $300 three years ago, and is now worth $45,000 directly from this source.

Mr. Frank Hall, clerk at Holman's, Limited, received [illegible] from an investment of $300 made in this business three years ago.

The Rosemount Live Stock Co., Limited, of Alberton, P. W. Turner, treasurer, has paid a dividend of 1,000 per cent this year.

Seven clerks and managers in Summerside pooled $300 each in 1910 and purchased a pair of silver foxes for $2,500. The seller, feeling that he had driven a splendid bargain, cared for the pair for a year. The first litter consisted of seven pups. The seven owners have received [illegible] each dividends since and the pair bought for $2,500 could be sold for $35,000 to-day. Mr. Austin Scales, of St. Eleanors, is a member of this Association.

ITISH MINISTRY STANDS CHARGED WITH PREPARING TO DRIVE ULSTER TO CIVIL WAR

bined Exertions of Army and Navy to Crush Opposition--But it Made to Miscalculations onto, April 13.—Under the cap- "Plot and Plotters. Why the t's Plan Failed," the military pondent of The Times reviews heme to intimidate Ulster. The ry correspondent of The Times

John Simon, the Attorney-General lifted a corner of the veil by his tion at Blackburn on Friday. He admitted that he has been ed by the Prime Minister to be ber of a small committee of the t which discussed at the War the plan of operations—or, as phemistically termed it, the "ar- ments"—against Ulster, and by dmission he demonstrated con- ly that the cabinet were privy assembly, and therefore liable consequences, of this council r.

The plan paign, which Sir John Simon ly defined as a "perfectly rea- e and necessary precaution," me which had the unfortunate ance of having been deliberately ed to provoke opposition in That it was expected to en- r resistance has been admitted l. Sealy, and indeed proved by nsive preparations which were to support it. This resistance uncil of war prepared to crush combined exertions of the army navy, the first including all ailable troops in Ireland, and cond comprising warships of various types with field artillery for landing parties.

The Miscalculations.

These wretched plotters made two very serious miscalculations. Protestant Ulster refused to be either intimidated or provoked. The Volunteers, held in the firm leash of discipline, remained absolutely calm. Strongly in the knowledge of their forward organization for defence, and aware that they could mobolise and concentrate with unexampled rapidity, they elected, despite, Mr. Churchill's sneers and taunts, to sit still. They received the King's troops, as they have always received them, with open arms. The two forces fraternised and attended church parades together. Not thanks to the Government, but in spite of them, the country was saved from civil war.

NO MONEY WITHOUT REV. FR. J. FALLON

St. Joseph's Church Easter Collection Showed Marked Decline

Ottawa April 13.—The bitter feeling aroused over the removal of Father James Fallon from Ottawa University was shown in the Easter collection at St. Joseph's Church yesterday.

The collection is usually a very large one, but there was a marked falling off in Sunday's returns

It is understood that some of the envelopes simply contained cards with such remarks as nothing doing until Father Fallon comes back, though the church authorities are very reticent about the matter.

The size of the collection has a direct bearing on the situation because the proceeds of all the collections in excess of the needs for upkeep of the church, go to the oblate order for the support of Ottawa University.

FEDERAL SUCCESS WAS SHORT LIVED

Re-Capture of San Pedro was Soon Followed by Enforced Evacuation

Torreon, Mex., April 13.—Heavy fighting was in progress at San Pedro yesterday. Federals having retaken the town two days previously. It is reported also that a Federal force of 3,000 men, believing this city to be lightly garrisoned, is on its way to recapture the place. A surprise awaits them, for when General Villa went pursuers after General Velasco he left 5,000 men here.

San Pedro was retaken by General Arguменo and General Emilio P. Campo. When Villa's troops drove the federal commander De Moure out of the town, he left it with a small garrison, the remainder the troops taking up the pursuit. Campo and Arguмeno are believed to have thought De Moure still in possession for they approached unsuspectingly and were met with a withering fire.

LIBERAL DEFECTIONS PROVING BAR TO PARTY'S TRADE POLICY

British Preference Plank Chopped From Platform as too Full of Knots

Ottawa, April 13.—The defection of Sir Lyman Melvin-Jones and Mr. A. C. Ross, ex-M.P., from the Liberal party, with the knowledge of more to come, has frightened off the Liberals and it is said to-day that they will go no farther in amendments to the budget than free food and free agricultural implements, which of course, includes the policy of free wheat.

It was the original intention of the party to ask for an increase in the British preference from 33 1-3 per cent. to 50 per cent. but the protectionist wing af the party objected so strenuously that this would mean the complete alienation of all manufacturers as well as factory employes that it was decided to abandon the increased British preference.

So now it is claimed that the party will adopt as its tariff policy free food and free agricultural implements. The plan is to appeal to the city consumer with the free food plank and the farmer with the free agricultural implements policy. The eastern manufacturer will be assured that outside of this one industry they need have no fear upon the return of the Liberal party. They will remain as untouched as during the sixteen years the Liberals held office. On the other hand the platform will give the western free traders, led by Dr. Michael Clark an opportunity to preach their favorite economic policy to their heart's content.

KNEES QUAKING, FACES ASHEN, GUNMEN MARCH TO DEATH CHAIR

Four Slayers of Gambler Rosenthal Pay Penalty For the Crime

Sing Sing Prison, Ossining, N.Y., April 13.—The four gunmen convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the New York gambler, died in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison at the break of dawn this Easter Monday morning. None confessed his guilt and none mentioned the name of Charles Becker, the former police lieutenant. found guilty of instigating the murder, but saved by Court of Appeals reversal.

Of the four who died, Frank Seidenshner ("Whitey Lewis") made the only statement. Even he did not flatly assert his innocence.

"Gentlemen," he mumbled, as they strapped him in the chair, "I did not shoot at Rosenthal. Them who said I did were perjurers. For the sake of justice, gentlemen, I say I didn't. The witness Stanish——"

"Whitey" did not finish the sentence. The harness had been adjusted and the current shot his body forward in the chair. He had meant to say that Stannish, a waiter and a witness at the murder trial, had lied; but death intervened.

Four in Forty Minutes.

Seidenshner was the second man to die. "Dago Frank" (Frank Cirofici) came first. "Gyp the Blood," (Harry Horowitz) was third and "Lefty Louie" (Louis Rosenberg) last. In the forty minutes flat, all four were despatched. This time would have been shortened had it not been for the overcrowding of newspaper reporters. Their numbers necessitated a shifting of witnesses for each execution.

Knees Quaking; Cheeks Pale.

There was no untoward incident throughout the procedure. All walked quietly to their doom and only their quaking knees and the sickly green pallor of their faces attested that the realization of death was upon them.

Jews Did Not Confess.

Priest and rabbi alike averted their drawn faces from the chair of death, meantime struggling to control their choking throats as they intoned a prayer for the dying. "Gentlemen," said rabbi Goldstein, as he left the death chamber, "if you ask me if the Jewish boys were guilty, I will say I do not know. They did not confess to me. As for the Italian, I do not believe he was at the scene of the crime. I do not think any of them should have been convicted on the testimony offered."

Hideous Noises Lacking.

An anaemic moon still hung in the sky when those who were to witness the executions gathered in front of the prison. The air was chill and raw wind swept across the Hudson, which bounds the prison on the west. Faint lights glimmered at corridor ends of the buildings, but no sound came from within. The hideous noises which convicts have been said to emit when one or more of their number is to die, were spared those who waited.

STORY OF TORTURE IN ITALIAN CASTLE

Cruelty Like That of Middle Ages Revealed by Police Investigation.

Naples, April 13.—An Investigation into the incarceration of two sisters of Baron Dominico Camardo show that the young women were placed in a dungeon in the Camarda castle near Mairato by the father of the Baron Camarda, who was arrested yesterday and that the latter, on his fathers death, continued the treatment meted out to the girls because they had dishonored the family name. The sisters were supplied with food just sufficient to keep them alive After the death of the old Baron Camarda, his eldest son the present Baron, took upon his hands the torture of his erring sisters. In this he was abeted by his brother, Francesco and his sisters, Antonia and Gracia. It is said that one of them, Teresina was finally buried alive in the dungeon, butwas taken out of her grave while she was alive and beaten to death by the family. She was then buried in the cemetery at Mairato.

It was not until last February that rumors of the tragedy came to the ears of the police authorities. When the latter heard about the matter they demanded the key of the castle on threats that if the key were refused they would break down the walls. The police found the other sister Isobel, in the dungeon, nude and like a skeleton.

NO MORE DREADNOUGHTS

Small Heavily Armed Ships Much Better

The navies of the world have built 101 battleships of the dreadnought type since the British navy launched the original dreadnought. The passing of the century mark came with the launching of the British battle-cruiser Tiger, and with that the decision of the British naval authorities to build no more warships of just that type. It has been reported that the smaller vessel more heavily armed will be the fashion during the next season of British naval designing. The building of 101 dreadnoughts in eight years means that an average of more than one of these mammoth ships a month has been launched.

Voices are Growing Deeper

Nowadays there is a noticeable stir in musical circles when a new tenor or soprano is discovered. A baritone or contralto voice, on the other hand, however beautiful may be its quality, attracts but little notice.

All the great masters agree that sopranos are becoming more and more difficult to find, and so rare is a pure tenor that the possession of such a voice has been called a disease.

The reason for this is that with each successive generation the human voice has become a shade deeper. A genuine bass voice was unknown among our more remote ancestors, and most of their caroling was in what would nowadays be called falsetto tones.

Baritone voices are the most common among masculine singers of to-day, and even these are distinctly a shade deeper in tone than the baritones of fifty years ago.

The English opera could never be sustained by the voices of her countrymen, and it is to the southern climes we must look for the slowly but surely dying "flute" voice.

RECIPES CATALOGUED

A Business Contrivance That is Very Useful in Housekeeping

Few women outside of business and academic circles realize the convenience of the card catalogue system. One energetic woman who had been a very successful secretary made an efficient housekeeper and home-maker because she remembered in her married life the devices that had helped her in business. She had a number of catalogues to indicate the state of her household supplies—linen, etc.—but the most interesting of all was her card catalogue cook book and menu index. It was just like a library catalogue, being composed of a couple of drawers in a little cabinet filled with cards on which were typed recipes. These cards were grouped under appropriate heads and made readily accessible through a number of guide cards headed, dinner soups, entrees, salads, meats and desserts. When faced with the problem, "What shall we have to eat to-day," she simply ran through her cards for the meal in question and often found the recipe for a dish she had quite forgotten about.

For use as a cook book this arrangement is much more convenient than the old book form. The collection of recipes grows rapidly, too, as it is so easy to paste on a card a newspaper clipping or a recipe from a household magazine, and slip the card into its proper place where it does not get lost, as loose papers have a habit of doing. The catalogue outfit is quite inexpensive and the utility of the scheme will certainly repay the original trouble of making.

Costly House Cleaning

The average Canadian housewife will probably look aghast at the London County Council's school cleaning bill. The wages of the women cleaners and casual male assistants amount to nearly $300,000 a year, and cleaning materials cost another $30,000. The window-cleaning contract absorbs nearly $32,500, and the chimney-sweepers divide $6,000 among them. Washing of towels and dusters accounts for over $14,000. Then the non-provided schools cost proportionate amounts for similar services. The grand total is probably about $425,000 a year. These large amounts are not so extraordinary when it is remembered that about 1,200 schools and colleges have to be cleaned.

A Gifted Authoress

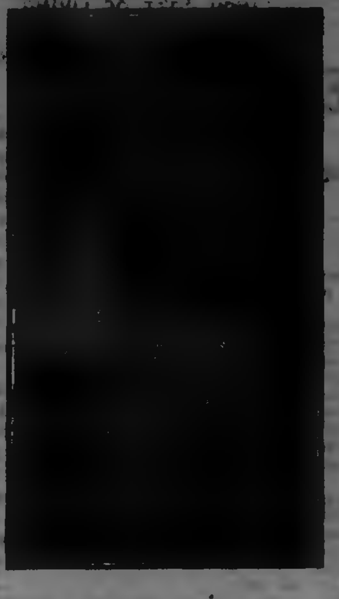
Miss Leona Dalrymple, on returning from an afternoon walk, found the ... of a publishing company, well known in Canada and the United States awaiting her arrival with a ... check and the information that she had won it with her story "... of the Green Van," which she had submitted in a story-writing contest conducted by his firm.

Miss Dalrymple has been writing ever since she was a little girl. She is musical as well as literary, but her father says that he is just as proud of the fact that his daughter is a good ... as that she won $10,000 in a contest in which nearly 1,000 manuscripts were submitted.

HIRING AN ESCORT

Chauffeurs Are Supplied Who Prove Agreeable Companions

Shopping, calling, and other friendly feminine activities, conducted on automobile for women, by women, and with women—such is the slogan of a unique business which was organized in New York. Suppose that you are spending a few weeks in town, or even that, living there, you do not desire either to buy an automobile or trust to the vicarious delights of a taxicab. You simply telephone the secretary of this organization (a woman, of course), and specify the hour at which you wish to be met. An electric brougham will call for you, piloted by a college girl, who is in most cases a student at Barnard and who has been thoroughly trained in handling an electric in the traffic. She will take you to your destination and prove, if desired, rather a companion than a chauffeur on the way. This branch of the service is essentially for the daytime, and men are barred. There is an extension of it, which is, however, perhaps even more novel. If Milady wishes to go to the opera or the theatre and does not care to be without male protection, a perfectly good Columbia student, suitably togged cap-a-pie, will be supplied. He will not only guide her brougham but will act as escort at the entertainment, and for supper afterward if so desired. Even seats and flowers will be arranged for, if Milady wishes it. This kind of thing is rather expensive, the day service with college girl drivers costing $200 a month for a daily use of the car for an hour and a half.



HON. CHARLES DEVLIN

His "One-Hoss Shay"

When the history of London street traffic is written, it will probably be recorded that Lord Rothschild was the last person to ride daily through the City in a brougham. Motor omnibuses are all careful to give the blue brougham plenty of elbow room, for every driver on the road knows Lord Rothschild's carriage, and thinks kindly of the generous donor of pheasants who rides inside. Although he is now in his seventy-fourth year, Lord Rothschild is regular as a clock in his attendance in the City. About four o'clock in the afternoon the blue brougham takes him home again to Piccadilly.

THE SHIP'S DENTIST

Modern Ocean Liners Provide Against Toothache

Modern liners have every kind of luxury, and a ship's dentist is the most modern innovation. Unlike other innovations, it did not originate in the brains of the steamship managers, but was due to a Parisian dentist. Having occasion to go on a sea voyage for his health, he was struck with the need of a dentist on board ship, and on his return he promptly engaged a suite of rooms in one of the French transatlantic vessels. He received many offers, and since that date several steamship companies have carried a ship's dentist, who can extract the aching teeth of the passengers.

Invention of Waterproofs

One Thomas Fearnley Tilley, of ..., took out a patent 25 years ago for a waterproofing process known as "cravenette," which he evolved quite by accident. It so happened that some material had been badly, or wrongly, dyed, and he directed his men to wash out the surplus color with alum. This was done, with the result that the material was so vastly improved that another alum wash was ordered. The cloth was then sent to the wetting machine, but it was found that the material, though passed through the water, came out dry! And that is how the discovery that cloth can be rendered waterproof and yet remain porous was made.

WATER TOWER IN WINTER

There has been erected for the Agricultural College at St. Vital, Man., a water tank with a capacity of 125,000 imperial gallons. The structure is mounted upon a tower, the total height being 160 feet. The weight is somewhat in excess of 100 tons. The cost, including foundations, was approximately $16,000. Where such a means of water supply is resorted to in climates that are subject to severe freezing in winter time the main issue to contend with in the design and construction is to arrive at some feasible means to prevent freezing. To this end a riser pipe has been employed. It is built of steel, 6 feet in diameter, the idea being that the diameter is sufficiently large to permit the formation of a natural frost jacket of ice about 3 inches thick on the interior of the riser pipe, protecting the balance of the cross-section from freezing. As an added precaution a 1½-inch steam coil, to the extent of about 100 feet was placed in the bottom of the tank for the purpose of raising the temperature of the water.

Origin of "Deadhead"

The origin of the word "deadhead" takes us back to the theatre of ancient Rome. R. H. Broadhead, in "A History of Pantomime," gives the following realistic explanation. He says: "Persons were instructed to give applause with skill. The professionals hired themselves out to the poets, authors, etc., and were so disposed as to support a loud applause. The free admission tickets were small ivory death's heads, and specimens of these are to be seen in the Museum of Naples."

Why They Are Cold

Do you know why a dog's nose and a woman's elbow are always cold? Because, according to an old country superstition when Noah went into the Ark he found that he had forgotten his tools, and had to use first a dog's nose, and then his wife's elbow, to stop a leak.

World's Deepest Colliery

INDIVIDUALITY OF BOOKS

Books are almost as individual as friends. There is no earthly use in laying down general laws about them. Some meet the needs of one person, and some of another; and each person should beware of the booklover's besetting sin, of what Mr. Edgar Allan Poe calls "the mad pride of intellectuality," taking the shape of arrogant pity for the man who does not like the same kind of books. . . . A book must be interesting to the particular reader at that particular time. But there are tens of thousands of interesting books, and some of them are sealed to some men and some are sealed to others; and some stir the souls at some given point of a man's life, and yet convey no message at other times. The reader, the booklover, must meet his own needs without paying too much attention to what his neighbors says these needs should be. He must not hypocritically pretend to like what he does not like. Yet at the same time he must avoid that most unpleasant of all, indications of puffed-up vanity which consists in treating mere individual, and perhaps unfortunate, idiosyncrasy as a matter of pride.—Theodore Roosevelt, in his Autobiography.

MIXED FARMING POPULAR

West No Longer Devoted to Growing Wheat

"Western Canada is turning to mixed farming instead of exclusively raising wheat," said Geo. Bury, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific.

"I have seen no evidence for a long time that is more encouraging for the future of the West. The farmers are not pinning their faith to any one crop, and, what's more, they are not draining the fertility of their land, by lack of rotation of crops from year to year.

It is nearly certain that there will be about 2,000,000 acres more under cultivation this year than ever before, and although the effects of the money stringency have certainly been felt in the West as elsewhere, there is a solid foundation for the prosperity of the Western farmer that cannot be disturbed by the flutters of the stock market."

THE RAGLAN SHOULDER A FEATURE OF THE LITTLE MAID'S SPORTS COAT

The separate coat of light weight material, popularly known as the sports coat, is a general favorite both with the little maid and her grown-up sister. It may be of as bright a color as desired and still be in good taste. Wool, velours, golfines, cotton velvets and other similar materials are most generally used for these coats, although any coating material can be used to advantage if it is heavy enough not to require a lining.

These materials range in price from $1.50 a yard to $4; the average width is 42 inches.

No. 8132 is developed in rose colored wool velour with bone buttons of the same shade. The coat is cut with a raglan shoulder, is single breasted and has a convenient patch pocket on either side.

For a girl of 12 years this garment requires 2 yards of 54 inch material.

The little lingerie frock shown in No. 8034 is fashioned of a dainty batiste flouncing; the skirt is arranged in tiered effect, each flounce being gathered slightly and set under the one above. There is a short, set-in sleeve, a gathered waist and a narrow belt of the same material as the frock.

This dress requires for a child of 8 years 2½ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8132—sizes 6 to 14.
No. 8034—sizes 6 to 12.

A WIDE CHOICE OF MATERIAL FOR THE TAILORED FROCK OR THE GOWN FOR AFTERNOON AFFAIRS

Every woman may have her choice this season of materials whether she be inclined to grave or gay. If bright colors appeal, there are the changeable taffetas, or checked and striped wools; if inclined to sombre shades there are browns, dull blues and greens which may be touched to life by one of the smart little colored vests or a sash.

Among the most popular and practical of materials for afternoon wear is silk poplin. It comes in all the new shades, drapes well and wears excellently. No. 8257 is an overblouse design developed in terra cotta poplin with an underblouse of figured net over chiffon. The sash is of satin. Poplin is wide and may be purchased from 75 cents a yard and up. To make this dress in size 36, requires 3⅞ yards of 36 inch material. A quaint little Dutch suit for a boy of from 2 to 8 is shown in No. 8266. The high-waisted trousers are made of mercerized English cotton poplin, which is being much used for this purpose this season, and the blouse is of white madras with a frill about the neck and frills at the top of the cuffs of muslin. This suit requires for a boy of four years 1⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8257—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8266—sizes 2 to 8.
Each pattern 15 cents.

MEN AND LITTLE JOBS

Most Husbands Abhor Doing Small Things Around the House

Family men say that women are continually wanting little jobs done. And women say that men never want to do them. And from observation and experience one will are led to believe that if there is anything on earth that a man hates to do more than anything else, it is one of those little jobs which are always wanting to be done around a house, writes Kate Thorn in The New York Weekly.

The head of the family never has the time. Can't stop. That is his best and most frequent excuse. He very rarely says he doesn't want to because he knows, from long experience, that his wife will almost always find some method to make him do what he does not want to do. It is a way she has, in common with most other women.

He has something else to do. That is another good excuse, but he may be sure that wife of his will watch him with an Argus eye, and woe to him if he does not keep himself busy that day!

When a woman begins at the breakfast table, after pouring out the coffee, and adding an extra spoonful of sugar to his, she says:

"My dear, I want you to do a little job." Then look out for a man so full of business he can hardly hold himself together for his hurry. No matter how lazy he may be generally, he is brisk enough on this occasion.

And no mattr how small and ready to work he may be, he will be just as unwilling to do that little job.

"Let it alone," he says, "when he gets time ... see after it. There's no particular hurry about it," and he swallows his coffee scalding hot, claps his hat on his head with a force which suggests concussion of the brain, and departs.

No job of this kind ever needs to be done, in a man's estimation, and a woman never thinks it can wait a single ...

OUR POINT OF VIEW

Charing Cross station, London, is claimed to be the busiest traffic centre in the world, 900,000 trains passing the point in the course of a year.

SUFFRAGETTE LOGIC

Suffragette logic is baffling. Distempered women burn down buildings, deface art master pieces and assault public men. They are prosecuted and imprisoned according to law. They refuse to eat and are forcibly fed, whereupon they describe the authorities who preserve their lives as monsters who are torturing them out of sheer malice. If, on the other hand, the authorities did not forcibly feed the misguided prisoners, who died in consequence of their inaction, they would be branded as murderers who allowed defenceless women to die on their hands without making an effort to save them. What is the answer? It is that militants should be allowed to destroy property and endanger life and limb without being punished at all, because, you see, the destruction of a private dwelling, the disfigurement of a person's face by vitriol and the dynamiting of a museum are merely political arguments. We fear suffragette lecturers will have a hard time establishing the near-martyrdom of their sisters who are fed forcibly. The unfortunate prison wardens who have to do the feeding are more deserving of that great distinction.

Joints Quit Aching
Soreness beats it away

NO MORE STIFFNESS, PAIN OR MISERY IN YOUR BACK OR SIDE OR LIMBS!

Wonderful "Nerviline" is the Remedy
A marvellous pain reliever.

Not an ordinary liniment—just about five times more powerful, more penetrating, more pain-subduing than any thick, oily or ammonia liniment. Nerviline fairly eats up the pain and stiffness in chronic rheumatic joints, gives quick relief to those throbbing pains, and never burns or even stains the skin.

"Rheumatism kept my joints swollen and sore for ten years. My right knee joint was often too painful to allow me to walk. In this crippled tortured condition I found Nerviline a blessing. Its warm, soothing action brought relief I had given up hoping for. I rubbed on quantities of Nerviline and improved steadily. I also took Ferrozone at mealtime in order to purify and enrich my blood. I am today well and can recommend my treatment most conscientiously.

(Signed) C. PARKS,
Prince Albert.

Not an ache or pain in the muscles or joints that Nerviline won't cure. It's wonderful for lumbago and sciatica; for neuralgia, stiff neck, earache and toothache. Nerviline is simply a wonder. Best family liniment known and largely used for the past forty years. Sold by dealers everywhere, large family size botels, 50c., small trial size 25c. Refuse a substitute, take only "Nerviline."

THE MATTER OF BAIL.

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir.—Will you kindly tell me in a few words, the law on bail for a prisoner. What chance would I take on going on a man's bailbond?

OUR CIVIC WORKERS

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir.—As a Canadian born British subject, and a comparitively large payer to Peterborough's 26 mill taxation rate, I would like through your paper, to say a word or two about the men employed on our streets. A very large percentage of the civic workers are Italians. They are good workers. Still, with scores of English immigrants here out of work, why give the city's work to Italians. The Englishman comes here to become a resident. The Italian only is here to save and stint so that he may go back to Napoli and loaf out the rest of his existence. Shodld, which is not probable, Canada have trouble with the United States, who would be the first to shoulder a rifle and don Canadian uniform, the Italian or the Englishman? Tommy Atkins, 'noted—the song of that name as the man who is "a credit to his Nation and to his native land," is an Englishman. Tommy Atkins is the boy who has fought and bled for England. Tommy Atkins is the Englishman who has helped plant the British Empire's flag on the citadel of many a conquered city, won by the same Tommy Atkins. Give the Englishman a chance to earn his living in our city.

Six Thousand Workers Vote to Call Off Strike in Michigan Industries--Recognition is Waived

Hancock, Mich., April 13.—The Michigan copper strike was declared off to-day, when the result of voting became known.

It is unofficially reported that the majority in favor of calling off the strike was 1,012. The unofficial vote from four of the five locals in the district resulted as follows: Ahmeeks, 600 for returning to work, 17 against Calumet, 291 for; 382 against Hancock, 491 for; 18 against. South Range 875 for, 90 against Recognition of the union denied by the mining companies is waived by the strikers in voting to retirn to work. They claim that practically all of their other demands have been complied with since the strike began These included better working conditions, an eight hour day and a minimum daily wage of $3.

From the outset the operators have declared that they would never recognise the Western Federation of Miners, although they have maintained that they did not question the right of their employes to organize. Thousands of men have been imported to fill the strikers places, and the companies will be hard pressed to find work for the returning strikers.

When the strike started the union claimed that approximately 83000 men were out, since that time many of these have returned to work, and others have moved away from the copper district. The latest number on strike made by Secretary Hietla placed the figure at about 6,000.

Denever, Colo., April 13.—Charles H. Moyer president of the Western Federation of Miners when he read the despatch containing the announcement that men in the Michigan copper district had voted to call off the strike said:

"I do not believe an announcement of the future policy of the Federation would be advisable at this time I expect to prepare a statement as soon as I receive official advice from our representatives in Michigan as to the out come of yesterdays referendum.

To make some delicious griddle cakes have ready a cupful of baked or boiled squash put through a sieve; then add a cupful of scalding milk, a tablespoonful of butter and a saltspoonful of salt. When the mixture is cool, stir in a well beaten egg and a cupful of flour sifted with three level teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Fry as one would ordinary pancakes.

Another recipe says: Summer squash left over from a former meal makes excellent fritters by adding baking powder according to the quantity of squash and flour to make a stiff batter. Drop into hot drippings or salad oil. No eggs needed.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

Mrs. Julian Health's Advice to Canadian Women

To deal with the cost of living, says Mrs. Health, President of the Housewives' League of the United States in a talk to Canadian women, one must first begin with the leaks, and none is greater than the leak through false weights. In Washington in one year a million dollars was wasted in that way. The only way to wipe out that evil is for each consumer to see that she gets honest weight. It cannot be left to inspectors.

Impure food, Mrs. Health said, is a question of supply and demand. If we would not buy it it would never be manufactured. In a so-called pure food show, got up by dealers and held in New York last year, samples of impure foods were placed on the tables. They had to be renewed every morning because the women ate them all up!

Mrs. Health told some interesting stories of the state of New York stores three years ago, when the Housewives' League began its campaign there of the uncovered food, the unprotected goods, and the store cat that slept on the wrapping paper or in the box of prunes. It is all different now.

Not a single tradesman was unwilling to co-operate in reforming these conditions. "We didn't know you women cared," they said, or "my ladies order by telephone and don't care whether the shop is clean or not." So it all comes back to the housewife.

SIR JOHNSTONE FORBES-ROBERTSON (as Hamlet) and his wife Gertrude Elliott.

The following poetic appreciation of the great English actor Forbes-Robertson, was written by Andrew Rae Macdonald, a Canadian journalist upon learning of the knight-tragedian's determination to quit the stage.

To Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson
(As Hamlet)

Life knows but two great moments—Birth and Death—
One joyful and the other—tragedy;
Yet in thy hands what great nobility
Is given to that hour when Hamlet's breath
Leaves the cold clay, but living, wandereth
A glorious spirit through Eternity.
Living a life beyond Death's sovereignty,
There earth-bound shell no more encumbereth
The soul's far flights. The body borne on high
Above the warriors on a flaming shield,
Speaks in a hush'd and breathless eloquence
Of Tragedy's grim dictum—"All must die";
Yet whispers of the glad soul, far afield
From petty strife against the world's pretence.

Prince and Farmer

During army manoeuvres in a country district Prince Arthur of Connaught and some brother officers lunched on top of a haystack. Presently the farmer appeared, and as he drew near he could be heard expressing some forcible opinions on the subject of his haystack being used as a mess-room. An orderly hurried up and explained who the officers were, and in an undertone he added that one of them was Prince Arthur, King George's cousin. The indignant farmer flatly refused to believe him. "Anyway, prince or no prince, they've got to come off my stack," he declared, and, turning to the amused officers, he added: "Dash it all, from the looks of you, the next thing you'd do with the stack would be to eat it!"

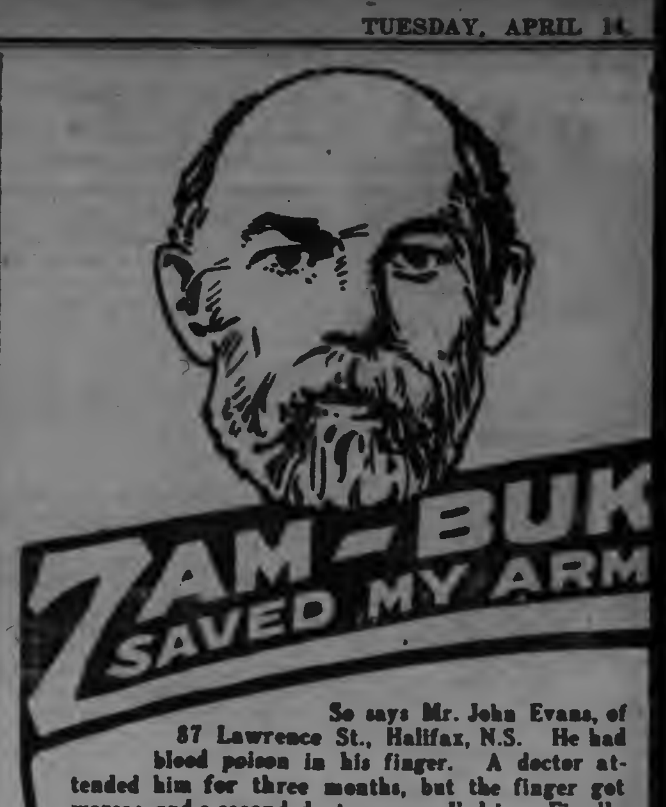
F. ADAMS,
Waterworks Collector.
Peterborough, April 13, '14.



So says Mr. John Evans, of 87 Lawrence St., Halifax, N.S. He had blood poison in his finger. A doctor attended him for three months, but the finger got worse; and a second doctor was called in. Finally the finger was cut off! But the mischief didn't end there. Another operation was performed, and the bones in the palm of his hand scraped. Still no relief, and the hand would not heal! The poison had got into the blood vessels of the arm, and the doctor said the arm must come off, too!

Then, after undergoing all this agony, Mr. Evans was advised to Zam-Buk—a course he should have taken right at the start. He says:—"The Zam-Buk quickly reduced the lumps which had formed on my and eased the pain. It was doing so much good that I told the doctor would use nothing else. Day by day I applied it freely, both to the sore in my hand and to my arm, and it drew the poison out marvellously. To cut a long story short, by the time I had used seven boxes of Zam- my hand was healed, my arm was free from inflammation or pain, and trace of blood-poisoning had been banished. Zam-Buk saved my arm."

THE LESSON IS THIS!—Use Zam-Buk right at the start for cuts, blood- ulcers, abscesses, piles, varicose veins, eczema, eruptions, scalp sores, burns, bruises, and all injuries and diseases. Don't wait until these lead to a grave condition!

New Complexion "Musts" For Early Spring Days

By MAGGIE TEYTE

The Noted Prima Donna.

MAGGIE TEYTE

THE average woman's complexion is never so far from perfect as in the springtime, when all the world is fresh and lovely in its new dress of green and colorful bloom.

Faces that have passed muster or won praise in winter seem suddenly to grow yellow and mottled and muddy. Red veins mar the white smoothness of cheeks. Pimples roughen chin and brow. Blackheads form polka dots along the sides of the nose and gather in grimy colonies in the centre of the chin and corners of the mouth.

The woman who can take close and honest inventory of her face in a strong light and be perfectly and justly satisfied with the mirrored reflection is conspicuously rare.

To begin with, the diet needs reorganization in the spring. Cut out the greasy foods. Substitute fresh fruits and vegetables. Diminish the quantity of tea and coffee and drink plenty of pure water and unsweetened lemonade.

Most of us eat too much the year around. We surely do in the spring. It is really surprising how much less food we require now the need of heat supply is removed.

I know several women who take the milk cure every spring. For a month or six weeks they eat no solid food, living entirely on milk and varying the monotony with fresh or cooked fruits. They emerge from the "fasting" radiantly lovely with clear skins, bright eyes and lessened weight.

A great many women take care of their complexion in energetic spasms. Regular care is required, the day-in-and-day-out routine of soap and water and cold cream and tonic.

Pimples frequently have an internal origin. The clogged system complains through the skin. An excellent remedy for lazy digestive apparatus is made by stewing half a pound of raisins and the same quantity of figs chopped fine, with an ounce of senna leaves and half a pound of sugar and half pint of boiling water. Just simmer it gently for half an hour and pour into a shallow dish and cut in squares. A portion about an inch square at bedtime is a valuable remedy.

An ointment which is said to have a clearing effect on a pimply skin is made with an ounce of spermaceti ointment mixed with a drachm of glycerine and 20 grains of bicarbonate of soda. Personally, I think the average case of pimples can be conquered by cleansing the system and touching the annoying spots with the simple bicarbonate of soda.

Blackheads are nothing in the world but accumulated dirt. The perfectly clean skin never has them. The first step in their expulsion is to wash the face with warm water and soap. If they are very prominent use liquid green soap, but this is rather severe for some skins.

Oils which soften the pores and allow the foreign matter to be removed are valuable. Whatever you do I beg of you not to squeeze the face to remove the blackheads. This only makes unnecessary irritation and is apt to make ugly red veins.

A simple salve for blackheads is made with a mixture of lard and salicylic acid, using 50 grammes of each.

Perhaps the most noted of all creams for pimples, blackheads and similar troubles is made with two ounces each of lanoline, almond oil and sulphur precipitate, one ounce of oxide of zinc and enough violet extract to perfume. Cream the sulphur and zinc, then add the lanoline, and lastly the violet. When the face has been thoroughly washed at night, before retiring, touch each pimple with the cream applied with a camel's hair brush. Remove in the morning. Don't irritate the skin more than is necessary.

A soothing lotion which has also tonic properties is made of tincture of benzoin, half an ounce; tincture of vanilla, two drachms, and a pint and a half of triple rose water. This is simply compounded. Mix the tinctures first and add the water very slowly so it will not curdle.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Miss Laurie:

Should a girl who is engaged to a young man let him kiss her as often as he wants to?

Is it wrong for a girl to hold a young man's arm out in a crowd if she is engaged to him?

How can a young woman tell when she really loves a young man?

Would it be right for a girl and her young man to go to visit his people and stay all night if the girl was well acquainted with them? Would it be right for a young woman who intends to marry a young man to talk to him on any subject which she thought proper?

BLUE BELL.

WELL, Blue Bell, you seem to be worried to death—about a good deal of nothing.

Most of the things you want to know about don't amount to anything at all, one way or the other, and the rest of them are things you ought to know without asking.

This young man who wants to kiss you so many times—how many times does that mean, in the name of common sense?

Young men are so different, just as different as girls.

What might appear perfectly reasonable to one sort of chap would bore another sort to death.

You certainly know whether you want to be kissed or not—and, depend upon it, the man knows, too.

If you're in love with him and he's in love with you and you are engaged to be married, of course you will kiss each other—and kiss each other very often, too. If you don't, you are a couple of sticks and not human beings at all.

That's what love is for, what it's about, and what it means—in the last analysis and in the first one, too.

But do not forget, my dear Blue Bell, that too much sugar will spoil the best cup of coffee that was ever offered to a hungry man.

Men are strange creatures. What they get too easily they value too lightly.

Don't give away things that ought to have some sort of price on them.

How long have you been engaged to this young man, and how long do you intend to be engaged to him?

Is your wedding day set, or are you just comfortably maundering along, making yourself believe that some day, perhaps, you will marry him, if everything turns out just right?

You seem to think that being engaged or not being engaged makes all the difference in the world in what a girl should or should not do. It doesn't. Make up your mind to that and you yourself will have solved these questions which seem to puzzle so much, you dear, little, foolish, serious-minded Blue Bell, you.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her care this office.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

IN the flood of letters received by Dr. L. K. Hirshberg, who contributes regularly to this paper, are many of unique character. One mail recently brought an interesting question from one city and an appropriate answer to it from another.

A man signing "Big Family" asked: "How can I [illegible] a family of seven, have health [illegible] pleasure? I only earn $26 a week."

The answer from "J. K.," which contains much of interest to the housewife, follows.

"Eleven dollars and fifty cents a week are enough for my family of seven. On Saturday I go to market and spend $3. I get 2½ pounds of butterine, at [illegible] cents a pound; one dozen eggs, at [illegible] cents a dozen; 1½ pounds of coffee, at [illegible] cents (it is very good coffee, too, if properly made), and a quarter of a pound of tea, at [illegible] cents a pound. Then I get from a reliable grocer two cans of tomatoes, two of corn, at 10 cents a can; seven pounds of sugar, and other little things I need for my Sunday dinner. I get a live chicken, which I myself kill and dress. I pay 17 cents a pound for this and get about a five-pound chicken or one that is not old.

"Then I get two cans of asparagus, at 12½ cents a can. For my potatoes I never pay over 6 or 7 cents a quarter-peck. For my roast beef I get a piece of round, at 18 cents a pound, which costs me about 45 cents. It is much cheaper to get the round to roast, as it slices better.

"For pork chops I pay 16 cents a pound. I get as small a chop as I can, because they are much nicer to serve. For picnic hams I pay 14½ cents a pound. I get as many fresh vegetables for my dinner as I can. I serve meat, two vegetables (always potatoes), soup, bread, butter, coffee, tea, dessert. The last I make myself.

"I get one quart of milk from a good dairy at 9 cents. Spending $3 on Saturday, I have $8.50 left. I pay my milk bill of 63 cents and start on Monday spending my $5, which I make last me until Friday. For breakfast I have oats with milk, some kind of meat (if pork, two chops for each person), fried potatoes, hot bread and coffee.

"I also have mutton, which costs me 18 cents a pound. I get the hind quarter. With these I serve peas, turnips, potatoes and dessert. I always have plenty of everything. Roast veal is also included in my menu. I get the cutlet part for from 25 to 28 cents a pound. About three pounds is plenty.

"I always try to have something different every day. If I have baked beans, I get a pint of white beans and bake them myself, and when they are finished they are better than any beans I could buy. I also make pea soup. All vegetables left from dinner I save to make soup. I also bake cakes, bread and pies. I use the best of flour."

"CHERISH YOUR OWN IDEALS"

Margaret Graham, Prima Donna with the "Madcap Duchess."

"Live and Let Live," Margaret Graham's Motto

By ELEANOR AMES

HALF the world goes through life stepping on the toes of the other half—and never apologizing," declared Margaret Graham, in a recent talk. When Miss Graham sings the exquisite quality of her voice makes you forget the loveliness of her clear-cut features and her wonderful eyes. When she talks to you the memory of her singing is absorbed in the fascinating play of expressions which flit across her face in swift succession, giving a "movie" of her words.

"If I were a public speaker instead of a singer," she continued, "I would devote most of my eloquence to the Rights of the Individual. Please don't interpret that to mean anything alarming in the way of anarchistic revolt against all conventions. The wise conventions will always survive. Only the false and hampering ones will be broken down as we grow into clearer sight and rid ourselves of the hypocritical view point which these very false conventions have created.

"By the rights of the individual I mean the right to think and act and live according to one's own beliefs, without constant attempt on the part of those near and dear to 'remould us nearer to the heart's desire.' This world is such a terribly big place that it seems to me there is room in it for all kinds of people, with all kinds of ideas. When I was young I very much shocked my family because I said it seemed impolite for missionaries and reformers to pry into the beliefs of other people. Now the world has progressed to the point where such an utterance is trite. That seems a hopeful sign.

"Why should half the world try to make the other half see according to its lights?

"Why IS the Individual, if he is to be submerged by another individual, or group of individuals?

"Mind you, I never want to lose sight of the fact that there must be laws and organization, but I want each person to have the right to his own way of solving his own problems.

"I love music. It is really my life. But that is no excuse for me to go around the world trying to make others have their whole interest centred in music.

"No two persons see an object exactly the same. Why should they be compelled to try to see life with another's eyes?

"The domineering wife whose husband was never allowed to have one single minute of natural life in the home of which he was the sole provider is likewise passing. She is getting out into the world and earning a living and working off that splendid capability for work and accomplishment which made her so powerful and masterful in the restricted confines of her home.

"But while I am talking about the individual I want to utter a word of warning to myself and all other individualists. We must keep watch over ourselves lest in our enthusiasm and belief in our position we thwart the very effort we are making and try to force our individualism upon persons who have not the slightest desire to be individualized.

"'LIVE AND LET LIVE' is stuck in the corner of my mirror in very big type. It is, to me, the finest motto of life. I translate it to mean, 'Live the best life you can according to your highest ideals. Let others live their lives. If you can help without intrusion, count it a blessing and special privilege. And always try to make life comfortable for all with whom you come in contact, by keeping your own life in harmony.'

"Cherish your own ideals."

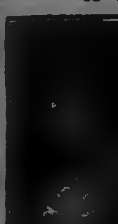
Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

A Tablecloth Stain.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

WE had had guests all evening and had been playing bridge, just a young chap from the office and a girl we knew. Mary and I slipped out to make some coffee and sandwiches while the girl was playing pretty nothings on the piano.

I like to help Mary at times like that. It's great fun. But tonight somehow Nemesis was stalking me.

We made the sandwiches, calling back and forth to Ralph and Helen in the other room. Then we made the coffee and I really was considerable help. Grinding coffee is monotonous.

Mary had concocted some wholly harmless beverage of ginger-ale, lemon and tea which she had mischievously put into cocktail glasses merely to give a spice of devilishness to an otherwise reputable table. And taking it all in all everything did look mighty pretty with candles under yellow shades and all the pretty feminine women love—until—oh, Lord!—I shudder at the memory!—in hurriedly seeking to relieve Mary of the weight of the silver coffee urn I upset a glass of ginger ale on the spotless cloth. I shall never forget the unfriendliness of Mary's glance. I can imagine no circumstances in which I could glance at her in just that way.

"Peter!" she said, with an air of hopeless disgust.

It is times like this, it seems to me, when women are off their guard, that they show what they really think of men and their clumsiness. That deference to which we are accustomed as a sex disappears and we see the primitive female who knows she is the mother of the world and therefore its boss. Mary's tone was that of a boss and a boss in charge of a very undesirable dependent.

"Good heavens, Mary!" I exclaimed contritely. "I can't pretend to explain how very sorry I am."

"Yes," said Mary hopelessly, "I suppose you are." Is there anything more trying than that lifeless corpse-like note in a woman's voice? I doubt it.

"I wouldn't have done it for the world, dear!" I went on sincerely.

"But you have," said Mary.

Feeling very flushed and guilty and a little hurt at Mary's attitude, I mopped ineffectually at the cloth.

"And I was trying so hard to have things look decent!" murmured my martyred wife.

"I am sorry," I protested again and I am sure any married man who has spoiled a tablecloth on a company night will appreciate just how I felt.

Mary left the room with a majestic air of aggrieved dignity. From that time on I was in the trying position of a man seeking furtively to get back into the good graces of his wife without his guests perceiving the rift in the lute.

"Looks very bad, doesn't it?" commented Mary in an utterly dead voice that chilled my marrow. "I don't see what can I do——"

"Great Scott, Mary," I burst forth in repressed tones, "why not be a good sport and have done with it? It always seemed to me that it's much better to tell about a domestic mishap and make the best of it than seek to hide it from one's guests. People like that sort of good sportsmanship——"

"And the laundress grumbles so terribly if I have extra clothes——"

"The laundress," said I hotly, "is paid for laundering our clothes. If we have an extra cloth in the wash and pay for it—it's none of her business."

"You don't understand," shrugged Mary. "Men never do."

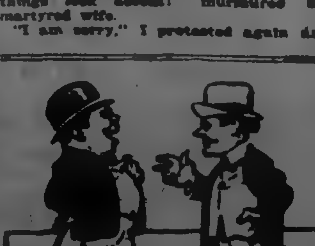
And I was ostracised for the rest of the evening.

Table linen, I believe, has excited more domestic squalls than the joke-book mother-in-law. Why under Heaven when a man pays for the table linen and pays for its laundering can't he upset a glass of something or other without the feeling that he's a horrible cad? Why are women so eternally fussy and unjust when a thing can't be helped? Surely my peace of mind was of more value than the state of the cloth. If I ever find a woman who is an awfully good sport about table linen I shall sweep off my hat and beg from her the privilege of up-turning half a dozen glasses of different colored fluid so I can call the laundress down and still preserve my respect and independence.

One Easy Way

"I wish I knew how to get it off my mind," said the one who worries.

"Why not change your mind?" queried the frivolous one.



Credulous.

"But how did you dare tell her such an incredible and absurd story?"

"Oh, I knew she would swallow it all right. She believes in the weather forecasts."

Legally.

"Do you think there is any danger of a war with Japan?"

"Not a bit in the world. We can stop them with an injunction."

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Nature Your Best Guide In Escaping Consumption

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

DOCTOR," archly asked a well fed suburban resident recently, "why do you and other physicians preach, prate and write so much about so uninteresting and vapid a topic as tuberculosis? Surely there are many more pleasant and more happy subjects of lectures."

"Quite time, it must be confessed," came from me. "The scarlet scourge is a wearisome, worrysome and dismal proposition at best. Even the tang of an interwoven fairy story, a bit of jolly verse or a well turned figure fails to add much zest to its discussion. You, however, may well find it dusty-dry matter, living as you do in the country air, with city conveniences, rich food, full meals and no worries."

"But, doctor," she persisted, "if I were writing about so uncolored a thing as the White Plague, the tale would be adorned with such a lurid atmosphere that all who run away would read it."

Consequent to this impetus comes to you this much told matter, this oft-repeated story.

True enough, "civilization does get torrid sometimes upon a powder-cart," and at the worst it brings better things for the multitude. Unluckily, however, it also brings such baneful afflictions as tuberculosis. Indeed, tuberculosis might be said fundamentally to be the wild oats of the march of culture and crowding. You must, in your daily rush, rub elbows with your fellows of the strenuous life; you dine in red dining palaces or nickel-in-the-slot lunch rooms and eat from the same table, if not the same dishes, as your brothers; you use the same strap-handles in the street cars; you finger the same money, and if you, by the abominations of fate, receive less food, less breathing space and fewer car rides than others, you are all the more susceptible to the direful bacilli.

Vitiated atmospheres, a lowered amount of nutriment, dark and dingy dwelling places, as well as unwholesome or ill-preserved victuals, tend to open the pulmonary vestibules to tuberculosis infection. Verily, then, since a Pandora's box of defects predisposes the gullible tissues to an invasion of this ailment, the same person will seek to solve the problem of infection by clapping on the lid of preventive measures. To the letter, verse or chapter, efforts must be directed toward the extension of impeditive procedures and conservative process.

In other words, the aggregation of persons in villages, towns and cities calls for the wide dissemination of knowledge about methods of preventing the origin of tuberculosis, rather than its cure. True enough, all the machinery put into action to hinder the development of consumption works full tilt at a limitation of the affliction as well as point blank at its spread to another. The modus operandi of the one involves a benignant effect upon the other, the two are closely interwoven and cannot be separated.

Like a Mystery.

Comes consumption upon its victim, like a thief in the night. Silently, like an Asiatic mystery, it insinuates its tentacles and fangs in the deepest recesses of the lungs or bones. The dweller within the gates of the farmhouse or castle, or hovel or mansion, may be struck down with the fine Italian poison of the relentless bacillus. No man may eternally defy it. Whether you basked at the feet of Gamaliel or blubbered across the knee of the Admirable Crichton, whether you are a Mecaenas or a mountebank, the approach of the deadly bacteria of tuberculosis, sneezed at you in a needle spray from the throat of a distressed sufferer, may strike you down or lay you low with this stalking malady.

If your body is a garden, so much more needful must you perforce be to prevent such weeds as the pale, waxy-white bacillus from taking up its habitation there. Dickens said the human corporation was "a dem'd, damp, moist unpleasant" place. So much the more liable is it to become the abiding place of disease germs. If all this is true, it is foolish "like Hector in the field to die"; better "like a perfumed Paris turn and fly."

If then to step upon one another's feet, and to receive in your lungs the dust from your neighbor's broom, is treason, to make the most of it is to "build you a garden green" away from the madding crowd. Fare ye forth to a good district with carefree birds a-twittering above your head, with a patch of sward and much fresh air about your simple dwelling. Begrudge not the dirt and dross of city dwellers, envy them not their false gods of ease, hubbub and want of activity. For consumption is prevented by sunlight, hygienic homes with a plentiful lack of dampness, darkness and dirt.

Victuals a-plenty, but plain, butters, creams, milks, gravies, rich soups, oils, eggs, simply prepared flesh-pots of good cheer, a snack or portion of meat, with never a drop whatsoever of Sir John Barleycorn, or sip from the cup that was once in error said to cheer—these are the larder comforts that conserve the body garden against the growth of microbic weeds.

The Call of Nature.

Garden cities and the call of the suburbs are among the purveyors of the new hygienic dispensation. Breathing spots in cities, public playgrounds, parks, recreation piers, civic centres and other oases in the deserts of the mighty marts of modern cities, all contribute a quota of the sunlight and fresh air so invigorating to man and child, beast and flower. If they revivify the weak, such spots are equally deadly to the white waxy bacillus.

Strange to say, more knowledge about food and fresh air and its relation to consumption has percolated through to the public channels than correct emphatic information about contact. There are few who still delude themselves in the belief that an infectious or contagious disease is inherited. There are, however, multitudes who fail to extend this fact to an understanding of the "whys and wherefores" of family tuberculosis.

Independent of the weakened intrinsic conditions of families in which tuberculosis occurs, aside from their greater susceptibility to the affliction, it is the direct contact with the germs in kissing, using each other's linens, utensils, dishes, beds, chairs, couches, tubs, table articles and the like. The coughing and sneezing of millions of microbes in the same rooms; the life of such a family in the same house; the dust and sweepings that are inevitably disturbed as they move about, must sooner or later—even if only a distant relative or friend is infected—instigate other instances of this baneful plague.

The sanatoria scattered throughout the hilly and mountainous regions of this beautiful land lend themselves perfectly to the pleasant isolation of those sick. Not only do they hasten the recovery of victims, but they thus remove the source of danger to every dweller in and visitor to the home. Furthermore, the hygienic knowledge thus obtained extends itself into the innermost and darkest of city abodes. It is thus a part of the education of the public in sane, conservative health measures.

If smallpox sets sail with its flag of skull and crossbones and penetrates a great city, one or two patients will set a municipality of a million souls by the ears.

Its Terrible Record.

If yellow fever breaks out in any part of the world, the quarantines far and wide expend time, money and labor to defend our coasts. Yet, in no one year of American history has either or both of these truant contagions attacked or killed by half as many persons as has this Captain of the Men of Death, Tuberculosis!

It is so insinuating and occult in its approach, so slow and unobserved in its onslaught, that most men fail to realize its terrors. The other ailments, with their abrupt, dramatic entrance upon a healthful scene, stir the fighting blood that is in men's hearts. Consumption, the creepy disease, does not.

"So slow and unobserved in its onslaught."

"Fare ye forth to a good district."

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince any one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: variable appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, [illegible] a feeling of something moving in the bowels, [illegible] a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. [illegible] call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Sanol BLOOD SALT
No Indigestion can exist if this remedy is taken according to instructions—and there is no known remedy to take its place.

This Blood Salt is a mixture compounded so as to resemble in essence and effect, the salty parts of the human blood. It is well known that our vitality is normally kept up by means of the natural blood salts.

Hence a lack of the latter will always superinduce a loss of the former. It is also a fact that with each quart of urine we lose about 10 grams of blood salts. Accordingly we must gradually become weak and sick, unless we provide a substitute for these salts in the blood.

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbances of digestion such as Dyspepsia, Gastric Catarrh, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, etc., and as an aid to digestion, in wasting and nervous diseases.

BIRD OF PARADISE LOST

Took a Fall During Honeymoon Trip—Bride's Hat Ruined

A Bird of Paradise which looked as though it had participated in the fall, perched on a straw hat which looked as though it had once crowned a scare-crow, was "exhibit No. 1" in the suit of Mrs. Martha Brown to recover $60 from the G.T.R. The ruins were what was left of the $60 hat, which was part of Mrs. Brown's trousseau, and had been blown from her head while passing between two coaches. "I hope the time will soon come when it will be illegal to put birds in hats," said Judge Morson, as the hat was held up for his examination.

Two wings were gone, the neck of the bird and about 50 of the feathers were broken. The Bird of Paradise seemed to have passed through the claws of the harpies in its descent.

"Do you wear false hair?" the plaintiff was asked by counsel for the railway.

"That is just what I wanted to know," said the judge. "Now, about a third of a woman's hair is her own and the rest comes from Africa or some place else."

"The false hair I wear you could not pull out if you tried," replied the witness.

"I am not going to try," was the answer of the gallant lawyer.

The conductor would not stop the train for the hat, but when he heard of the distress of the bride he made every effort to reassure her and have the hat returned. Up to that time he had paid no particular attention to the couple.

"Did you not notice the hat?" he was asked.

"No, something smaller would suit the wife and me better."

A Chafing Dish Supper

Into a chafing dish put half a cup of milk—add to this half an onion chopped fine—a red and a green pepper seeded and cut in small pieces, a large juicy tomato, skinned and cut in small pieces, together with a teaspoonful of salt and three lumps of sugar. Let these boil slowly for ten minutes. Add to this a cupful of cheese and when it is thoroughly melted pour in a well beaten egg—beating all the time until the mixture is smooth. Have ready sufficient toast beautifully browned and serve a large spoonful on each square of toast. Five people can be served with this quantity. It makes an appetising supper dish, and one which will often be called for by those who care for cheese.

Women in Business

Five thousand women in Chicago own their own business. Nearly three times that number are managers of the industries in which they are engaged.

Songs and Dances of the Past Wh Might be Preserved

A branch of parti interest is the national music dancing of a country, that is, of people before they become m by intercourse with others. The ces especially are, in many insta most expressive and beautiful, of the children imitating in some the occupations of the peasantry, as scattering and sowing the seed, in other ways throwing light on ways and customs of the people. T dances show a freedom of move and a poetry of motion such a altogether unknown to our tango two-steps.—The Toronto World.

Moscow's Silent Club

It seems that there is in real life a club similar to one imagined by Sir Conan Doyle in his Sherlock Holmes' stories. The Moscow Prefecture confirmed the statutes of a club in that city, the chief feature of which is the absolute silence imposed on its members within the club precincts. Any infraction of this cardinal rule involves a monetary penalty. The club is well appointed and luxuriously equipped. It is furnished with billiards, chess, cards, and other games. Gesture is the only medium of intercourse among its members. The same rigid regulation obtains at the club buffet and in the dining-room, as well as in the library and general rooms. Orders are conveyed to the silent waiters by means of tablets they carry.

USEFUL SEWING HINTS

A Contrivance to Keep Your Materials off the Floor

To turn a hem in heavy goods or material that does not crease well, such as serge, turn the correct length and trim the hem the desired width. Instead of turning the second time, bind the edge with a bias fold of cambric or lawn the same shade and stitch through the binding. The seam will be flat and make a much neater finish than if turned in the old way.

When sewing days come put two screwhooks or eyes under the top of your machine, near the ends, and two more the same distance apart on the chair rail in your sewing room. Pin an old sheet to these, one side to the machine and the other to the wall. This forms a fine, large pocket, which will keep your materials from catching round the wheels or slipping to the floor. This method has been used for many years in an exclusive dressmaking establishment.

When the small boys' hose wear thin on the knee, cut foot off, turn leg around with worn part behind knee. Sew foot on again with seam on outside of stocking. Cat-stitch seam open. Best to have hose on to see where to cut, so the seam will be above ankle. Can attach tops of one pair to feet of another this way.

One woman has found that in making buttonholes in children's underwear she gets better wear by making an eyelet in each end of the buttonhole.

When using a sewing machine, if the thread breaks easily, soak spool and all in hot water for about two minutes.

WHERE TO MARRY

Quebec the Most Expensive of the Provinces

The Province of Quebec is the most expensive place there is in which to be married by license. This is because the Province puts a tax on marriage by license. Six dollars is drawn down every time a license is issued by the Government. The total cost is eight dollars. Two of these go to the issuer of the document. This money does not go into the general fund of the Province, but is devoted to the higher Protestant educational institutions, and is placed at the disposal of the Educational Board. It is given in this way because Roman Catholics do not marry by license.

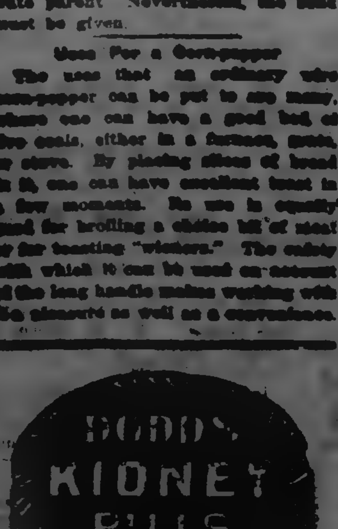
The tax amounts to many thousands of dollars every year. In one office alone in 1912 no less than 800 licenses were issued. Undoubtedly the total would be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

In Ontario the Government charges nothing for the privilege of getting married. The license costs two dollars, but that goes to the official who issues the document. This, it is understood, is the usual method.

Another curious feature, and one, it is maintained, should not be struck from the code, is the fact that the happy couple must be bonded. The bridegroom going to the issuer of licenses is astounded, if he has not learned of the law, to find that he must bring two householders who will go bond for him for $400 each, to show that there is no reason why the marriage should not take place. It is to prove that neither of the parties have previously been wedded, that they are of age, or if not, that the consent of the parents has been obtained. It is merely a matter of form. There are no records known of any bondsmen being sued for the amount of the bond by the Province or by an irate parent. Nevertheless, the bond must be given.

Uses For a Corn-popper

The uses that an ordinary wire corn-popper can be put to are many, where one can have a good bed of live coals, either in a furnace, grate, or stove. By placing slices of bread in it, one can have excellent toast in a few moments. Its use is equally good for broiling a choice bit of meat or for toasting "wieners." The safety with which it can be used on account of the long handle makes working with it a pleasure as well as a convenience.



EYES OF AZURE REALLY COLORLESS

Why Some Eyes Appear Blue and the Sky Seems the Same Shade

Are your eyes beautiful, heavenly blue? Yes? Then the scientific fact is that they have no color—beautiful or otherwise—at all! The very same thing is true of the clear sky over us, which is, in fact, absolutely colorless, despite its apparent turquoise hue! But a girl's pretty pink cheeks, for instance, really are pink. There is true red color in them.

For a long time scientists have been puzzled by these startling color contradictions. The explanation, however, has proved most simple—it's the explanation of the logic of the spectrum of the rainbow.

Perhaps, as you know, we can see an object only when sunlight or some artificial light strikes it and is thrown back from it to our eyes. These "rays of light" as we call them, which come to our eyes from the object we see, are, of course, really trains of ether-waves which vibrate rapidly through the air. In each "ray" of light there are several kinds of waves—some short, some long.

The shortest of these have a length of only one-thirty-ninth of the thousandth part of an inch! When these short waves strike our eyes, we see blue. Waves a little bit longer give us the sensation of green. And the longest ether-waves which the nerves of our eyes are "tuned" to pick up make us see red. Now, we all know that when blue rays come to us from a flower, the flower is really blue. How is it then that the beautiful blue eye is really an eye without color?

Because, scientists have found, the iris of the eye—the colored part—is full of myriads of minute particles of matter which act just like tiny mirrors and reflect rays of light. But these mirrors are so small that the longer light waves pass around them. Only the very shortest of the light waves, which are blue waves, are intercepted by them. These waves are thrown back to our optic nerves by the little mirrors. And so the eye we are looking at seems blue. If the minute mirrors weren't there, we wouldn't see the eye at all, because there would not be any rays of light thrown back from it.

So it is with the azure dome of the sky. The air is full of millions of tiny dust-like particles which catch the short blue-light waves, and reflect them in a thousand different directions. So, from the vast expanse of the sky above we receive an almost infinite number of blue light waves, and the heavens seem to our eyes a beautiful azure, while in fact they are without color at all, being full of nothing but transparent air.

Good Friday Services

The accommodation at Murray Street Baptist Church was taxed to its utmost capacity Friday afternoon when a union service appropriate to the day was held, with Rev. F. J. Sawers, president of the Ministerial Association in charge.

Local Doctors Dine.

The local disciples of Esculapius held a most successful banquet last night at the Savoy (Coleman's). President Dr. Hammond very ably filled the chair. The occasion was a very great success. Bright speeches were made by the medical men present.

Peterborough Presbytery Meet.

An adjourned meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery held yesterday morning at St. Andrew's church, it was decided, in accordance with the request of the congregations of Mt. Pleasant and Omemee, to have Rev. M. J. Keith confer with them in regard to having services held at Omemee twice each Sunday and once in Mt. Pleasant.

Game Warden Got Left.

A Bobcaygeon despatch says: Mr. M.B. Parker, Game Warden, had quite an escapade last week, with the Red Men of the Indian reserve, Chemong Lake. As he rounded Grassy Point on Pigeon Lake, he espied a gang. To his dismay he was face to face with seven Indians, who had cut holes in the ice, got a good supply of fish. Harry attempted to seize the outfit, but the red men had the goods and they determined to keep them and keep them they did.

Does Not Like Local Option.

Mr. McSweeney, of Orillia was yesterday in the city. Asked by a Times representative, "How is local option observed in your town?" Mr. McSweeney replied: "Local option has killed Orillia. We do not do our former brick business. The Tudhope factory has closed down because men will not stay where they are coerced by fanatics." When asked "Is liquor sold in your town, after a sworn statement made that 60,000 bottles of liquor were shipped in one year from Toronto to Orillia?" Mr. McSweeney said, "It is not sold openly, but——."

Miss Georgia Long Convalescent.

The many friends of Miss Georgie Long, daughter of Mr. Sam Long proprietor of the American Hotel, Hunter street, will be pleased to learn that this popular little local singer, yesterday evening passed very successfully through an operation for appendicitis. At the time of going to press, Miss Long had recovered from effects of the necessary anaesthetic and was reported as resting well. Dr. Frederic operated. Miss Long is known to a vast majority of our readers as a former singer at the Red Mill, formerly the Crystal Theatre, and at the Grand Opera House. The operation was performed at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Did He Eat Welsh Rarebit?

At a recent banquet in Lindsay Mayor Beal, in speaking told of a recent dream he had a few nights previously as follows: It was his privilege, accompanied by other townspeople to make a tour of inspection of the town. Passing along Queen st. to St. David, and across to King st., he found the streets paved, well lighted and the ditches cleaned out, and sanitary. Passing over the Lindsay st. bridge and to Kent st., he turned north on York st. and found this street also paved, while situated at the river's bank was a beautiful Municipal Club House, with magnificent grounds, a house well furnished from top to cellar, where the good citizens of Lindsay and visitors could congregate. The Park had been extended across the river and the grounds looked beautiful, while the Government had built splendid substantial bulwarks or wharves on either side—and the green grass grew all round.

Departing G.T.R. Agent Honored.

Yesterday afternoon, at 3 o'clock an informal meeting was held of local business men, carting concerns, coal dealers and other shippers over the G.T.R. to bid God speed to Mr. Frank Sandy, who, after years here, as local agent, leaves to-morrow to take a similar position in Lindsay. Mayor Buller gave a complimentary address, accompanied by the presentation of a set of solid silver tea service and a handsome Morris chair. Mrs. Sandy was present. Mr. R. Fair also gave a short address. Mr. G. A. Gillespie then presented a handsome travelling bag on behalf of the Peterborough Cheese Buyers. Mr. John Cameron, representing Messrs. Perkins Ince & Co., local wholesale grocers gave a complimentary address. He hoped Mr. Sandy's successor who is a Scotsman and a good curler will ably fill Mr. Sandy's shoes. Mr. Robt Hicks expressed the regret he felt over Mr. Sandy's departure. Mr. Sandy had never, in all his shipping exigencies did anything but what was right. Mr. John White, for the local carters, said Mr. Sandy had always acted impartially. Mr. Ferguson, former manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, here gave a short but pointed adress of regret over Mr. Sandy's departure. It might be added that the All Saints church, who conducted a recent jumble sale there, on Saturday night presented Mrs. Sandy with a handsome piece of cut glass ware.

TELLS WHAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS DID FOR HIM.

He's Back at Work Again, After Suffering From the Pains, Nervousness and Depression that Only Kidney Disease Can Bring.

Point Alexander, Ont., April 13.—(Special).—Mr. D. A. Froncare, a well-known and popular young farmer living near here, who has been a sufferer from kidney disease for some time past, is back at work again and he says without hesitation, that his cure is due to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was always tired and nervous," Mr. Froncare says, in speaking of his illness. "I suffered from backache and neuralgia, and my sleep was broken and unrefreshing. My eyes were puffed and there were dark red circles around them.

"My muscles would cramp. I felt heavy and sleepy afterwards, and I was depressed and low-spirited, while shortness of breath and dizzy spells served to make life yet more miserable for me.

"I was always thirsty; my limbs were heavy; and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"My symptoms led me to believe I had kidney disease, and I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have taken eight boxes in all, and I am very grateful for the benefit I have received from them."

If the disease is of the kidneys or from the kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it.

THAW WINS ANOTHER SKIRMISH IN COURT

Writ of Habeas Corpus Granted But Request for Bail Left Undetermined.

Concord, N.H., April 14.—Harry K. Thaw's petition for a writ of Habeas Corpus was granted by Judge Edgar Aldrich, of the United States District Court, to-day. The court said, however, that no order would be issued for the prisoner's discharge from custody until arrangements had been completed to take the case to the U. S. Supreme Court on appeal.

Bail Petition Undetermined.

Thaw's petition for admission to bail, the court left undetermined, taking the ground that it would be more appropriate for this to be passed by the Supreme Court.

The result of the decision in that Thaw's guardianship and condition will be unchanged for the present; but that his petition for a writ of Habeas Corpus will go to the highest court in the land with a decision of the lower court in his favor.

The decision filed with the Clerk of the Court here makes more than ten thousand words and discusses exhaustively the various phases of the case presented in the U.S. Court.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE OF A SMALL CHILD

Youngster Fell in Front of Wagon and Close to Restive Horse.

Toronto, April 14.—Ethel Phoenix, a three year old child, whose parents reside at 267 Niagara street, was playing on the sidewalk at Claremont and Queen streets this morning, when she fell off the curb into the roadway directly under a westbound express wagon, driven by William Ryan, 280 Brock avenue. The driver saw the danger in time, and tugging frantically at the reins, managed to pull up before the wheels of the wagon touched the child.

The horse became restive and pranced about, but despite the fact that the child was lying on the ground between its hoofs, she was practically unharmed. Fearing that she might have been injured, the police took her to the Sick Children's Hospital, where it was found that he only hurt was a small scratch on the arm, which evidently was sustained when she fell off the curb. The girl was taken home none the worse for her exciting experience.

LABOR CUTS LOOSE FROM SOCIALISM

English Independents Instruct Its Members to Ignore Views of Former Allies.

Bradford, Eng., April 14.—A resolution instructing labor members of Parliament to act independently of the Socialist party was adopted by 293 votes to 78 at the closing session here to-day of the annual conference of the Independent Labor party. The resolution also denounced the cabinet rule which involves the suppression of the rights of the private member "adequately to voice the policy of his party, besides making impossible the free consideration of proposals which have not received the cabinet hall mark."

This rule was declared "inimical to good government."

In conclusion the resolution invites members of the labor party to vote on all bills in accordance with the principles for which the party stands.

It was pointed out that forty Labor members in the House of Commons might have been in a position at any time to make precarious the life of the Government.

Another resolution in favor of readmitting the Social party to the ranks of the Labor Party was defeated.

THREE HUNDRED WERE SWINDLED

Toronto Police are Searching for a Persuasive Employment Agent

Toronto, April 14.—A warrant is out for the arrest of William Evans, employment agent, with offices on King street east. The information was laid by Mr. A. G. Raykoff, Bulgarian interpreter in the Police Court on behalf of about three hundred Bulgarians whom Evans is alleged to have swindled out of ten dollars each.

Over a hundred Bulgarians thronged the various offices of the Detective Department to-day to recount the story of their loss. They claimed that Evans had told them that he had signed a contract with the Canadian Northern Railway to secure for them 500 laborers to work in Sudbury. The Bulgarians were promised that, if they each paid Evans $10, which sum would cover railway expenses and the agent's fee, they would be given jobs.

Although the majority had been out of work for some time about three hundred Bulgarians managed to scrape together the money which they claim they handed over to Evans. The police have started a thorough search for the man, but they believe he has left the city. The men who were defrauded are in dire straits as many had to borrow to make up the ten dollars.

KINGSTON STANDARD DAMAGED BY FIRE

Many Thousand Dollars Damage to Plant With Owner Holidaying in Florida.

Kingston, Ont., April 14.—"The Kingston Standard," Newspaper building was damaged to the extent of about $20,000 in a blaze which broke out early to-day. Members of editorial and mechanical staff had a very narrow escape from being suffocated. The fire started from the furnace. The smoke poured into the editorial rooms and with the stairway also ablaze the only avenue of escape was the fire escape which was installed one month ago.

Good work by chief Armstrong and his men confined the fire to the front of the building. Type setting machines at the rear of the building were not damaged and at noon the printers were at work setting up copy for today's issue. The big press on the main floor was badly damaged. But the paper was to be issued to-day from the press of the British Whig.

The editor and proprietor, Mr. W. R. Givens is holidaying in Florida. The burned building is owned by H. W. Richardson. The building was entirely new. The Standard having moved in a little over a year ago.

NO CHRISTIANS ALLOWED IN THE NEW ISLAM UNIVERSITY

New Institution at Medina May Have a Great Influence Arab Separation

London, April 14.—Curiously little attention is being paid in Europe to the new Islamistic University, which is to be founded in the holy city of Medina, although the world of Islam is taking it very seriously.

The object of the University is defined as "the teaching and spreading of the eminent truths of the religion of Islam. The central committee, with its headquarters in Constantinople, is composed in equal numbers of Turks and Arabs, but the control is to be in the hands of a committee at Medina. The instruction is to be in Arabic, and the Wakuf has granted $50,000 a year, together with $400,000 for building and equipment, while all Islam is to be asked to contribute. Particularly significant is the fact that all Christian influence is to be excluded.

The Medina University may, from one point, of view, be regarded as the most serious attempt yet made to wed Islam and modern learning and through the union to give Islam renewed vitality. On the other hand it is notable that this new university is an Arabic institution, and the question arises whether it will strengthen or diminish Arab separation.

A WEDDING PERMIT SOUGHT AT MORGUE

New Orleans, April 14.—A romantic couple walked into the morgue Thursday morning. Louis Barber, a negro, and fiancee, Nancy Hughes, arrived in the city from Clelland, La. and started to look for a marriage license. Some wag around the depot directed them to the morgue. Cautiously the would-be groom approached Clerk Edward Roche, a bachelor.

"I want to get a marriage license. Nancy has consented to marry me at last and I want to have the ceremony performed before she changes her mind," he stammered.

"Well," cynically answered Mr. Roche, "you have started where most couples wind up. I had rather be on a slab than take the step you are contemplating, but experience has taught me that there is no use arguing with insane persons." The couple were then directed to the license clerk.

OFFERS $500,000 FOR "BABY" FRANK

Washington, April 14.— "Baby" Frank, three years old, one of the living exhibits of the Florence Crittenden home, who has won many friends by his sweetness in the show window of the exhibit, brought an offer of $500,000 for the home on condition that he go to the donor.

The offer came from a wealthy Richmond banker, who offered to endow the home with half a million dollars if he were permitted to adopt Baby Frank.

"He resembles a portrait of one of my ancestors," said the banker. "Arrange for me to adopt him and I will have my lawyer draw up the papers turning over that amount of money to the mission at once."

The banker was told "Baby" Frank was not for adoption or sale unless his mother consented. The name of the child's mother and the banker were refused to enquirers.

FATHER FALLON'S BOYS STRIKE THREE HUNDRED JOINT PROTEST

English Speaking Students of Ottawa University Refuse to Attend Classes

Ottawa, April 14.—Rev. Father Roy, rector of Ottawa University, in an official statement, announces that Rev. Father Stephen Murphy has been appointed to succeed Rev. Father James Fallon, and that the students of Ottawa University could have learned this had they asked for information before striking this morning. The demonstration according to Father Roy, is only a boyish prank, and it is unlikely that any attention will be paid to it by the University authorities if the boys return to study this afternoon.

Ottawa, April 14.—Three hundred students of Ottawa University, back from the Easter Vacation, paraded the streets of the city to-day and refused to enter their class rooms, as a protest against the banishment of Father James Fallon, prefect of studies, by the Oblate Order.

None of the English-speaking students, of whom there are over 300 resumed their studies, and matters are practically at a standstill at the institution to-day.

"We Want Father Murphy."

It had been announced that Father Fallon was to be succeeded by a French priest—Father Lajeunesse—but the English-speaking students demanded a successor of their own nationality, Irish, and one of the cries of the students as they marched through the streets to-day was "We want Father Murphy." Father Stephen Murphy is a teacher at the college, and one of the objects of the strikers to have him promoted to succeed Father Fallon, who, of course, it is realised, will not be brought back.

The marchers sang various college songs, gave the Varsity football yell, and made a hostile demonstration at the residence of Dr. Anthony Freeland, ex-Separate school trustee, who was one of the leaders of the French side in the bi-lingual movement, and who was defeated in January in St. George Ward, in which the University is located.

Mass Meeting Is Called.

At 11 o'clock the parade broke up, but there will be a mass meeting of the students in St. Patrick's Hall this afternoon to decide on a further line of action. The University authorities sent word to the leaders of the strike that the students who are in residence at the college must return to their studies at once or expulsion will follow. This has so far been ignored, but the boys from out of town will either have to come back to-night or go hungry and walk the streets unless they are provided for by their friends outside.

'QUEEN ZEPHRA' AT OPERA HOUSE BIGGER AND GRANDER THAN EVER

Local Talent, Under the Direction of Mr. H. Booth, Present the Event of the Season---A Musical and Scenic Extravaganza Calling for Unstinted Patronage---Delighted Audience at the First Night Performance--The Production Seen and Heard to Splendid Advantage

A large and delighted audience greeted the first performance of "Queen Zephra" at the Grand Opera House last night.. "Queen Zephra" is a charming musical and scenic extravaganza, in the capable hands of a big company of local talent under the skilful conduction and management of Mr. H. Booth of Boston, and the offering reflects the fullest measure of credit upon the local participants and Mr. Booth. It is a high-class production at popular prices and for a first performance, with but three weeks' preparatory training and no dress rehearsal, the demonstrative audience last night found but very few of the rough spots usually in evidence in "first nights" with amateurs. The piece is beautifully staged and replete with pleasing scenic effects, excelled by nothing of a similar nature. It is a combination of musical and figure dance numbers, fancy drills, and sufficient plot to retain a connecting histrionic link in the program. the whole affords a delightful evening's entertainment, in which musical, histrionic and terpsicarian local talent is seen and heard to excellent advantage. The instrumental numbers, rendered by the Conservatory of Music and Opera House Orchestra in unison are of a very acceptable and entertaining character. The highly creditable performance of last night should bespeak capacity houses to-night, tomorrow and Friday matinee.

PATRONESSES.

"Queen Zephra" is produced under the patronage of the following ladies:

Mrs. G. W. Gillman—Flower Dance.
Mrs. Dr. McNulty—Garland Dance.
Mrs. D. Carmichael—The Newsboys.
Mrs. Annie Palmer—The Fire Flies.
Mrs. V. Eastwood—The Graces.
Mrs. A. F. Tomlim—Castanet Dance
Mrs. W. A. Sanderson—Tennis Dance
Mrs. W. H. Hill—Commodores.
Mrs. W. R. Travers—Red Hussars.
Mrs. A. W. Spence—Normondy Peasante.
Mrs. Rupert Gliddon.

CAST OF CHARACTERS.

Zephra, Queen of Norseland—Lillian H. Rush.
Princess Neyera, Daughter of King Decius—Jessie H. Perrin.
Flora, Friend of Neyera—Atholia L. Beatty.
Unie, Fairy Godmother—Katie L. Leary.
Authe, Friend of Neyera—Belle Lytle.
Miss Commodore—Ruby Quartermaine.
Nita—Belle Lytle.

Sir Alexis—Alex Primeau.
Sir Solon, Captain of the Guard—Vernon Morphet.
Sir Thoras, a Knight—G. N. Wright
Hendrix, Attendants of Decius—Charles Thorpe.
Olaf, Attendants of Decius—John Sudill.

The foregoing cast was admirably sustained by one and all, they having been well trained in an acceptable conception of their different characters. Mr. Edward Hanrahan in delightful bass and Mr. W. Collins in very pleasing tenor met with demonstrative approval. Mr. Vernon Morphet makes an excellent captain of the guard, and was heard to advantage in solo. Miss Lillian H. Rush's conception of her part "Queen of Norseland" was truly queenly, and Jessie H. Perrin, sang and portrayed her cast as Princess Neyera in very effective style. In fact the whole cast is a strong one calling for unqualified support from lovers of refined entertainment.

The dancing numbers are refined, picturesque and graceful, and it is a pity the length of the production would not permit of frequent encores called for by a delighted audience. The Castanet dance especially appealed to the house, while Belle Lytle in solo fancy dancing was quite irresistible and her movements in perfect time and charmingly graceful.

The Newsboys' dance is quite a novel innovation and one which creates considerable merriment, it is quite unique in character.

Laura E. McElderry and Mr. Booth in "Louisana Lou" offer as merry comedy duet simply contagious. Ruby Quartermaine is superb in her character song number, "The Commodore," with chorus.

Unstinted credit is due the whole company of local ladies and gentlemen, to say nothing of the children, for their admirable presentation of "Queen Zephra" last night. It is an offering which cannot fail to please, even the most fastidious taste; is quite refined in every way; replete with song, dance and music, coupled with entrancingly beautiful scenery; staged regardless of expense; and should attract the biggest of audiences for the remaining performances.

HUNGER TESTING MACHINE

Apparatus to Remove and Clean Blood Also Demonstrated

An apparatus by which blood may be removed, cleansed of impurities and returned to the system, and a contrivance by which it can be determined whether one is suffering from hunger or merely has an appetite, were among the inventions demonstrated by members of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

Dr. Carlston defined hunger as a sensation which arises in the stomach, while appetite, he explained, is a nervous phenomena of the brain. Swallowing a small cigar-shaped rubber balloon which had been fitted with long rubber tubes, he inflated the balloon in his stomach through the tubes and then attached the latter to sensitized paper. Hunger, he declared, caused the muscles of the stomach to grip the balloon and drive out the air, which registered the amount of hunger on the sensitized paper.

White rats and mice were used in experiment designed to illustrate the diffusion of the blood supply. Dyes injected into their blood vessels circulated in a short time until the little animals changed the color of their flesh without much apparent discomfort. One rat was green to the end of his tail, while even the film of his eyes was the color of an emerald. The other was similarly transformed by the use of red dye.

To Clean Matting

Try using bran for cleaning your matting. Tie the bran in a bag, dip the bag into clean, warm water, and rub the matting briskly with this. Then wash it off with a cloth wrung out of warm, salt water. This freshens it up beautifully.

Shabby Leather

Shabby leather chairs are very much improved by the following treatment: Take one pint of boiled linseed oil, stir in one pint of vinegar, and let it settle. When required, shake well and pour a little on a soft cloth. Rub this well into the leather. Keep turning the flannel as it gets dirty, and afterwards rub the leather with a soft duster.

CANADIAN NATIONAL THEATRE

English Actor Regards It as Imperial Need

In an address on "The Empire and Drama" which Mr. Martin Harvey delivered at the Empire Club, Toronto, the English actor spoke of the awakening of interest in dramatic art in Canada and the need of a National Theatre. The country had no call to worry about its material affairs, but there were other things that went to make up a nation besides material things, and art in all forms was a spiritualizing and humanizing power. The theatre was a force in forming the character of the nation, and therefore an effort should be made to have the theatre foster Imperial ideals.

The speaker went on to say, that Canada was beginning to feel its "life in every limb," and the time had come for the young country to express itself in art. Some forms of art were already alive, but as yet the voice of a national drama had not been heard. The Dominion, with its picturesque history and unusual racial characteristics, possessed inspiring themes for the Canadian playwright.

Thus the foundation of a chain of National Theatres would do more to tighten the bonds of Empire than all the utilitarian and political schemes put together. It meant a common meeting ground for the British people in an atmosphere of art and culture. "And remember," said Mr. Harvey, "the great States of the world have covered themselves with more glory by their encouragement of the arts than by anything else."

To Clean Wallpaper

First of all go over the walls very lightly with a clean duster to remove any dust. Then divide a stale loaf into parts, take the crust in your hand, and, beginning at the top of the paper, wipe it downwards until the dirt from the paper and the crumbs fall together. Don't attempt to clean more than half a yard at a stroke, and after doing all the under part, go round again, beginning a little above where you left off. The paper will look like new when you have finished.

Forests Are Valuable

The forests of Corsica, the little island upon which Napoleon was born, are managed by the French government. They produce lumber, firewood, and turpentine, and all parts of the tree are far more closely utilized than in America.

ICELANDERS ADAPTABLE

Professor Thinks They Discovered America

"Icelanders and their contributions to History" was the theme chosen by Professor A. Holmes, Ph.D., M.D., of Queen's University before the Ottawa Teachers' Association in the Toronto Normal school hall. "The Commonwealth of Iceland was created owing to the irresponsibility of a woman," quoted Mr. Holmes. "'Only will I say yes to being his sole and lawful wife,' said a maiden exceeding fair to Harold Hairfair, 'when he brings to subjection all Norway as freely as does King Eric rule the Swede realm.'"

After a brief historical sketch of the history of Iceland, and upon observations made during the course of a tour of the country last summer, Professor Holmes asserted that there was no doubt in his mind that the Icelanders were the first to discover America. "Their newspapers," continued the speaker, "excel in terseness, capacity of action and passion, and powers of description."

"It is no wonder that the modern Icelander should so excel in matters of learning after so many centuries of educated ancestors."

Pencils Use Much Lumber

Lead pencil manufacture in the United States is consuming 72,000,000 feet of lumber annually, of which about one-half is estimated to be wasted in sharpening or throwing away short ends.

SATISFACTORY WASHING

To Get Best Results If You Wash Your Own Waists

A Flannel Blouse—Shred a piece of best curd soap in a pint of water, and boil till quite dissolved. Have ready basins of warm soft water, and in one make a good lather with the prepared soap. Wash the blouse by squeezing it between the hands. No rubbing. Then wring it out thoroughly, rinse repeatedly in the second water, and then once in clear cold water. Wring, shake out, and dry quickly, but not near a fire.

When the blouse is nearly dry, iron it on the wrong side with a moderate iron.

A Silk Blouse—Wash as above, but rinse in cold water in which you have mixed a teaspoonful of methylated spirit. This gives a gloss. To wring do not use the hands, but wrap in a dry towel, which press and beat. Iron, on the right side, while rather damp, for silk dries quickly.

A Cotton Blouse—Wash in the prepared soap and warm water, as before, but in making the soap add a teaspoonful of turps and ammonia. Don't rub soap on the blouse. Rinse in cold water, which may be doctored as follows if the colors need reviving: Add a teaspoonful of vinegar to revive reds and pinks; the same amount of ammonia for mauves; a lump of alum for blues; and a teaspoonful of pepper for greys or blacks and whites.

After the final rinsing and wringing, try, instead of ordinary starch, rice water. When the blouse is dry, damp it, roll up tightly in a towel, and leave for an hour. After this iron on the right side.

Home Made Skis

Skis that answer the purpose for which they are meant are easy to make. The good old barrel stave is used for the purpose. Take two straight grained staves. Sharpen one end to a point. Bend these ends upward by smearing a little oil or grease on them, after first having scored them well with a sharp knife. Then hold them near a hot fire. It will be found they bend easily, but they should be tied until they are "set." A little block is set to fit the heel of the shoe, and a strap is made for the toe.

HAPPINESS IN A HOME

How a Housewife May Help to Avoid a Spirit of Discord

Here are some ways for the new housewife to please the new husband—or for the older housewife either, for the matter of that, but, if she didn't begin when she was new the chances are she won't reform:

Always serve hot foods in hot dishes and cold things in cold dishes.

Serve meals on time.

Keep the table linen clean.

Don't wear old street clothes for house gowns. A seven-cent print or lawn looks much better than a half-worn-out silk or broadcloth in the kitchen.

Learn to make good coffee, broil a steak and mix French dressing at once.

Spend some of your spare time studying cook books, menus and food principles.

Learn at least one new dish every week and introduce it into your menus.

If you never have gone or can't go now to a school of domestic science, ask your mother, aunt and grandmother to teach you their favorite dishes.

Form a housekeepers' organization and meet once a week to exchange housekeeping ideas and recipes. Such a club affords more real pleasure and profit than any of the so-called amusement clubs. Take turns meeting at the different homes. The woman who entertains demonstrates and serves her favorite dish.

Make it a point to have order and cleanliness reigning supreme when your husband returns from his day's work.

It is the duty and privilege of every wife to convert into happiness and a home such conditions and materials as are at hand.

Autos on Runners

A spiked chain attachment has been invented for driving an automobile upon runners, which can be mounted in place of the wheels.

Lightning Record

CAPABLE QUEENS

Royal Ladies Who Could Earn Their Livings

Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, for instance, possesses a doctor's diploma of the University of Leipzig. Besides she is an excellent musician and plays piano and violin with great skill. Failing to obtain jobs in these lines she would make a good taxi-cab driver.

Queen Mary of England paints, sings, and is clever with her needle. Queen Victoria Augusta of Germany is a specialist with the camera and produces a special kind of art photo. Queen Wilhelmine of Holland paints miniatures and porcelain, while Queen Maud of Norway is a distinguished playwright, using the pseudonym of Graham Irving. She is also a competent bookbinder, dressmaker, and painter.

"Carmen Sylva" (Queen Elizabeth of Roumania) is a world-famous poetess and novelist. Helena, Queen of Italy, has jokingly remarked that, in case of need, she could easily earn $600 a week in the music halls of London or New York as an expert swimmer and riflewoman. What is less known, she is a devoted archaeologist.

ABUSE OF SOFT DRINKS

Health Departments Can Regulate Soda Fountains

Have you the habit of quenching your thirst frequently at the soda fountain?

Has your child learned the "soft drink" habit and commenced to load his stomach with the fancy concoctions of the confectioner's shop?

Thirst must be quenched you say. True. But have a care with what sort of drink you quench it. You should take steps to find out whether the soft drinks sold to you and your children are adulterated or pure. Many health departments of large cities have taken up this matter and set down rules prohibiting the use of certain adulterations, which they have proved, by test, to exist in some of the most popular soft drinks.

Your health department can do the same thing. You will be the gainer. Your child will be the gainer.

FEW GOWNS AND SUITS BUT SHOW THE V-SHAPED NECK

No doubt the V-shaped opening at the throat is most becoming, but it is quite interesting to note how universal it is this season for all sorts of gowns and suits; the tailored suit shows a vest cut V-shaped; the little tailored dresses, the dance frocks and the dinner gowns, almost without exception, have the same arrangement at the throat. It may be a trifle lower or higher, and that is the only difference.

Whereas the trained dress is not as much worn as it was several seasons ago, there are occasions that really demand such a gown. No. 8277 shows a charming combination of plain and brocaded turquoise blue charmeuse, with the neck softly filled in with net. This color is one that will be much favored for evening this season.

This model requires for size 36, 5½ yards of 36 inch material.

A most attractive afternoon frock of black taffetas with a vest and girdle of figured silk in which there are minglings of gold and dull red is shown in No. 8129-8286. The raglan sleeves make the blouse distinctive, and the pointed peplum on the skirt is another attractive feature.

To copy this costume in size 36, the blouse (8129) requires 2 yards of 36 inch material; the skirt (8286) requires 4 yards of 42 inch material.

No. 8277—sizes 34 to 44.

No. 8286—sizes 22 to 32.

THE SKIRT SILHOUETTE PURELY A MATTER OF PERSONAL FAVOR.

There are almost as many skirt designs this season as there are new materials of which to fashion them. One French house favors the skirt looped up in back; another, the bell-shaped outline, and several others show clinging, drapey effects in their models. Tunics and trimming bands, however, seem to be universally favored.

It is foretold that silk will be much used for skirts and coats, as well as for dresses a little later. At the present moment striped and checked novelty stuffs, plain and plaid serges, gabardine and cloth are the materials being used. Contrasting coats and skirts are generally seen and will undoubtedly be even stronger than the one colored suit as there is such an opportunity for economy.

No. 8133-8268 shows a coat of black cloth combined with a skirt of striped serge. The coat is one of the new short models, showing a smart little inset vest and one of the new sash effects; these are features of many of the new suits. The skirt is a three-piece model with a slightly raised waistline and a circular trimming band. Cloth ranges in price from $1.50 a yard and up, and serge may be purchased from 75 cents and up.

This costume may be copied in size 36 with 2½ yards of 42 inch material for the coat (8133) and 2¾ yards of the same width for the skirt (8268). The small frock shown in No. 8258 is made up in one of the dainty embroidered batistes. The yoke, the long French waist and the short skirt are all dainty and becoming to the little maid.

This dress may be made for a child of four with 1¾ yards of 36 inch batiste which may be purchased from about 35 cents a yard and up.

No. 8133—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8268—sizes 22 to 32.
No. 8258—sizes 2 to 8.
Each pattern 15 cents.

Steam For Removing Creases

Steam is an excellent thing for removing creases from gowns or coats that have been packed away. Fix up a line in the bathroom, hang the creased clothes on it close to the window, then let the hot-water tap run until the room is full of steam, leave for an hour or two, then dry the clothes in the open air and press on the wrong side with a warm iron.

To Prevent Dust

Spread damp cloths over each register whenever the furnace is shaken.

Famous Musician and Composer

Mme. Chaminade, whose name was added to the French Legion of Honor, was the first woman so honored because of her success as a musician and composer. She came to America in 1908, making a concert tour of the Eastern States, and at that time she had already been honored by Turkey and England, Queen Victoria having given her the insignia of the jubilee herself.

THE WAGES OF SIN

In the early hours of Easter Monday the four murderers of Herman Rosenthal, gambler, perished in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison.

None reasonably doubts their guilt. The last despairing effort of their faithful counsel counsel to delay their doom failed, as the indications pointed that it must. Governor Glynn consistently, though with great stress of mind, adhered to the position that his official duty to the commonwealth forbade that he should interfere. The case of these assassins, the four gunmen as the country knows them, has enlisted extraordinary interest, their crime having been a climax to a remarkable situation, and a means for bringing into full light social conditions of a dreadful character

If ever criminals deserved the extreme penalty of the law these gunmen did. For money compensation they killed a man who was a stranger to them, confident in the mistaken belief that the protection they relied on was all-powerful. They were thugs who might not scruple at any murder for gain if escape seemed open. Guilty though Becker may be, who tempted and paid them, the measure of his culpability cannot lessen theirs. There is nothing on which sympathy for them can be fairly urged.

Ford, Ont., has organized a Board of Trade, and will vote on spending $25,000 for municipal buildings.

Knee Joint Stiff Three Years

CURED BY NERVILINE.

Anyone would marvel at my recovery, writes Mr. Leonard Lotham, a young man well-known about Chatham. I had inherited a rheumatic tendency through my mother's family, and in my early days suffered frightfully. About three years ago the pain and stiffness settled in my left knee joint. I was lame and walked with a very distince limp. Nerviline was brought to my notice and I rubbed it into the stiff joint four or five times a day. It dispelled every vestige of pain, reduced the swelling, took out the stiffness and gave me the full use of my limb again. I don't believe there is a pain-relieving remedy, not a single liniment that can compare with Nerviline. I hope every person with pains, with sore back, with lameness, with lumbago, with neuralgia—I do hope they will try out Nerviline which I am convinced will quickly and permanently cure them."

If Nerviline wasn't a wonderful painless remedy, if Nerviline didn't quickly relieve, if Nerviline wasn't known to be a grand cure for all rheumatic conditions, it wouldn't have been so largely used as a family remedy for the past forty years. No better, stronger, or more soothing liniment made. Get the large 50c. family size bottle; small trial size 25c.; sold by any dealer, anywhere.

THE BICYCLE BY-LAW

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir.—I would suggest that men going to work between 6 and 7 o'clock, in the morning, when the roads are muddy, be allowed to bicycle on the pavements. This would cause no danger or hardship as very few pedestrians are on the streets then. If one of our local Aldermen would suggest this in the Council, he would make a hit with scores of working men.

$3,299,000 IS CHICAGO'S SHARE OF CAR EARNINGS

City Receives 55 Per Cent. of Net Income of Street Lines.

Chicago, April 14.—The city of Chicago will receive $3,299,000 as its share of the net earning for the last year for the surface street railways, according to the annual reports of the companies made public to-day.

Under the terms of a franchise granted the surface lines about eight years ago the city receives 55 per cent. of the net earnings. The traction fund, which has accumulated since the franchise became effective and which is now in the city treasury, amounts to about $14,000,000.

BYRON CHANDLER ARRESTED; TO HOLD HIM IN THIS STATE

New York, April 14.—Byron Chandler, millionaire husband of Grace La Rue, an actress, was arrested in a Broadway hotel.

Counsel for the actress represented that he was about to leave the state, thereby making impossible the collecting of alimony pending the trial of his wife's suit for a separation.

He was held technically in the custody of detectives while he sought to make arrangements for $25,000 bail.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Wire "Dish-cloth"

Use a wire dish-cloth, which may be bought for a trifle, for cleaning pots. It will save much time.

Stamps Stuck Together

If stamps have become glued together, lay a thin paper over them and run a hot iron over it. Take stamps apart at once.

Making Eyelets

When punching eyelet, place the material over a cake of white soap. This makes a firm edge, which is easily worked over.

Chopped Cheese

When preparing macaroni and cheese, put the cheese through the food-chopper instead of grating it. Much less time will be required.

To Remove Ink Spots

To remove ink spots from wash materials soak the spot with kerosene. Finally rinse with kerosene, then wash as usual.

Keeping Bread Warm

A good way to keep a pan of bread dough warm over night is to set it on a warm soapstone wrapped in a clean flannel.

A Darning Hint

Sew black netting over the hole in stockings and darn in the usual way, but through the meshes, skipping every other one. The result will be a firm, neat darn. If white netting be used, the same idea may be used for knitted underwear.

To Clean a Steel Buckle

Steel buckles and ornaments that have become slightly rusted, may be cleaned as follows: Rub well with sweet oil; let stand for a couple of days, then rub with powdered, unslaked lime, and polish with chamois.

To Test a Broom

When buying a broom, test it by pressing the edge against the floor. If the straws bristle out and bend, the broom is a poor one. They should remain in a solid, firm mass.

To Run Ribbon

To run ribbon through beading, or through a hem, fasten a small safety pin to one end of the ribbon and use as though it were a tape-needle, which is seldom to be found when wanted.

Loose Knife Handles

When knife handles loosen, fill the cavity in the handle two-thirds full of mixed resin and brickdust, then heat the shaft of the knife and press it into its place. Hold it till firmly set.

Enamel Ware Cement

Take equal parts soft putty, finely sifted coal ashes and sifted table salt, mix and pack well into the hole. Place pan on stove with a little water in it until the cement hardens. Afterwards the vessel will hold water as well as ever.

Cleaning Woodwork

Woodwork may be easily cleaned by rubbing it with a little kerosene polishing well afterwards with clean cloths. If you dislike using the coal oil, use mild soap. Rub dry and polish.

New Shirtwaists From Old

Very good shirtwaists may be made from men's shirts which have been discarded because frayed at the cuffs. Cut the shirt carefully apart, leaving the front opening intact to serve as the front finishing of the shirtwaist.

A Doughnut Wrinkle

As you take each cake from the kettle after frying it, dip it immediately into a pot of boiling water and take it out as soon as wet. This will take all superfluous grease from the doughnuts.

Flowers as Food

Preserved violets are so far the only crystallized flowers the majority of English-speaking people venture to consume, and even these flowers are mostly used for decorative purposes.

Turkish ladies have a favorite sweetmeat of rosebuds boiled in sugar and preserved. In China dried rosebuds are candied. Banana blossom pickled in vinegar is specially liked by the little Japanese ladies, also by Indians, who use it for flavoring jellies and pastries.

A bitter shrub grown in Burmah, and elsewhere, yields small red flowers which the natives put through a process of their own and make into bread.

The lily known as "Thunberg" is one of the biggest delicacies of the Chinese, and is specially grown for ordinary consumption. They are gathered just before they begin to [illegible] and cooked as a vegetable [illegible] the same manner as we cook [illegible] and many people [illegible] their excellence.

About Navajo Blankets

Navajo blankets, which came into favor several years ago, are more and more in demand, and because this is so, it is increasingly difficult to get a real Navajo. There are machine woven imitations, and also modern Navajos dyed with other than native dyes. One must often be satisfied to use these substitutes for rugs, portieres or couch coverings, where formerly the genuine Navajo blanket could be had. The real blankets, on the making of which the Indian weaver often spends months, are made from the best wool and dyed by a process which the Indians [illegible]

Glycerine For the Lips

While glycerine is extremely bad for the complexion it is quite the best, most inexpensive, and harmless form of lip salve, and without giving the artificial appearance to the lips which an ordinary salve does, keeps them soft and prevents cracking.

Women who habitually wear a veil should never omit to smear a very little glycerine over the lips before going out, as the wearing of a veil often causes the lips to become rough and chapped, especially in windy weather.

WOMEN CHAUFFEURS

Self-starters Tempt Women to Drive Cars

Considering the fact that only a short time ago the sight of a woman sitting at the wheel of a big machine was quite a novelty, the number of lady motorists who now act as their own chauffeurs has increased surprisingly fast. It is not an uncommon thing nowadays to see a woman, in many cases slips of girls, manœuvring big machines through the downtown section during the business traffic hours.

Many things have occurred in the development of the motor car to account for the increase in the number of women drivers. Probably the most important of the new features which have been added to the automobile of recent years and which has done more than anything else to promote the sport of motoring fr the ladies, is the self-starter. The fear that their machine might get stalled and that they would be unable to get it home, prevented many women from taking a chance alone in an automobile.

Now the pressure of a button when a machine "stalls," and the engine is whirring again; the driver slips into low gear, lets in the clutch, and away goes the machine. The knowledge that as long as there is any gasoline in the tank they will be able to start their car, has induced many women to take up the sport.

FOR THE HOME COOK

Cheese Croquettes

Melt three tablespoons of butter, add a quarter of a cup of flour, and two-thirds of a cup of hot milk. When boiling stir in the beaten yolks of two eggs. Remove from fire, add one cup and a half of grated cheese, salt, and cayenne. Cool, shape, crumb, and fry in deep fat.

Curried Chicken Livers

Clean the livers thoroughly. Cook in boiling water for fifteen minutes, drain and brown in bacon fat. Remove the livers, put one ounce of butter with the small quantity of fat left in the pan, and brown in it two level tablespoonfuls of flour. When brown pour in one cupful of hot stock and season with salt, pepper, and curry. Reheat the livers in the sauce and serve at once.

To Make Egg Vermicelli

Take three hard-cooked eggs, one teaspoon of flour, four slices of toast, half a teaspoon of salt, one cup of milk, speck of pepper, two tablespoons of butter; prepare the eggs by general rule, prepare the toast, prepare the sauce (white); separate the yolks from the white, cut the white into fine pieces, a quarter of an inch square, mix with the sauce and pour over the toast; garnish with the yolks rubbed through a strainer over the whole; parsley may be used to garnish.

Tasty Apple Fritters

Beat one egg to a froth till it is very light, add half a cup of milk, two-thirds of a cup of flour, beat until smooth; one teaspoon baking powder, chop two large apples, add to the batter, and fry in boiling lard. Drain well and serve hot, powdered with castor sugar.

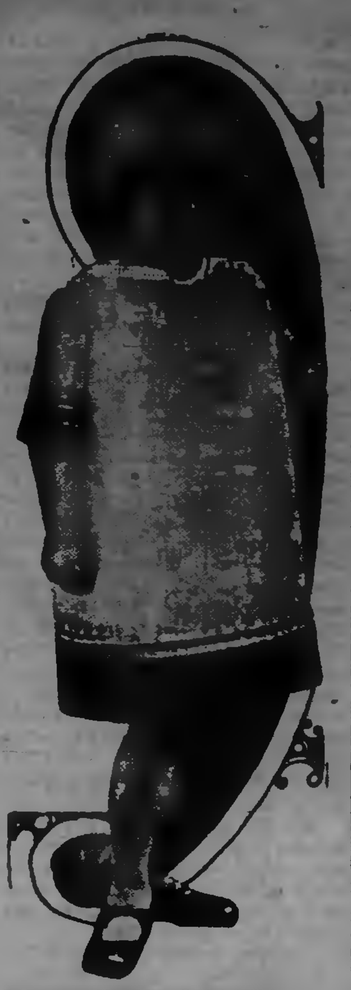
Delicious Cocoanut Ice

A pound of cocoanut, put into a basin, pour over it two wineglassfuls of milk, let it stand one night to soak. Put into a pan one and a half pound of sugar with one and a half wineglassful of milk;; let it simmer till it thickens, stirring all the time; add the soaked cocoanut, boil ten minutes. Pour half on buttered tin, add cochineal in other, then pour on to white; cut in strips when cold.

DEVELOPS THE FIGURE

To develop the figure and correct round shoulders, well bathe to the waist in cold water every morning, if you do not take a cold tub. Then with a skipping-rope skip for five minutes in front of an open window before you put on your corsets. Then stand straight up, heels together, stretch your arms out in front of you as far as they will reach, with the [illegible] trying to touch the backs of the hands. Draw in a deep breath through your nostrils all this time. Then slowly bring your arms back to their first position, exhaling the breath through the mouth. Repeat this twenty times morning and night. Every evening massage the skin for a few minutes with this reducing massage lotion: Powdered tragacanth, 10 grains; boric acid, 15 grains; salicylic acid, 5 grains; glycerine, 4 drams; eau de Cologne, 2 ounces; water, 8 ounces. Wear low and loose neck-bands.

Cold potatoes, freed from lumps and rubbed into the flour, make cakes and pastry much lighter, and no baking powder is required.



Simple Frock For Little Girl

Simplicity in children's frocks seems to be the fashion, and very sensible it is, as well as beautiful.

The little pinafore frock pictured is of white cotton jean with a band of dark red cotton around the bottom and about the elbow sleeves, headed with dull blue braid of different widths.

A white cap of Turkish toweling trimmed to match the dress gives an individual touch to this little costume which can entirely be made by any mother.

THE DIARY OF A BABY

Yelled fifteen minutes without taking breath.

Pulled out enough hair from his uncle's head and whiskers to stuff a pillow.

Swallowed six buttons and a good deal of a reel of cotton.

Emptied the contents of his mother's workbasket into the fireplace.

Tried to squeeze the head of a cat into a tin cup and was scratched badly in the attempt.

Knocked the head off a fine wax doll belonging to his elder sister by trying to drive a tack into a toy wagon with it.

Broke two panes of window glass with a walking stick which his uncle let him have.

Fell into the coal scuttle and spoiled his new white dress.

Set fire to the carpet while his [illegible] was out of the room hunting up something to amuse him.

Got twisted into the rungs of a chair, which had to be broken to get him out.

Poured a jugful of water into his mother's best shoes.

Finally, when he saw his mother coming, he ran out to the porch and tumbled off the steps, damaging his little person and tearing a hole a foot square in his dress.

Corks may be made airtight and watertight by keeping them immersed in oil for five minutes.

34 YEARS IN MINE

Chinaman Make Pile and Becomes Citizen

Out of the Omineca after 34 years spent in gold mines, Ah Luk, a Chinese, has returned north to his Siwash wife and young son. For the first time in his life he traveled on a railway train, got his first sight of an automobile, street cars, electric lights and all the conveniences of the modern city.

In Vancouver Ah Luk made application to become a Canadian citizen as he never intends to return to China. He plans to send his young son to Vancouver to school.

Ah Luk went into the Cariboo mining district when he was 17 years old. Later he travelled into the Omineca, where he has been placer mining ever since. He is settled on Germansen Creek where his summers are spent in washing the golden gravel, his winters in trapping. On [illegible] Creek in the early days he took out $[illegible] in [illegible]. From Hazelton, Ah Luk marched to his cabin, a distance of 187 miles, with supplies for the trip carried on his back.

Soft, Flowing Net Effects Seen in Newest Frocks

By MADGE MARVEL

PLAIN white net is a most important fabric this season. It forms the foundation of nine-tenths of the blouses and gowns of the spring and summer. It is the lining fabric pre-eminent and has quite displaced the heavier "waist lining" of other days.

Soft slinkiness is the thing to be desired in all gowns. With this effect there is the same need as ever for a certain firmness which is in unapparent existence; and it is for this that net is most desirable. In the coarser mesh, such as is used for linings, it gives all the body required even for the woman of full figure who feels that in the making of her gowns she must have "something to hold her."

It is so delightfully light that it adds nothing in the way of warmth to summer gowns. It makes an excellent foundation upon which to drape all the exquisite sheer fabrics which are used for gown bodices or for separate blouses, and it gives the fastidious woman much satisfaction to know that her frocks have some protection which was lacking in the unlined garments that have recently been worn.

Net Waist Features.

Even so slight a thing as the net lining makes all the difference in the world in the wear of a gown and gives perishable blouses something of substance.

In the linen frocks the net bodice lining will lessen the necessity of such frequent trips to the cleaners, and will give a feeling of crispness and freshness which linen should have and which it loses when it is subjected to contact with arms and neck moistened with perspiration.

In making the net waist the outside fabric is caught only at the side seams. The foundation is plain and fitted and fastened with tiny snap fasteners. The net lining sleeves are made separate from the sleeves of the gown so they can be slipped out and cleansed. This makes them of great advantage for use in the summer gown, for the sleeves are the first part of a gown to become sticky and soiled.

It is possible to buy in the shops fitted net foundations with neatly finished seams and shaped belt, which reduces the problem of how to make a blouse to the knowledge of how to drape the chiffon, or silk, or crepe, which forms the outside.

Another hint to the home dressmaker in making her summer blouses is to omit the little peplum which has been used as a finish and run an elastic in a hem at the bottom of the blouse which will hold it snugly at the waist line. There must be care taken to be sure to get the blouse long-waisted enough so it will not pull up with each movement of the arm, but this should not be difficult, as there is still great liking for the loose blousiness over the belt.

"Sewing Out" Style.

Speaking of this reminds me that one of the most common errors of the amateur dressmaker is the tendency to "pull down and sew tight." She is so afraid her frocks will not be well made that she sews all the style out of them.

The desired effect of the moment is to have the gowns look as if they were just thrown carelessly together. The real genius of clothes-making is to have them secure and of enough substance to last well, keep in shape and yet have the effect of being held by nothing more substantial than a pin or two. To make careless lines of grace enduring is not easy.

The exquisite fine stitchery of dear grandmama's day does more harm than good in the gown of the moment. To be sure, it is charming in fashioning the dainty accessories, such as the collars and frills of chiffon, or lace, or book muslin, which, by the way, has been tremendously revived; but it is neither necessary nor desirable in the gown itself.

Take Few Stitches.

Long slipped stitches are the things that count in the making of the modern gown. The best ones show no sign of sewing. The manner of their making is never in evidence. The draperies are apparently tucked up or swirled around and stuck into place. So, the little lady who is making her summer gowns wants to learn right now to "slight" her sewing.

One of the best dressmakers gives the girls in her workroom this advice: "Sew firm, but take as few stitches as possible."

When it comes to making all these cunning little ruffles and puffs we are wearing this year, the knowing how to sew beautifully comes into its proper value. For the difference between the garment which is made by hand and the one which is bought in the shops is wide and costly. Tiny stitches cost a pretty penny.

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN MATRIMONY

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

The Word "Obey."

MARY and I have had a queer discussion—queer in that I took the side one would naturally expect her to take, and she took the side the average man might take—or a clinging vine.

It began by an article I had read about the elimination of the word "obey" from the marriage ceremony.

"I wonder," I said, looking up from my newspaper, "was the word 'obey' in our marriage ceremony, Mary?"

"I don't remember," said Mary.

"I don't think it was," said I. "Nor do I think it should be."

"I think it should," said Mary unexpectedly.

Now I don't believe Mary said that for any reason under heaven except to be in direct opposition to me. That's my biggest objection to equal suffrage. I believe every woman would disagree with her husband merely on general principles, and the resultant political jangle would be terrible indeed.

"Why do you think the word 'obey' should remain in the marriage ceremony?" I inquired warmly.

"Well," said Mary with her prettiest clinging vine air, "it's always been there and old things are best. I don't like changing so much, Peter. And if a woman honestly loves her husband she won't in the least mind obeying. That's just the way I figure it out."

"That's beautiful idyllic rot," I said frankly. "And you know it. The biggest argument under heaven against that word 'obey' is that it irrevocably commits the average woman to a lie. She knows well enough that there are certain conditions in which she wouldn't obey if her husband beat her. It's a relic of the days when a man was privileged to beat his wife by law provided he used a stick no bigger than his thumb. And believe me," I added, "you could muss up a person nicely with a stick no bigger than your thumb."

"Don't be slangy," said Mary frowning. "I still insist, Peter, that the word is merely an empty form, and it's an old custom and therefore beautiful——"

"Yet," I said, "if there is a dispute in a family—a really serious one—and the man takes advantage of his prehistoric privilege and commands his wife to obey, she invariably does as she pleases. Most times, too, the family does as she pleases without question unless the man is a bully. Even then the meekest of little women will flare up under stress and do as she pleases. And just so surely, Mary, as women disobey after promising in the marriage ceremony irrevocably to obey, they break a vow. Isn't that true?"

"Great heavens, Peter!" exclaimed Mary petulantly. "You do fuss over the funniest points."

"Nothing funny about that point," I retorted, nettled. "It's logic." Mary is constantly confusing the meanings of the words funny and queer.

The whole truth of the matter is simply this: Mary would disobey, too, even if she had promised to obey, but she wouldn't feel the breaking of the vow strongly. Women are that way. And yet there are some conscientious women who feel that vow so strongly that they would religiously obey until death. In that case, if the man were brutal and criminal, he could force his wife to do untold things merely by harping upon the word "obey!" If a strongly religious woman who believes that the marriage ceremony is divinely inspired and regards the word "obey" as a literal oath to be kept inviolate until her death were to be commanded by an unscrupulous husband to do something unspeakable, I wonder what would evolve from her eventual spiritual struggle.

But, taking it all in all, I don't believe in clogging up a beautiful thing like a marriage ceremony with hollow forms. Women have never literally obeyed—they never will. Therefore, why saddle them with a lie at the beginning of a partnership?

Our Bird Friends

The Chickadee

BECAUSE of its delightful notes, its confiding ways and its fearlessness, the chickadee is one of the best known birds of the United States and Canada. It responds to encouragement, and by hanging within its reach a constant supply of suet the chickadee can be made a constant visitor to the garden and orchard.

Though insignificant in size, titmice (another name for the attractive little birds) are far from being so in an economic sense, owing to their numbers and activity. While one locality is being searched for food by a larger bird, it is being scrutinized by the smaller species. The chickadee's food is made up of insects and vegetable matter. Moths and caterpillars are favorites, and form almost one-third of the whole. The vegetable food is composed largely of seeds of weeds. There are few more useful birds than this.

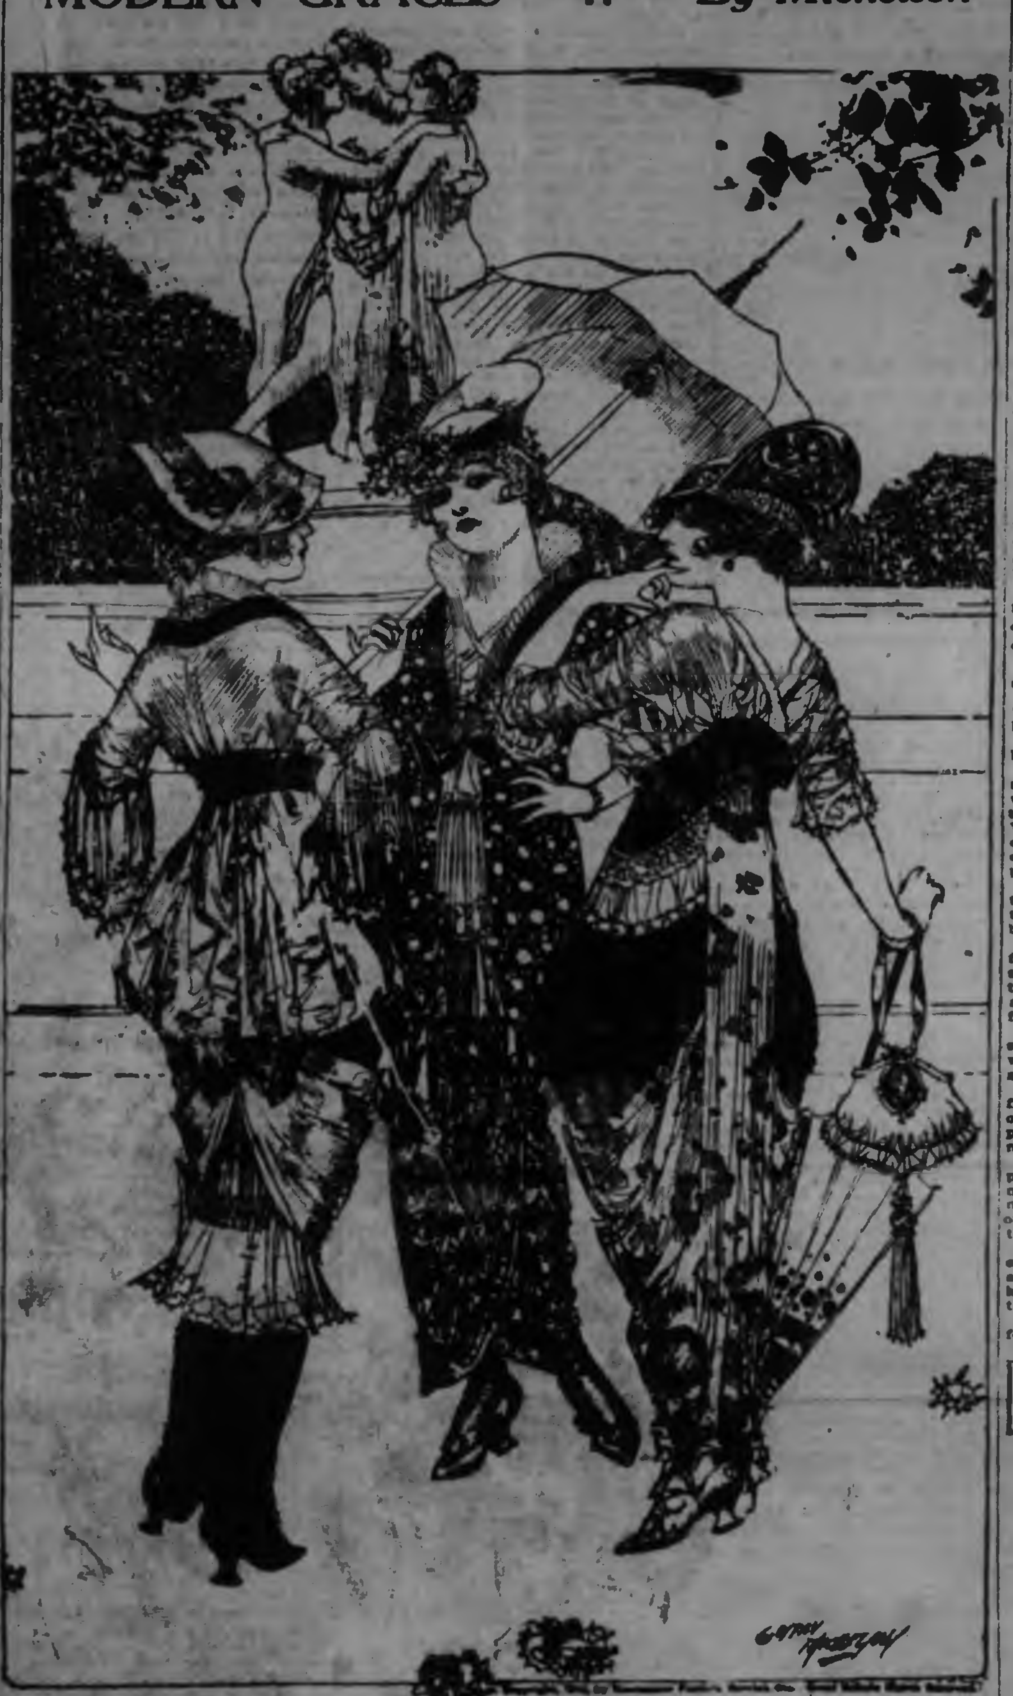
MODERN GRACES :: By Michelson



THOSE original Three Graces so dear to tradition waiting on Venus. But note this—they SOMETIMES attended Apollo. It's in the books and we must believe it.

The point is that they were goddesses, and, in particular, they represented Grace, Beauty and Joy. If they ever paid any attention to Apollo, he probably deserved the high gift. For they were honored goddesses.

Canova, Thorwaldsen and a lot of the other sculptors and painters have tried to do justice to the Graces.

But doing justice to Graces is no easy matter. Who is fit, for example, to do justice to the modern graces? It is a complicated matter. This is a conscientious effort. But YOU, as like as not, see graces differently.

And of all Graces, Her Grace Miss America is the most difficult to draw—and to win.

Secrets of Dainty "College" Candies

By Ann Marie Lloyd

WHEN Josephine Martin was a student in college she was called "the dandiest fudge maker" in the university. She made candies of every kind, from the most elaborate and ornate bonbons, which tasted exactly like dollar-a-pound kind, to simple taffies. Her candies made her famous all over the country. The girls were always begging her to make them a box to send to some of the "girls at home," and she was voted the "sweetest girl" in each of her classes.

After she left college there was a sudden turn in her fortunes. Her father, who had lavished money on her, died suddenly and left his family almost penniless. It remained for Josephine to support herself, her mother and a younger sister.

A less practical young woman might have tried to teach, or do some of the other regular things to which the mind of women instinctively turns when she has to earn money. But instead she took mental stock of her accomplishments. She had never been a student. She had slipped through college, and her record for popularity was far more brilliant than her record for scholarship.

"I am going into the candy business," she announced to her family. And she did. Luckily she had her home, and so the first expense of rent was spared her. But from the first her business prospered. She decided that the most popular sweets were those that had chocolate for the chief ingredient. Of the chocolate confections she argued that caramels and fudges were the most liked. So she decided to specialize on the very two candies which had brought her fame in college.

And she used only the rules of the college girl. Her business has long since outgrown the home kitchen. It occupies an entire building in one of the largest cities. She has dozens of candy-makers, and she is the "Big Boss," but the same recipes are still used. Here are some of them:

Vassar Fudge.

Two cupfuls of brown sugar, four ounces of chocolate, three-quarters of a cupful, one tablespoonful butter and a teaspoonful vanilla. Boil till it threads from the spoon and beat till it creams. Broken nut meats can be added and some shredded cocoanut stirred in just as it is removed from the fire makes a delicious variation.

Barnard Caramels.

Two cups of brown sugar, one of molasses, one cup of grated chocolate, one cup of boiled milk, one tablespoonful of flour, butter the size of a walnut. Let it boil slowly till it forms in water and pour on a flat tin to cool.

Wellesley Chocolate Caramels.

Two cupfuls molasses, one cupful granulated sugar, two-thirds cup of milk, three squares of unsweetened chocolate, one large tablespoonful butter and teaspoonful of vanilla.

Cook the ingredients together, with the exception of the vanilla, till the mixture forms a ball when dropped in cold water. Add the vanilla just as it is removed from the fire. Pour in buttered pans and mark in squares. Chopped walnuts may be added if desired.

Angel Kisses a la Radcliffe.

Two cupfuls of brown sugar, the browner the better, three-fourths of a cup of half milk and half cream, and a tablespoonful of butter. Boil till it strings. Add a teaspoonful of vanilla and half a cupful of English walnut meats. Beat till it is thick like syrup then pour into buttered pans and mark in squares.

Popcorn Balls.

For these best results will come from the use of New Orleans molasses. Cook a pint of it over the fire for five minutes. Pour into it three quarts of freshly popped corn and cook two minutes, stirring every instant.

As soon as it has cooled enough to handle form into loose balls. This is easily done with a spoon.

Place the balls on oiled paper far enough apart to prevent their sticking together.

Unknown.

"You say that you are a stranger in town? Don't you know any one?"

"Not a soul. Why I am such a stranger that I could not be identified sufficiently to entitle me to be lynched."

Both Seeking Rest.

Gobang—I think I will go to the country next week to get a little fresh air.

Grymes—I sent my wife and little fresh heir to the country a week ago to get him away from me.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Freckles Are Signs of Your Natural Vigor

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG.

DO you know Jimmy Ransome, doctor?"

"Who is he?"

"He's the boy that is such a great goalkeeper on the City College team."

"Oh, the chap who caused the City College and the Polytechnic to suspend athletic competitions?"

"Yes."

"No. I don't know him personally. What about him?"

"Well, he has the jolliest freckles you ever saw. I'm proud of my own since I saw his."

A beautiful girl of sixteen said this. She exhibited good sense beyond measure.

Odd to say, ninety-nine girls and men with freckles are forever tormented by the thought of these indices of good health. Indeed, this pretty maid, so sensible and sweet and innocent in her naive remark about a boy of her own age, is one among millions. She unconsciously realizes that freckles are the envy of all physiologists as well as medical men who know.

The demand for drugs, medicaments, inside and out, as far as kinds and qualities are concerned, make the tub of Pantagruel look like a teacup.

"Is he conceited?" I asked this more and more wonderful maid.

"Of course not," she archly answered. "Nobody with freckles is egoistic. He has too many to be so.

"And," she roguishly added, "so have I."

This is in part true, and Solomon was never more wise. The vanity of any one with freckles is exactly in inverse ratio to the number and extent of the freckles. With 10 freckles you are 25 per cent. conceited. With 20 freckles you are 75 per cent. vain. With 30 freckles you are 90 per cent. egotistical.

From this degree upward vanity begins to grow less and less until a myriad of the pretty, little, sere and yellowish brown dotlets are legion and accountable.

Modesty, humility, bravery and bashfulness are in direct proportion to the swarm of proud freckles. While it is true that many persons are foolish about a few freckles, those with teeming faces full pay no heed to them.

It is their lack of personal self-consciousness and looking-glass egotism which precludes their attention to themselves.

Strange as it at first blush appears, freckles are deposited by a combination of circumstances, which ancient philosophers and modern alchemists have eternally sought.

This, to wit, is actually the life-giving power itself. If chemists knew how to make freckles, to dab this ethereal pigment of nature upon the modest cheek of man, they would have solved the mystery of the ages.

A drop of blood surcharged with an overabundant food and fuel, saturated, as it were, with more electric sparks of human vitality than is needed, reaches the anvil of the deeper folds of the skin.

Now Apollo, the sun god, shoots a few darts of his burning beams through the semi-transparent layers of the epidermis. Lo! a freckle appears. Phoebus with his magic sword has struck a spark from the rich and pure blood against the anvil of a healthful, invigorating skin.

Thus it comes to pass that the pale, wan, anaemic, debilitated run-down, badly ancestored individuals are woefully in want of these hygienic smiles of Jupiter and Juno.

Skin peeling from the face is the price of using all sorts and conditions of flesh applications. Really, the queries levelled at the dermatologist about freckles are only equalled by the questions asked about methods of treatment for "peeling skin."

This peeling, it must be plain, is due to the sad and hopeless attempt to remove freckles with lotions, which remove the superficial strata of the face. Actually, it is much the same as the peeling after an infectious disease, such as measles.

Proserpine with freckles gathering flowers is hereby a fairer flower, so let well enough alone. Be proud of these brown badges of beauty.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

A boy whom I have known for years and who is my next door neighbor, but whom I have been on bad terms with and have not spoken to for months, asked his cousin, a friend of mine, to introduce him to me at the rink. This was ridiculous, considering the length of time we have known each other, even though we are not friends at present. Luckily his cousin refused to comply with the request. This saved me from much embarrassment for the time being, but if, in the future, he should get some one to carry out his foolish plan, what should I do?

EXPECTANT.

WELL, now, little Expectant, aren't you making a good deal of a fuss over nothing, or next to nothing?

What is there so terrible about this boy who lives next to you that you haven't spoken to him for months?

Of all the silly things on earth the "not speaking" fad is the silliest. No one who is over 10 years old should ever indulge in it. You needn't be dead in love with a boy to say "Good morning, isn't it a beautiful day?" need you?

I think he seems to be a young person with a bit of humor myself.

Why don't you "oblige"?

The next time you meet him anywhere and he asks to be introduced to you, as if you were a perfect stranger, be presented, laugh, and put an end to the whole ridiculous business.

Don't be a goose; be a nice, jolly, good-natured girl with a friendly heart for every one, and see how much more fun you'll have.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

TING-A-LING! Ting-a-ling!"

Mrs. Web-foot stood outside Mrs. Leghorn's door and pulled the little string while the merry bell rang inside.

"Come in," said Mrs. Leghorn, and when she caught sight of Mrs. Web-foot she rushed right up to her with:

"Why, how do you do. I am delighted to see you."

"How are you dear children?" inquired Mrs. Web-foot.

"They are all well, but I have quite a time keeping their feet dry," replied Mrs. Leghorn.

"Now isn't that funny. My children are never so happy as when their feet are wet," said Mrs. Web-foot.

"You should never worry about your children."

"I wasn't worrying about my children," said Mrs. Leghorn. "I was simply telling you something. It always relieves one's mind to talk to some one."

"Your children mustn't get their feet wet and mine mustn't fly," replied Mrs. Web-foot.

"I didn't know that your children ought not to fly," began Mrs. Leghorn. "Don't some ducks fly?"

"Some ducks do. Wild ones, of course, but not my dear children. They have enough to do swimming."

Mrs. Leghorn laughed.

"What are you laughing at?" asked Mrs. Web-foot.

"Well," began Mrs. Leghorn, "my little Willie, bright boy that he is, tried to go in swimming one day when he saw Dickie Duck paddling around. He almost drowned."

"I remember Dickie had to pull Willie out," replied Mrs. Web-foot.

"Yes," said Mrs. Leghorn. "That wasn't all. He told Willie that children should stay where they belong."

"You see, Dickie is a bright boy, too," said Mrs. Web-foot, as she followed Mrs. Leghorn into the kitchen.

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are passed which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no disgust, is not disagreeable to take. One dose surely always effects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, Mulvaney Parkdale 3325, or call at 187 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

CANADIAN FISH

Shipping Frozen Fish Proves Succes
ful in Britain

The experiment of introduc frozen halibut from the Canadi Pacific coast on the Grimsby marke and thence into the markets of Gre Britain has proved so successful th by the time the second consignme was due to arrive the first delive had all been disposed of, and orde were in hand for more. And wh the second consignment arrived, tr ers were so anxious for supplies th although there was treble the qua tity available, its disposal before other lot could keep up a continuo supply, was a certainty. And, owi to the success of the trade, it h been found necessary to supply so of the larger distributing centres w supplies direct from Liverpool.

With the halibut consignment ca to hand 125 cases of frozen salm from the Canadian Pacific coast, appearance at Grimsby creating qu as much trading interest as did first lot of halibut. The frozen fish condition was perfect, and th merchants who took trial samples their customers, expressed their preciation of the fish and the opin that it would doubtless have a re sale in the country, particularly there was now no Scottish or Eng salmon available.

IN DAYS OF OLD

When the Bucksaw Brigade and Fireplaces Were Commo

"Instead of paying ten cents a for charcoal, we used to buy a wheeled cart load of chips for York shillings forty years ago," R. T. Coady, Toronto, reminisce "That was thirty-seven and a cents for several bushels of good chips, full of resin. I remember chips and pine and cordwood brought to market like loads of ap are now.

"The men cribbed the chips. would only have rotted in the if they had not. They were pings from felled trees. Any you wanted kindling, and none pened to be on the market, you order it, not by telephone— weren't invented—but by leaving with the market men, and it be brought you next day. The York shillings it cost included livery. Hardwood was pretty sometimes—five dollars a 'bush That's an eighth less than a sta cord. It was principally beech maple. Nearly everybody h their houses by wood fires then. had big box stoves in the halls, places and ranges in the kitche grates in the rooms. The he stretched out five or six feet the floors.

"Men with bucksaws and sawh slung on their shoulders were as meet a sight then as policeme now. They'd saw a cord of woo seventy-five cents, or saw and it for a dollar and a quarter. hardwood came in four-foot le you know. If you only wanted in two instead of three, they' a cord for fifty cents. We used foot lengths in the office stove most people burned that leng their fireplaces. The big knott logs that were hard to chop body saved for back logs. smoulder all night and have goo coals for you in the morning. the old fires were far ahead heating appliances of to-day. It' we never now have to break in the water pitchers before w wash in the mornings, but the d rooms are not the living-rooms used to be, when family and f gathered around the generous-h fireplace, piling on the wood blazed high and watching the fir down to glowing coals."

It would be interesting to learn, now that the local rate payers are up against a 30 mill rate, why so much of their money was spent installing magnetite lamps of which only about half are used.

A Record Walk

In 1851 an old Cornish fishwife of eighty-four, named Mary Callinack, walked from Penzance to London to see the great exhibition in Hyde Park. The distance is nearly 300 miles. The old woman created a sensation and was noticed by Queen Victoria. She had vowed to call on the lord mayor before returning, and she carried out her intention, but, of course was not permitted to walk back home.

Signs of the Times

Soon it will be difficult to distinguish small boys from little girls in the streets, for the latter are adopting trouser-like suits.

Little girls can be seen wearing trouser-like cloth knickerbockers, reefer coats and hats that make them look "just like brother" in their dress.

CANNING EGGS

When Done Under Sanitary Conditions the Product is Good

Most of us look with horror on any but a new-laid egg with an unbroken shell, and a gauranteed date thereon, says Harper's Weekly. The phrase, canned eggs, brings to our minds a horrid picture of a yellow, evil-smelling mess used by unscrupulous bakers in their campaign against the public stomach.

Yet the time is coming when the canned egg will be with us as familiarly as the storage egg and far more acceptably. The fresh egg goes higher and higher in price as our population increases and the feeding of hens becomes more expensive. To can the eggs in times and localities of plenty is the next step.

In New York State is an egg factory where eggs are canned under sanitary conditions that approximate those of a first class hospital. In a sterilised room are the canners dressed in white. Their hands have been made surgically clean. Before each girl is a tray of eggs at exactly the right temperature for canning. The eggs have been candled. A glass jar that has been sterilised is set by the eggs. The girl picks up an egg and breaks and inspects it. It is a perfect egg and goes into the sterilised jar. She breaks another egg. It has escaped the candler and is bad. The bad egg is rushed out, the girl washes her hands and the process goes on until she has a jar of perfect eggs, which are sealed. Nothing could be cleaner or more wholesome than this completed product.

Strange Monument to a Wife

Projecting from the wall of a house overhanging the Lake of Thun, in Switzerland, may be seen the bow of a small rowing boat, with the name Petronella painted upon it. The wife of the owner of the house was drowned from this boat while rowing on the lake. Her husband determined, as a memorial to his wife, to build the boat into the house. The room destined to contain it, however, proved too short for the whole length of the boat, and the bow projects from the wall just beneath the balcony. The house is close by one of the steamboat piers, and the unaccountable appearance of this strange memorial excites much curiosity among the passengers on the steamers.

Pulling His Ears

It is said that the German Emperor has a habit of gently tugging at his left ear when anything bothers him. One day, some years ago, when he was on a visit to England, he was handed a telegram. The contents of the message apparently displeased him, for he immediately began tugging at his ear. The Prince of Wales, then a small boy, watched the performance with considerable interest. "Uncle," he said at length, "why are you pulling your ear?" "Because I'm annoyed, I suppose," replied the Kaiser. "And when you're very annoyed," persisted the young Prince, "what do you do then?" "Then I pull somebody else's," announced his Majesty viciously.

Famous Actresses' Favorite Dishes

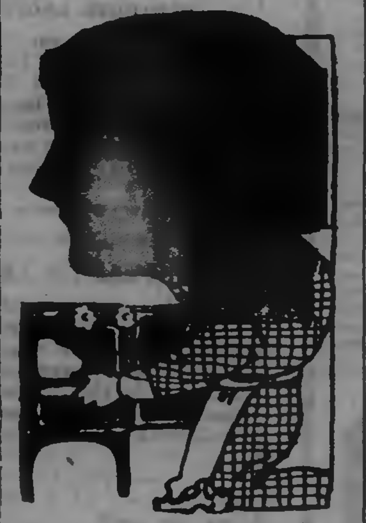
Lillian Russell eats very simple food, as a rule. She does not care particularly for the intricate sauces of the French. Occasionally, however, one finds upon her table macaroni which is cooked in a way particularly her own and which is very delicious. This is her recipe:

LILLIAN RUSSELL

Mince an onion and fry in butter; add a little flour and a half a can of tomatoes. Season with salt, pepper and a dessertspoon of sugar. Cook 3 minutes. Strain and add 1 cupful each of cooked macaroni, chopped ham, chicken cut in bits and 3 cooked green peppers finely shredded and free from seeds. Beat the yolk of 1 egg in half a cup of hot milk and stir in well to thicken. Serve hot with a sprinkling of Parmesan cheese over each portion.

Mary Mannering is very domestic in her tastes and in her beautiful Detroit home she delights in having her friends about her table. At these times she is very apt to serve them a delicious meat pudding. And this is the way she prepares it:

Cut 3 pounds of beef into squares and put it, without water or salt, into the inner pan of a double boiler and cover closely. Bring the water slowly to a boil, but do not open for 3 hours; leave it to get cold covered. Remove the meat and cook 3 quail in the beef liquor until tender. Put a layer of the beef in a deep dish; next, one of oysters, then one of the quail and kidney, and over this bits of marrow.



MARY MANNERING

Proceed in this manner until materials are used up. Thicken with browned flour enough beef stock to cover; season with pepper, salt and a little kitchen-bouquet. Cover with puff paste an inch thick. Bake an hour and serve hot.

Superseding the Dishpan

Have you a porcelain sink? If so, good. But even if you have only an iron one, painted white, you can use a rubber mat, which fits over the drain, and makes the dishpan superfluous. With one of these mats all one needs do is to scrape the dishes, put them in the sink with the soap or washing powder and turn on the hot water. Besides saving the cost of a dishpan one saves much wear and tear upon the porcelain sink in moving the pans about.

TYPHOID VACCINE

British Army Pathologist Tells Results of Studies

Col. Sir Wm. Leishman, F.R.S., K.H.P., professor of pathology at the Royal Army Medical College, London, England, who is generally recognized as one of the greatest men in the medical profession in Great Britain, told a meeting of the Association of Officers of the Medical Services of Canada at Ottawa many of the results of his experiments with typhoid vaccine, of which he has made a special study. He claimed that the success of the vaccine has been demonstrated in a remarkable way, especially in tropical countries where typhoid or enteric fever is more rampant than elsewhere.

To Whiten a Table

If the kitchen table becomes stained and blackened, try cleaning it with bathbrick. Crush the bathbrick—taking care not to make it too small—damp the table with hot water, and sprinkle with the bathbrick. Now make some soapsuds and scrub the table in the ordinary way, using a fresh supply of water for rinsing. The table will look beautifully white after this treatment.

CITY AND DISTRICT

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES REPORTERS.

New Methodist Church.

Operations preliminary to the building of the new church for the Charlotte street Methodists, have been commenced at the Aaron Cox property and the buildings on the property are being torn down.

A Correction.

In reporting a successful operation that little Miss Georgie Long the local singer, underwent on Monday, by mistake, it said she was Mr. Sam Long's daughter. The item should have read Mr. Long's sister.

Local Man Elected.

M. S. Donoghue, of this city, was elected second vice-president of the Master Horseshoers' Association at the annual convention in London. The convention next year will be held in Peterborough.

Repairs To The Cathedral.

Mr. Sheehey, the local contractor had a gang of men at work repairing the chimney on the West side of St. Peter's Cathedral, which was injured by frost disintigrating the mortar. Similar work, for the same cause, will at once be begun on the Cathedral chimneys on the Ease and North sides.

Hunter Street Creek Bridge

Work was begun yesterday on the Hunter Street Creek bridge. Some days ago ice knocked out the lower tier of thick masonry on the West side. Had not prompt and intelligent placing of props been placed, the bridge would assuredly have fallen. Yesterday men were employed shovelling stones into the creek bed to replace the masonry washed away.

When the Dog Moulted.

It would seem that Casey Jones is to be employed as unofficial dog catcher. It is stated that Casey a few days ago tried to catch a Collie dog. He grabbed it by the tail. The dog must, bird-like, have been moulting. The long hair in the tail came off in Casey's hands, and the collie escaped.

Our Street Paving.

Mr. J. MacGregor of Toronto, registered yesterday at the Montgomery House. Mr. MacGregor is in the employ of Messrs. Foley & Gleeson, who are doing the local paving work. In answer to a question put by the Times Mr. MacGregor stated that work will begin at once on George street. The first work done will be to replace the gravel between the street car track on George street by Metropolitan trucks made in Ohio.

Danny Simons Heard From.

Word was received here yesterday from Danny Simons, Peterborough's successful contribution to the vaudeville stage. Mr. Simons, who is having the most successful season in a successful stage history, is now in British Columbia. In Vancouver, B. C., Mr. Simons met a lot of former Peterborough boys, including Messrs. Fred Lynch, Jack Simpson, Bert Giroux and Mounie Cottingham, who are all doing well Shot In Mistake For a Bear.

James Kelly, a resident of Hastings County, was brought to Belleville hospital with a serious gunshot wound in his thigh. Kelly set out on a hunting trip at midnight. At two o'clock in the morning, James was bending over some mink traps examining them, near where a bear trap was set. His cousin came through the woods at some distance away, and, thinking the dark form he saw moving was a bear in the trap, fired at it. The bullet tore through the ligaments of James' thigh.

Improvements at Oriental Hotel.

Yesterday another change began at the Oriental Hotel. The former bar was taken out. The mirrors and shelving are also being removed. The former bar room will be made into a tea room. About three quarters way back from the Hunter street entrance a partition will be placed so that a semi-private room may be had, and secured by parties wishing to entertain guests. An arch will be made between the rotunda and the new tea room. This will undoubtedly be a great attraction.

The Local Movies.

It would seem hard that local lady law stenographers, who enjoy a bit of gossip, cannot pose for a few moving pictures. At one of the local picture houses is a very pathetic film depicting the troubles of a married couple. They seek divorce. The heart broken wife tells her secret troubles to a lawyer. By the lawyer's desk sits a young lady stenographer who merrily plays the type writer as the lady tells her woes. The same film shows a tear impelling scene where the lady's child dies. The conventional "movie" doctor is called in. He feels the child's pulse and does so with his thumb. Still, with the exception of these slight anachronisms, the pictures this week are singularly interesting and the vaudeville of high quality.

Italian Boarding Houses.

Sanitary Inspector Spence appeared before the Board of Health yesterday morning and gave a description of the conditions he found in a local Italian boarding house. He was there last Saturday at midnight, he was there again on Monday at the same hour and called again during the morning. He found 24 lodgers, besides the regular occupants, and of these, twelve were sleeping in the attic, containing about 2,500 cubic feet, while every person should have at least 600 cubic feet. He found five men sleeping in another room and similar conditions prevailed all over the house. Mr. Spence remarked that the only reason why the cellar was not occupied was evidently because it was nothing but a reeking cesspool. The Board unhesitatingly decided to take action at once.

THE LATE MAJOR COOPER.

The Times yesterday asked Mr. T. Shore, Official Scorer of the Peterborough Cricket Club, how the prospects for local cricket are looming up this year? Mr. Shore replied that things are shaping well and prospects bright for a good club. Mr. Shore showed us a photograph of the Club taken in 1913, in which the late Major Cooper appears. The Toronto Star of June 20th, 1913, says "In the person of Major Cooper, an ex-English officer, the Peterborough C.C. possesses "a fine old English gentleman" who, in spite of his more than half a century of summers, can still play cricket as well as some of the youngsters. Major Cooper has a cricketing record of which he is particularly proud, and well he might be. He was one of the first "Gentlemen of England" to make a century against the Australians when the great Spofford was at his best. The match was played at Crewe, and Major Cooper, who was a mere boy fresh from Oxford, at the time, was selected to play for M.C.C. He played a splendid innings and scored 101 before being bowled by Boyle."

Try This Treatment for Removing Ugly Hairs.

(Helps to Beauty.)

No pain, and very little expense, is attached to this home-treatment for removing unsightly hair or fuzz from the face, neck or arms: Make a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water. Spread this on the hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes, remove, wash the skin and the hair will have vanished. It is well to keep a small package of delatone handy to use whenever superfluous hairs make their appearance.

SULTS TO OLD GLORY BY HUERTA MUST STOP 'APOLOGIZE OR FIGHT' ATTITUDE OF NATION

ident Wilson Took Members of Both Sides of Congress nto His Confidence To-day to Explain Importance of New Situation

hington, April 1 .—New facts ht to light to-day, when Presi- Wilson took Congress into his ence, increased the desire of ers that Huerta apologise and the United States flag, and al- reased their confidence in the gress of President Wilson ade- y to take control of any situa- hat might occur.

arrest of an orderly who went at Vera Cruz to obtain mail e American fleet, the intercep- of despatches to Charge O'Shaug y, the censorship over official tches and repeated offences "a- the rights and dignity of the d States," were given to-day as of the causes of the despatch of lantic fleet to Mexico, in an of- statement representing the Ad- ation views.

To Compel a Salute.

ington, April 15.—While the ic fleet with its formidable f marines and blue jackets was for Tampico to-day to compel ute to the American flag by Government, President Wil- ok into his confidence on the situation the Republican and Democratic ranking members of the two Congressional committees in charge of foreign affairs. Mr. Wilson revealed to them the incidents following the arrest of a detachment of the blue jackets at Tampico the subsequent demand by Rear Admiral Mayo for an apology in the form of a salute to the colors, and the refusal of the Huerta Government to comply as set forth in notes transmitted to Charge O'Shaughnessy.

A "Peaceful Blockade."

Mr. Wilson expected his callers to communicate to their colleagues in the House and Senate what he told them so as to pave the way for any step that might require the authorization of Congress. The President was ready to inform those who conferred with him of the various precedents in the past under which reparation had been demanded by the United States and other nations as a redress of wrongs. State Department officials had cited to the President that reprisals often had been sought in a "peaceful blockade," that is shutting off the ports of a nation from commerce without open hostility,—the landing of marines to police property and even the shelling of a town.

VERNMENT PLANS FURTHER TO RESTRICT LIQUOR TRAFFIC

Mr. Hanna Promises New Legislation Will be Provided This Year

ronto, April 15—"This House nises the duty upon it to nise the evil effects of the habit by wise restrictions the traffic in intoxicating rs. solution Little Changed.

was the motion adopted by tario Legislature last night after a protracted discussion introduced by Mr. Rowell, leader of the Opposition, with another "Abolish the bar," resolution, only slightly modified from those which he has sponsored on previous occasions. The position of the Government, as set forth above, was in amendment to Mr. Rowell's resolution. To it was added an amendment by Mr. Albert Grigg, Algoma, praising the unpartisan administration of the liquor laws and deploring the introduction of the temperance question into the political field.

Mr. Rowell introduced for the third time his resolution urging abolition of the bar. Although the province lacked the power to prohibit the manufacture or importation of liquor into Ontario, he pointed out that the Provincial Government could legal legislate for abolition of the bar. He reaffirmed the position of the Opposition on this policy, and declared that the abolitionists were yearly gaining increased support.

CHINAMEN CAUGHT BY BUFFALO AGENT

Seen Aboard Trolley at Albion and Taken at Rochester on Phone Call.

Rochester, April 15.—Two Chinamen were arrested here tonight by Immigration Inspector S. D. Smith of the Black Rock station, Buffalo, on charges of being in this country illegally. In Albion this afternoon Smith was about to board a trolley for Buffalo when he detected the celestials on a Rochester-bound car. He became suspicious when he saw them in the company of an Italian-American, and notified Immigration Inspector Martin of Rochester by telephone to be on the watch for them.

Two detectives met the car as it neared Main street, and took the Chinamen into custody.

Smith missed the Rochester car but followed on the next one, a few minutes later. He arrived at police headquarters not long after and conducted the investigation.

Through an interpreter the Chinamen gave their names as Bo Sun and Yack Gee and claimed to be from Philadelphia, although their clothing bore stamps of Toronto, Ont., merchants.

The Italian was paroled for lack of evidence, insisting he had met the Chinamen on the car at Buffalo.

GIRL IS BLINDED BY CARELESS BOY

Little Maid's Eye Cut in Two By Stone Thrown in the Strtet.

Lockport, April 15.—In the hope of saving the sight of one eye, the other having been cut and destroyed by a stone thrown by a boy yesterday, Winifred Wahl, aged ten years daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wahl of No. 168 Church street, was taken to Buffalo today to be examined by specialists.

The little girl was walking along the street with her mother when hit. She was taken home and a local specialist, who was summoned, found the injured eye literally cut in two.

MR. HANNA ADVISES TORONTO TO DRAW UP SPECIAL CHARTER

Toronto, April 15.—Hon. W. J Hanna was in a genial mood this morning and in his capacity as chairman of the Municipal Committee, he had a lot of fun with the representatives of the city, when the McNaught Bill came up. Section one, providin that Toronto could enter on expropriated property without first paying money into court for the property was struck out. Mr. Hanna advised Toronto to draw up a special charter for itself. The Legislature, he hinted, was getting tired of amending the Municipal Act to suit Toronto. When Mr. Geary attempted to protest, the chairman waved him aside with the remark, "In the meantime let's get on to something we can pass."

A Poser for Mr. Geary.

Some discussion arose over clause two, which was to prohibit the carrying on of certain businesses in residential districts.

"What's the difference between a milliner's shop and a plumber's shop," Mr. Hanna fired at Mr. Geary and the Corporation Counsel was stumped.

Mr. W. D. McPherson, West Toronto objected to the exclusion of moving picture shows.

Mr. Geary wanted to know if Mr. McPherson wished to have a picture show "with its open front and arc lights outside," near his place.

The committee finally left the jurisdiction over the location of businesses to the city in the case of plumber shops, machine shops, tinsmiths, storage of builders or contractors supplies, moving pictures and othe theatres. The dance halls were left out after a battle in which Mr. McPherson successfully opposed the city.

The Circus Fee.

Mr. Hanna remarktd that it was pretty hard on the small boy when the section changing the daily fee for circuses from $500 to $2000 came up. It was dropped out.

The city was given permission to double the sum for expenditure in entertaining visitors. This makes it $20,000 a year.

The committee declined to give permission to the city to cut down trees at will and without giving notice.

STARVING, MAROONED SPORTSMEN ARE SAVED

Biloxi Miss., April 15.— After being marooned on an island 25 miles out for a week, W.P. Kennedy a packer, and the crew of the Mabel Nelson reached here today exhausted. The boat in which they left here a week ago to catch shrimp was swamped and drifted to the island. They patched a boat together and arrived here safe.

THE WEATHER.

CLEVER YONNG RABBI FOR THE GOEL TZDEC

Rev. Dr. Price Agrees to Take Charge of Congregation in Toronto.

Toronto, April 15.—It has been decided that Rev. Dr. Price, M.A., Ph. D,. the eminent young Jewish Rabbi from New York, who is visiting in Toronto, will be the minister for the Goel Tzdec congregation at the University Synagogue. The Rabbi is expected to undertake his new duties in about six weeks time and the congregation intend making his entry into office a notable affair. A special celebration will be held at which Toronto's foremost jews will be present.

MAN DIED ON WAY TO THE HOSPITAL

Was Apparently Seized With Heart Failure on the Street.

Toronto, April 15.—While walking along Younge street near Alice street W. H. Cochrane 355 Church street, suddenly fell and when picked up by a constable was unconscious. The police ambulance was summoned and the man was removed to the General HosApital, but he expired on the way The body was taken to the Morgue. It is thought that heart failure was cause of death and it has not yet been decided whether an inquest will be held. Cochrane was about thirty years of age.

TORONTO JEWS DEMANDING HEBREW MEMBER PARLIAMENT

Journal Says Foreign Districts Will be Split Up in Small Sections

Toronto, April 15.—An editorial in to-day's issue of The Daily Hebrew Journal makes an urgent appeal to Conservative Jews to use their influence with the Government to secure what it terms just treatment under the Redistribution Act. The article starts out by accusing the Government of planning to divide Jewish districts into small sections and tack each of these to large areas in which Conservatives of British origin preponderate. The article points out that the Redistribution Act will be in force for ten years, and that unless the Jews take prompt action they will be left virtually unrepresented for another decade.

The writer claims that in Montreal the Jewish districts have not been tampered with, and the voters are left to put up a Conservative and a Liberal candidate of their own denomination, and fight on party instead of racial lines.

To Exclude Jews.

A plain statement is made that the Government is striving to prevent the possibility of a Jew being elected in Toronto, and the writer frankly associates the political interests of the Jews with those of foreigners of other denominations.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT MAY LAST UNTIL JUNE THE FIRST

Budget Debate Not Resumed in Earnest Until To-morrow --Few Members Back

Ottawa, April 15.—Members are returning to Ottawa slowly and there promises to be a slim attendance today for the re-opening after the Easter vacation. It is probable that the budget debate will not be resumed until to-morrow, and to-day will be devoted to cleaning up odds and ends of Government business.

The Liberal amendment to the budget will not likely be moved for some days and in the meantime the Liberal leaders are drafting the final wording of the amendment which will embody their fiscal policy.

Liberal Whips Not Sure.

The Liberal whips who have returned are not quite certain whether or not a caucus will be called. but in view of the serious differences between the Free Trade and Protectionist wings of the party it is likely a caucus will be held to settle the compromise amendment. It seems pretty certain that a policy of an increase in the British preference has been finally dropped from the Liberal programme and their fiscal platform will consist of free agricultural implements and free food.

May Sit On Into June.

Both sides are expressing a desire to complete the session by May 24, but in view of the fact that the budget debate will not be wound up much before the end of this month, the chances are that the House will not finish its work until the first week in June. However, everything depends on how controversial the Redistribution Bill and the C,N,R, settlement prove to be.

It is very probable that the Railway Act will not be finally passed this session and will be held over until next year.

PLANS FOR MORE BUILDING FOR NORTH, WEST AND SOUTH CITY

Submitted to City's Board of Works Last Night--Mr. Harry Baker Will Start Building on Patterson Street at Once --Street Railway to Run West to the Monaghan Road and Down to Patterson Street

The City's Board of Works met in regular weekly session last night. Chairman Ald. Geo. Duncan presiding. There were also present Aldermen Duffus, McIntyre, Johnston, Anderson, Saunders, Mayor Buller and City Engineer Parsons.

Committee will recommend that a by-law be prepared approving of the registration of a plan sub-dividing into building lots the Cox Homestead property lying between Homewood avenue and Weller street.

A plan for the sub-division into building lots of the Dumble property situate north of Smith street, between Benston and Bethune streets, was approved of and a by-law endorsing the registration of same will be prepared.

Street Railway Improvements.

The Board will recommend that the Street Railway Co. be premitted to construct a turn-out of their track on Romaine street, between Lock and George.

The Street Railway Co. also intend extending their track on Charlotte street to the Monaghan road and down the Monaghan road to Patterson street. Mr. Munro in laying this proposition before the Board, suggested that the city acquire sufficient of Mr. Brown's property to straighten out the bad jog in the street at the corner of Charlotte and Park streets. Some opinion advances that a few feet of the northern end of Mr. Brown's property, on Charlotte street is on the street line. The City Engineer is instructed to report on this matter.

More Building on Patterson Street.

Mr. Harry Baker's plan for the subdivision of property on the north side of Patterson street, immediately east of the Monaghan road, was approved of. The plan shows the property divided into lots by three streets from the rear of properties on Sherbrooke street to Patterson street, the buildings to face east and west in order to utilize the lots to the best advantage under present conditions. A 10 foot lane will be cut eastward from the Monaghan road to avoid a dead end and furnish connection at the northern boundary of the lots. Property owners on Sherbrooke street had been petitioned to give 33 feet of the rear of their properties, Mr. Baker to give another 33 feet of the northern end of his new sub-division, which would furnish enough land to permit of a 66 foot street, instead of a lane at this point. This would allow of Mr. Baker's new buildings facing north and south instead of east and west as the present plan provides for, and would, it is estimated by experts, enhance the value of the Sherbrooke street properties in question by $400 each lot. These property owners, however, are sufficiently short sighted as to refuse giving the lanh necessary to provide for a 67 foot street, as outlined, and unless they awaken to a recognition of the opportunity to secure a value-increasing street in place of a lane at the rear of their lots, within the next few days, Mr. Baker will proceed with his building operations as outlined. The Board would accept new plans providing for these new buildings facing north and south instead of east and west, with a 66 foot street between the properties and Sherbrooke street should owners on the latter street realize the error of their judgment, and agree to the proposition for a 66 foot street.

Concrete Walks.

The construction of the following concrete sidewalks will be advertised according to law :

King street, north side, from George to Water streets.
Weller street, south side, from Monaghan road, to Albertus street.

On motion of Ald. Duncan, Park street, from McDonnel to Smith, was added.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES

Peel and boil as many parsnips as required, cut in slices, spread each slice with a little butter, and pour over them a teacupful of sauce made by boiling two tablespoonfuls of flour with milk, a little butter, and pepper and salt to taste. Serve hot.

Barley Pudding

Put a breakfastcupful of pearl barley to soak in a pint of milk for one hour, then place in a saucepan, and simmer gently for an hour on the side of the stove, stirring occasionally to prevent burning, then turn into a basin, and when cool mix in thoroughly two whole eggs with a little ground cinnamon and sugar to taste. Pour into a well greased dish, and bake for three-quarters of an hour.

Creamed Haddock

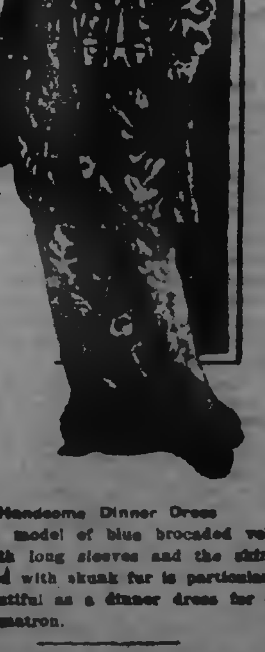
Take a fresh haddock and fillet it. Butter a shallow dish, and put in the haddock. Squeeze the juice of half a lemon over it, add one ounce of butter, cut into small pieces, season with pepper and salt, and cover the dish. Bake for twenty minutes. Make a teacupful of white sauce, add to it the liquor in which the fish was cooked. Bring to the boil, pour over the fish, and serve. Garnish with slices of lemon.

Macaroni Balls

Boil two ounces of macaroni till tender, then cut into small pieces. Beat up the yolk of an egg, add an ounce of grated cheese, and salt and pepper to taste. Stir in the macaroni, and put the mixture into a saucepan. Stir well and cook for several minutes till the egg is quite set. Turn out when cold, flour the hands, and shape the mixture into balls. Egg and breadcrumb them and fry in boiling fat.

White Soup

Take six potatoes, three onions, four ounces of crushed tapioca, one pint and a half of milk, two quarts of water, and one ounce of butter. Cut up the potatoes and onions and place in the water, which must be boiling, and boil for three-quarters of an hour. Then rub through a sieve and put back into the pan. Add the butter and salt and pepper to taste. Boil for another half hour, add the milk, and allow to boil once more. Then serve.



Handsome Dinner Dress

This model of blue brocaded velvet with long sleeves and the skirt trimmed with skunk fur is particularly beautiful as a dinner dress for a young matron.

Polishing Furniture

Remember that too much furniture polish is just as bad for the furniture as too little. Only just enough is required to cover thinly the surface of the furniture. The real secret of obtaining a high polish is to have a number of clean polishing cloths—old pieces of silk make nice finishing ones —and use plenty of "elbow grease."

Holland Blinds

First of all brush the blinds to free them from dust. Then spread a blind on the table, lengthwise. Sprinkle plentifully with clean sawdust, and go over it gently with the palm of the hand until about half a yard of the holland is covered. Use fresh sawdust to each piece, and rub it well in. When the whole of the blind is covered, brush it off and polish with a clean duster. You will find that the blinds will be as stiff and clean as when new.

RURAL PROBLEMS

ent Creelman Sees Need of Big Reforms

There never was a time in the his- of Canada when instruction was needed as right at the pre- moment," declared Dr. Creelman, of Guelph Agricultural Col- This was not because the edu- of the farmer had been neglect- he explained, but because of the -changing rural situation, in- new circumstances and new The father was no longer to properly teach the son; meth- had been revolutionized since the himself had learned his busi- Wheat—so essentially "the of former days that men used expression "good as the wheat"— almost displaced by more valuable products, such as alfalfa.

"In our college and on our experi- farms we have learned and enough to at least double the in Ontario to-day," said Creelman, "yet we are not able reach, as we should like to, the farmer with our knowledge. is true that last year we had 5,000 conducting experiments on own farms, but it is also true there are over 300,000 heads of whom we reach only indirect- What is the use of our proving facts in our colleges if we get them before the consideration the man on the farm?"

New Ontario Compares

While Ontario was undoubtedly a name in world-agriculture farmers were not up to the stand- of those of other lands in the of production, the speaker declared. In Ontario the average production of wheat per acre was twenty-two bushels; in Germany it was thirty-six, and in Sweden seventy-five bushels, in the field, and over ninety in plots. The average cow on the Ontario farm gave less than 3,500 pounds of milk per year, yet a cow at the O.A.C. had given over 20,700. The average hen in the Province laid less than 100 eggs per year, whereas a whole pen of hens at the college had laid 196, six of them giving over 250 eggs. Alfalfa, said the speaker, was reputed to be worth as much as bran. figured out at current price for bran and allowing five yields of alfalfa per season, it was actually worth $120 per acre. Yet farmers were slow to adopt it in their rotation.

"The best and quickest way to improve farming in Ontario is to actually send trained men out into the country and leave them there until they have gained the confidence of the people," the speaker said. "This we are trying to do, and the forty trained agriculturists scattered throughout the Province are having a greater influence on the future of agriculture in Ontario than anything else up to the present time."

Some Needed Improvements

Dr. Creelman dealt with the labor problem, and showed the necessity of homes for the farm laborer, where the latter could be "something of a human being." Rural teachers and rural preachers should obtain agricultural training, he said, and present moral problems to farmers in terms of their everyday life. Vocational training must come, not only for the boy but for the girl on the farm. Good roads must extend to every town- and co-operation in selling, as well as in buying and producing, must triumph over the petty jealousies which keep farmers apart to-day. The ramification of electric energy to rural districts would brighten farm life for men and women and assist in bringing about a social condition which would not permit a craving for the glimmer and glare of the city.

Finally, women in farm homes must be given those advantages enjoyed by their sisters in the city. The latter had probably allowed invention to smother in them their housewifely instincts and talents.

"In place of the present indifference to household duties there must come in this country a dignity of labor among women which is now distinctly lacking," concluded the speaker.

The Smell of Paint

Most people object to the smell of new paint. When a room has been newly painted, it is a good plan to place some hay in a pail of water and leave it in the room for a few hours. You will find that the smell will have completely vanished.

A Dusting Hint

Don't use a feather duster, as this only make the dust fly into the air and settle somewhere else. A chamois leather makes an ideal duster; but if the furniture is very dusty or greasy, a soft rag wrung out of soapy water should be used first of all. Then finish off the furniture with the leather wrung out of cold water.

A Use For Newspapers

An old newspaper makes an excellent pad for polishing windows and mirrors. Dip the paper in methylated spirits, and go all over the window with it, and you will be delighted to find what a brilliant polish results.

TRAFFIC IN NAMES

Mail Order Firms Sell Lists of Customers' Names

When a man in St. John, N.B., or New Westminster, B.C., receives a courteous letter from a Toronto or Winnipeg business house about which he has never heard, he may wonder how in the world his name ever became known to such a concern. It probably does not occur to him that by buying something by mail he has made his name a commodity in itself and become a target for commercial correspondents as long as he lives and probably long after a tombstone has been erected to him on some grassy hillside. His name and address may be used by perfectly responsible enterprises or by fakers, depending usually upon the kind of a concern he first tries to do business with.

If you have ever answered the advertisement of a medical concern your name and address is worth anywhere from two cents to ten cents. But if you have actually bought medicine by mail it is worth more.

If you have ever been so unwise as to buy treatment from any of the hundreds of quacks that advertise, your name is worth anywhere from twenty-five cents to $5. It all depends, in that case, on how susceptible a "sucker" you have been. Quack doctors have been known to pay as high as $5 a name for men who were good "producers," that is, who have paid money for long periods for medical treatment.

There are firms that make a business of dealing in names of mail-order customers. This firm writes to a house in the mail-order business and offers a price for the list of names of live customers. If they buy a list for one cent a name they sell the list for a little more, and thus make a profit. The mail-order departments of the big dry goods stores are constantly receiving offers of lists of names.

The real estate companies also aim to get as many people as possible on their lists. One Toronto company has acquired after great expense the names of 20,000 of the richest men in the rural districts and small towns of the surrounding province. A connection is being built up that is immensely valuable.

WEAK-CHESTED CHILDREN

Flannel Chest Protectors Are Easily Made

Let me remind you of the importance of woollen underwear and a flannel chest protector for children whose chests are weak. These flannel "chest protectors" are easily made. Take three-quarters of a yard of narrow-width flannel (less for a very small child), and cut a slit large enough to allow the head to pass through.

One end of the flannel should be longer than the other. The longer is to cover the back, the shorter the chest.

It is necessary to cover the back as well as the chest, because the lungs are as easily assailable by cold behind as in front.

Four of these protectors should be prepared, so that one can be worn at night and another in the day. They should be well shaken morning and evening when taken off, and washed about once a fortnight.

Barley Water

Add three teaspoonfuls of pearl barley to a pint and a half of cold water. Boil down to a pint, then strain. It is important to make barley water fresh every day.

Japs Never Swear

A lecturer in the Edinburgh Philosophical Institute recently said that there were no "swear words" in the Japanese language, and that one seldom heard angry words, and never cursing or swearing in a Japanese crowd.

GLEANING HINTS

When aluminum pans become black and dull-looking, clean them with a soft cloth which has been dipped in lemon juice. Rinse in warm water, and they will shine like new.

Carpets

When sweeping carpets, remember to sweep the way of the grain. To brush the wrong way is not only bad for the carpet, but it tends to brush the dust in instead of out.

Bright Brass

Next time you are cleaning brassware of any kind, try using lemon juice. Cut a lemon in half, dip it in coarse salt, and rub it thoroughly over the surface of the brass until all the stains have disappeared. Then rinse well in warm water, and polish with a soft duster and a little finely powdered bathbrick.

To Wash Blankets

After washing and drying woollen blankets, hang them on a line in the open air and beat them well with a carpet beater. This raises the fluff, and the blankets will look almost as good as new for years if they are treated in this way every time they are washed.

For Oak Bedsteads

Boiled linseed oil is excellent for cleaning oak bedsteads. A very little oil should be applied on a clean rag and rubbed thoroughly into the wood. Polish with a clean, soft duster, and the oak will have a highly polished surface.

Protecting the Palace

While the King and his household are asleep in Buckingham Palace there slip two men who never rest. They are the firemen who patrol the Palace continually during the night with keys which will enable them to open any room in which fire is suspected. No place is better guarded against fire than Buckingham Palace.

Pictures of Moving Bullet

A new motion picture camera using electric sparks instead of shutters, is capable of making 100,000 pictures a second and has made 72 pictures of a bullet fired from a revolver passing through a space of ten inches.

FEW GOWNS AND SUITS BUT SHOW THE V-SHAPED NECK

No doubt the V-shaped opening at the throat is most becoming, but it is quite interesting to note how universal it is this season for all sorts of gowns and suits; the tailored suit shows a vest cut V-shaped; the little tailored dresses, the dance frocks and the dinner gowns, almost without exception, have the same arrangement at the throat. It may be a trifle lower or higher, and that is the only difference.

Whereas the trained dress is not as much worn as it was several seasons ago, there are occasions that really demand such a gown. No. 8277 shows a charming combination of plain and brocaded turquoise blue charmeuse, with the neck softly filled in with net. This color is one that will be much favored for evening this season.

This model requires for size 36, 5½ yards of 36 inch material.

A most attractive afternoon frock of black taffetas with a vest and girdle of figured silk in which there are minglings of gold and dull red is shown in No. 8120-8236. The raglan sleeves make the blouse distinctive, and the pointed peplum on the skirt is another attractive feature.

To copy this costume in size 36, the blouse (8120) requires 3 yards of 36 inch material; the skirt (8236) requires 4 yards of 42 inch material.

No. 8277—sizes 34 to 44.

THE SKIRT SILHOUETTE PURELY A MATTER OF PERSONAL FAVOR.

There are almost as many skirt designs this season as there are new materials of which to fashion them. One French house favors the skirt looped up in back; another, the bell-shaped outline, and several others show clinging drapey effects in their models. Tunics and trimming bands, however, seem to be universally favored.

It is foretold that silk will be much used for skirts and coats, as well as for dresses a little later. At the present moment striped and checked novelty cloths, plain and plaid serges, gabardine and cloth are the materials being used. Contrasting coats and skirts are generally seen and will undoubtedly be even stronger than the one colored suit as there is such an opportunity for economy.

No. 8133-8268 shows a coat of black cloth combined with a skirt of striped serge. The coat is one of the new short models, showing a smart little front vest and one of the new sash effects; these are features of many of the new suits. The skirt is a three-piece model with a slightly raised waistline and a circular trimming band. Cloth ranges in price from $2.50 a yard and up, and serge may be purchased from 75 cents and up.

This costume may be copied in size 36 with 2½ yards of 42 inch material for the coat (8133) and 2¾ yards of the same width for the skirt (8268). The small frock shown in No. 8258 is made up in one of the dainty embroidered batistes. The yoke, the long French waist and the short skirt are all dainty and becoming to the little maid.

This dress may be made for a child of four with 1¾ yards of 36 inch batiste which may be purchased from about 35 cents a yard and up.

No. 8133—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8268—sizes 22 to 32.
No. 8258—sizes 2 to 8.
Each pattern 15 cents.

British Money

"If Britain had not sent us the money we would not have had three transcontinental railways," said E. R. Wood, in an address. "Instead of carving out new provinces we would have had the mounted police still watching cattle thieves and keeping whiskey traders away from Indians. Instead of Niagara propelling our street cars and turning the wheels of industry in Toronto we would have had the Falls in their original chaotic grandeur and a small city here with unimpeded services."

OUR POINT OF VIEW

A revolution is reported in Ecuador, but the chief of police down there says he expects to have the gentleman in jail before the end of the week.

More than half the counties Illinois are now declared for prohibition. Twenty-two were added to the "dry" list at last Tuesday's election.

Michael Sullivan of Boston beat up his son-in-law for unkind treatment of his wife. Mike is entitled to the more credit for the performance in consideration of the fact that he is ninety-one years old.

A SCHOOL BOARD'S ERROR

About the best thing that can be said in defence of the action of the Catholic Board of School Commissioners of the City of Montreal in calling for bond tenders with no intention of accepting any of them is that it is not absolutely illegal. For the protection of the borrower, the law is obliged to preserve to anyone who calls for tenders the right not to accept the best or any tender. But to take advantage of that fact, in order to put a number of financial houses to a serious expense for the sole purpose of finding out how the market stands, is an act which could only be committed by a body extremely careless of its reputation in financial circles.

Nor can it be said that the Catholic Board had no warning of the probable consequences of their action. It is only a few weeks since one of the large money-spending public bodies of Boston performed a similar First of April joke upon the financial houses which were willing to supply it with funds; and the violent and universal condemnation which that act brought upon it from all parts of the financial world should have been noted by some member or official of the Catholic Board, if there is anybody on, or in the service of that Board who pays any attention to monetary matters.

The expense attendant upon the preparation of tenders for large blocks of securities—including the depositing of a certified cheque as a "guarantee of good faith"—is by no means inconsiderable. When undertaken with the assurance that one at least of the tenderers will be rewarded with the right to purchase the securities offered, it is a legitimate and proper charge upon the business of bond-dealing. But for a public body like the Catholic School Commissioners to put a group of bond dealing houses to this expense without even the intention of accepting any of their offers is simply obtaining bids under false pretences. It is the more to be regretted that this action has been performed by this particular educational authority, because great hopes have been entertained of an improvement in the status of Catholic School finance on the Island of Montreal by bringing a number of small school districts under the jurisdiction of this very Board, which has been considered as a rather good example of a businesslike public body. If it is going to indulge in mistakes of this character very often there will be little to be said for the project of consolidation. — Montreal Financial News.

Magical Effect on Neuralgia Throbbing Pain Goes Quickly

A YEAR'S SUFFERER CURED BY "NERVILINE."

No person reading this need ever again suffer long from Neuralgia.

Nerviline will quickly cure the worst Neuralgia, and Mrs. G. Evans, in her strong letter written from Russel post office, says:—"One long year, the longest of my life was almost entirely given up to treating dreadful attacks of Neuralgia. The agony I experienced during some of the bad attacks was simply unmentionable. To use remedies by the score without permanent relief was mighty discouraging. At last I put my faith in Nerviline; I read of the wonderful pain-subduing power it possessed and made up my mind to prove it valuable or useless. Nerviline at once eased the pain and cured the headache. Continuous treatment with this magic-working remedy cured me entirely, and I have ever since stayed well."

Mrs. Evans case is but one of hundreds that might be quoted. Nerviline is a specific for all nerve, muscular or joint pain. It quickly cures neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, lame back, neuritis and rheumatism. Forty years in use, and to-day the most widely used liniment in the Dominion. Don't take anything but "Nerviline," which any dealer anywhere can supply in large 50c. family size bottles, or in a small 25c. trial size.

YEGGS BLOW SAFE, WAKE WOMAN AND ARE CAUGHT

Lake Charles Police in Auto Run Down Fleeing Men; Recover Loot

Lake Charles, La., April 15.—Yeggmen blew the safe in the Dubon Grocery Company's store in Broad street early this morning, and, within half an hour, were caught by police. The men under arrest gave their names as J.A. Ford and James Dillon.

Mrs. F.H. Beardsley, who has charge of the women's rest rooms adjoining the grocery store, was awakened by the explosion and turned in a police call. Officers Lenoir and Fullington responded and ran down the yeggs in an automobile. In their possession was found $22.65 in silver that had been taken from the safe. A bottle of nitroglycerine, bundle of fuse and a box of fuse caps were also taken. The methods of the yeggs indicate that they are not amateurs.

The door of the safe was blown clear off and with so little noise that with the exception of Mrs. Beardsley occupants of the buildings within a hundred feet of the store were not awakened.

SENTENCED TO BUY HIS WIFE EASTER HAT

Kansas City, April 15.—Walter Worth, was sentenced to buy his wife a new $5 Easter hat in the Kansas City police court. Judge Brady told him to turn over the money for the millinery when he gets his pay check and to give his wife $3 for her exclusive use each Saturday night in the future. If he fails to follow either injunction a $500 fine, which was assessed but stayed, will become effective.

"We have been married a little over a year and he has never bought me a hat," Mrs. Worth testified. "I had a hat when we were married, but I wore it until it was shabby. I asked for a new one, but never got it, so I have been wearing a scarf on my head when I go out."

"The Lord never made a woman that could be happy without a hat," Judge Brady said. "You, as her husband, are sworn to make her happy. Give her $5 to buy a bonnet tomorrow night and give her $3 for her own use every pay night, or you will have to serve every day of a $500 fine I am now giving you."

PULLED FIREBOX TO MAIL LETTER HOME

Buffalo, April 15.— Raymond Miller, who comes from the rusticism of Ripley, N. Y., but is visiting relatives in West Ferry street, found city life especially perplexing shortly after noon today when he followed the directions of a group of mischievous youth, and attempted to mail a letter home to the folks in a fire alarm box.

Read the directions!" said the boys playing ball on the corner lot. Miller it appears, followed the dictates, "pulled the lever and let 'er go." Miller was considerably confused when he heard the clatter of fire engines. It took him also considerable time to explain to the irate firemen. Miller is visiting at the home of E. C. Crandall, No. 620 West Ferry street.

ANXIOUS PARENTS SEEK YOUNG GIRL

Toronto, April 15.—Ida Painter, 16 years old, whose parents reside at 915 Dovercourt road, has been missing since 7 o'clock last evening. The girl left home as usual, stating that she was going to visit some friends. The police are working on the case, but so far they have been unable to discover any trace of her.

The girls parents are frantic over her disappearance. All her friends have been communicated with, but nobody seems to have seen or heard of her since she left home. She is said to be tall and of dark complexion, and was wearing a blue dress, trimmed with red when she left home.

Inspector Tipton, of No. 7 station will welcome any information which may lead to the discovery of her whereabouts.

Famous Musician and Composer

Mme. Chaminade, whose name was added to the French Legion of Honor, was the first woman so honored because of her success as a musician and composer. She came to America in 1908, making a concert tour of the Eastern States, and at that time she had already been honored by Turkey and England. Queen Victoria having given her the insignia of the Jubilee herself.

WOMEN PLUMBERS

Eighty-six Women Ply This Calling in England

Has anyone ever seen a woman plumber? There are not many persons who could reply in the affirmative, but, according to the report of the census of England and Wales relating to occupations and industries, there are 86 women who ply the calling of plumber. Of these seventy-seven are widows.

The same Blue Book shows that women have succeeded in establishing themselves in a number of industries where their presence is unexpected. There are 70 women paperhangers and whitewashers, four bricklayers, all of them women, but only one woman coachman.

Three women appeared under the heading of "clergymen, priests and ministers," and four are coalheavers. There are 347 women carmen and wagoners and 231 women blacksmiths and "strikers." Only one woman occupies herself with making patent fuel, only three women are shipwrights, five women are "tramway car makers," and finally England and Wales can boast of 56 women carpenters and joiners and 14 women masons.

WANT MILLION FARMERS

Peace River District Has Room For All

"The Peace River country" is really a very indefinite term applied to the enormous territory within the basin of the Peace River, where there is such a diversity of natural characteristics that it is impossible to give any description which will apply accurately, or even approximately to all parts of it. From the confluence of the Finlay and Parsnip rivers, west of the Rocky Mountains, to where it empties into the Slave River, near Lake Athabasca, is about 600 miles in a direct line but about 1,000 miles as the river flows, and approximately 100,000,000 acres of arable land are drained by this mighty river and its tributaries, including the North and the South Pines and the Halfway rivers. Of this area at least 60,000,000 acres are park land or open prairie, and 40,000,000 acres are covered with heavy timber. There is room for a million farmers. There is no longer any question as to the agricultural possibilities of that vast pampas. It has already passed the experimental stage, for it has been proven by actual demonstration that the climate is admirably adapted to the maturing of the entire range of farm products of the temperate zones; and, further, that the grains attain a maturity and quality there which are not excelled anywhere else in the known world. The hard varieties of spring wheat grown there show a yield and weight, and also milling qualities in advance of that produced on the prairies of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, which are now recognised as the producers of the standard wheat of the world. And in those great stretches of natural meadows the pioneer meets with little difficulty in preparation of his land, as it is possible for him to begin breaking the sod and actual farm operations during the first season in the country. All that is lacking now is transportation, and this problem is being solved as quickly as steel can be laid by two or three different railroads, which are racing for the choicest territory.

ROTATION OF CROPS

Fertility is Best Maintained by Varied Crops

In discussing rotation of crops a writer in the Journal of the Board of Agriculture points out the fact that left to itself without change land in course of time gathers a fresh stock of fertility, but seeing that in many cases land in the beginning is exhausted, crop rotation must be followed in order to maintain fertility and to bring worn-out soil up to a productive standard. The writer points out that the main reason for growing a series of crops is that the requirements of the various classes of crops grown on the farm vary greatly in their capacity to extract and utilize the various materials known as plant food. Some crops require much of certain classes of this, while others demand large quantities of food of another class. Some are shallow-rooted some are deep-rooted and some occupy the land for a much longer period than others, that is, they have a longer growing season. All these things must be taken into consideration when working out a rotation. No matter how rich the land is in the beginning continuous cropping with one kind of crop sooner or later exhausts certain elements of plant food which the crop grown requires in largest quantities Pieces of broken glass flew in all directions, and a portion struck and cut the driver under the eye. Lying at his feet the driver found an owl, dead.

Electric Lighted Aeroplane

Costing $30,000, a huge aeroplane, with a comfortable cabin lighted by electricity and heated by a gas engine, has been built by the Russian engineer Sikorsky. There is room in the cabin for six people to walk about without jostling each other. They are completely protected from the wind, and have eight windows and two portholes from which to look out.

NECTAR FROM WEEDS

Six and One-half Tons of Honey Raised by 109 Colonies of Bees

Six and one-half tons of pure extracted (not strained) honey in one season is the splendid record of the bees of Mr. J. M. Munro of Slate River Valley, near Port Arthur. Mr. Munro settled in the Port Arthur district fourteen years ago, on 200 acres of farm land. Instead of taking ten years to pay for it he had it all paid for in five years, and now owns 500 acres. Incidentally Mr. Munro has raised, besides farm crops and honey by the ton, a family of eleven children.

"Forty million pounds of honey have gone to waste through non-cultivation of the bee business," said Mr. Munro during an address to the Port Arthur Board of Trade, "and I estimate that over $6,000,000 has been lost to this district through the non-cultivation as honey-producers of the common flowers of the field and wayside."

Mr. Munro has 109 colonies of bees, and his honey weighs two pounds, on an average, to the gallon heavier than any other produced in Ontario. He has had good fortune with his bees, on the whole. Fourteen years ago he brought some bees with him from old Ontario, but they all died the first winter, and he had to start afresh. Five years ago he got his first big crop with one and one-half tons of honey, and his last crop constituted a record—six and a half tons, representing a cash return of over $2,000.

MR. J. M. MUNRO

of Slate River, Ontario, the champion apiarist, who from native wild flowers and weeds raised six and one-half tons of pure honey.

"There are sermons in stones all right," said Mr. Munro in an interview, "but there is a sermon in the work of the bees. The rose is the sweetest-smelling flower, but the bees will not touch it, as it gives them no nectar. The richest honey comes from the rag-weed, that noxious weed which is condemned and trodden under foot as worthless. The common dandelion produces most luscious honey, and the raspberry gives honey of an excellent quality. Only want of following up this industry prevents millions of pounds of honey being exported annually."

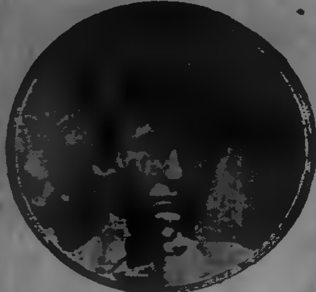
Is the "Man in the Clouds" a Failure as a Husband?

By Winifred Black

(Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)



Winifred Black

HE'S writing verses to her now, the great poet, to the sweet little 18-year-old girl.

And the sweet little girl is showing the poems to her friends and they are all envying her because she is beloved by a poet.

A goddess he calls her, and an Aphrodite, a Circe and a Lilith; her eyes are stars, and where she walks the purple blossoms strew her path.

Dear me, how interesting! I don't wonder that she goes about, poor child, with her eyes full of visions and her heart full of dreams.

But oh! but oh! the misery of the awakening that must come to her some day! For she is making a great mistake. She's going to marry the poet.

She ought to put his verses away in an ivory casket with roses to fade in company with them. She ought to frame his picture in a thin band of silver and wear it next her heart. She ought to keep her poet for a dream—just something sweet to remember, like the first yellow rose her boy sweetheart gave her the last day of school when she was not yet sixteen.

Poets—have you ever noticed it—never write such verses to their wives.

One Unhappy Experience.

I know a woman who was married to a poet, not a great poet, just a rhymester, a man with the trick of verse and with the fatal gift of idealising everything and every one he knew, when he felt like it.

He was, so my friend who married him tells me, the most delightful lover in all the world, and the most dreadful failure of a husband.

He never could remember to bring home money for the grocery man. He was always so busy thinking up new phrases in which to describe the sunset that he couldn't put his mind on sordid details—like getting home in time for dinner. And people were sorry for him, because he was unhappily married.

One day the wife of the near-poet was very cross with one of the young ladies who was sorry for her husband.

Oh, not about that—dear no, she would have had to have been cross with so many—but just because she didn't like something about this particular young person. So now she is divorcing the near-poet.

Poor near-poet, I'm almost sorry for him. I met him the other day, and he did seem so harassed.

He looked just as I have felt when I went to buy a perfectly simple piece of ribbon of a perfectly simple shade—and it turned out to be bewildering, when I got to the counter with all the ribbons there to look upon.

My friend who married him is really quite heartless about it. She laughs every time she thinks of it. Only she's spiteful about the one particular girl who made her cross.

"I do hope he'll marry her," she says—"if he does I'm going to move next door and see what she does when some of the ladies who are so sorry for him for marrying her come to make the wedding call."

Heroes and a Real Man.

The hero in the book we're reading just now—how complex he is, how fascinating, how idealistic!

The man in the play—what a love he is, what a figure for the imagination. No wonder the leading woman is so willing to die for him, or even to live for his sake.

But look—isn't he glancing rather often at the two pretty girls in the box?

And who is that waiting for the handsome hero at the stage door—a man with a bill?

Let's go home and have the faithful dog, who would give his life for any one of us that he loves, meet us at the doorstep.

Let's go home and have something extra good for John's dinner. Here he comes, on the porch now—dear John, kind John, stupid, truthful, loving, loyal old John, who never wrote a verse in his life and who'd go to sleep if you tried to read him one. Dear John, who walks with his feet upon the clean earth—not as the near-poet does, in the slime with his head in the clouds.

You're the man for me, dear John, and I hope and pray I may be worthy to be the woman for you.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie—I am very much in love with such a nice young man, and I am quite sure he likes me very much; in fact, I know he does, but he is so very quiet I really don't know what to do about it. I sometimes get so tired conversing with him, and yet if I don't talk very much to him he has practically nothing to say. What shall I do to interest him, or, at least, to make him have more to say?

PERPLEXED

WHAT are you in love with the nice young man about, Perplexed? What makes you think he is nice, and what is it that you find so interesting in him?

He may be a delightful creature, but your description of him makes him sound something like a wooden Indian, or one of those round-eyed dummies you see in front of clothing wearing, "This swell suit for $17.75."

If you get so tired trying to talk with him now, what on earth will you do when you have to sit at the table with him 365 days a year?

But, if your case is hopeless, and you really feel that you must make him talk, or die, suppose you don't have quite so much to say to him, and he may get more of a chance to be conversational himself.

There is such a thing as being so lively that everybody else feels dead. Didn't you ever talk with any one who speaks so loud that you keep wanting to whisper, to strike a balance?

Try this method, little sister, with your dumb friend, and see how it works and let us know about it.

As a Clown Sees Us

By Harry La Pearl

Premier Clown New York Hippodrome

The White Man's Burden.

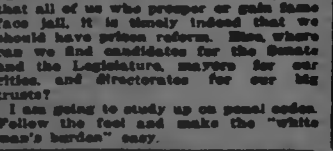
SUDDENLY, like the awakening of a midsummer storm, an agitation has swept over the land for prison reform. By common consent we had come to look upon prisons as a myth, or at least as a vague something so far away from us all that it was no one's affair whether they were good or bad, reformatory in results, or merely cruel.

What does it all mean? Simply that our criminal laws have multiplied with such rapidity that nearly all of us are potentially candidates for that grim vacation resort.

Why, the situation is so bad that I am constantly tempted to resign from my lodge, the "Phraternal Order of Professional Phools," for fear of being indicted for membership in an organization in restraint of trade. Some day some non-union fool may go into court and assert that he is out of work by reason of our restrictions and then—well, some jesters will march off to the rock pile at Atlanta, or Fort Leavenworth, to "make small ones out of big ones all day long."

I am a fairly well educated and fairly well read "professional phool." And I have come to the conclusion that, now that all of us who prosper or gain fame face jail, it is timely indeed that we should have prison reform. Else, where can we find candidates for the Senate and the Legislature, mayors for our cities, and directorates for our big trusts?

I am going to study up on penal codes. Follow the fool and make the "white man's burden" easy.



Just Like That.

THE REAL WORTH OF A VACATION

Inez Buck,
Star of
"The Misleading Lady"

"Rest Is a Change of Activity," Says Inez Buck

DID you ever meet a "Vacation Mapper?"

She has recently been put on the lists of economically and socially semi-professional women. She also fills a peculiarly useful niche. Inez Buck is the discoverer of her.

"The Vacation Mapper," explains Miss Buck, "is the woman who makes vacations for others. What are you going to do with your vacation, is a universally pertinent question, just as soon as the tulip beds in the parks burst forth in a blaze of reds and yellows, and the leaves on the trees get big enough to flutter in the spring breezes.

"It doesn't make the least bit of difference whether you are one of the fortunate ones who have a great, broad-porched house waiting for you at the edge of the sea, or where the mountains try to reach the clouds, or whether, like most of us, you have just two weeks for your very own sometime during the summer.

"You still begin to plan and wonder what you will do with vacation. And here is where the Vacation Mapper comes in. She should be, to be perfectly ideal, a woman who has travelled some, and who has lightning and just judgment of people, and knows how to adapt herself to others' viewpoint. She finds out what you like, where you have been and what you have in mind for a vacation, and how much money you want to spend. Then she maps out half a dozen different trips for you, and helps you get ready for the one you finally decide on. For all this she has a modest fee, so very modest, in view of all it means to you, that it becomes almost negligible. Like the professional shopper, she derives most of her income from percentages.

"It is a splendid enterprise for the woman who has a little income and more time than she knows what to do with, and I know of several who have worked into excellent positions from such a beginning, for there are many possibilities that will grow out of the work.

"By the way, the use of a vacation is a subject which is very near to my heart. I think many of us fail utterly in our understanding of the word. To me, it should always mean doing something we want to do, something entirely different from what we do all the rest of the year, and something which will give us future pleasure and benefit.

"For example, I would have the busy housekeeper go where she could be waited on and cooked for and made comfortable, and have 24 hours each day to do just what she most wants to do.

"I don't believe the words 'vacation' and 'loaf' are exactly synonymous. You know rest means simply a change of occupation.

"If the hermit were to take a vacation he ought to go where he would be surrounded with gaiety and life and humanity.

"The woman who has to be in the midst of activity would gain rest by going where she could be alone with nature.

"Vacation time should be to all of us the opportunity for getting into harmony. We should make it the time for getting hold of ourselves, for gathering up the tangled ends and straightening out the snarls and gaining mental poise and physical strength. And there are seldom any two of us who can get all that in the same way.

"And here is where the Vacation Mapper comes into the field as a useful proposition. She can relieve us of a lot of worries that take the edge off the vacation, which should mean perfect rebuilding to us. She performs the detail planning, offers new suggestions and leaves only the decision to us."

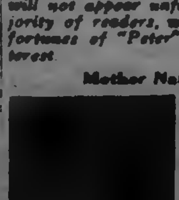
Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Mother Nature's Lure.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

I HAVE been married for many months. And I am already beginning to wonder just how my spiritual and mental account books balance. What have I honestly gained by marriage? What difference has it made in me, if any? If it has made some—what is that difference? To my advantage or otherwise? I am growing introspective.

For one thing—I have exchanged a home that was comfortable and beautifully managed for one that is not nearly so well managed. I have changed my mother's unending forethought for my comfort for a chance to pet a beautiful wife who is inclined to be careless and a little frivolous—and who is not nearly so domestic in her tastes as I am. I am discontented. I have learned to say biting things—my temper is quicker and I am cynical. I have removed women from that pedestal to which in my unmarried youth I reverently assigned them.

I have learned to tell petty lies. That is, alas! but too true and I am very sorry, for I was inherently truthful until I married Mary. I firmly believe that very many good women force their husbands to petty lies and deceit by an unreasonable air of resentment which they can't always explain. And merely for the sake of an untrammelled flow of peace in the bosom of his family—the man falls from grace.

Men hate to explain. So, I suppose, do women, though probably they are not called upon to do quite so much of it as men. Therefore when a man shoots pool after office hours and is late for dinner, if his wife aggressively sticks out her chin and demands where he has been in none too friendly tones, he's likely to lie merely to keep peace in the family, and that's a pretty foolish way of beginning. One lie so easily leads to another.

Some men I know trot smilingly home when they are late with a bunch of violets or carnations or a box of candy, trusting the inanimate offering to make up for the shortcomings of the animate one—but I have too much respect for myself and Mary to insult her by anything so absolutely transparent as a bribe.

Nevertheless I must admit that when I stop for a little chat with mother, a habit by the way that fires Mary to the most unreasonable fits of jealousy—or a game of billiards—I find the martyred air with which Mary greets me most trying. I honestly dread it and therefore, having found that business is the one excusable thing in her eyes, I have lied and frequently insinuated business as an excuse when it wasn't. The male animal likes peace in his home and sometimes he'll purchase it at any price.

So much for what I have gained—an ability to lie, a feeling of strong discontent and a complete dissemination of the innate chivalry with which I was born.

My feelings toward Mary? There I wonder greatly myself. I am proud of her beauty—I am very fond of her, but I do not think it is such love as comes to some men more fortunate than I. It is more the calm, tranquil affection one has for a very lovely child. Who was it said that true love includes friendship? That a man and his wife are sweethearts only when they are chums and friends as well? If that is true then I do not love Mary.

We cannot be chums, for our likes and dislikes clash hopelessly. Friendship to be ideal presupposes a certain equality of intelligence, and I must confess in all modesty that Mary and I are not mental equals. Now I am not scintillant with brilliancy—the Lord knows! I am a commonplace young private secretary with a fairly conventional future before me, but I do keep apace with the times and Mary doesn't. I am much more alive than she to the subtleties of existence and I have a sense of humor. We live in separate worlds. What meatless existences some women lead!

Therefore Mary and I are in no sense well mated or particularly congenial, and I was led into matrimonial indiscretion by the age-old lure Mother Nature works to death—a girl's beauty.

Why are girls and boys reared so differently? By our present system I cannot see how, with such divergent aims and view-points and differences, they can ever be real comrades or friends and if they aren't comrades or friends how are they ever going to be sweethearts and lovers in the finest sense of the word? Some few people strike the divine white fire, but I don't believe 10 per cent of married people are honestly in [illegible]

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Veils Are Harmful; Nature's Guard Sufficient

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

SARTOR RESARTUS was Carlyle's mouthpiece. The words of the tailor, Herr Teufelsdrockh, were boiled-down philosophy.

One of my editor friends writes: "Why write poetry, discuss philosophy or quote the classics? The man on the street is not interested in such matters." Perhaps he is right, but tons of information come to me to the contrary.

Therefore, in discussing veils, their virtues and their vices, the opinions of Carlyle, Plato and Diogenes may not be amiss.

The human flesh itself is a veil. It clads man and woman's deeper communion. A veil is only a screen of a shadowy sort. It is expected to protect the deeper structures of your anatomy.

Why, then, should the human spirit, shaped into an appearance, as Carlyle put it, be safeguarded by a fleshy veil?

"Oh, Heaven," says the ridiculous Herr Teufelsdrockh, "it is mysterious, it is awful to consider that we not only carry a future ghost within us, but are, in very deed, ghosts!"

The flesh, then, veils the underlying tissues. The night veils the day. A screen veils the damp zephyrs from the baby's crib.

Nature herself is veiled. All that you know about nature comes to you through your senses. What your eyes do not see, what your tongue does not taste, what your nostrils do not scent, what your muscles do not seize, what your skin does not feel, what your ears do not hear—you know nothing about.

Yes, experimental psychology, the higher physical and animal behavior, prove now, even to the satisfaction of science, that there are more things veiled from you in heaven and earth than was ever dreamt of in all of Horatio's philosophies!

Fair ladies, however, wear black, white, September blue, tango red and hesitation green veils to keep away the none too gentle touch of Aeolus and Boreas.

College girls, matrons, debutantes, sweet girl graduates, typists, Mrs. Newly Wed, and the motor car miss cling resolutely to veils. Yet nature endowed women with firm, ruby faces—the greatest of all veils.

Veils, like furs, spoil the flesh. Are the cheeks and lips of hairless men any the worse for exposure? I trow not. To wear veils is to coddle the flesh, to encourage freckles, to make a tender skin.

All flesh is grass, and all know what will happen if a bit of veiling is cast upon grass. Moreover, the tenderness of skin forever covered is perfectly understood. Examine the flesh of your arm, your thigh, your bosom.

Expose these covered parts to wind, weather, water or sun. Freckles, tan and blemishes are among the consequences.

All veils injure the beautiful textile of your outer tissues, but black veils are irrevocably evil. Hope deferred maketh the heart sick, but the face in a black veil poisons the flesh.

Red veils, if these iniquitous and incarnate face screens must be worn, are perhaps the safest of them all. Not only do microbes and insects shun the crimson netting, but the rays reflected from it are the chemical ones which actually burn freckles into the flesh.

Next in value to scarlet screens comes the white, silvery veil. This one, too, helps to filter out the destructive effects of the light.

Of all these abominations the black veils, the blue veils, and the ebony ones are the worst. These actually invite the very facial blemishes which girls wish to avoid.

After all, it is the better part of valor as well as the discreet course of sanity to encourage the wind and weather to flirt with sun and moisture. Thus the flesh grows less tender and the face, losing its tenderness, becomes accustomed to radical changes.

P. G.—How can I bleach my hair without the use of peroxide or a dye?

Wash the hair in borax or add vinegar to the hair wash.

Mrs. J. P. G., Philadelphia—I put a salve that was too hot on my year old baby's neck. It burned her. What shall I apply to it to prevent it from scarring?

If you will massage her neck daily with white vaseline or some bland oil, she should be all right, for these surface burns do not usually leave scars.

News Notes of Fashion

By MADGE MARVEL

QUITE like the sunbonnets the little maids of long ago wore is a quaint little bonnet for kiddies that will make the face it shelters all the lovelier. It is simple to make. Figured mulle in tiny pink rosebuds scattered over a white ground is used. Most of these bonnets are made on a foundation of coarse net, which gives them firmness and makes it possible for the shape to remain as it should. Then there is a lining of soft silk or mulle, to match the color of the figure. There is a quilling of ribbon in the same shade as a finish about the edge, and a band and bow and strings of the same.

The Tam shape is one which never goes out of style. This is a most useful bit of headgear for school and play. It is made of blue cotton duck or linen, the crown a circle large enough to gather with pleasing fulness to the band, which should be made of some firmer material and covered with duck or linen.

BODICES for evening gowns remain diaphanous, and the tunic of tulle or net has lost none of its favor. Simplicity marks many of the newest costumes. The single flower, or two large flowers in contrasting colors, are often used at the left side of the belt.

One favorite model combines several of the most delightful style features. The skirt is of charmeuse, which continues to be used by many of the best modistes in spite of the craze for taffeta. It is in a soft shade of blue. The sleeves, bodice and tunic are of net in the same shade with an edging of crystal beads. There is a cross-draping on the corsage of white over pink, and the roses are pale pink shading to deep rose.

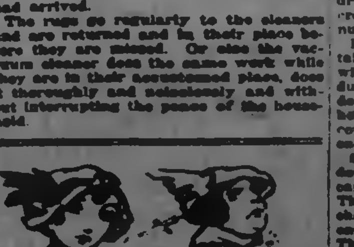
HATS for spring wear are small, high and decidedly chic. Taffeta and moire are much worn, and the upstanding frill of silk appears on some of the summer hats. Colors are quite as popular as all black, and the changeable taffeta hats are charming.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

UNDER the new housekeeping regime the seasons change without the old-time topsy-turvy technically known as "spring cleaning." With polished floors and rugs the very first step in the olden scheme is escaped, for the tearing up of the carpets was the signal that the fatal moment had arrived.

The rugs go regularly to the cleaners and are returned and in their place before they are missed. Or else the vacuum cleaner does the same work while they are in their accustomed place, does it thoroughly and noiselessly and without interrupting the peace of the household.



Full Value.

"A woman may be poor but if she is handsome she is like a bank check."

"How do you mean?"

"Her face determines her value."

The furnishings of the modern home are far more simple than they were.

The first duty of the professional decorator is to eliminate all useless objects. Everything in a room must have a logical reason for existence. Indeed, the purely ornamental things have to be superfine before they are accepted.

There is less heavy upholstery, less draping of windows and doorways, less crowding. We are even lessening the number of cushions on the sofa.

But there is still necessity for a certain preparation for the warm weather, whether the family remains in town during the summer or darkens the windows and locks the doors of the city home and flings wide the doors of the country cottage with the first sure enough breath of spring.

Some women prefer to remove all window draperies for the summer. Others can never accept the undraped window. The latter are in the majority. A change of curtains is a proceeding which entails little work and less expense. The shops are filled with attractive stuffs. Voile and cheesecloth, scrim and muslin may be hemmed or hemstitched top and bottom and allowed to hang straight from a brass rod run through the narrower hem with no top ruffle. These curtains can be laundered as often as needed, and will always look fresh. They keep out the glare of the summer sun and the eyes of inquisitive passersby, add to the daintiness of the room, and give an idea of crisp coolness.

The curtains taken down should be thoroughly shaken, folded smoothly and packed away between papers until time for cleaning and replacing them.

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. [illegible] has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prevalent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, [illegible] a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. [illegible] Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. [illegible]

NEGLECTED SHADE TREES

Large Percentage of These Want Doctoring

According to Dr. Fernow, in the small towns of eastern Canada it is safe to say that at least seventy-five per cent. of the shade trees need attention, for, unlike the cities, these towns employ no "tree doctors" to guard the health of the trees, and even trimming is done but irregularly and often carelessly. Yet if the shade trees in many of these towns were destroyed one of their chief attractions would be gone.

There are several reasons why the trees in these old towns require special attention. The chief is probably due to defective crown development, the result of overcrowding. Misshapen and weakened crowns result in excessive windbreak and ragged breaks, if left untrimmed, provide the best possible entrance for fungi and insect pests, so that a great number of these fine old shade trees, which because of their very age are unable unassisted to shake off these foes, are slowly dying through neglect.

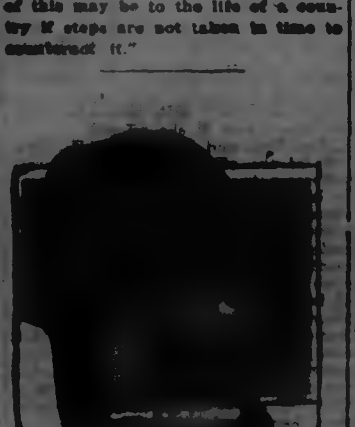
WELDING THE ELEMENTS

Great Task That Confronts the Dominion of Canada

A word picture of the great task which awaits Canada in welding into one the varied elements from Europe, is given by Mrs. Donald Shaw in the National Review. "Probably very few of these resident in the British Isles, and certainly only a very small percentage of Canadians," she says, "are as yet fully awake to the national problem that is rapidly crystallising into definite and tangible shape, through the almost overwhelming flood-tide of immigration which has poured, and is still pouring, into the dominion. At the present moment forty-eight different languages are in daily use in Canada, and practically every known religious creed is represented.

"So far there has never been a country which was in the position of Canada to-day, for the civilised race is a mere unit, and is being overwhelmed by an avalanche of races drawn from almost every quarter of the globe. How, then, is this small unit of thinking, organised, and civilised people going to remain predominant, and to mould the superabundance of ignorance and diversification of races into one united Canadian whole?

"Canada has long since realised that there is no need for her to subscribe to foreign missions, for she has the foreigner on her very doorstep, and she has to deal with him on a more difficult and dangerous basis than do the workers in the missions established amongst these people in their own lands. For the Chinaman, the Japanese, the Hindoo, the Jew, the Ruthenian, and the Italian slips his shackles off him when he enters Canada and becomes a free man. Those who understand what the ignorant conception of freedom is will realize what the possible result of this may be to the life of a country if steps are not taken in time to counteract it."



CHARLES W. MORSE

Convicted financier who was liberated from a United States prison because it was shown he was at death's door and who now after a prolonged stay in Germany has fully recovered his health and spirits.

FARM MAKES A GOOD HOME

Farmer writing in The Farmers Advocate on "Whither Shall the Young Man Go?" says: "So much has been said on the young men leaving the farm for the city that it would almost seem as if they should all stay on the farm. Now, I think as Bobby Burns says: 'O wad some pow'r the giftie gie us, to see oursel'es as ithers see us,' it would prevent many grievous mistakes on the part of young men choosing their life's occupation. In setting out let him take a retrospective view of what his capabilities are and what he is adapted for, then choose accordingly. A Gladstone should not spend his life behind the plow nor a Lincoln splitting rails, yet there are so many misfits in the professions and the different occupations of life that point directly to a wrong choice. It is the case of a round tenon to fit a square mortis. If we look around at the men who have left the farm for the city we find some occupying and filling with satisfaction the highest and noblest positions in the world, others filling positions of honor and trust with credit to themselves, while others have gone down to the depths of degradation and ruin. Perhaps for the average men reared on the farm they are better adapted to the farm than anything else, if so, why not choose that?" With ordinary intelligence and industry they can make an honest, comfortable and respectable living. There is freedom, there is variety of labor, what a wonderful field for admiration in the development of the natural resources of the soil and the animal kingdom, the cultivation of flowers, fruit, grain and grass, combined with the rearing of fine specimens of animals in any class your fancy directs. The farm makes a good home.

APRONS FOR PLAY HOURS

Made of Bright Heavy Material They Are Very Practical

Play aprons as they are termed by the children who love to wear them, are really very practical looking affairs, and an immense saving to frocks, declare mothers of large experience. If the widest kinds of linen, denim or crash are selected and the child is not more than six years old, a play apron may be cut in one piece. The top is shaped precisely like the original jumper bodice but below the waist line it widens into a full length pinafore that tapers toward the back where it fastens with a single button an inch or so below the hips. The charm of the play apron is the row of pockets crossing its front from hip to hip. They are of different sizes and hold the flat box of water color paints, the ball, the collection of marbles, the sticks of chalk and the various sorts of "junk" needed during "after school" hours.

The play apron is never made up in white. Always it is of some cheerful shade of red, blue or green bound at the edges and about the pockets with a contrasting tone or with cross-stitched cotton braid. They are always gay little affairs, these pinafores, and so quickly to be cut out and machine stitch-finished that the child of even a very busy, wage-earning mother may hope to own one of them some day.

As intimated in yesterday's Times, the man killed at the C.P.R. bridge on Tuesday night, in this city, was Harry Lennox, of Bowmanville. As we noted in our issue of yesterday, a letter was found on the mangled remains addressed to himself. An old school mate yesterday identified the remains. An inquest was opened yesterday morning by Coroner Dr. Greer at Belleghem's Undertaking Establishment. S. A. McCall of the Ackerman factory, identified the body. The deceased has a wife and child residing in Bowmanville

Dr. Amy very ably filled the chair at the evening session. The pictures will be presented again today.

Lindsay Burglars Sentenced

Lindsay Post : Smith and Wilson, the two boy burglars, came before Magistrate Jackson this morning for sentence. Wilson got six months at Guelph Farm on each of the seven charges, the sentences to run concurrently. The sentences in this case also to run concurrently.

The Times is now having a similar press installed, as noted in yesterday's issue. Lindsay Post : The eagerly awaited meeting of the Police Committee of the town council to dealw ith certain matters affecting the Police Department was pulled off at the council chamber last night before a gathering who packed the room to suffocation. Nothinb had been talked of during the past week, but the "investigation " and why it was ever termed an investigation. is what a great many are wondering today. Those who attended the meeting expecting to see bombshells bursting in the air were badly disappointed. The meeting was as barren of sensational features as a hen is of teeth.

The Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co. has secured a contract from the Department of Railways and Canals for storage bin gates spout, castings, bolts, etc., for the Port Colborne elevator. Also from the city of Windsor, from the Hydro Electric Commission, for street lighting standards. This progressive firm has given its employees steady employment throughout the winter, fot the full complement af men, with considerable 'over-time' for January, February and March. The firm's orders to present date exceed those of last year and the prospects for the summer are most encouraging.

Suppose that she proposed that for one hour—just one hour while you were crossing the frontier—she masqueraded as your wife:

Suppose she seemed to be in great trouble;

And, of course, suppose she were pretty—

What would you say ?

You'd probably say yes—just as did Cicero Hannibal Butts to Anna Varvara in "The Red Widow." and if the subsequent consequences proved the same you would probably have the liveliest hour of your young life and resolve, as does Cicero Hannibal Butt in the play, when it is all over to put thirteen inch armor plate around your heart to protect your sympathetic natuse from betting you into all the trouble that comes to this globe-girdling millionaire manufacturer of corsets.

Of couese, it isn't real trouble, but it seems very real to this retired moulder of feminine stays, whose unsophisticacy is bombarded by the fascinating widow who entangles him in a Nihilistic plot against the life of the Czar. Around these exciting environments Mr. Charles J. Gebest, the composer has woven a delightful web of melodies interspersed with many rhythmic song numbers, while the book and lyrics of the piece, which are from the combined pens of Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf, are said to fairly bristle with smart chatter and pungent repartee.

"The Red Widow" will hold open house on Tuesday, April 21st at the Grand Opera House.

FINDS DAUGHTER IN VERY SORDID CASE

Plain Old Country Woman Staggered By Revelations in U.S. Court

New Orleans, April 15.—One dramatic surprise after another followed the sentencing by Judge Foster in the United States District Court Tuesday morning of Lennie Moore to two and a half years in the Atlanta penitentiary on his plea of guilty to one count in an indictment for white slavery, this count specifying that he had transported Ruby Tyrney a pretty 17-year-old McComb City, Miss., girl, from that place to New Orleans several months ago for immoral purposes.

Moore himself is scarcely more than 21 years old, and had once been the girl's sweetheart. On the witness stand she testified that he had accomplished her downfall and later brought her to the city and placed her in immoral surroundings.

The girl's big brown eyes filled with tears and her lip quivered as she recited to a crowded courtroom the ugly story. For a time, she said, she lived with two of Moore's sisters who had preceded her to the city.

MOTHER LEARNS LIFE SHE LED

Scarcely had the girl left the court room before her mother who in the remoteness of her country home had not known of the fate that had befallen her daughter, learned for the first time of the life she had been leading here. The plainly dressed old woman was staggered by the knowledge and almost collapsed in the office of Special Agent Pendleton of the Department of Justice, where she awaited her daughter was here and then learn city for the first time Tuesday morning to see what all the trouble about her daughter was here, and then learned the sad truth.

A worse shock was in store for her, for when she pleaded with the daughter to go back with her to the country home and try to live a better life the girl, under the spell of the life here, hesitated, cried and then refused to go—at least not yet.

"I can't, oh, I can't go back now. mamma," sobbed the girl. "Maybe I will make up my mind to go next Saturday. I don't want to go back and face them all at home now. Give me a little time and I will come."

The mother, Mrs. Mary Tryney, declared that she would not leave the city until she had snatched her daughter, now living in the district, from her life here.

"Surely," moaned the old mother, "there is some law, some power that will aid a poor mother, who knows nothing of city ways, to save her daughter from the fate that will overtake her here. Won't somebody tell me what to do?"

It was suggested to her that Superintendent of Police Reynolds might help her to get her daughter to leave the city.

On top of these rapidly unfolding scenes of the court drama came another. Frank Massey, a youth, who claimed to have fallen in love with the girl after he found her just beginning her life here, and trailed Moore until he caused his arrest. was himself arrested by Corporal Mehan as a fugitive from justice from Jackson, Miss. The information the police got was that Massey is wanted there on a charge of holding up and robbing a citizen some time back. Heretofore it had been supposed that Massey was the hero of the white slave case.

BUFFALO MAN DIVORCED BY HIS COERCED WIFE

Supreme Court Justice Annuls Marriage of School Teacher Named Ida C. Huntley After Hearing Sensational Charges.

Canandaigua, N. Y., April 15.—Alleging that she was forced into marriage under a threat involving the lives of herself and her sister, Mrs. Ida C. Huntley Weightman of East Bloomfield, employed as a teacher in the Canandaigua Union School, has had her marriage to H. A. Weightman of East Bloomfield annulled. Justice George A. Benton in Supreme Court, has signed an interlocutory decree which was recorded here. The plaintiff is given the right to assume her maiden name.

Miss Huntley and Weightman were married at the house of Mrs. Mary E. Etts, in Pleasant street, this city, on February 10th, last. Rev. George R. Dye then pastor of the local Baptist Church, performing the ceremony. It is alleged that within a few minutes after the ceremony the bride left the room in which it had been performed, and when she returned shortly afterwards she missed $20 from her purse, and also the bridegroom. It is alleged that the bride did not see her husband after that Little is known hereabouts relative to Weightman. It is said he located in East Bloomfield during the winter, and posed as a landscape gardner. Miss Huntley, it is alleged, had known him for about two weeks when it is charged, he forced her to agree to marry him, threatening to shoot her and her sister, who lives at East Bloomfield, if she did not comply with his wishes. Plaintiff alleged that Weightman told her he had purchased a new "shooting iron" with which to carry out the threat if she refused.

Mrs. Etts and Mrs. Ella F. Dye, wife of the officiating clergyman, were witnesses to the marriage ceremony. It is understood that after Weightman disappeared from the Etts house it became known that plaintiff had wed under duress, although no announcement of the wedding was made and none was published until the middle of last month after the returned marriage certificate had been recorded. Summons and complaint in the action were served on Weightman at Buffalo, according to an affidavit filed with the other papers in the case. Mrs. Weightman has been teaching school since her marriage.

HIGH PROTECTIONIST OF LIBERALS TALKS

Mr. W. F. Carroll, of Glace Bay, Urged More Aid to Iron and Steel Industries.

Ottawa, April 16.—After listening to W. F. Carroll, member for South Cape Breton, yesterday no one could doubt any longer the stories that there was friction in the Liberal Camp over the fiscal policy. Before the holidays, Mr. Turriff and other Westerners talked frankly free trade. Mr. Carroll even more candidly avowed himself a protectionist, though the protection he wanted was largely for the industry directly affecting his own constituency that of steel and iron. The rest of Canada could go hang.

This indeed seems to be the fiscal policy of the average Liberal member, protection for industries in their own ridings and free trade for the rest of Canada. It is a striking contrast to the National policy, Dominion wide in its scope of the Conservative party.

MANNERS AND MORALS ARE SUBJECTS FOR INSTRUCTION

Toronto, April 1 .— That pupils in Canada do not receive as much attention in the way of instruction in manners and morals as do those in the schools of the United States was the opinion expressed this morning by Mr. A.W. Massey, B.A., in an address given before the High School Principals' section of the Ontario Educational Association at the fifty-third annual meeting, now being held at Toronto University.

The session was again an extremely busy one, a vast amount of information being delivered on a great number of interesting subjects, among which were the educational problems of growing towns and cities ; the education od thhhhathhhathhh thheth ucocation of the youth in the 'teen age, and the need for two types of schools, one suited to rural, and the other to urban conditions.

In several of the sections the election of officers took place.

NECESSARIES OF LIFE ARE ALTERED

From King Edward Hotel to Jail For Passing Worthless Cheques.

Toronto, April 16.—Four charges of passing worthless cheques stood against Geo. W. Bleeker who appeared in the police court to-day. He pleaded guilty, Mr. Robinette, K.C., who represented him, declaetd that the man had passed the cheques to obtain the necessaries of life for his wife. It developed that he was stopping at the King Edward Hotel. Magistrate Denison commented on the fact and sentenced him to 50 days in jail, with hard labor.

BADLY WOUNDED HE WANTED CIGARETTE

Montreal, April 16.—When brought to the Notre Dame Hospital early to-day with a bullet in his right temple Donat Fugere, a storekeeper in Viauville, asked the doctor for a glass of beer and some cigarettes. When refused them he ran out of the institution, with the doctors after him, dashed into a saloon, ordered his drink and smokes, and only returned to the hospital when he had drunk the beer and had consumed a cigarette. His wound, which, he said, was caused by a revolver going off while he was examining it, is very serious.

MAJOR L. M. HAYES WAS HONORED BY THE OFFICERS

Last night a pleasing function was held at the local armouries. The occasion was a complimentary farewell banquet tendered by the officers of the 57th Regiment to Major L. M. Hayes, who is leaving for Guelph to take the Senior Judgeship of Wellington County. There was a large attendance of local officers. Major Walker very ably filled the chair. The culminating feature of the evening was the presentation by Major Geo. W. Bennett, Supt. of Government Roads, Toronto, on behalf of his brother officers, of a handsome silver service to Major Hayes. All the speeches made by those present breathed sincere regret over Major Hayes leaving the city and wishing him every happiness in his new sphere of usefulness.

GAS GET WAS OPEN YOUNG MAN DEAD

Sad Discovery Made by a Grange Ave. Lady This Morning.

Toronto, April 16.—Receiving no response to her repeated calls, Mrs. D. Carscadden, of 158 Grange avenue this morning went up to the room of her boarder, William Woods, and found him lying face downwards on the bed while the room was filled with gas fumes which were escaping from an open jet. Dr. Yellowlees, who was called, pronounced life extiact. Mrs. Carscadden told the News that Woods, who is about 27 years old, and is a painter by trade, had been staying at her house for about three years. He came home intoxicated last night and her husband had put him to bed. He was heard roaming around the room during the night and as abox of matches were found upset on the floor, it is thought that he got up to light the gas, opened the jet, dropping the matches, and was too much under the influence of liquor to turn the gas off.

The man's body was removed to the morgue. Woods was single and came from Glasgow four years ago. He has a brother in Toronto, but his address is unknown. It is not yet been decided whether an inquest will be held.

QUEENS'S UNIVERSITY REORGANIZATION IMPORTANT CHANGES NOW PROBABLE

Dr. Gordon May Resign to Become Head of the Theological Department, in Which Case a New Principal Would be Appointed by Trustees

Kingston, April 16.—It is said some friction has developed in Queen's University. It has been difficult to agree on the exact control which should be exercised by the University over the buildings and equipment for military training which Major Leonard offers. It is understood Major Leonard now proposes that the whole new department should be under a board of six members, of which three should represent the University. The other three would be the local officer Commanding in the Kingston District, the Commandant of the Royal Military College, and Major Leonard himself.

Question of Control.

This does not give Universitycontrol. Hence, it meets with objection from some of the professors and trustees. It is difficult to see how control by the University can be surrendered, and yet the differences now are so unimportant that under energetic leadership an understanding should be easily effected. All Major Leonard should require is that the department he is to provide and maintain should be subject to regulations laid down by himself and accepted by the University authorities, the whole agreement depending upon the observance of the contract.

A New Principal.

Aside from this difficulty there is a prospect that Principal Gordon may resign in order to become head of the Theological Department. Dr. Ross, the present head, is entitled to superannuation, and if Principal Gordon should desire to succeed him on an adequate salary and with the guarantee of a pension, probably action will be taken to secure a new Principal for the University proper. With the provision of military training to be provided by Major Leonard, with the gift of $100,000 from Lord Strathcona, andwith the certainty of aid from the Provincial Government, Queen's is about to enter on a new and more active period in its successful and influential career. There are those who think that now is the time for a complete reorganization and for the appointment of a new Principal. This movement is not antagonistic to Principal Gordon, but is led by those who are persuaded that a younger and more energetic head should be appointed, but who also fee that Dr. Gordon's services have been such that he should be provided with lighter duties and also absolute certainty of a satisfactory salary or pension for the rest of his days.

$60,000 WHISKERS SUIT THROWN OUT OF COURT

Washington, April 16.—E. A. O'-Sullivan, a New Orleans lawyer, wanted to sue Paul Falix and William W. Steiles for $60.000 because they cut off his whiskers in 1908, in an election prank, but the supreme court today decided he had waited too long and threw out his case.

Staggering into the jury room he fell dead from heart disease in a deputy's arms. He was 60 years old. He leaves a son, Frank E. Poland, principal of the Daniels school in Malden.

LOCAL INDIANS INDULGE IN A TERRIFIC BATTLE

One Local Indian After a Spree Near Buckhorn is Still Not Found

Last night a local hackman returned from a trip to Buckhorn. He told The Times this story : It seems that yesterday morning ten Indiansfrom Hiawatha and Rosneath, for the McDonald Lumber Co. camp, drove out to Buckhorn. They had a surplus of the forbidden fruit with them, in glass. The Indians got drunk. On the way out a row, stimulated by stimulants, broke out. A fight started. When the hack driver went into the stable at Buckhorn, he saw several coats lying on the flir and suspected that another scrap was on. It was. Smoke, the Hiawatha Indian runner, landed on the jaw of another red man and knocked the latter between the feet of the hackman's team. One Indian had collapsed under the seat of a rig. A rope had to be used to pull him out from under the seat. One of the Indians was still missing when the driver left Buckhorn. They found his hat and faint traces of an alcoholic breath. County Constable Montgomery arrested three of the Indians and brought them to the city last night. The runner Smoke, is among those arrested. They got the liquor before reaching Buckhorn.

ULSTER IS NOW FACING QUEBEC'S BIG PROBLEM

In More Intenstified Form Says Dean Saunders, But Really Same Underneath

Montreal April 16.—"Quebec Orangemen are unanimous in desiring to assist Sir Eewaru Carson and Protestants in Ulster because we feel that we are having in a greatly intensified form just the same fiiht that we have to wage here," said Dean Sanders to-day. He is one of the Committee of the Loyal Orange Association appointed to deal with the subscription of $1, 00 is has been decided to make to the anti-Home Rule.

Catholics As Political Body.

The same pernicious influences face them there we have to contend against in Quebec, he said, if the question were only a political one of giving Home Rule to Ireland it would be settled in short order, but it is a religious as well. It is not against the Roman Catholic church as a religious body that we are fighting, but it is against the Roman Catholic Church as a political body. I do not say that the Roman Catholic church and the Nationalists have the same political aims, although they have united for the time being, because both desire the same thing.

Examples of Illiteracy.

"After Home Rule became an accomplished fact, I have no doubt that they would soon develop strenuous family quarrels, but we, as Protestants, must stand in a body against the Catholic Church using its political power. The countries of Southern Europe, South America and Central America are good examples of the illiteracy and immorality that become prevalent among a large mass of the population under their domination. We do not want the same thing for Ireland

C. N. R. WHEN HITCHED UP WILL HAVE FEED LINES IN FULL BLAST

Sir Donald Mann Expects Road to Pay Well Once it is Transcontinental

Montreal, April 16.—Before leaving for Ottawa last night, Sir Donald Mann, Vice-President of the Canadian Northern Railway, said that he did not think that there would be serious opposition to any reasonable assistance the Government might give the company. He said that even if the C.N.R., when completed, would have cost $400,000,000 this would work out at less than $40,000 a mile as there would be 10,500 miles of road.

Hitched up by 1915.

He pointed out that the country had never been called upon to pay for any responsibility which the Government and Parliament might have assumed for the railway in the past. Sir Donald said that if everything went all right at Ottawa, he felt certain the Company's lines would be hitched up before the end of the year.

LONDON EXCITED OVER RILEY TRIAL

London, Ont., April 16.—A court room crowded to capacity with surging humanity, that filled the seats the aisles and every available inch of floor space, marked the opening today of the trial of Thomas Riley, charged with the murder of George Blackburn, bartender of theh otel Cecil in November last.

Hours before the trial opened a stream of people flocked to the main entrance of the court house, filling the passages until the doors was finally locked and the curious ones were forced to gain admittance through the court above.

Promptly at 9.30 o'clock a hush fell over the whispering assemblage. All eyes were turned impatiently to the small stairway, up which the prisoner would be conducted to the box to stand trial for his life.

Accompanied by Detective Harry Down and wearing a plain black suit the prisoner mounted to view. Slowly he entered the box. Casually he gazed around over the sea of faces. Apparently he did not realize the grimness of the situation.

Just 30 minutes were used in the selection of jurors. During that time 43 talesmen were called by the clerk ol the court, Of this number nineteen were challeged.

Both Crown Attorney McKillop and the counsel for the defence appeared London men on the jury. Every London talesman was challeged or asked to step aside. to have a decided aversion to having

As a result the jury as chosen was almost wholly composed of farmers, nine out of the twelve men being agriculturists.

EASTER HAT SAVINGS STOLEN, GIRL LEAPS FROM THIRD STORY

New York, April 16.—Because her savings for an Easter bonnet were lost or stolen, Freda Lester, a dressmaker, aged 21, jumped to her death today from a window of her third floor room in Harlem into a throng of paraders on the sidewalk. Her brother saved her life Easter eve, when she had tried to inhale gas. Five dollars of the girl's savings had disappeared from her purse, the brother told the police, and the disappointment over inability to make Easter purchases preyed on her.

COST OF POLICE FORCE

Less Per Capita in London Than in New York

London protects its 7,252,000 inhabitants for $4,750,000 per annum less than it costs New York to inadequately protect nearly 2,000,000 fewer people. The London police patrol twice the area of the New York police at less than three-quarters of the cost to New York. The London police in one year convicted 78.94 per cent. of the twenty-two murders. In the same year there were 148 murders in New York, and 9 per cent. of the murderers were convicted. It is safe to say that as regards the convictions in London practically all the condemned murderers paid the death penalty, and that there was no one "higher up" to intervene. It is equally probable that in New York not half of the 9 per cent. expiated their crimes in the electric chair.

BIG GAME OF THE NORTH

The Walrus is a Fearsome Looking and Rather Vicious Creature

Hunting the walrus in Behring Straits is an exciting sport, and one not engaged in to any great extent. It is dangerous because the huge creatures do not hesitate to attack a boat, and woe betide the unlucky hunter if one of these huge beasts gets its tusk over the gunwale of his boat. The picture shows a front view of the head of a huge bull walrus which weighed about a ton and a half, and measured fourteen feet from the heavily bristled muzzle to the tips of his rear flippers. The females are usually smaller than the males, but strange to say frequently have bigger tusks.

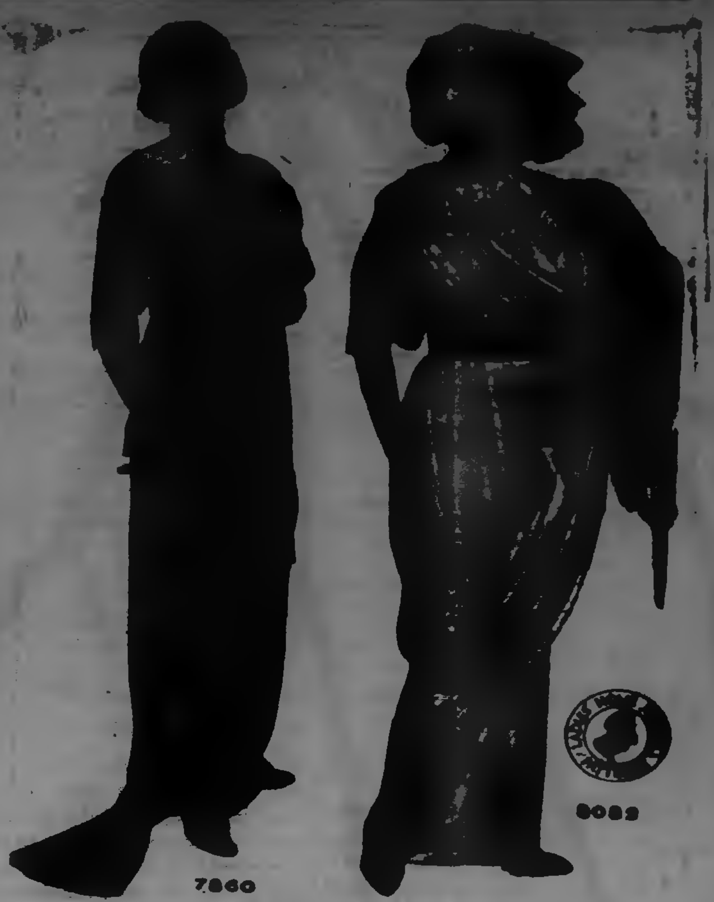
MUNICIPAL FORMS ALWAYS IN STOCK



SLEEVES ARE OF ALL LENGTHS AND USUALLY OF NET OR LACE

This season we depend upon a cleverly arranged sash or girdle, an odd cut in tunic or peplum, or an ingenious collar for novelty. In the matter of sleeves there is wide choice; they may be long enough to cover the finger tips, elbow length or missing entirely, as suits the fancy. It is a rather effective fad to have them differ in length or material; for instance, one may be of chiffon, the other of lace or one may be long and the other short.

In No. 8082 is shown an elbow sleeve of net on one side and on the other a long, pointed wing-like sleeve of the silk with a tasseled end. The dress is of light yellow liberty satin, with a guimpe of allover lace. It is a very attractive gown for afternoon or for dancing and may be copied in size 36 with about 7 yards of 36 inch material and 1¼ yards of lace for the guimpe. Liberty satin averages $1.25 per yard.

A simple, dignified dinner dress of black satin trimmed with jet, is illustrated in the other model, No. 7860. The upper part of the bodice is of lace over flesh colored chiffon.

This gown requires for size 36, 4½ yards of 36 inch material for draped skirt and overblouse and 4½ yards for foundation skirt and guimpe.

TURNING MUSIC

Trimmed Edges Solve a Long-suffered Nuisance

Musicians sometimes have trouble turning the pages of their music when playing the piano. The leaves, if there are more than two pages, for some reason seem to stick together just at the time when they should be turned quickly. A good way to obviate the difficulty is to trim each leaf with a pair of scissors so that it is about ¼ of an inch smaller than the one over it. In this way the edge of the the top leaf protrudes beyond the under leaf and is easily turned. As it is not necessary to trim the covers of the music, this does not render the sheets unsightly.

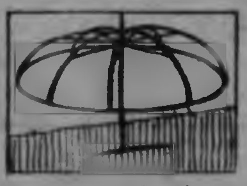
UMBRELLA TRELLIS



Umbrellas have a lot of uses—even when there is no rain falling. For instance, thre is nothing that makes quite so good a trellis for climbing plants and vines in the flower beds on the lawn. Of course, the umbrella selected for this particular job must be an old one and must have no cover. Run a length of fine wire through the holes at the end of each rib and fasten the end of the wire together so that when the umbrella is "raised" the ribs will take a graceful curve. The handle is then inserted in the ground and the plants will climb all over the steel frame and make quite an attractive center piece.

THE OVERBLOUSE FROCK AN ECONOMICAL AND BECOMING MODE

Laces play an important part in the costume world this season; they are used for trimming, for collars, cuffs, tunics and blouses. The underblouse of lace or chiffon works wonders with a frock the color of which is somewhat trying and its softness is very becoming.

While taffetas is very smart, it is seldom becoming if worn too close to the face. In No. 8259 is shown an attractive overblouse dress of dark green taffetas. The bodice shows the new yoke, a skirt with a puff and shaped trimming band. The underblouse is of shadow lace over chiffon.

To copy this dress in size 36, it requires 5½ yards of 36 inch material.

The other frock illustrated is also in overblouse effect, with a guimpe of figured net. The one-sided tunic is pleated to give the effect of box pleats and falls gracefully over a slender, two-piece skirt. Silk poplin in a rich mahogany shade is the material, with a collar and girdle of velvet in the same shade. A wide fall of lace finishes the sleeves, and the bottom of the skirt is embroidered.

This gown requires for size 36, 5½ yards of 36 inch material.

Silk poplin ranges in price from 75 cents to $3 a yard.

This young lady's official picture is much sought after. Indeed it is very valuable, for she posed for the figure and head of "the goddess of Plenty" appearing on an issue of Uncle Sam's big treasury bills—the paper money of large denominations. Her home is in San Antonio, Texas.

Fruit pies have a nasty habit of bubbling over and making a mess in then oven, even though a small hole be made in the top of the crust. This is, no doubt, due to the hole closing, as it frequently does when the pastry puffs up and the steam cannot escape. To obviate this difficulty insert a short piece of uncooked macaroni in the top of the crust. The steam will then be able to escape and the juice will not boil over. Of course, the macaroni should be withdrawn before the pie is served.

NO WOMEN FREEMASONS

Leading Mason Denies That Women Will be Admitted

Statements appeared in some of the newspapers of Britain, to the effect that a Masonic lodge is to be formed in New Zealand, membership of which will be open to women equally with men. Many people, outside the Masonic ranks, seeing the statement, approached prominent Masons, among others the editor of "The Freemason," and asked if the suffragette agitation was extended to Masonry.

"There is no sign of any such agitation," the editor of "The Freemason" [illegible] "[illegible] the suffragists that I know of. [illegible] mistake lies in the use of the word 'Masonic.' If the paragraph had said that a lodge of theosophists, or co-Masons, was about to be formed, it might have been correct, so far as I know. The use of the word 'Masonic' is unwarranted. For years there have been people professing to know, and to be entitled to impart and practice the ritual of Masonry, and they have set up lodges of what they called 'co-Masonry,' which, I suppose, means a Masonry in which women take equally part with men. The order of 'Freemasons' has nothing to do with any such lodges or persons, who have no right to use the word 'Freemasonry' and whom Freemasonry ignores. There is no split or secession on the part of Freemasons, as the totals of membership very clearly show."

EXIT THE COW?

The latest touch in the romance of the soya bean comes with the discovery that it may be used in the large-scale production of artificial milk. Since 1906, the year of its first importation into Europe from China, Japan, Korea and Manchuria, the utilization of this famous Asiatic growth has advanced by leaps and bounds. The beans go in the making of oil and the manufacture of soap with their waste returned in the soil as fertilizers. Cattle cakes are prepared from them for the winter feeding. Soya meal is in large demand; soya sauces and relishes are already widely known. From the same leguminous plant come vermicelli, biscuits and other food products. To-day the west receives something like a million tons of beans each year; for England alone the freight on them amounts to $5,000,000 annually.

A Chinaman was the first to experiment with soya in the preparation of a substitute for milk, but the disagreeable taste of the liquid that came from his primitive laboratory made it unpalatable for occidentals. A German expert then took up the enterprise and English Chemists now claim to have carried it to complete success. The new milk is built up from a basis of casein obtained from the soya bean. The beans are treated by a special process, whereby all oil and waste matter are removed, leaving only the pure casein. To this basis are added, in exact proportions fatty acids, sugars and salts. Then, in order that the synthetic milk may approximate in all respects to real milk, bacterai of the required strains, including lactic acid bacilli, are introduced into the fluid and allowed to act on it until "maturity" is reached. Complete emulsification is secured by the process.

This artificial product is now to be put on the market as a "pure and wholesome milk of high nutritive value" — "a real milk from which cheese and butter can be made"—"a milk." moreover "that can be produced more cheaply than the article obtained from the cow." People who have tasted it call the fluid "quite indistinguishable from the milk now in use" and "delightfully smooth on the palate." By varying the proportion of casein fat, sugar or salts, it can be adapted at need to children or invalids according to medical prescription. Everything else said of it being true the soya product has one crowning recommendation. It solves the "clean milk" problem, and is absolutely free from the "milk borne" diseases that now harrass the dairyman, the legislator and the consumer.

IMPERFECT WOMAN

Noted Scientist Says Ideal To-day is Defective

"The imperfect or defective type of women is that represented by the very slight, thin-chested and nervous woman, at present so favored by fashion," declared Dr. Richard Root Smith, of Grand Rapids, in an address at the National Conference on Race Betterment. Dr. Smith added, however, "that we have no reason for believing that women [illegible] than [illegible] has been [illegible] generations."

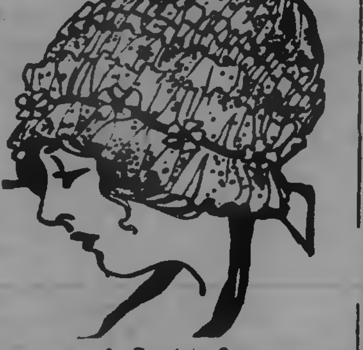
The conference aimed to bring humanity to ultimate physical and mental perfection through eugenics, chiefly, and [illegible] incidentally.

At the [illegible] session Dr. Stephen Smith, [illegible] of the New York State Board of Charities and president of the conference, despite his advanced age of 92, read a typewritten manuscript of 43 pages devoted to the idea that 120 years is man's [illegible] age.

Modern methods of living, Dr. Smith said, have not proved more disastrous to women than to men. He added that the most perfect type of woman is "that represented by individuals compact in build, deep-chested with steady nerves and fleshy enough for the anatomical angles to be nicely rounded out."

Of the imperfect type in favor, he said she exists not because of any modern fad or fashion, or of diet, or of diversion, but because her deficiencies existed in her progenitors. The only time to correct faults, the speaker said, is in childhood or before.

Dr. Smith spoke of the hook-worm disease. She had recently completed an extensive investigation through the hills of eastern Kentucky, and the information which she gathered was given to the conference.



A Boudoir Cap

The Questions of the Child

Dr. Helen Webb, of London, England, believes parents will do well and rightly to answer, as fully and as truthfully as may be possible the questions asked by the children in the home. Dr. Webb says that one of the causes of ill-temper and ill-deeds in children is intellectual starvation—a condition easily relieved by judiciously imparted parental information. Dr. Webb might have amplified the discussion of this theme by adding that parents who make shift to answer the questions of their children establish a habit and a bond which can be made of the greatest use in retarding steps along the wrong path by the child. That child who is rewarded with, "Oh, shut up, will you?" or "Oh, stop your noise, can you?" soon learns to seek information from other than parental sources, you know—and there is a big risk that such a child will gather an unsavery mess of misinformation, don't you think? Of course, it may be a little difficult to reply to all the questions asked by a keen-minded child—but one ought to be proud of the child with such a mind, don't you fancy?

A Mammoth Clock

The biggest hanging-clock in the kingdom hangs at Liverpool Street Station, London, England, and also one of the finest pieces of electrical machinery, as applied to clocks, to be found in these islands. This clock hangs from the roof of the main line platforms, possesses four faces, and weighs over two tons! Though the clock itself is so big, yet its works are so small that according to the authorities nine men could actually sit round a dining table placed in the clock without in any way causing an interference with its works! Moreover, the electric connections with this clock are so excellent that every station clock on the line is regulated daily by the Liverpool Street giant, and so exact time is kept by all G.E.R. clocks in connection with this splendid one at headquarters.

BACK TO THE LAND

A Son's Observations on His Father's Choice of Professions

A bright young man living in a city dropped into our office recently for a chat on farming matters. The young man was filled with enthusiasm in general, and had a genuine case of the "back to the land" fever. He was looking for a farm location.

"My father was a good man and a good farmer, and particularly good and kind to his children," the young man stated. "When we were children we worked on the farm, but our lives were made easy by the hard labor of father and mother. We were sent to school whenever possible. The one thing for which my parents were to blame in raising their children was that they forced us into grooves of life for which we were not prepared. Henry was raised with the one idea of being a lawyer, and a poor lawyer he proved to be. My own life was shaped for the ministry, and in spite of my disinclination, my desire not to offend my mother's lifelong wishes led me to accept the charge. Time proved that neither my brother nor I were fitted for the life-work for which we were prepared by our parents. The regret of my life is that my father did not take me into comradeship in the conduct of the farm, that he did not teach me the things he was a lifetime learning that he did not impress on my mind the advantages of farming, the only life for me worth living, for now I am bound to be a farmer just as my brother has become."

As this young man told us of this personal history, we could not help but think of the many parents the country over who are making the same mistake with their children. There are many boys who leave the farm simply because their parents do not teach them the advantages of a good farm, and that a good farmer is as much to be respected and honored by his fellow men as a good lawyer or a good preacher.

We recently visited the farm of a prominent breeder of pure-bred cattle. He had sent his only son, who had previously wanted to leave home, to the agricultural college. When the boy came home he was full of enthusiasm and interested in the farm and herd. He told his father what he had learned in college about farming and about stock, and made some suggestions, later carried out, which the father told us really made him money and benefited the farm. The boys and girls are the most important crop on the farm after all, and the farm is the best place to keep them. They will not all stay there but they ought to know that the farm is not such a bad place after all, before they get ready to leave it.—The Maritime Farmer.

ORIGIN OF "CANADA"

Many people have from time to time inquired the meaning of the name "Canada" and how it came to be applied to the northern half of North America. The "Standard of Empire," England, has endeavored to discover the correct answer to these questions, which are ignored by most of the best-known works of reference dealing with the history of the Dominion. It would seem, however, that the etymology of the name is obscure. There is, of course, a Spanish word canada—a diminutive of canon, and meaning, therefore, a small valley—but there is apparently little reason to suppose that such a mis-description could ever have been applied to the great basin of the St. Lawrence—the only portion of the Dominion known to white men at the period from which the name dates. In some quarters it is believed that the name is a corruption or Gallicisation of an Indian word kannatha, signifying a village. It is further supposed that the famous French explorer Jacques Cartier heard the word used by the aboriginal inhabitants when speaking of their settlements, and erroneously regarded it as the native name for the then known portions of the Dominion. Whatever the true derivation may be, it will be generally admitted that the name is both musical and dignified, and well suited to be the designation of one of the great countries of the world.

WANT SAFE VESSEL FOR HERRING CARGO

Unceasing Battles With Death Amid the Worst Weather of the Year

For nearly sixty years the New England fishermen have been prosecuting the herring industry in Newfoundland waters—in Placentia and Fortune Bays on the south, in Bay of Islands and Bonne Bay on the west, and in White and Green Bays on the east coast. The fish are cured in two ways: By salting until the frost sets in, and then by freezing. About sixty American and many Canadian and Newfoundland vessels engage in it, but the former, because of their long voyages, experience the most fatalities. The vessels, though averaging only one hundred tons burden, are of the very finest and staunchest in rigging and equipment, for no others could stand the dangers they have to face; and neither skippers nor crews will take any smack for a herring cargo which they are not satisfied with. Indeed, they will frequently test a vessel's gear in a preliminary cruise, and if found faulty will "chuck her up." This is not surprising when it is remembered that six or eight men have to handle these craft during trips that represent constant, unceasing battles with death, amid weather the worst in the year, with frost and floes to add new hazard to the navigation of waters dangerous enough at any time.

The rigors of a Newfoundland winter are but poorly imagined by those unfamiliar with its climate and coastline. Yet it is only in this season that the herring are to be found in these waters—the one part of the Atlantic seaboard where they resort then; and since they are used as bait for the American vessels which fish off the Nahant Peninsula, as well as for food purposes in all the eastern cities, they must be had, no matter at what cost to ships and men, because only at this season can they be frozen by exposure to the bitter night air, and carried to the American and Canadian ports in the vessels' holds without refrigerators or other artificial accessories to retain them in this state.

A BIRD OF GREAT PRICE

Fur-farming in Canada has become a recognized industry, and one that yields large remuneration derived from the pockets of the rich. In southern countries, particularly in Africa, the ostrich is being confined, and the production of plumes commercialized. Prime ostrich feathers realize from $150 to $300 a piece, and when one bird supplies several plumes it may be realised that society will contribute a handsome revenue to the enterprise. The British South Africa Company have set apart 12,000 acres of selected land as an ostrich ranch, 600 acres of which is fertile land well adapted for profitable agriculture. The birds desire solitude, and large enclosures are made on these farms whereby they may secure retreat from man and from their own kind. Naturally they live in flocks of four or five. One male and the remainder females. They all lay their eggs in the same nest, which is brooded by the male at night and by the females during the day. This practice enhances the protection of the nest more than it hastens incubation, for they will hatch if left in the warm sand. About thirty eggs are laid in the nest, and as many more are scattered around outside, which are broken to feed the young. At regular intervals the adults are deprived of their plumes. With judicious management the establishments yield considerable profit.

Hints on Beauty

Giving Life and Luster to the Hair

By MAGGIE TEYTE

The Noted Prima Donna.

MAGGIE TEYTE

It is estimated that there are about 160,000 hairs on the normal human head. Some may have 15 or 20 thousand more—and a good many have less.

However, that figure will give an idea of what the average person has to care for in the way of "crowning glory," and what the bald-headed one has suffered in the way of loss.

When you see harrowing pictures of victims of barbarity suspended by the hair of their heads, take this comfort to yourself—then look the other way, for the only way to keep cheerful is not to dwell on unpleasantness. Right wrong whenever and wherever you can, but save your peace of mind and your beauty by avoiding all morbid dwelling on things you have no way of bettering.

Growth in Summer.

The grain of comfort is this, each hair of the human head is supposed to bear a weight of four ounces. Good, healthy hair should grow about seven inches each year. It makes most of the growth in warm weather. Very great cold has a stunting effect on the growth of hair.

Even the healthiest head "sheds" all the time, but from such heads the only hairs that fall are the old, wornout ones, which have done their work and outlived their usefulness, and drop in order that new and vigorous hair may sprout from the follicles they leave.

There has never been a time in the history of the human race when the possession of luxuriant tresses was not an enviable condition. Not every woman can have beautiful, long, wavy hair, but if what she has is not glossy and healthy and well cared for, it is her own fault.

The hair is so exquisite and so valuable a part of feminine beauty it should be treated with kindly consideration. As a matter of fact, it is often most wofully neglected and abused, covered as it is with the hair from other heads and unventilated hats and being burned and "scruffed" and twisted and raked with harsh brushes in heavy hands and genuine hair-splitting combs.

How to Shampoo.

To begin with, the head should be shampooed just as often as it needs cleaning. The healthy head is the clean head, and just as much dirt and dust and germs settle on our heads as on our faces.

There is nothing better for a shampoo than an egg and an ounce of water beaten together and rubbed into the scalp with the pads of the fingers. There is iron and sulphur in the yolk of the egg, which feeds the hair roots.

After rubbing in the egg, wash it all out with warm water, till there is not a particle left. Then give it a final rinse in cold water. Dry with warm towels, sunlight, massage and air.

If there is a dry condition of the scalp, dip the tips of the fingers in olive oil and, parting the hair, rub it well into the scalp.

There is an old French recipe which was given me long ago by a woman who had beautiful hair, always glossy and smooth. It is made by combining half an ounce of oil of rosemary with an ounce and a half of almond oil. This will make the hair grow.

Marmalade Dainties For the Tea Hour

By MAY ELDRIDGE

THE American palate has discovered the reason for the almost constant presence of the marmalade jar on the English table. It is because of its wholesome deliciousness. For generations the English have eaten marmalade with equal relish as an adjunct to the breakfast toast, or the teatime muffins. Now Americans have fallen in line.

Grapefruit Marmalade.

Scrub one grapefruit, one orange and one lemon to remove all possibility of foreign elements on the rind.

Shave the fruit fine, being careful that the seeds and bitter, tough core are eliminated but making use of all the pulp and peel.

Measure the fruit and add three times the amount of water.

Let it stand in an earthen dish over night. Next morning boil 10 minutes only. Then let it stand another night. The second morning add pint for pint of sugar and boil until it jellies. This will fill 12 ordinary jelly glasses.

Orange Marmalade.

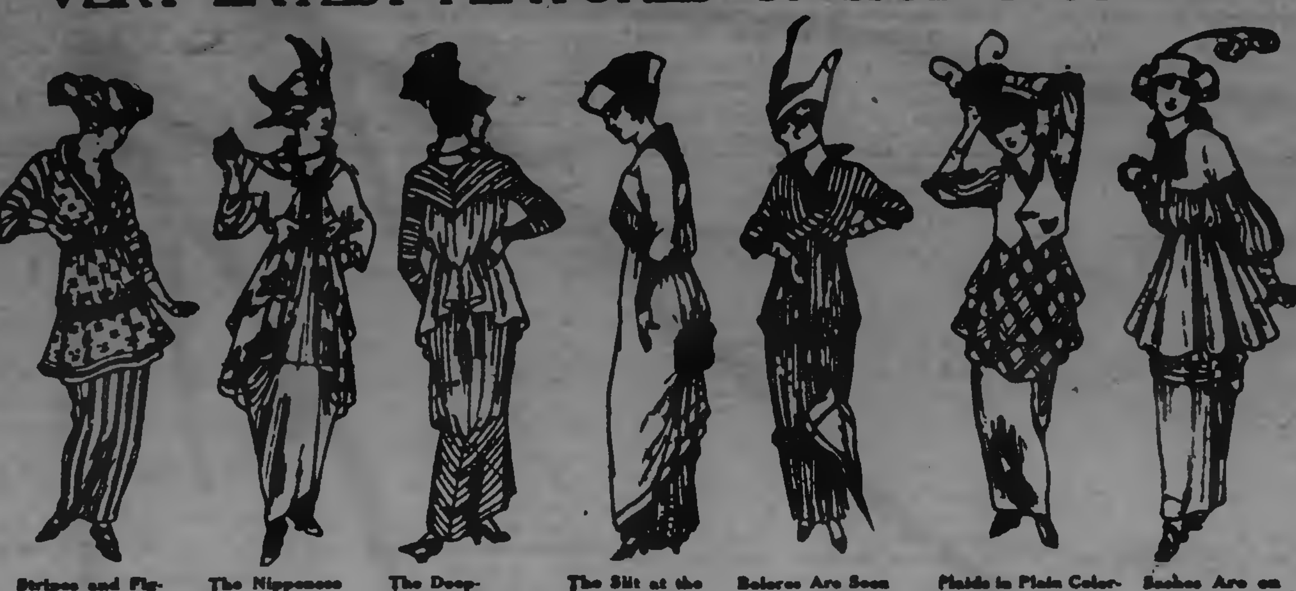
Be sure to remember the necessity for thoroughly scrubbing the fruit. For this purpose use a clean root brush.

Take six oranges and two lemons, sliced thin, add six pints of water and let stand one day and one night. Boil 10 minutes on the second morning. Then let it stand two days and two nights. Add six pounds of sugar and boil an hour and a half. Be sure in making any kind of marmalade to use an earthen dish to contain the fruit, and in cooking be careful not to let it scorch.

Rhubarb Marmalade.

Take five pounds of rhubarb and five pounds of sugar. Cut the rhubarb in small pieces and sprinkle with the sugar and let it stand over night. Slice four lemons fine, add to a pound of figs and chop the mixture before adding the rhubarb. Boil slowly several hours, watching it so it will not burn. The time required for cooking must be determined by the time it takes for the mixture to thicken. When it is cooked and has cooled a little, some cooks add two tablespoonfuls of Jamaica ginger.

VERY LATEST FEATURES OF SPRING STYLES



Stripes and Figured Goods Are Often Effectively Combined. The Nipponese Bow Appears on the Spring Gowns. The Deep-Pointed Yoke with the Sleeves in One Piece. The Slit at the Back of Skirts Displays a Frilled Petticoat. Boleros Are Seen on the New Frocks, Often in Contrasting Materials. Plaids in Plain Colorings Are Enjoying Unprecedented Popularity. Sashes Are on Most Gowns and There Is No Rule for Their Placing.

By MADGE MARVEL

PICTURESQUE is the one word which best describes the latest modes. They are inspired by so many periods and show such varied influences that giving them a clear style pedigree is quite out of the question. But charming they are and always picturesque.

From early Greek to mid-Victorian, not neglecting the Orient, they compass nearly every country and age from the time of that memorable dress Eve made for herself. But in all the borrowing and adapting the quality of picturesqueness has never been lost sight of.

In these seven models I think you will find all the best style features of the season. Moreover, they are comparatively conservative, so they may quite safely be copied by the woman who prides herself on her dress sanity.

Here is shown the fancy for contrasting materials—the rage for stripes and plaids and figures—the new silhouette, which is very bouffant at the hips and tapers to moderate dimensions at the feet, and the revival of the bustle.

There is also evidence given of the increase of fulness at the lower parts of the new sleeves, the funny pulled-off shoulder effect, the waistcoat and the bolero, to say nothing about the hats, which are every one worthy of mention.

You will find many of the best frocks of the season showing sleeves of contrasting materials.

This is illustrated in the first gown, where the sleeves and skirt are of green and white awning striped taffeta and the tunic of pompadour chiffon in which pink posies bloom on a pale green field.

In the second figure there is a glimpse of Futurist roses done in bold stitches and red and purple on the corners of the two-tiered tunic of soft brown crepe. This waist line shows the normal position and the flat Japanese bow on the front of the bodice.

An original arrangement of stripes distinguishes the third frock. They are used for the deep pointed yoke and sleeves and for a deep band on the edge of the skirt, which is reminiscent of the hobble.

The tunic is of chiffon gathered full and caught in the centre back by a tassel—tassels are extremely fashionable—and the upper part of the skirt is also of the plain material and gathered into the foot band of stripes.

In the next gown the newest note is the bustle effect gained by the caught-up back drapery, which is the most popular version of the bustle. It is defined by a black velvet bow. It also shows the slit in the back of the skirt and the under petticoat of lace. The material is olive green crepe meteor.

In the fifth model there is the jaunty little bolero made of gay striped silk and worn with a skirt, which is finely pleated and has the tunic effect gained by the use of ruchings.

Plaids and the waistcoat both distinguish the next suit, which is one of the favored Paris models. The fulness of the mulle sleeves is conspicuous and the waistcoat seems in strange contrast to the very feminine frills at the neck. The lower part of the skirt is of fine serge in blue and the plaid shows blue and yellowish tan. The waistcoat is of tan golfine and the blouse blue mulle.

Ashes of roses taffeta with rose pink chiffon cloth forms the last dress. The upper part of the bodice and the tops of the sleeves, the tunic and the underskirt are all of the taffeta. The rest of the bodice is of chiffon. The sash tied just under the tunic is of moire.

What Do Our Visions and Dreams Mean?

By WINIFRED BLACK

(Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

Winifred Black

A PRISONER woke his guards in the old, old prison in the old, old city of Rome the other night.

He screamed at the top of his voice: "My mother, my mother, she is jumping from the window!"

And two days later it turned out that, at the very hour the prisoner had the vision, his mother did jump out of her window at home and kill herself.

Doubtless hundreds of prisoners have waked their guards in that same old prison, perhaps in that same ancient cell, with some such cry of grief and terror.

And doubtless few of their visions turned out to be anything but visions.

Sometimes the things we hear and do not hear make me think of the queer, little, cheap-looking glasses you see in the bath-houses at the summer pavilions.

They make everything they reflect look as queer as they are.

To read the papers one would think that there wasn't such a thing as a happy marriage in the world.

Nobody prints a statement remarking that Mr. and Mrs. John Smith spent the day happily as usual with their children. But if John Smith chases his wife and children out of the house with a butcher knife, the fact gets into the papers, or at least into the neighborhood gossip.

And we all say "what is the world coming to?"

What Is Love's Office?

These strange coincidences of visions and dreams and premonitions and signs and warnings—just how much do they mean, really, I often wonder.

When you begin to get close into shore after an ocean voyage you are quite likely to see the branch of a tree or a bit of wreckage floating in the sea so long unmarked by any sign of land.

Didn't Columbus save his own life and discover America because the lookout saw the limb of a tree floating in the blue sea just as the caravels were about to turn and go back to Spain?

Sometimes I wonder if these visions and these signs are just floating branches, come from some unknown shore not yet visible through the gray mist of our limited human intelligence.

There is one who is very dear to me, and who is often far away, and when he is ill or troubled about anything seriously I always know it.

I have wakened from a deep sleep often and often with that dear face so clear before me that I have spoken the boy's name, and very soon would come the tidings that he had wished for me or needed me at that very hour.

What is there surprising in that?

It seems to me it would be much more astonishing if I did not know when one I love so dearly cried to me from a troubled heart.

What then is love for—if it is so blind, and so deaf, and so dull of comprehension? Are our bodies so much more powerful than our minds—after all?

When one sits in the room with me he can put out his hand and touch me, and I know that he is there. Why should his arm be so much stronger than his mind? Why should my eyes be so quick to recognize and my heart so slow?

"Visions" Often "Common Sense."

It is not strange that that poor prisoner heard his mother's cry of anguish when she bade farewell to life. Doubtless she called his name—the mother who bore him, his own flesh and blood. Why shouldn't he hear her, even though she were miles and miles away?

There is no question at all about it. Thoughts ARE things, and very powerful things at that.

Why should they not be; are they not immortal; do they not live when these, our poor bodies that we make such a to do over, are dust?

No, it isn't Christian Science I'm trying to talk, or Divine Science, or any other kind of science or religion.

It's just plain common sense, and we've always known it all our lives and acted upon it. The only thing is that nowadays we are no longer ashamed of the faith that is within us.

Can't you tell whether people like you or not—no matter how they try to act to you?

Were you ever cheated in a friendship in your life that you were really at the bottom of your heart surprised?

Didn't you know all the time, with that knowledge of the heart that beats all the knowledge of the mind a thousand times in a thousand different ways, that you were befooled and tricked, and didn't you make yourself go against that inward monitor when you came to grief?

Can't you tell when you step inside the doorway of any home in the world, be it humble or magnificent, whether or not it is a happy one?

A quarrel leaves as definite an impression in the air of a room as a cyclone—and just as disastrous a one.

You cannot hate a man without hurting both yourself and him—but yourself the most of all.

Those floating branches of green trees in the blue waters of the strange, mysterious sea we call life—for want of a better name—what do they mean?

Don't you wish we really knew?

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the New Novel, "Diane of the Green Van," Awarded a Prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure, Judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Feminine Sympathy.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

I THINK perhaps Mary and I got a little more upon each other's nerves during an enforced 10 days' illness with my lame foot than we ever had before. I never realized so keenly that Mary and I have not a single taste in common—that we disagree on nearly every subject under the sun. The books I like, Mary loathes, the pictures and music I find interesting, Mary says bore her to death. Therefore, we spent our hours discussing the most banal trivialities, with deadly results.

It was bad enough to sit by the hour talking petty gossip with Mary. It was worse when Mrs. Penfield, my mother-in-law, puffed in upon the scene to entertain me and related doleful tales of the catastrophes that had happened intermittently to her various friends. I never realized how stout and sentimental Mary's mother was until she patted my lame foot and gushingly called me her dear boy and Peterkin! Save us—Peterkin! I blush to tell it.

My mother-in-law makes sentimental nicknames out of the most dignified combination of syllables you can offer her. A horse is a "dear old horse-une," when she addresses it lovingly; a dog is a "dog-un"; Mary's cousin she calls "Fred-une!" and I have become Peterkin. Thank goodness it isn't Peter-une, though it may be in time. Why she has alighted upon that syllable, "un" as the one most capable of expressing her kittenish excess of affection I don't know. But she works it to death, along with a generous sprinkling of dearies and dears and honeys and darlings.

Whenever Mrs. Penfield came I found my only ray of enjoyment in the reflection that she was getting fatter. Also I reflected cynically that the quality she had bequeathed to Mary—a vacillating indecision—was the cause of my tumble through the broken cellar stair which Mary had postponed telling me about.

As Mrs. Penfield grows older and stouter I notice an increasing tendency in her to dress in the most ridiculous extremity of fashion. Heaven alone knows why fat women wear narrow skirts! They do, however, and Mrs. Penfield's is a little narrower than the narrowest. She looks like an elderly top bent upon spinning in juvenile gyrations whether it's getting old or not.

Mary's mother is losing years with miraculous speed. Frequently I find she doesn't remember things that I do. Whether this is a fault of memory due to increasing years, or a peculiarity of memory due to insistent rejuvenescence, I don't know. I know that I mentioned something the other day that happened when I was a youngster of 4 or 5, and Mrs. Penfield said: "Dear me, Peter, that was before my time!"

"It wasn't," I said, ungallantly, "for I was 4 or 5 years old, and you must remember."

"Oh, well," she assured me airily, "it's probably slipped my memory."

But I've heard her use that subterfuge with others, who didn't know her quite so well, and get it over.

The whole truth of the matter is that Mary's mother is growing amiably kittenish. Lacking genuine youth, she desperately strives for the semblance of it with pitiful results. I wonder why women don't try to realize that youth is a thing of the heart and not of the hair.

And speaking of hair, I've lately been watching my mother-in-law's hair in the sunlight, and wondering what makes it look so queerly rusty. Now mother is a little younger than Mrs. Penfield, yet her hair is growing very white in front, and the effect to me is wonderfully pretty, for all it brings a bit of a choke in my throat. The front of Mrs. Penfield's hair is different from the rest, and I'm afraid the truth of the matter is she's fighting Father Time and dyeing her hair!

To me it is the most pitiful of subterfuges elderly women adopt.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

How "Restless" Muscles May Cause Sleep-Walking

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

TO be asleep or not to be asleep. That is the real question about somnambulism. Whether you, who walk in your sleep, are really awake, or whether you are tight asleep with your eyes open, is a moot point.

There be those who maintain that somnambulism, or sleep-walking, like catalepsy, is a variety of insanity. "It is a mild form of lunacy," says one expert. "It is a type of automatism," says another.

A third "authority" is convinced that somnambulism is, after all, a form of auto-hypnotism. It matters very much whether any one of these various views is correct, or whether they are all wrong.

There is much evidence at hand to show that all of these "authorities" are in error. Witness this instance:

Mr. G. S. was accustomed at night to arise an hour or so after he was asleep. He would dress himself, walk down stairs, unlock his front door and walk two miles to a park. Either the cold air, or something would then awaken him.

He would be frightened and amazed to find himself far from home. When he came to my clinic and told me of these repeated sleep-walking habits, he said: "In these spells I always dreamed that a woman walked before me, beckoned her finger, and I followed."

It was discovered that a small lump of flesh pressed upon the back part of his brain. An operation removed this, and the unhappy somnambulist ceased to walk the streets at uncanny hours.

It is said that Job walked in his sleep. This is the 12th and 13th verses of the fourth chapter: "Now a thing was secretly brought to me and mine ear received a little thereof. In thought from the visions of the night, when deep sleep falleth on men, fear came upon me, and trembling, which made all my bones to shake."

Sleep walking in some instances seems to be the outcome of a muscular excitation, established from some derangement of the anatomy.

The wise words of Solomon: "How long wilt thou sleep, O sluggard? When wilt thou arise out of thy sleep?" "Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep," show that sound, non-somnambulistic sleep comes from lack of muscular activity.

Without a doubt, muscular habits once started, even in sleep, will continue like the landslide or earthquake started by a rolling pebble. If some irritating thing, some pain or ache, some disordered nerve, organ or other structure interferes with a loosening and relaxation of your muscles, it is always possible, even in sleep, to start a group of these motor tissues to work.

To cure the sleep-walking habit, large tonsils, adenoids, wax in the ears, noises in the head, pressure in the brain, eye troubles and other bodily derangements must be taken to the medical blacksmithy for correction.

If all serious organic accidents have been eliminated and jacked-up, the habit of somnambulism can be broken by putting locked screens in the bedroom windows and a tub of cold, icy water beside the victim's bed.

The popular fallacy that sleep-walking and the fear of high places are the same can be soon disproved. You need only remember that only one-tenth of one per cent. of people are sleep-walkers, while over 80 per cent. have a sick, dizzy feeling when they stand upon the edge of an abyss or upon a high monument.

Answers to Health Questions

Mrs. W. C. D., Collingwood, N. J.—Nearly a year ago I fell and turned my ankle. There is a sensitive swelling on the bone which hurts when touched but not while walking.

This is evidently not very serious. Hot poultices made of baking soda and glycerine will relieve the trouble. If it does not have a surgeon lance it with extreme care.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie—I am almost 15 years old, and I have gone with a boy for two years. He does not live in my town, and New Year's afternoon he came to visit me. The next day I received a letter from him, and since then I have not heard from him.

When I was visiting in his town I went with him to call on his people. Was this proper?

I never would permit him to kiss me; sometimes he got a little cross, and said when he loved me he didn't think it was wrong.

I shall be very grateful for any advice you may give me.

I correspond with four different boys. Is this too many for my age?

Should I wear my hair down in curls or up?

BRUNETTE

WELL, for goodness sake, Brunette, 14 years old and five love affairs on your hands!

Haven't you any mother at all, or even a maiden aunt? Is there nobody in the world who cares whether you act like a gone goose or a sensible human being? As for this particular boy, what earthly difference does it make whether he thinks this, that, or the other about you? What difference can what he thinks make in your life? It's what you are that's important, and from your own confession you must be a good deal of a goose.

What do you do with your time? Have you no lessons to get—nothing to learn in the world? Are you so clever that nobody can teach you a thing? Or is your head so full of the boys that there isn't room in it for another earthly thought?

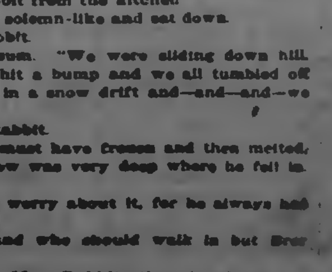
Come now, little sister, come now, get down to some sort of common sense. What is there about a boy that makes him such a wondrous creature?

What does he amount to in the world, anyhow, and where on earth did you get the idea that you can't live without some love affair with one of these rare and radiant beings? Why, honey, what you need, and need cruelly, is a good, hard, old-fashioned spanking. I wish I had you right here with me and I'd give it to you—with a will, too—and then when you were through crying we'd kiss and make up and go out in the kitchen and stir up a plate of fudge and have a good sensible talk about the whole thing.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to

Daddy's Good Night Story—



By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

MISTER POSSUM went to Mrs. Rabbit's door and knocked, "Bang! Bang!! Bang!!!"

"Come in!" shouted Mrs. Rabbit from the kitchen.

Mister Possum went in the house very solemn-like and sat down.

"What is the matter?" asked Mrs. Rabbit.

"Well, I'll tell you," said Mister Possum. "We were sliding down hill. Brer Rabbit was steering. Suddenly we hit a bump and we all tumbled off the bob sled. Your dear husband landed in a snow drift and—and—and—we haven't seen him since."

"My poor husband!" exclaimed Mrs. Rabbit.

"Yes," continued Mister Possum, "he must have frozen and then melted, for we can't find him anywhere. The snow was very deep where he fell in. Not a sign of him was left."

"Well," said Mrs. Rabbit, "I shall not worry about it, for he always had a way of turning up."

Just then the kitchen door opened and who should walk in but Brer Rabbit.

"My dear, dear husband!" exclaimed Mrs. Rabbit, throwing her arms around her husband's neck. "Where have you been?"

"Oh! I fell in a snow bank. Dug myself out on the other side and scampered home."

"There you are!" said Mrs. Rabbit to Mister Possum. "I told you it would not do to worry."

Mister Possum shook hands with Brer Rabbit and then scooted out the door.

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always sufficient. Some Useful Don'ts

Don't use the eyes when they are tired or weak from illness. Don't face the light when reading or sewing. Don't neglect to bathe the eyes before retiring, so as to remove any dust that may have gathered on the lids during the day.

Don't allow a cold, raw wind to strike the eyes. Don't try to get a cinder out of the eye by rubbing the injured orb; rub the other eye. Don't sleep too much or too little; too much sleep weakens the eyes, too little fatigues them.

Don't wear your hair always in the same style; a change of method is beneficial to the hair, and to let it fall loosely about the shoulders is an excellent plan at times.

Don't follow fashion blindly in regard to coiffure if you would have artistic proportions and bring out the best expressions of the face. Don't part the hair in the middle if you are round-faced and chubby; this only emphasizes the disc-like appearance.

Don't get into the habit (quite an easy one to fall into) of frowning. It causes the face to become wrinkled and lined.

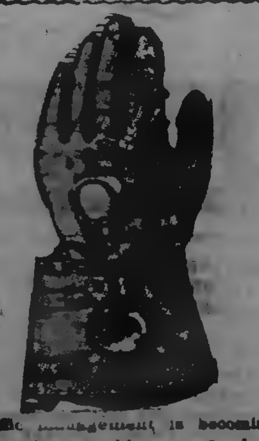
LIGHT AND BELL ON SIGNAL GLOVE



Traffic management is becoming a more serious problem every day in large cities and the matter of keeping things straightened out after nightfall is even more serious than in the daytime. A new device has been invented for the crossing policemen for use in the night time that will take the place of the whistle, it is claimed, and give the people who drive vehicles a better opportunity to understand the signals. This is nothing more or less than a gauntlet fitted with a light and a bell. There are two electric contacts placed on the first finger and one on the thumb of the gauntlet. One of these contacts on the first finger connects with the light, which is set in the back of the gauntlet, and the other connects with the bell. The traffic policeman holds up his hand with the lamp lighted and all comers can see and stop. When he desires the stopped vehicles to move on he moves his thumb to the second contact and the lamp goes out and the bell begins to ring. The bell is a loud tone affair that can be heard above the ordinary roar of the street.

Football Under Difficulties

Mrs. Humphry Ward, speaking at a meeting of the Personal Service Association, told a story to show the difficulties which face the workers at the play centres for children in some districts in Great Britain. "One day, when a game of football was being played," she said, "a worker called to one of the boys, 'Why don't you kick harder?' 'I'd like to,' replied the boy, 'but the sole is half off my right boot, and my left toe's busted.'" The attendance at the centres she said, had risen from 200,000 in the first year to 1,500,000 last year.

To oblige a child to maintain an erect position while writing at a school desk a German scientist has invented a rod to be attached to a desk, terminating in a cup against the child's chin.

Start Lawn From Seed

A well kept lawn adds a finish to the home as nothing else can. Experience has proved that the finest lawns can be started from seed, providing that the requisite preparation is given to the land, and that pure and equitable grasses in sufficient quantity and of uniform variety are sown.

The best soil for a lawn is one which is moderately moist and contains a considerable percentage of clay—a soil somewhat retentive of moisture, but never excessively wet, and one that is inclined to be heavy and compact, rather than light.

Dr. Geo. Clinton, District Medical Health Officer, of Belleville, yesterday repeated his series of pictures depicting means of avoiding tuberculosis, the fly pest, etc., in the Collegiate Institute Assembly room. There was a good attendance and much interest was taken in these moving pictures.

Local Lawyer at Lindsay

At a meeting of the C.M.B.A. held in St. Mary's Hall last night, Mr. Dan O'Connell, one of Peterborough's legal luminaries, addressed the members for about one and one half hours. A full house was noticeable. The topic of discourse was "The Two Civilizations."—Lindsay Warder.

Mr. Burnham One of the Speakers

The Ottawa Citizen advertises the list of special speakers at the Sunday evening meeting at the Family Theatre. The list consists of Messrs. John S. Ewart, K.C., Basil Thompson, O. Klotz, (Astronomer Royal,) J. H. Burnham, M.P., and Hon. W. T. White.

Wild Ducks Going North.

Mayor Buller states that he never saw so many wild ducks, nor saw them flying so low as those that flew past him in the vicinity of McKentys Bay up in the Buckhorn Lake country, where he was a few days ago looking after his wood supply. The game birds are winging their way north.

New Y.M.C.A. Physical Director.

Mr. Geo. A. Carson of Winnipeg, appointed physical director of the local Y.M.C.A. to succeed Mr. J. J. Thompson. Mr. Carson will arrive in Peterborough about June 1. He comes highly recommended and is well qualified for this branch of Y. work. Mr. Carson is a graduate of the Y.M.C.A. College at Springville, Mass.

Knox Church Notes.

Knox church people turned out in large numbers to celebrate the completion of seven years of service on the part of their minister, Rev. Mr. Keith. It turned out to be a much greater success than was anticipated. Sheriff Hall was present on invitation, and represented St. Paul's and Rev. Mr. Pogue.

A Lucky Catch

Hastings Star: Mr. Chas. Huycke had a couple of head of live stock at his sale last week that was not advertised on his sale bill. The day before the sale, Charlie was coming to town when he spied a couple of coons which he promptly captured and they were put up at the sale bringing $7.50.

A Local Conundrum.

If it takes 46 war ships to compel Huerta to salute the American flag how much would it cost to get a Peterborough Alderman to give a satisfactory (to the poor ratepayer) answer to "why is Peterborough soaked 26 mills on the dollar?" A leather medal is offered for the first correct solution.

Barnardo Home Changes.

Yesterday, a "to-let" sign was displayed at 453 Water street. This property, recently purchased by Mr. John Bell, the local poet, was occupied by the bookkeepers and stenographers of the Barnardo Home. The Home decided that this adjunct to their local institution was a unnecessary expense. The occupants will leave at the end of April.

Millbrook's New Hotel.

Mr. W. Gillett the Millbrook undertaker, was in the city yesterday on business. Mr. Gillett told a Times representative that the "new Waverley Inn will be opened at Millbrook on April 20th by Mr. H. Dunsford. He stated that the Waverley is one of the most up-to-date hotels in any place the size of Millbrook. As an ardent advocate of local option, Mr. Gillett is very pleased to see so good a temperance house opened in Millbrook.

A Valuable Fox Skin

Lindsay Warder: Mr. Milton Harrison, of Wilberforce, was in town yesterday, and among other effects which he possessed was a silver grey fox skin. Mr. Harrison is not a regular trapper, but a gentleman who gives some attention to sport of this kind. On many occasions he has captured foxes of a hybrid nature, between a red and grey, but this time he got the Simon Pure that looked like a bank account, which caused him to uphook and hike for Lindsay. Such skins range according to quality, from $40 to $1200 each.

Peterborough's Latest Clock.

Mr. Alex Humphries, of Syracuse, N.Y., yesterday installed at the Oriental Hotel the first clock of its kind ever seen in Peterborough. Below the clock hangs a board with little hooks. Over each hook are numbers corresponding to the various numbers of the hotel rooms. Suppose, for instance, a man in room No. 36 wants a call at 5.15, a brass disk is hung on the hook No. 36. At 5.15 an electric bell rings in No. 36. A scoffer, in the Oriental yesterday said to Mr. Humphries, "The only improvement I could suggest to your clock is that you might have another tag that will notify the office that No. 36 wants a John Collins or a cocktail." The suggestion was not adopted, however.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. [illegible], of [illegible] Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

St. John, N.B., April 17.—At noon to-day in the presence of a gathering of prominent citizens, Mayor Frink, on behalf of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, presented a gold watch and chain to Captain A. Burns of the Government steamer Lansdowne, in recognition of his part in life-saving when the company's steamer Cobequid was wrecked on Trinity Ledges.

THE POPE BEFORE KING

Bitter Feeling Aroused Over Banquet at Winnipeg--Hon. Mr. Doherty Refused to Attend

Winnipeg, April 17.—On the toast list of the Western Canada Catholic banquet last night, the Pope was placed at the head, His Majesty the King was placed second. Because of this Sir D. C. Cameron, lieutenant governor of Manitoba, T.R. Deacon, mayor of Winnipeg, and other prominent men refused to attend. Hon. C. J. Doherty, minister of justice, was also absent. Mr. Doherty's message of regret stated that under ordinary circumstances he would have been most happy to attend.

The affair created considerable discussion in religious, state and civic quarters today, and the matter has not been improved by a mixup at the opening of the banquet. The Pope was duly placed first, and, replying, His Grace Archbishop Langevin, rereferring to the matter, said:

"We will render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's" Following the toast to the Pope, the toastmaster rose and toasted Canada," the third toast on the list, that of the King, being second. The banqueters rose, but the orchestra for some reason, struck up "God Save the King." There was some slight confusion and then the anthem was taken up generally.

NDUS ARE COMING NOW TO TEST LEGISLATION IN CANADA

ish Columbia Members at Ottawa Anxious as to Coming Events

tawa, April 17.—British Colum- members are much excited to-day a despatch from London saying a ship has sailed from Shanghai four hundred Hindus with the idea of testing the recently passed Order-in-Council. The matter will likely be brought up in the House this afternoon by Mr. H. H. Stevens, Vancouver, though it is understood that the Government has received no word of the sailing of any ship.

Judge Hunter's Decision.

It will be recalled that several months ago several Hindus tested in the courts the validity of the Order-in-Council which said that Asiatics could not enter Canada unless coming by direct steamship from their native land.

Judge Hunter upset the orders on the ground that they did not conform with the Act. The Government then repealed the orders and new ones were passed which it was believed would meet the technical objections raised by Judge Hunter.

Laborers are Barred.

However, outside of these orders there is at present an Order-in-Council passed March 31 and to be in force for six months which prohibits the entrance of all artisans and laborers into British Columbia. It is believed that this order, at least, will effectually bar the entrance of the coming Hindus.

FOUR BODIES FLOAT ASHORE

Monmouth Beach, N. J., April 17.—The body of Mrs. H. G. Hardy, wife of the Captain of the schooner Charles K. Buckley, which stranded and went to pieces on the beach near here Wednesday night, floated ashore to-day, as did the bodies of three members of the crew. Whether Capt. Hardy's body was among the four was not at first determined. Ten persons in all perished in the wreck. One sailor was rescued. [illegible]

RECEPTION ANNUELLA DE LA FIRME, CONSERVATOIRE

Last night the big hall of the Conservatory of Music was well filled with a gathering of the youth and beauty of Peterborough. The young people to quote, "looked love into eyes that spake again." Gallant cavaliers, looking for the main chance took their respective demoiselles (this was a French affaire) to secluded corners and whispered words of love that sunk into eager ears, but were superficially denied by lips surmounted by cheeks which glowed with youth and love.

MAN AND GIRL TIED HAND AND FOOT, BURN

What Appears to Be a Double Murder is Disclosed in South Dakota Town.

Geddes, S.D., April 17.—What appears to be a double murder was disclosed here to-day when the bodies of W. H. Menzie, manager of the Farmers' Lumber Yard here, which was burned last night, and his bookkeeper, Miss Blanche Signal, were found in the debris of the lumber office. Both bodies were badly charred. The feet of Miss Signal were tied with a wire and her hands wired behind her. Her skull had been crushed with a hammer which was found nearby. Mr Menzie's feet also were wired together and a wire was found on one wrist, the other was broken. His skull also had been fractured. There is no clew and no known motive for the murder has been discovered.

SHOOTS YOUNG WIFE WHILE IN A JEALOUS RAGE

John H. Collins, Jamaica Plain Under Arrest on Murder Charge—Tragedy at Home of Mrs. Collin's Father.

Boston, April 17.—Mrs. Agnes Collins was shot and killed instantly while preparing the evening meal for her father's family at 3421 Washington street, Jamaica Plain, last night by her husband, John H. Collins, whom she left last November, claiming she did so because he did not support her and her two small children.

Collins was caught and admitted that he had killed his wife. When asked why he done it, he mumbled something the arresting officers interpreted to mean that he was jealous of his wife.

Collins was locked up in the Jamaica Plain police station, charged with murder.

Mrs. Collins and the two children, Cyril, one year old, and John, five, were the only persons in the house of her father, James J. Curley, when Collins made his way into the kitchen. According to the story of little John Mrs. Collins had Cyril in her arms when her husband approached her. The police believe the shooting was done almost without warning. The revolver found on Collins when he was arrested had two chambers empty. One bullet had pierced Mrs. Collins's breast and the other entered at the waist-line.

Mr. Curley, father of Mrs. Collins, entered the house after his day's work and met Collins in the hall, carrying little Cyril in his arms. He glanced at his daughter's prostrate and bleeding body and exclaimed to his son-in-law, "For God's sake, what have you done?" The reply, prefaced by an epithet, was: "Shut up, or I'll give it to you, too."

SCHOOL FUNDS ARE MISAPPLIED

Separate School Favored By Ontario Government

At the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature, it was learned that a system of "paring" grants to rural public schools was discovered by Mr. Bowman during his examination of Mr. J. R. Humphries of the Department of Education. In 1912, the witness stated, the rural public and separate schools earned $80,000 more than the grant voted by the House, and this deficiency was made up by the Treasury Board. In 1913, however, the rural public and separate schools earned $120,000 more than the grant. But this time the Treasury Board would not come to the relief of the Education Department. The result was that the department made "fish of one and flesh of another." The separate schools received their grant in full, and the public schools only received 72 per cent of the amount earned out of the grant. In other words the rural public schools stood the entire amount of the deficiency, and while the separate schools which had earned their part of the excess, were paid in full, the public schools had to bear the entire amount of the $120,000 which all schools earned in excess of the grant.

OTTAWA RESIGNED WOMEN SMOKERS

In High-Class Cafe One May See Weed Used by Well Grown Patrons

Ottawa, April 17.—A number of members of the Border Anti-Cigarette Committee are talking to-day of calling more witnesses to give evidence on the growth of smoking among women in Canada. They feel that this side of the question should be studied as well as the prevalence of the habit among juveniles and that it also form a strong reason for prohibiting the manufacture and importation of cigarettes in Canada.

Mr. Scott Knows His Facts.

The testimony of Mr. W. L. Scott before the Border committee yesterday that the women of the most exclusive set of the Capital and most of the girls of the best families of Ottawa were cigarette smokers add that the habit was increasing at a rapid rate creatd a flutter in the society dove-cotes.

Mr. Scott, by the way is a son of the late Sir Richard Scott, a brother of Mr. D'Arcy Scott, vice chairman of the railway commission, an Ottawa lawyer and a frequenter of social functions, so that he should know what he is talking about.

SHOOTS HIS WIFE.

Belaire, Ohio, April 17.—Angry because his wife refused to pay half the costs of a divorce action he had instituted against her, John Luggl early to-day shot her four times inflicting probably fatal wounds. He then killed himself.

NEXT WHITE HOUSE WEDDING MAY SEVEN

Miss Eleanor Wilson and Mr. McAdoo Ask No Fuss and so Invitations are Few.

Washinbton, April 17.—The President and Mrs. Wilson announced to-day that the wedding of their youngest daughter, Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, and Secretary McAdoo, would take place on Thursday, May 7th.

The announcement from the White House giving the date of the wedding also said:

"In accordance with the wishes of Miss Wilson and Mr. McAdoo, the wedding will be very small, only the Vice-President and Mrs. Marshall, the Cabinet and the immediate members of the two families are to be present."

DENIAL OF QUEEN'S OF RUMORED CHANGE

Registrar Chown and Principal Gordon Issue Statement to This Effect.

Kingston, April 17.—There is absolutely no foundation for the story of friction in Queen's University over the Major Leonard gift; nor has there been the sliggtest foundation for rumored charges in any of the faculties of the UOhiversity. I am at a loss to know how such a story originated.

This was the statement authorised to-day by Mr. F. Y. Chown, registrar, who also atated that he had discussed the newspaper stoey with Principal Gordon. The principal is ill, and could not be seen, but this statement was issued with his consent.

On board S.S. Dalhousie City, Mid Lake, April 17.—To Mr. D. B. Hanna, President Niagara, St. Catherines and Toronto Navigation Company:

We desire to transmit to you the first wireless message from any passenger steamer on the lake, and congratulate you on equipping the vessels of this company with the greatest life-saving device that human ingenuity has yet devised.

(Signed)

W. B. Robertson,
Superintendent.

This message was sent from the Dalhousie City at 9.15 to-day to mark the latest development of inland navigation. It represents the first use made of the Marconi system by a public service on the Great Lakes, although Mr. Eaton's yacht has been fitted with wireless apparatus for some time.

All passenger steamers plying on the lakes will be similarly equipped this season. Mr. H. G. Wiltse, general agent of the Niagara, St. Catherines and Toronto Navigation Co. said this morning that all their vessels would be provided with Marconi installations before they left port.

U.S. WARSHIPS MAY STILL BE IN ACTION WILSON MAY REFUSE NEWEST DEMAND

Huerta Demands Gun for Gun Salute Which is Laying it on Too Thick According to Friends of President

Washington, April 17.—Huerta has parleyed again. He demands that his salute to the United States flag shall be returned simultaneously. This, President Wilson is practically certain not to accept. This latest hitch at the eleventh hour, when officials here expected the situation was as good as closed up, was discussed in despatches from Charge O'Shaughnessy. President Wilson discussed it with the Cabinet. Administration officials said privately, Huerta's counter proposition would not be accepted.

Ships Are Allowed to Go On.

The development confirmed the fears of those officials who expected Huerta would equivocate again. Any intention of recalling any ships of the fleet now bound for Tampico was abandoned, and those close to the Administration expected to see President Wilson's demand for an unqualified apology backed up.

"Unfinished," Says Bryan.

Secretary of State Bryan, before presenting the latest Mexican despatches to President Wilson to-day, said the negotiations were "encouraging, but unfinished."

White House officials said some details remained to be arranged, but that they did not relate to "the heart of the matter."

ANOTHER EDITOR WILL BE CALLED TO THE BAR

Mr. W. H. Dennis, Chief of Halifax Mail Called to Account.

Halifax, N.S. April 17.—Following an article appearing in the Evening Mail of last night inferring that if the Legislature passed the bill to incorporate the Nova Scotia Power Company, the conclusion to be drawn would be that the members had been bought, it was reported to-day that W. H. Dennis jr., Manager of The Mail, would be called to the bar of the House this afternoon and be asked to explain,

KING TOASTED AFTER POPE

Winnipeg Banquet Recalls Similar Event in Peterborough

Referring to an article concerning a toast to the Pope, at a recent banquet held in Winnipeg, being given before that to the King, it is interesting to note that a similar occurrence took place in Peterborough at the installation of the late Rev. Dr. Jamot, as Bishop of this diocese. On that occasion a banquet was tendered to the new bishop at the Oriental Hotel, which was attended by leading Protestant citizens as well as Roman Catholics. The chair was occupied by the late Archbishop Cleary, of Kingston. There were a large number of Bishops and clergymen in attendance. After the banquet, when the time for speech-making arrived, the chairman proposed the toast to the Pope before that of the late Queen. The result was that quite a number of Protestants at once withdrew and a very strong feeling of indignation was aroused throughout the entire community.

It was argued, in defense of this procedure that it was a church function, and, as such, the Pope had a right of precedence. This, however, was denied. It was subsequently pointed out by The Times, that it was a public and not a church function, as, on invitation, it was attended by members of the press, members of Parliament, city officials and other public men. It has been authoritively conceded that this latter feature alone was sufficient to dispose of the argument that it was purely a church function. The fact that Roman Catholics everywhere toast the Pope before the King, wherever possible, was also argued at that time. The fact that the Pope claims to be superior to our King is not conducive to harmony between Protestants and Catholics.

We are pleased to note, by reports in the daily papers that many of those invited to the Winnipeg gathering, when they found that the Pope was to take precedence to the King expressed their disapproval by not attending.

"HOLD-UP" RESULT OF CRAP GAME, IS REPORTED

Negroes in Fight Led To Death Of Two.

New Orleans, April 17.—The "hold-up" on the Illinois Central near Tangipahoa Saturday, which resulted in the death of two negroes, was not an attempt to rob the train, but the outcome of the porter's effort to break up a game of craps in the front car for blacks, is a rumor which is gaining credence rapidly in Tangipahoa and neighboring towns.

A railroad employe is said to have declared that Conductor Brous, in charge of the train, ordered Isom Allen, the porter, to go to the front and stop the game, which he had been told was in progress.

According to the new version of the "hold-up," Allen went into the negroes' car and told the gamesters that they would have to stop playing. An altercation ensued, and Anderson is said to have drawn a revolver and fired into Allen at close range, the bullets entering the abdomen. When Allen fell, Anderson stepped over the body to escape, and as he prepared to escape by jumping from the train lost his footing, slipped and tumbled to death on the racing roadbed beneath.

TO DISCUSS CHRIST'S SECOND COMING

Unsectarian Bible Lecturer Will Deliver Address to Public in Royal Theatre To-morrow.

The Public Bible Lecture Course now being given here under the auspices of the International Bible Students Association is attracting much attention. Many who attended the opening lecture expressed their determination to take in the entire course. "Christ's Second Coming: Why? How? When?" is the subject announced for the second lecture of the series, to be given Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the Royal Theatre, by Jos. Frappy, of Stirling.

It is expected that this lecture will differ considerably from what is usually heard on this subject. The speaker is said to be well versed in the Scriptures and to have very definite and positive ideas as to what they teach on this importane subject. A cordial invitation is extended to the public. No charge will be made for admission and no collections taken.

To Keep The Face Fresh, Clear and Youthful.

More important than the cosmetic care of the complexion is its physical care. To keep the face clean, fresh, youthful, there's nothing better than common mercolized wax. It absorbs the soiled or faded worn-out skin particles. Cosmetics simply add unwholesomeness to the complexion. That's the difference. By all means, acquire the mercolized wax habit. It's so easy to get an ounce of the wax at the druggist's, apply at night like cold cream and wash it off next morning. There's no detention indoors, the old skin coming off so gradually no one suspects you're using anything. When in a week or two the alluringly youthful, roselike underskin is fully in view— well, you won't want, or need, a make-up complexion after that. It must be apparent that this process means complete riddance of all cutaneous blemishes, like freckles, pimples, blotches and blackheads.

For obstinate wrinkles, a face bath made by dissolving an ounce of saxolite in a half pint witch hazel, surpasses massage cream and everything else for results.

MOTHERS' PENSION PLAN

Novel Undertaking by People of an Indiana Town

A mothers' pension plan is in effect in Evansville, although there is no law in Indiana creating a mothers' pension fund.

The pension arose in this way. Mrs. Alice Kelley, widow, announced through a newspaper that she would be forced to give away two of her children. She said that since the death of her husband she had earned a scant living at the washtub, but that her health had begun to fail and she felt she could bear the burden no longer.

Mrs. J. H. Conn, president of the Cumberland Circle of King's Daughters, took up the matter, and several other people in the city became interested and agreed to give Mrs. Kelly a certain sum each week for one year. This led to the organization of Mothers' Pension Club No. 1, and the club has paid Mrs. Kelly $2.50 each week.

An Awkward Motto

A good story relating to the Erskine family motto is recalled by the recent death of Lord Erskine, who was a great-grandson of the famous first Lord Erskine, Lord Chancellor of Great Britain. For centuries the family motto had been "judge not." When the first Lord Erskine became Lord Chancellor, chief of all the judges of the Empire and the Sovereign's legal adviser, the motto was obviously an awkward dictum to appear on the panels of his carriage and elsewhere. His Lordship proved himself to be a man of the times and invented a new motto for himself—"Trial by jury"—which has ever since appeared beneath the family arms.

Lord Macaulay's Precocity

In the story of Lord Macaulay's very precocious childhood we are told of a little plot of ground in the garden marked as his own by a border of oyster shells. The maid one day threw these away as rubbish; he ran straight to the drawing room, where his mother was entertaining guests, and said with the solemn intensity of childhood: "Cursed be Sally, for it is written, cursed be he that removeth his neighbor's landmark."

CANADA'S DIRTY STREETS

Europe Sets Example in Cleaning Thoroughfares

Ottawa is by no means the worst offender among the cities of Canada in having dirty streets, says the Ottawa Free Press. Montreal is generally held up as an awful example of dirty streets, while Winnipeg boasts of having the cleanest on the continent. The United States cannot be looked to in this regard, as the cities of that country, most of them, suffer as severely from improperly cleaned streets as do the cities of Canada. It is in Europe that lessons in street cleaning must be obtained.

Perhaps the most striking difference noticed by the Canadian tourist abroad between Canadian and European cities is the cleanness of the streets of the latter, particularly in such places as Berlin and Dresden.

Clean streets, as the term is understood abroad, are unknown in the cities of this country. The dirtiness of our streets, both in summer and winter, with their clouds of dust and charged with disease germs and filth of all kinds, makes walking almost intolerable and imposes on storekeepers a burden of cleaning that is far more expensive in the aggregate than would be the proper and systematic cleaning of the streets.

Only occasionally, when the streets are locally flushed, can the conditions of our streets be compared with those abroad, where street cleanliness is one of the first principles of city administration.

Yet, by the use of proper methods and apparatus, the streets of a city may be kept clean, within reasonable limits of expense.

Parrot in Pink Hose

One of the parrots at the National Cage Bird Show in England was garbed in a red corsage, black skirt, and green coat, its bright red beak surmounted by a purple headdress, and its hose was a delicate pink. Its conversation was of the brief, rapid, but exultant style beloved of Marinetti, and its every movement spoke the joy of living.

His Quiver Full

The Rev. E. J. Hardy, in his new book, "Still Happy Though Married," writes: "Some one is said to have begun a story of a trifling adventure with the words, 'As I was crossing Oxford street the other day with fourteen of my daughters.'"

KITCHEN WRINKLES

A piece of starch placed in the will keep flowers fresh for quite a long period.

If a little saltpetre is sprinkled over fire occasionally it will keep the chimney free from soot.

After washing cut-glass articles let them dry and afterwards rub them carefully with prepared chalk, with a soft brush.

Potatoes are more nutritious if boiled in their skins, after being scrubbed clean; they can be skinned before taking to table.

After using a gas-stove for baking leave the door open a little while to allow the heat to escape. This will prevent sweating and rusting.

The best way to keep a dustbin fresh and clean is to put hot ashes into it each time it has been emptied. It keeps it quite clean and free from all smells.

Celery or parsley rubbed on the hands after peeling onions will counteract the odor. Lemon, borax, or ammonia is excellent for removing stains from the hands.

Brown stockings should never be ironed, but just pressed through the mangle to smooth them out. A hot iron will spoil the color and give them an unpleasant yellw tint.

When washing oilcloth a tablespoonful of painters' size added to a pail of water will give it a glossy surface and make it wear much better than when washed in the ordinary way.

Not only is powdered oatmeal good for the complexion, but a little of it thrown into the water in which the face and hands are bathed has a softening and whitening effect.

When cooking kippers, place them on a dish or tin with a piece of butter on each; cover and leave in a fairly hot oven for ten minutes. This method preserves the juice and the flavor of the fish better than frying.

When cleaning stone steps and hearths mix the white hearthstone or red ochre with thin starch instead of water. This causes it to stick to the stones, and it will not be washed off so quickly with rain or be trodden off.

To clean the inside of a silver teapot, mix together equal quantities of soda, vinegar, and flour. Paste this around the inside of the pot and let it stand overnight. It will make the inside as bright as possible with very little labor.

When a splinter gets under a fingernail it is often very hard to draw out. In such a case, if a cold water bandage is put round the top of the finger and then kept wet and cold it will in time both draw out the splinter and keep the finger from festering.

The Forth Bridge

The Forth Bridge in Scotland has a total length, with its approaches, of 8,296 feet. It contains 50,958 tons of steel, and required 6,500,000 rivets to fasten it together. There are three huge built graceful steel towers, each 345 feet high, from which are built out the great cantilever arms, each 680 feet in length. Sir Benjamin Baker declared that a battleship could be hung at the end of each cantilever arm without causing the ties at the tops at the tower to part, so strong is the structure. The bridge contains two spans of 1,700 feet, the greatest of all bridge spans. The structure took seven years to build, cost $15,000,000, and demanded a toll of fifty-seven lives.

To Keep Young

Keep in the sunlight.

Don't be afraid. Fear is one of the greatest enemies we have.

Avoid excess of any kind. Don't overeat, eat the wrong thing, or eat in an irregular way.

Don't think on your birthday that you are a year older; you are only one day older than the day before.

Like a child, live simply, and keep clear of entanglements and complications of all kinds.

Cultivate contentment. Dissatisfaction brings age furrows prematurely to the face.

When you go to bed at night, make a habit of throwing off all the cares of the day. Just rest.

Hero Dogs

One of the most interesting classes in English dog shows is the "heroes" class. Dogs who have saved life from fire or drowning make up the chief proportion of heroes among dogs; and one year's entries also included a dog which had protected a policeman from the attack of a sailor's knife, one that had rescued a child from being run over by a horse and wagon, and another who had helped a clergyman to find his "lost" little daughter.

Nothing New

Those Futurist women who try to show their Futurism by wearing green and blue and pink hair are really a few centuries behind the times. Colored hair is nothing but a back number. Ancient Rome saw the first of the craze, and the Roman matrons kept the wigmakers busy supplying them with hair of all hues for all occasions. Faustina, wife of Marcus Aurelius, had several hundred colored wigs in her wardrobe.

Spare the Rubbing

Soak clothes overnight to loosen the dirt, and wring out into hot soapy water next morning. Instead of putting the washboard into the tub and rubbing the clothes up and down upon it, lay the board across the tub, and, having soaped the piece to be washed, scrub it with a nail brush or a small ordinary scrubbing brush. This is quicker, saves the hands, and the garments will last longer than when rubbed upon the board.

DAIRY FEEDING

There can be no hard and fast rules in feeding. Each dairyman must study his herd and the feed at his command.

There are certain principles, though, that can be applied to dairymen everywhere.

All cows should be given as much feed as they will consume without gaining in weight. If they gain in weight the feed given is not properly balanced. Too much feed rich in carbohydrates is being fed. These foods are corn, corn silage, oats, carrots, sugar beets, timothy hay, etc., and they produce fat and energy.

Foods rich in protein are alfalfa hay, clover hay, bran, oil meal, cottonseed meal, gluten meal, etc. These foods produce muscle tissue and milk.

Balance your ration.

Feed all the roughage, such as alfalfa, clover hay, corn silage, ect., that the cows will eat up clean.

About one pound of grain for every three pounds of milk produced should be given daily.

Succulent feed, such as corn silage and roots, should be fed, as it is both profitable and it makes the ration more palatable.

Whenever the dry season sets in, supplement the pasture by feeding silage. This feeding of silage in the dry season helps greatly to keep up the milk production.

Study your cows and the feed that you have. Prepare a balance ration, have good pasture, and keep the cows in good condition.—Rural Farmer.

To Save Fenceposts

A new bulletin is now available at the Forestry Branch, Ottawa, describing some simple and inexpensive methods of preserving fenceposts from decay. It has been found that the generous application of hot creosote to well-seasoned posts stripped of bark, even when only painted on with a brush, will add at least ten years to the life of the least durable woods. Many common Canadian woods which hitherto decayed too rapidly to be so used are thus made available for fenceposts. The saving in first cost and transportation more than balances the cost of treatment, while the cost of placing the post will be much less when considered as an annual charge.

FOLKLORE OF LONDON

Superstition of a Girl Who Has Been Jilted

Italy and the East-end of London may especially be considered to be homes of the folklore of the world, according to Mr. Edward Lovett, a member of the Folklore Society, who gave a lecture at the Horniman Museum. When a young girl in the East-end is jilted by her lover she invariably proceeds to the nearest chemist's and purchases some auris root, which she takes home without speaking to anyone and burns it. The one who has jilted her is then sure to repent of his unfaithfulness and return to her. Amongst the Jewish community charms are largely used. One of the most important is that which is hung around the neck of young boys when born. It generally bears the words, "May this boy grow up in thy law and guard him from the evil eye." The broken horn charm is considered the most lucky one in nearly all countries. The balls made of glass which we see here in some sweetshops are hung up in grain fields in Italy to prevent the witches from damaging the crop; in the East-end they are considered to bring good luck to the owner of the shop. In the East-end the coral necklace is put round the necks of children with weak eyes. It is regarded as better than any doctor's prescription. The coral being the color of blood, brings pure blood to the eyes, and so strengthens them. Throughout London placing a cork in the bed is regarded by hundreds as a sure preventive against cramp.

Queen's Guests Disturbed

Queen Alexandra quite upset her guests at a house party in Norfolk by appearing at the breakfast table.

This would not have been so serious had the dowager been in the habit of doing so, but it was the first time she had thus come down from her bed chamber in the morning for twenty-five years. The women at the house party had not brought any breakfast gowns.

The Queen was much amused at the perturbation of her guests, but as she herself appeared in only a dainty white satin and lace blouse and navy blue, black braided skirt, their plight was not so terrible.

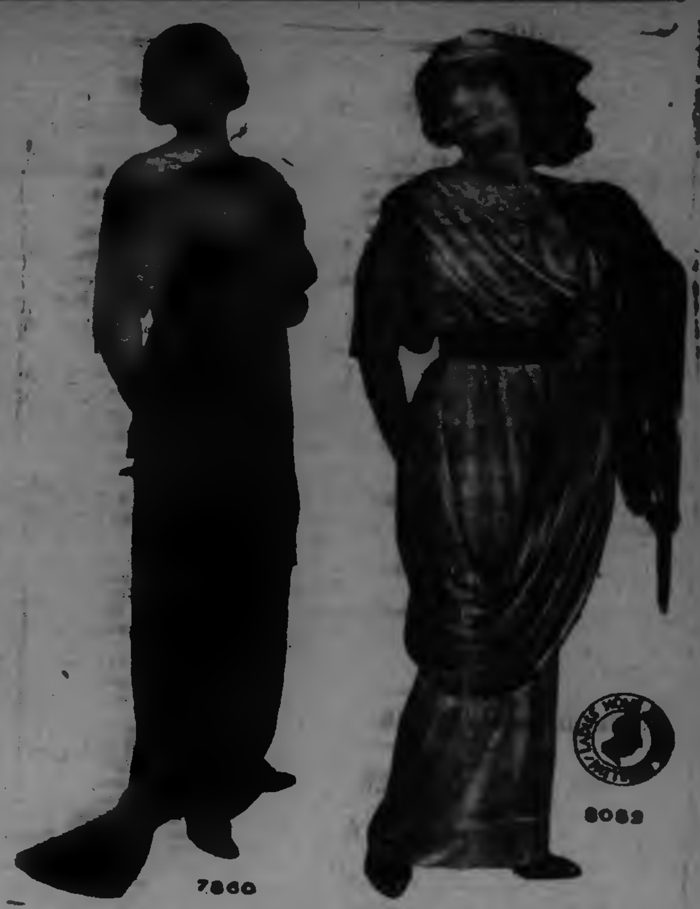
AND PAILS RETAIN THE HEAT OF THE WATER MUCH LONGER THAN THE WOODEN OR GALVANIZED IRON ONES — ARE CHEAPER THAN THE LATTER — WILL LAST LONGER AND DOES NOT RUST THE CLOTHES.



SLEEVES ARE OF ALL LENGTHS AND USUALLY OF NET OR LACE

This season we depend upon a cleverly arranged sash or girdle, an odd cut in tunic or peplum, or an ingenious collar for novelty. In the matter of sleeves there is wide choice; they may be long enough to cover the finger tips, elbow length or missing entirely, as suits the fancy. It is a rather effective fad to have them differ in length or material; for instance, one may be of chiffon, the other of lace or one may be long and the other short.

In No. 8082 is shown an elbow sleeve of net on one side and on the other a long, pointed wing-like sleeve of the silk with a tasseled end. The dress is of light yellow liberty satin, with a guimpe of allover lace. It is a very attractive gown for afternoon or for dancing and may be copied in size 36 with about 7 yards of 36 inch material and 1¼ yards of lace for the guimpe. Liberty satin averages $1.25 per yard.

A simple, dignified dinner dress of black satin trimmed with jet, is illustrated in the other model, No. 7860. The upper part of the bodice is of lace over flesh colored chiffon.

This gown requires for size 36, 4½ yards of 36 inch material for draped skirt and overblouse and 4½ yards for foundation skirt and guimpe.

No. 7860—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8082—sizes 34 to 42.

THE OVERBLOUSE FROCK AN ECONOMICAL AND BECOMING MODE

Laces play an important part in the costume world this season; they are used for trimming, for collars, cuffs, tunics and blouses. The underblouse of lace or chiffon works wonders with a frock the color of which is somewhat trying and its softness is very becoming.

While taffetas is very smart, it is seldom becoming if worn too close to the face. In No. 8259 is shown an attractive overblouse dress of dark green taffetas. The bodice shows the new yoke, a skirt with a puff and shaped trimming band. The underblouse is of shadow lace over chiffon.

To copy this dress in size 36, it requires 5½ yards of 36 inch material.

The other frock illustrated is also in overblouse effect, with a guimpe of figured net. The one-sided tunic is pleated to give the effect of box pleats and falls gracefully over a slender, two-piece skirt. Silk poplin in a rich mahogany shade is the material, with a collar and girdle of velvet in the same shade. A wide fall of lace finishes the sleeves, and the bottom of the skirt is embroidered.

This gown requires for size 36, 5½ yards of 36 inch material.

Silk poplin ranges in price from 75 cents to $3 a yard.

No. 8259—sizes 34 to 42.

Each pattern 15 cents.

Largest Hats in the World

What would you think of a hat that was so large it would safely shelter your father, mother, sisters and yourself under it should a sudden rainstorm come up? The men of Korea like these enormous hats and would not feel properly dressed without them. These hats look like great flower pots set on a round table six feet across. The crowns are nine feet in height, and three inches wide, much like a chimney on a one-story house. How do you suppose these large, round head coverings are kept on? Under the brim is a small, close-fitting cap, held on by a padded string which ties under the arm. The material of these hats is bamboo, so [illegible] that it is like thread; and [illegible] they are varnished to keep out the dew, and rain, and the wind.

Separating Tumblers

If two glass dishes or tumblers stick together very tightly, try filling the inner one with cold water and holding the outer one in warm water. They will separate at once.

Dip Gas Mantles in Vinegar

If new gas mantles be dipped into vinegar and hung up to dry before being placed upon the gas fixtures they will give a more brilliant light and last longer.

Model Husband

Mrs. Baker, of Brooklyn, New York, in applying for a warrant against her husband who had left her, described him as a model of sweetness, who, she said, "washed, ironed, [illegible] potatoes, cooked, [illegible], swept, ran errands and [illegible] did as he was told."

OUR POINT OF VIEW

The man who quit his home because his wife's mother presented his wife with a scolding parrot has at least learned a fine point on the mother-in-law game.

According to a recent report the mileage of electric railway lines in New York state increased forty-four per cent during the decade from 1902 to 1912, and the number of passengers increased eighty-six per cent. In the face of this development the steam traffic has also increased.

WOMEN IN POLITICS

The Illinois election showed one thing very clearly. The women of that state did not need any great instruction in the ins and outs of election and campaign methods. They went at it as though they were to the manner born. They showed that they know how to fight and how to fight hard. What is more, they also showed that they know how to take a defeat and prepare for the next fight. 160,000 women out of the 200,000 registered voted. They voted very much as the men did and not together as some have thought they would. So that the results of the election show no direct influence of their voting. But the influence was there just the same and the Chicago newspapers seem to be of the opinion that much good has come from this election. While some saloons were eliminated, in the cities where the issue was raised and fought out, the saloons won out and some say by the votes and counsel of women. We are got sufficiently interested in all the local issues that were decided but it is very evident that the trend was upward. Waste has been lessened and efficiency increased.

Of course, it is true that when it comes to the ballot there is not much difference between men and women. They must listen to the same arguments and base their decisions upon them. Consequently the individual and personal education really forms the main factor. In matters of social reform, however, it is more than probable that the consciences of women would respond the more readily to the appeal of reform.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Making a Reputation in the West.

Saskatchewan Man Tells How They Cured Him, After Four Months' Suffering From Backache and Other Forms of Kidney Disease.

St. Phillips, Sask., April 17.—(Special,)—In a new country where changes of climate and impure water are among the difficulties to be surmounted, kidney trouble is prevalent. It is the kidneys, the organs that strain the impurities out of the blood, that first feel any undue strain on the body. Consequently Dodd's Kidney Pills have been well tried and tested in this neighborhood.

They have stood the test. Many settlers tell of backache, rheumatism and urinary troubles cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Otto Olshewski is one of these. In speaking of his cure he says:

"I suffered from kidney disease for four months. My back ached. I had heart flutterings, and was always tired and nervous. My skin had a harsh, dry feeling; my limbs were heavy; and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"I consulted a doctor, but as I did not appear to improve, I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used six boxes and now I am all right."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always stand the test. Ask your neighbors.

SUPERVISOR OF INDIAN BUREAU KILLS HIMSELF

E. P. Holcombe Was Despondent Because of Ill-health.

Washington, April 17.—E. P. Holcombe, chief supervisor of the Indian Bureau, shot and killed himself in a room of a downtown hotel here late today.

Holcombe's assistants believed he was led to take his life through despondency over his physical condition, of which he had continually complained recently.

Officials of the Interior Department with whom Holcombe had been associated for 20 years, said the affairs of his office were in perfect shape.

Among the papers which littered the room when the police entered, following the pistol shot, was a letter requesting the authorities to inform his wife and children at Denver of his act

The dead official was 50 years old, and was said to have been a native of Virginia. He had no relatives in Washington so far as is known.

"CUPID'S SPECIAL" TAKES 300 INTO WASHINGTON

Semi-Annual Excursion from Which Many Weddings Result.

Washington, April 17.—Cupid's special reached Washington in the shape of an excursion train from Richmond Va., bringing 300 people from that city and other places in the old Dominion.

The excursion is a semi-annual affair arranged by Mrs. J. R. Gill in aid of a home for orphan boys which she manages in Richmond, and from the fact that a considerable number of her patrons have taken advantage of the opportunity to get married in Washington the title "Cupid's Special," has been derived.

Within five minutes after the excursion train reached the Union Station three couples of the excursionists were on their way to the court house to get marriage licenses.

Mrs. Gill said she believed many more of her charges will enter into the bonds of matrimony before the time for the excursionists to start back to Richmond.

A Very Chic Gown

Washing Silk Handkerchiefs

When washing silk handkerchiefs a little care is required to prevent them from turning yellow, and to avoid this they should never be boiled or have any soap rubbed on them. Make a lather of finely shredded white soap and lukewarm water, wash and squeeze the handkerchiefs in it; press out all the moisture possible and dry them quickly. Iron while they are still damp, though not wet.

TRAINING FOR LIFE

"What the future calling (of the boy) will be is not difficult to decide For three out of four boys in the west it will be farming. Let, then, his school course be colored with agriculture. Usually nature study is thought to be all that is necessary But this nature study too often deals with objects remote from farm life. What is wanted is nature study of such objects as grains, roots, grasses, weeds, animals and birds in their relation to the farm; in other words simple courses in agriculture, studied not from books, but from nature. Similarly, courses in cooking, sewing, etc., are desirable for girls. If, with these, manual training in woodworking and ironworking could be given, the vocational tinge would be complete. These additions, however, might require too much equipment and at least a second teacher. The consolidated school solves this problem. In the single school, however, the elementary courses in agriculture, with probably a school garden, could be given. This plan requires trained teachers. Without good teachers such a course will not only become a farce, but will disgust the children and turn them from the farm. To secure such teachers our high schools must have good courses in agriculture. No shams, no makebelieves; but strong and thorough courses, taught by men and women trained in agricultural colleges and universities. The agricultural specialist in the high school should be the equal of the mathematical, the English or any other specialist. He should be a college-trained man. If good teachers are secured, these courses can be given in the public schools and the high schools without neglecting any of the present work." —President Murray of Saskatchewan University.

PRINCESS MARY STILL IN THE SCHOOLROOM

Is Shy and no Book Lover But Likes Outdoor Sports

Princess Mary will attain her 17th birthday on April 26th, but Queen Mary has no intention of introducing her daughter in the world as a grown-up young lady till after she is 18. As a matter of fact the Princess looks younger than her real age, and in mind and education she is younger, for though, naturally, she has had every educational advantage she has been brought up so simply that in mind she remains somewhat undeveloped.

To a certain extent she inherits her mother's shyness and lack of geniality. Queen Mary even now will shed tears of sheer nervousness at the prospect of receiving an Ambassador and his suite, though she will converse with perfect aplomb, intelligence, and interest with a doctor at a large hospital or will present prizes in public to poor children with a charming little greeting for each recipient in the view of cheering thousands.

The Princess inherits some of the traits of her great-grandmother, Queen Victoria. She has, like her ancestors, no sense of humor, and in spite of the sensible upbringing of her parents has a considerable idea of her own importance. She is something of an autocrat among her brothers, and at Sandringham, the charming country house of the King and Queen in Norfolk, there is sometimes a good deal of sparring and an exchange of much plainness of speech.

Princess Mary does not care much for books, though she is a good linguist, having had French and German governesses from her earliest childhood. She is devoted to outdoor life, especially to riding. It is no secret that she would much like to ride astride, as so many of her friends are doing in the park, but this the Queen sternly forbids. No doubt her Majesty wisely turns her head when in the privacy of the Sandringham paddocks her daughter, springing on the back of her pony with or without a saddle—it is all one to her—tears madly up and down with her hair flying and more often than not both feet out of the stirrups.

Like her mother, the Princess takes but very little interest in dress. Even her beautiful golden hair is tossed back as a tiresome mane, while at 16 she leaves her clothes entirely to her mother, who sets herself conscientiously to the performance of a duty for which she is entirely unfitted. Many people think it is impossible to make a child plain and ungraceful, but certainly that result has been achieved many times by her Majesty of England during the childhood of Princess Mary. At a flower show, in brilliant June sunshine, the poor child appeared swathed in hot black serge with no relieving piece of lace or tulle, because her grandfather, the late King Edward, had recently died. "Surely," said a sympathetic mother in the crowd, "a black sash on a white dress would have met the case."

The daughter strikingly resembles her mother in character and looks. Though not in the least pretty, she has a pleasing appearance rather marred by a hardness of expression. The blue eyes do not often melt to tenderness, and the mouth can set in a very haughty curve. Only those who know the young Princess—and the Queen—in the intimacy of home life have any idea of the genuine kindness of heart and thought for the comfort and happiness of others which exist under those rather hard and repellent features.

Neither Ladies Nor Helpers

Mrs. Cloudesley Brereton is leading an educational campaign to spread what she calls the old-fashioned ideas of the well-bred English gentlewoman concerning servants.

That the women leaders of England from feudal times on, never have believed they lost caste by understanding kitchen science is her contention. She believes most servant troubles are due to the mistresses' ignorance. She advocates domestic service as a career for educated women.

If the educated woman was to be the domestic handmaiden of the future, Mrs. Brereton said, it must be as a friend and colleague and not as serf and dependent. The new type of servant, she said, certainly would not be that known generally as the "lady help," who was seldom a lady and very often not a help.

Princess at School

Queen Wilhelmina of Holland has announced that she will send Princess Juliana, the heiress presumptive to the throne of the Netherlands, to a public school, where she will acquire her primary education among the children of the common people. This is not a bid for popularity, she says, but the result of deliberate choice after an exhaustive search for the best possible institution in which to educate the future queen.

Memorizing Figures

Mark Twain told of a pilot who knew every bend, creek, current and shallow in the Mississippi river throughout its whole mighty length, but could not remember what he had for breakfast. A story is told of one man with a memory that apparently collects only figures. He can always remember one's age, even if he forgets the name. He will memorize easily the times of all the trains to a given [illegible] but he generally forgets the platforms from which they start. Reel off to him a column of statistics and he will recite them again a month later without a mistake.

Hints on Beauty

Freshen the Complexion by Diet Change

By MAGGIE TEYTE

The Noted Prima Donna.

MAGGIE TEYTE

THE two magic words in the lexicon of beauty most important for us to remember at this season of the year are diet and exercise.

Halve the one and double the other, and you have the rule of application.

The furnace fires in your house are burning low, aren't they?

Take it as a beauty hint. Lessen the fuel of your body when you find the fuel for the house being curtailed.

Open your ears to the call of nature and answer.

Make a new routine of life and write in big letters on the schedule the nearest route to the open country—and run away every chance you get.

Walk, breathe, eat fresh fruit, fresh vegetables, drink fresh water and fresh air and the beauties of the awakened earth, and save the money you are always willing to spend for some applied beauty lotion.

That is the very best advice I can give you. I have told you in the past what foods are good medicines, but perhaps I may be forgiven if I repeat, for the list is timely.

Onions are rich in sulphur and will cleanse your system and brighten the bloom on your cheek and the twinkle in your eye.

All the members of the cabbage family are excellent, kale, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts. And please, when you eat these very delicious vegetables, don't spoil them by mixing them up with a lot of cream sauces and pepper. Salt, a little, and some butter, or if they are eaten cold as salads, plenty of pure olive oil is seasoning sufficient.

Greens, all kinds and all you can eat of them. Dandelions in particular, and water cress and asparagus.

Carrots will purify and make blood.

Spinach will gather up a lot of poisons in an overfed system and carry them away.

Lettuce will rebuild your nerves, and so will celery.

Onions and lettuce are better sleep producers than can be found in the drug stores, and if you form the habit, so much the better.

They never leave any ill effects, unless you count the lingering odor of onion, and either a glass of milk or a sprig of parsley or a few fennel seeds will remove that.

Tomatoes have an acid element which is at once a cleanser and a tonic, and tomatoes rubbed on sallow faces and necks have wonderful bleaching qualities.

Spring Mending in the Home

By Ann Marie Lloyd.

NOT spring cleaning, but spring mending. The two are distinct, and while the one gets done the other is often left undone.

A door is banged back, with the key left in the lock. The result is a disfiguring hole in the wall. To mend that, get two cents worth of plaster of paris, make it into a paste, fill the hole, smooth carefully, and when dry paper or tint it over. For the latter the paints in a child's box would do quite well.

In many houses there are often left odd lengths of wall paper, and these should be carefully preserved. Damage may be done when moving in or, later, a chair may get pushed roughly against a wall, and there is a bad tear.

Get a piece of the paper, scallop the edges quite roughly, and paste it over the place. The mend will be unnoticeable. But if the house is not new, and the paper has faded, the contrast is startling. In that case, put a piece of the spare wall paper out of doors in the sun for two or three days. Dampen it occasionally.

If a ceiling is badly blackened by a gas jet in just one place, apply a layer of starch and water with a piece of clean flannel.

The starch will adhere, and when dry it can be brushed carefully off, and the stain will have gone. Apply the paste to a wider piece of the ceiling than that actually blackened.

Dents in furniture can be mended quite easily. Dampen the dent with warm water, then make a pad of brown paper six inches square, wet that thoroughly, lay it on the dent, and hold over all a hot iron. The warmth makes the wood swell up and fill the dent. In some woods the process is slow, but it is sure.

Stained borders, which look worse than ever when the rest of the room has been cleaned and freshened, can be darkened by being rubbed with paraffin. Then a polish with beeswax and turpentine will make them as new.

If you have a damp cupboard against an outside wall, "mend" it by the simple expedient of placing in it a box of lime. The lime absorbs all the moisture, and the cupboard will be perfectly dry.

YOU see here, ladies and gentlemen——"

Oh, yes! You see if you are LOOKING! If you twist your neck hard enough you will see all the high buildings, and a lot of wonderful sky, and the person with the lungs will tell you all about everything so clearly that you can't miss a word—if you are LISTENING!

But under some circumstances you have eyes and ears for but one fact NOT mentioned by the megaphone man. You see the height of Her color, the sky of Her eyes, the wonder of Her wondering lips. You wish the lumbering buzz-cart would go meandering on for forty miles. You know for a certainty that no one in the car is SEEING so much as you are—no one but that other chap. Lucky men, both of you!

What Flowers Mean to the "Woman from Nome"

By WINIFRED BLACK

(Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

Winifred Black

THE woman next door is going to sue the woman who owns the place where I live. She says she's stood it long enough and she's going to make the woman who owns this pay for it, if she has to spend the last dollar she has on earth in lawyer's fees.

It's all about the trees and the bushes and the vines and things.

It is a lovely little garden, where I am lucky enough to live this winter, green and green, a smooth lawn, tall palm trees, two giant eucalyptus at the lower gate, a jumbly bush—that's what we call it for want of a better name—it's about the size of an apple tree and it's prickly and it has great yellow things that look like tomatoes on it and it spreads out over the gate. And there's a walk in the garden, and along the walk there is Scottish heather all in a mist of fragrant thistle, and there is a prickly holly tree hung gay with berries red; and there are tall blue lilies, and along the slope of the hill there is a rock garden with pink and white and yellow flowers covering the ground like buttons on the coat of Spring. There are two geranium trees in the garden and some yellow acacias, all afoam with golden lace, and roses and heliotrope, and, when you come suddenly around the corner, there is the blue, blue bay of San Francisco spread out under your feet, as blue and shiny as a Chinese platter.

Cannot See Nature's Beauties.

It is delightful to sit in the balcony and hear the wind in the palm trees and look at the little three-cornered sails that the fishermen have brought from the Mediterranean, and wonder which boat has been for rock cod and which is piled high with gleaming silver smelt, and which carries a cargo of great California crabs.

And the great ships sail in and out of the Golden Gate, the fussy little ferryboats hurry back and forth from land to land again, the government boats steam smartly over to Alcatraz island to see about the prisoners there, and, sometimes, the gray fog drifts in like a veil of silvery tulle, and from below in the Italian quarter there comes a gay sound of music. What a sprightly instrument the accordion is when it is played by an accustomed hand! And if you stand on tiptoe, you can see bright colors waving from the clothes lines in little Italy down below—scarlet and solferino and deep blue and bright yellow; and beyond them are the masts of the good ship Elizabeth, which sank on the Potato Patch, where so many good ships have sunk before now, and lies there as calmly as if she had never left her dock.

It is very interesting in the California garden on the side of the steep San Francisco hill, but my neighbor does not like it. She is bored all the time.

It is so quiet, somehow, and so light. You can see so far and there is never any excitement; no talk of sudden "strikes" and no shootings and no men falling off the sledges from sheer fatigue and letting the wild huskies run madly over the snow. For she is from Alaska, my neighbor next door.

Born in an ice hut with the Eskimos, brought up in the snow and the ice, at first in the great loneliness of the wondrous solitude, and later, when the gold craze came, in the midst of struggling crowds, she hates the green and all the growing things, and the blue water so open and so full of ships. But most of all she hates the trees.

"Here we came and bought our place, thinking to be happy the rest of our days," says my neighbor from Nome, "and this woman next door won't cut down a single tree. I've told her and told her how nervous it makes me to have the wind always shaking the leaves—why, there's never any quiet at all. I can never look out of my window without seeing some old branch of some tree waving and acting so.

Result of Early Experience.

"The palm trees are the worst—they look so silly somehow, and what are they good for I'd like to know?

"And those eucalyptus with their white blooms and their long, snaky, leaves, they give me the horrors to look at them.

"What I like is a nice, clean, snowy landscape, without so much stuff and rubbish in the way. When you're in town you ought to be in town, and have dance halls and things happening and people walking up and down and talking. If I can't get rid of these mussy trees, I'm going back to Nome if I have to get a bunch of huskies to pull my sledge all the way there."

No, she isn't crazy; she's just one of those people who want what they want when they want it—and she was born in Nome, Alaska.

Last winter I went down stairs in my New York hotel to get my boots polished. It was a quiet, little family hotel, and they all told me to go right in and climb up into one of the chairs, so I did.

A man sat in one of the other chairs having his shoes polished. He was talking about New York.

"Yes," he was saying, "I shouldn't think this would be a bad place to live at all; you've got plenty of good high land and fine water." That's all the man who was having his shoes polished saw in the greatest city in America. The buildings that are the marvels of the world, the magnificent churches, the splendid hotels, the great parks, the theatres, the art galleries, the most gorgeous street in the world, the great pageant of pomp and power and money and beauty and celebrity that surges up and down that street every day like some marvellous tide, the libraries, the churches, the everlasting marvel of the subways, the arching span of one of the most beautiful bridges on earth, the great ships at their docks, the seething, swarming mass of human ants on the East side—the amazing life of that most amazing city, New York—all these things concerned my friend of the bootblack's chair not at all.

He didn't even see them. High land and good water, that's what he was looking for, and what he saw.

Amen Amended

"Are we our brother's keeper?" demanded the exhorter. "We are and we should be."

"I move to amend by inserting the word 'sister' in place of the word 'brother'!" yelled a man in the rear of the hall.

Different.

"Is she a young woman?"
"Well, er—immature."

With a Court Record.

"I understand she has had a diversified career."
"Yes, and divorcified."

The One That Tells

"It is the first drink, my son," said the temperance apostle, "always the first drink that causes the trouble. Remember that."

"I wish it were," said Rounder, "but it isn't. As a matter of fact, I have to take about a dozen before I feel any effects."

Unsatisfied.

"What is the matter with that newcomer?" asked his satanic majesty.

"He is a forlorn and morose individual from Boston," answered an imp. "He has been pining for sympathy ever since he arrived. He says this is a cold, cold world."

Secrets of Health and Happiness

You Begin to "Remember" as Soon as You Are Born

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

ALMOST every one thinks he knows what memory is. Yet no one really knows. It has been called the daughter of attention, the teeming mother of wisdom, the reservoir of knowledge and the storehouse of experience.

Animal Behaviorists, as a large group of experimental psychologists now call themselves, say that memory is merely habits plus thoughts plus what you are aware that you see, hear and feel.

Thus Dr. C. H. Turner, who has just studied how the digger wasp overcomes obstacles, noticed this entertaining little insect trying to drag a spider to her nest. In her path she encountered a tall fence.

On account of a horizontal scantling the wasp found it impossible to drag her prey, the spider, across. She thereupon wisely turned about and dragged her precious burden along the fence until the corner of the yard was reached.

Then she passed through the pickets of the front fence to the outside. Now the spider was deposited on the ground a short time, and the wasp made an experimental flight to her nest.

Soon she returned. It was evident that she had plotted out a way, for she dragged the spider, after overcoming many hindrances, into her distant nest.

Dr. Turner says that this disproves Dr. Jacques Loeb's materialistic theory that the movements of insects are mechanical. It shows a memory over and above that of making a number of mistakes first before going right.

The whole behavior of this wasp shows that such lowly creatures can successfully struggle against obstacles to attain their ends.

Whether cockroaches and such tiny animals have memories of sweet summer eves, of moonlit waves and shady paths, of stars and flowers and dewey leaves, of chirps and sounds, Dr. Turner and a Viennese savant, Dr. J. S. Szymanski, do not say.

They did, however, discover very recently that cockroaches have memories. They imitated the method of Prof. Yerkes and his dancing mouse.

A bottomless glass dish which had two compartments, one light and one dark, was placed so that an electric floor could be put under it.

In the well-lighted chamber roaches were placed one at a time. The instinct of 'roaches is to seek the dark. But these investigators prevented this by giving the roaches an electric shock. Every time they crossed the threshold of the dark chamber the electric shock drove them back.

The men roaches soon learned to remember about their pains and aches. They never returned to the dark room. Thus they were trained to go counter to their own instincts.

The lady roaches took much longer to learn than the male ones. Sick ones were, of course, slower than the others.

If, then, insects and other lowly creatures have memories, is it at all strange that new born infants begin to remember things as soon as they see the light.

The child at once remembers to cry if it wishes to be held. It shrieks for food until it gets it. It becomes a spoiled, coddled bundle of flesh before it is [illegible] weeks old. Why? Because it remembers what it wants when it wants it.

None grows so old, not to remember where he hid his gold. From age such art of memory you learn—to forget nothing that is of concern to you.

No lawyer, no sorcerer, no, not even a professor ever forgets his own interest. Memory unconsciously plants itself as an eternal Swiss Guard.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie.

Dear Miss Laurie:

The other night one of the girls had a few couples in for the evening. I was invited.

They asked me to play and I played them a piece of classical music. At first they listened and then one girl who knows and cares nothing about music whispered to her neighbor and soon all but one in that crowd were gabbling like geese. I stopped in the middle of the piece. They asked me to play again, but I told them I wasn't playing for the walls, and they couldn't coax me to play.

Later in the evening a dear little old-fashioned girl, the one who didn't talk and laugh, asked me to play for her and I played "Träumerei"—for her alone.

Please tell me do you think I was rude when I told them I wasn't playing for walls? LA MUSIQUE.

THE girl who whispered to her neighbor when you were doing your best to give some good music not only knows and cares nothing about good music, but she knows and cares nothing about good manners.

The rest of the people were rude, ill-bred persons, and I don't blame you for being so vexed that you stopped right in the middle of the music and would not play again for them.

I wouldn't be cross with them for preferring rags to classical music. That's as foolish as it would be to be cross with your pretty white tabby-kitten because she can't read and write.

People shouldn't be blamed for their limitations; they should be pitied.

Don't be angry with your poor friends who do not know enough to enjoy good music. Be sorry for them.

But—never play for them again, not the sort of music that you like and have worked so hard to learn.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Daddy's Good Night Story—

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

"HIGH diddle dum dee! High diddle do!"

Brer Rabbit was singing to himself, when Mrs. Rabbit said:

"You seem to be very happy about something."

"I'm always happy," replied Brer Rabbit, smiling at his good wife. "I am very happy today because I am going coasting."

"Do be careful and not bump your head against something or other," answered Mrs. Rabbit, as she kissed her husband.

In a little while Brer Rabbit was skipping over the snow in the direction of Mister Squirrel's home. Just as he arrived Sammie Squirrel was coming out of the house with the bob sled.

"We are glad to see you, Brer Rabbit. Come in."

"I guess I won't come in," replied Brer Rabbit. "You are going coasting and I will go along with you."

Mister Squirrel and his wife came out of the house at this time, and they all started off together.

When they reached the hill Mister Squirrel suggested that Brer Rabbit steer the sled, and he was only too happy to do so.

Down the hill they went like lightning, and soon they reached the foot of the hill and started up again. When they reached the top, who should they see but Mister Possum, waiting for them.

"How well you steer," he said to Brer Rabbit.

"Do you think so?" asked Brer Rabbit, puffed up with pride.

"Did you ever think," began Mister Possum, speaking to Brer Rabbit, "did you ever think what would happen to you if you should strike something?"

"Tut! Tut!" said Brer Rabbit. "While you are enjoying yourself, don't worry about what may never happen."

"Good advice," said Mister Possum.

"I'll let you go down first this time," said Brer Rabbit to Mister Possum.

"No you don't, no you don't," said Mister Possum. "You steer so well I guess you had better get in front."

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitutions, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, [illegible] disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. [illegible] booklet free. [illegible], or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

SEWING SUGGESTIONS

A spool-board will be found a great convenience in the sewing room. Cover a light wooden board with cambric, cretonne, or any suitable material, or paint it. Drive into the board plenty of those long wire nails which are slender and have small heads. Hammer them only enough to hold firmly, leaving them protruding a good distance. Make holes with a gimlet through the upper two corners, to attach a cord or wire for hanging the board in the sewing room. Fill the spikes with spools of cotton and sewing silk. They will be out of the way, and at a glance you can tell which one you want.

To make strong buttonholes, place a fine piece of muslin or lawn underneath the buttonhole and work it the same as usual. When it is all finished cut away the muslin close to the stitch.

When putting hooks and eyes on a waist, try this quick way of doing it without measuring: Sew the eyes on the left front, the desired distance apart, with the loops out far enough to make basting easy; then baste the right front carefully over the left, lapping as much as may be desired; turn the waist just as it is, wrong side out, put a hook in every eye and sew them in position.

When stitching seams on the machine in a silk garment, use either fine cotton or one thread cotton and the other of silk. By so doing you will obviate any puckering of the seams, and if you should have to rip them you will have far less trouble.

Many women have not discovered this easy way to shirr. Gather everything—ruffles, tops of sleeves, etc.—on the machine, stitching in the ordinary way without the use of extra attachments. Simply set the screw for the longest possible stitch and loosen the tension, then stitch as usual. The lower thread can easily be pulled tight, with the result that the gathers are much more even than can be done by hand.

One woman has discovered that the following process makes velvet look like new: Let the fire in the range get very low, take a large cloth, wring in cold water, and spread over the top of the stove. Then spread the velvet over the cloth till the nap rises.

EDUCATED CLASS DECREASES

Femininist Movement Menaces Its Supremacy

Edwin Brant Conklin, head of the department of biology in Princeton University, in a lecture, declared that the time has come when society must take account of the immense importance of heredity in the development of man. "Hitherto all the attention of society has been fixed on education and environment," he said. "Hereafter, more attention must be given to improvements of heredity or eugenics."

At the present rate of reproduction, Prof. Conklin said, the more highly educated classes would be unknown within a period of fifty years. Eugenics is right, he continued, in insisting that the higher classes pay more attention to reproduction. The lower classes are increasing in number and the outcome of it will be that the higher classes will be swallowed up by the lower, he said.

Prof. Conklin decried the femininist movement of to-day, because it shows unmistakable signs of women escaping the duty of motherhood, a sign which means degeneration of the race in time, he said.

Piano Students

To show piano students the correct position of the fingers and wrists is the purpose of a new stereoscope which carries a number of pictures on a band which passes behind a lens.

Powder New Gloves

Powder the insides of new gloves to make them easier to slip on, and also, in the case of colored kid ones, to prevent the dye from staining the hands.

Keep Eggs Cool

The cooler eggs are the quicker they will froth when whipped, so they should be beaten in a cool place. A pinch of salt always cools and freshens them.

Red Indian Tango

The Red Indian has caught the tango fever. The whole Shoshone nation of Nevada Indians has learned the dance, and the old tribal questions are now entirely discarded. The Indians of the White Pine country have started the construction of a large hall to be devoted exclusively to the practice of the tango. Three Indian maidens, who have mastered its intricacies, are besieged with pupils eager to pay $2.50 for a lesson.

Two Boys Badly Hurt.

As two small boys, named respectively Ed. Murty, Morgan Cunningham, were yesterday afternoon playing baseball at St. Peter's School yard they accidentally collided. The result was that both were cut to the bone about their eyes. Ed. Murty, was carried to Mr. D. O'Connell's residence and thence to St. Joseph's Hospital, and the other was taken home.

It Pays to Advertise.

Dr. Clinton, of Belleville, District Medical Health Officer, was disappointed with the attendance at his moving picture display of the evils of tuberculosis, etc., at the Collegiate Institute. The health officials might have realized that no public function however well known to a handful of investigators, can be presented to a good share of the public without an expenditure of 15 cents, in the newspapers.

Serious Accident at Lindsay

A serious accident occurred last evening when Mrs. Weddup, who resides on St. Patrick street, was run down and badly injured at the Wellington street bridge. The aged lady was on her way from the residence of Mr. Harry Reeves, her son-in-law, to Mr. Wetherup's and when near the bridge she was run down by Mr. Gordon Flavelle on a bicycle. Mrs. Weddu was knocked down and rendered unconscious. Her nose was broken, the bones protruding out both sides, one finger on the left hand fractured, the left eye closed, besides receiving a bad shaking up.

Object to New Sewerage Plant.

Strong objections are being taken by city residents who camp during the summer just below Rye's boat house, and also by, it is said, residents of Otonabee, to the proposed action by the city to build a sewage disposal plant on the east side of the river. Campers feel that despite assurances that there will be no odors they will be forced away from their usual haunts. A petition of protest has been circulated in Otonabee and this will be submitted to the Township Council. It is said that a very large majority of residents have signed

Are Coiners Working At Lindsay?

Is there counterfeiting going on around Lindsay once more? A Lindsay private detective by chance picked up a piece of metal some weeks ago and basing his opinion on inferences drawn from this discovery, it would show conclusively that some party or parties are practicing the art of making spurious coins in town. The detective seems to know more than he wishes to tell, and said he could almost locate the man who is at the bottom of the scheme. Counterfeit one cent pieces, said the officer, could be made and circulated without fear of detection unless the operator was caught red handed at the game.

Another Fairy Story.

Yesterday morning His Honor Judge Edmison, County Magistrate, held court when the three Indians, arrested at Buckhorn, as described in yesterday's Times, appeared for trial for being drunk. They gave their names as Albert Smoke, Richard Henry, and Richard Perry, and all pleaded guilty to the charge against them. Smoke was questioned as to where he got his liquor. His story was that on Thursday morning he was in the city and a stranger came up to him with a bottle of liquor. After Smoke had taken a few drinks the stranger handed him the bottle. He had no idea who the man was and had never seen him before. The three cases were enlarged until Tuesday morning, possibly to try the "Memory Cure" of Castle Nesbitt.

FLYING TUGBOAT LATEST DEVICE

French Inventor Thinks Sea Plane Will Solve the Ocean Problem

Boston, April 17.—M. Maurice Colliex, who has for several years been trying to solve the question of sea planes or hydro-aeroplanes of large dimensions, capable of flying out over the sea for an entire day has now made his first flight with a new gigantic sea plane, which might be called a flying tugboat, built by the Voisin brothers, says the Paris correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph. The machine, he believes, will be the precursor of the huge sea plane that will first cross the Mediterranean, and then the Atlantic, and may be completed next year In order to cross the Atlantic he will require a sort of amphibious structure, half ship, half aeroplane, the grull of the ship being at least some 60 feet in length, and capable of navigating in the ordinary way.

The sea plane which has now been built by the Voisin brothers almost comes up to these specifications. It has a regular ship-like under structure and looks something like a small river tug. Even the funnel in the middle is not missing. The hull of the little boat is 26 feet long, with a beam of 7 feet. The wings, which form a sort of tandem biplane, two superimposed planes being at the back and two in front, are about 28 feet long, and have a spread of about 150 square yards of canvas. There are two motors of 200 horsepower each, and the machine is capable of flying with a useful weight of about two tons. It can carry oil and spirits enough for a flight of about 100 miles.

Colliex tested the machine on the Seine, near Triel. It rose easily from the water, and alighted without difficulty. The sea planes hitherto built had only floats or buoys to keep them over the surface of the water when they came down. The floats were suited to still water, and were obviously unfit to resist the waves. A slightly rough sea always played havoc with them. The new kind of sea plane, constructed like a tug, is evidently more practical, and with a hull sufficiently large there is no doubt that long flights over the sea could be undertaken without the slightest danger. One would think that there might be a far greater future on the sea for this kind of craft than for submarines.

MEMORIAL WIDOW TO LATE COMMISSIONER

Westminster Abbey Likely to Contain Some Striking Remembrance of Lord Strathcona.

London, April 17.—A memorial window and tablet to the late Lord Strathcona in Westminster Abbey is a proposal being made by a strong influential committee which during the past three months has been considering the question. The appeal is now made by circular to the Canadian residents in Britain, together with others associated with the Dominion, to contribute to the project.

There is a feeling that such a memorial in the Abbey, where the funeral service was held on January 26, would be both suitable and appropriate, save the circular, which adds that the committee have reason to believe that such an offer would be welcomed by the dean and chapter.

The project of the memorial is in the hands of a general committee headed by Premier Asquith, Lord Chancellor Haldane, the Duke of Argyll, Earl of Aberdeen, Earl Grey, Right Hon. Lewis Vernon Harcourt, Sir Chas. Tupper, Mr. Bonar Law and other notable, while leading members of the Canadian colony here form the Executive Committee of which Mr. J.G. Colmer and Mr. G.C. Cassells are treasurers.

"THE HARP OF GOD."

Mr. Frappy, who lectures in the Royal Theatre, Sunday, 3 p.m., will also speak in the same place at 8 p.m. on the foregoing subject. OTTAWA MOTHER KILLS DAUGHTER

Ax Used for Crime--Woman Believed to be Insane

Ottawa, April 18.—Wielding an ax as the instrument of death, Mrs. Placide Massie, aged 45, wife of a plasterer residing at Adelaide and Alfred streets, Hull, this afternoon murdered her 19-year-old daughter, Marie, the oldest of a family of seven.

The woman had been acting strangely for a about a week, and it is thought she committed the crime in an insane frenzy. The cause of the crime, it is believed, was the mother's objection to a young man, an acquaintance of her daughter. So far as was known there was no witnesses to the events leading up to the crime. The screams of the girl were heard by a neighbor, Felix Charron, who reached the house, but was too late to save her. He held the woman until the police arrived.

The body of the girl was horribly mutilated, though she lived a few minutes after Dr. Belisle had reached her. She was, however, unable to make any statement.

Mrs. Massie was immediately taken into custody by a squad of police, and on being placed in a cell at headquarters tried to suicide by battering her head against the wall. She appears to be violently insane.

WILSON SETS LIMIT FOR SALUTE FEARS PEACE IS AT AN END

Cleveland, April 18.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels, who is here to-day to deliver a speech to-night said this afternoon that he had received a telegram from his secretary telling him to hold himself in readiness to return to Washington. The telegram, he said, stated that President Wilson had expressed the fear that it would be impossible to continue in peace.

Torreon, Mex., April 18—"I do not believe the Tampico incident will result in war between the United States and Mexico," commented Gen. Villa to-day. "I regard the complication as one existing between President Wilson and President Huerta, and question whether even the bombarding of Tampico would be construed as an act of war against Mexico, since Huerta is the offender and illegally holds that port."

Asked if American non-combatants now resident in Mexico could be protected should war break out, Villa replied:

"It would be a war between two civilized nations, and American non combatants could rely on the same protection here as could Mexicans in the United States."

"But suppose there was a popular uprising against Americans, could you control it?"

"Well, I have driven 35,000 federals out of rebel territory, and I think I could control the proletariat."

Must Salute By 6 p.m.

Washington, April 18.—Huerta will salute the American flag at Tampico before 6 p.m. Sunday or President Wilson will go before congress in a joint session Monday and ask for authority to take such measures as may be necessary. This statement was issued at the White House:

"Gen. Huerta is still insisting upon doing something less than has been demanded, and something less than would constitute an acknowledgement that his representatives were entirely in the wrong in the indignities they have put upon the government of the United States.

"The president has determined that if Gen. Huerta has not yielded by 6 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, he will take the matter to congress on Monday."

SEES RELIEF IN LORD'S RETURN

Bible Lecturer In Royal Theatre Tells Audience Audience Christs Second Coming Means Reform

"Christ's Second Coming: Why? How? and When?" was the subject of the I.B.S.A. Bible lecture delivered here yesterday afternoon in the Royal Theatre by Mr. Jos. Frappy, of Stirling.

The speaker admitted that his subject was more or less unpopular on account of the foolish theories sometimes advanced. He claimed, nevertheless, that the subject is an important one for all Christian people to consider carefully, and that viewed in the sensible and reasonable light of the Scriptures it is a most interesting and inspiring study.

CHRISTS RETURN OUR ONLY HOPE

The lecturer called attention to the fact that our Saviour had a definite purpose in coming to this earth at His First Advent, namely, to pay the penalty for Adam's sin—not eternal life in torture, but death. At His Second Advent, he has an equally definite purpose: to liberate Adam and his posterity from that death.

Man can not be liberated from the curse until the Ransom-price has been both secured and applied on his behalf. "The wages of sin is death." Jesus, therefore, became a man, and voluntarily gave up his human life. After receiving his reward of resurrection to a spiritual existence, He could have at once applied the merit of his human sacrifice on behalf of Adam, thus bringing Adam and his race from the tomb. But God had planned to further reward Jesus by giving Him a Bride, the Church, the Lamb's wife. The Gospel age was set aside for the selection of this church. Jesus, therefore postponed the second feature of His redemptive work until a future time. It will not be accomplished till His Second Coming. Following this, Adam and all his race, "both the just and the unjust," will be awakened from the sleep of death and be fully liberated from the curse. We see, therefore, that without our Lord's Second Coming our redemption would be incomplete and His death would avail mankind nothing.

THE TIME IS AT HAND

The speaker did not startle his audience by setting a positive date for the Lord's Return, as some have tried to do, to their disappointment and chagrin. He did state, however, that the Bible is quite definite in its time prophesies; that the jubilee cycles and the parallel dispensations, together with many other striking time features, clearly indicate that we are now in the time of great "running to and fro," the "Time of the End," the Harvest of the Gospel Age. If the Bible be correct in its testimony, and if the signs of the times are at all to be relied upon, it is evident to all Christian students that our Lord's Return is due. The Apostle, after showing that the world would not recognize the Lord's presence at first, continues, addressing the Church (1 Thes. 5:4). "But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief." Those who watch, who diligently search the Scriptures, will in due time be instructed concerning the Lord's Second Presence. In conclusion, the speaker urged all to trim their lamps without delay and keep them burning.

PRIMROSE WORN IN LONDON TOWN

British Buttonholes Display Fovorite Flower of Great Disraeli

London, April 18.—Primroses were worn in nearly every British buttonhole to-day in honor of Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield, England's famous statesman, who died 33 years ago to-morrow.

Originally a Conservative political festival. Primrose Day is now celebrated by Englishmen of every shade of political opinion, and as this year the anniversary falls on a Sunday, the various demonstrations and banquets organised by the Primrose League are being held to-day. The Beaconsfield statue in Parliament square was garlanded and festooned with the pale yellow flower which was always the great statesman's favorite.

APPROACH OF SHIPS WILL NOT ALTER HUERTA'S CASE

Mexico City, April 18.—To the Sunday World and associated papers, President Huerta, answering a query as to his position now that President Wilson had made his intentions clear, replied:

As a reply to your valued message, I will hereby state that the charges made against the government of the republic are entirely baseless, as the broad investigation now in progress will make clear in this connection. Regarding the approach of the American fleet towards Mexican waters, that will not modify the honest and serene policy of the government of this republic.

"EUTHENICS" TO SAVE COUNTRY MILLIONS

Toronto, April 18.—An appeal for a determined co-operation of the community to fight preventible cases was made by Dr. Charles M. Hastings, M.O.H., in a lecture on Saturday before the Royal Canadian Institution.

"Eugenics is the science which deals with all the influences that improve the inborn qualities of a race," said Dr. Hastings. "It takes into consideration the theories of natural inheritance, variations, selections, regressions, etc., and by scientifically tracing these fundamental elements thru the life histories of generations of families, it endeavours to arrive at a satisfactory method of improving generally the mental and physical developments of mankind."

The word "Eugenics" has come into use within the last ten years. Interest in this subject has been growing, which is the result of the recognition of the fact that man is a part of the organic world and subject to its laws.

Negative and Positive.

"Eugenics is divided into negative and positive. The negative would prohibit the marriage of all feebleminded, syphilitics, epileptics, etc., and thereby prevent a reproduction of that material. To justify this, the Jukes family of New York and the Indian group known as the Tribe of Ishmael, are frequently quoted. From the Jukes family came 1,200 descendants in 78 years. Out of these 310 were professional paupers, who spent an aggregate of 2,300 years in poorhouses; 50 were prostitutes; 7 murderers; 60 habitual thieves, and 130 common criminals. It has been estimated that this family cost the State $1,300,000 in 75 years.

"The Tribe of Ishmael, numbering 1,692 individuals, in six generations, has produced 121 known prostitutes, and has bred hundreds of petty thieves, vagrants and murderers.

FLOATING BRIDGE BROKEN TO PIÉCES

The floating bridge, connecting Ennismore and Bridgenorth, went to pieces yesterday afternoon about one o'clock. The whole bridge was completely wrecked in about 10 minutes and is the worst break for many years. This will be bad news for the people of the district as traffic will be stopped at this point for some time.

WIRELESS SENDS BROTHERS TO JAIL

They Forged Check, Were Arrested in Mid-Ocean, Sentenced in Chicago

Chicago, April 18.—John Fielding, 20, and his brother Arthur, 18 years old, of Montreal, who were captured on the steamer Matsonia as a result of a wireless message, were sentenced to-day in the federal court to an indeterminate sentence in the state reformatory. The brothers pleaded guilty to forging a cheque for $4,000 on a Chicago Bank.

Arthur Fielding was a clerk in the Royal Bank of Canada at St. Lambert, John was a clerk in a Montreal bond house. John forged a draft and Arthur put it through.

According to their confession to-day to Judge Landis, they cashed the draft in Chicago without trouble, and spent $2,000 in a single day. They were two days out on the way to Honolulu when the wireless message overtook them.

Thomas Riley was found guilty at London of manslaughter in the death of George Blackburn, bartender, at the Hotel Cecil.

GIRL'S KIND WORDS STAY BLOODY AXE HELD BY MURDERER

Young Woman Awakes To Find Farm Hand At Bedside.

Huntington, N. Y., April 18.—Miss Mary Sammis, who lives with her brother, Frank, on their Long Island farm, awoke early today to find a man with a bloody ax in his hands standing by her bed. She recognized Frank Fowler, a young farm hand, who slept in the house. "I've just killed your brother upstairs," said Fowler, "and I am going to kill you, too."

"I've always been kind to you, Frank," pleaded the woman "and you have no reason for harming us."

"That's right," answered Fowler. "I guess I won't kill you, but I'll go away," and he walked out of the house, leaving the ax behind him.

Miss Sammis stumbled upstairs and found her brother's body on the bed.

The police believe Fowler is insane. They are searching for him.

ALARMIST NOW SEES JAPAN ATTACKING U. S. THRU CANAL

Garrison at Isthmus Would be mere Idle Spectators of Warring Fleets Movement Against Cities

Washington, April 18.—In defence of the Panama tolls exemption, former Attorney-General Charles J. Bonaparte of Baltimore, told the senate canals committee to-day that advocates of repeal could not escape from the position that the United States, in case of war, was bound to permit its enemies to use the canal.

"If we were at war with Japan, our garrison at the Isthmus," said he "would be mere idle spectators of the peaceful passage of the Japanese fleet to attack New Orleans or New York. If we were at war with Germany the troops would look tranquilly on while German vessels traversed it to take San Francisco, and the net result of our enormous expenditure for the construction of the canal would be to make our coast much more vulnerable than it was before."

Mr. Bonaparte contended that the rules of construction required the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty to be interpreted as not requiring the United States to use the canal on the same terms as the other nations of the world.

Better to Refund Tolls.

He contended that there was no question that the exemption granted a bounty to the owners of coastwise vessels, and added he thought it would have been wiser, as a matter of form, to collect the tolls and refund them.

As a general rule of law, Mr. Bonaparte told the committee, when one person grants to "all persons" a right to use his property the grantor is not understood as including himself among those to whom the grant is made. A specific expression to include the grantor is necessary to bind the owner to the treaty, he added.

"Applying this principle to the present case," he added, "if it had been the intention of the parties to this treaty that the United States should only use the canal on the same terms as Great Britain, Germany, Japan or other powers, then to give effect to this understanding, the United States ought to have promised in so many words to observe these rules in its own use of the canal.

FLAMING MOTOR MAKES WILD DASH

Man Who Tried to Put Out Fire Had to Jump for Life

Toronto, April 18.—An electric car bearing Ontario license No. 1240 caused some excitement on King street east, just by the King Edward Hotel, about five o'clock Saturday afternoon by catching fire where it was standing unoccupied on Victoria street just south of King. A chauffeur jumped into the car, opened up the batteries where the fire had started and began to throw sand into them to smother the flames. He accidently turned the starting lever and the car made a dash for up Victoria street, spurning across crowded King street in a diagonal direction. The man in the car jumped for his life and it bumped up against a telegraph pole which was able to stand the impact of the car and disabled its motor-mechanism, for it stopped right there and flames began to thrust themselves out in all directions. A fire alarm was sent in and a chemical wagon responded and extinguished the fire. One side of the car is burned through and it was left pretty much a wreck.

GIRL HERE LOSES HONEYMOON WHEN HANCOCK SAILS

Marine Gets Ten Minutes' Leave of Absence to Wed.

New Orleans, April 18.—Mrs. John Tice—her name was Miss Rosalie Quimby up to late Tuesday night—doesn't believe in war. She thinks uncle Sam should have overlooked Huerta's slight to the stars and stripes.

This little trouble caused a postponement of her honeymoon. He is a marine and a few hours after the ceremony he left aboard the transport Hancock which is steaming toward Tampico, Mexico.

When pretty Rosalie said "yes" he asked for a leave of absence. Not only was it refused but he had to get to work at once helping to coal the Hancock as sailing orders had been received. Then Rosalie got busy. She obtained a license, induced a preacher to go over the river, and with coal dust in his hair and on his hands and face the gallant young marine was married. At three o'clock Wednesday morning when the coaling had been completed the bridegroom got 10 minutes shore leave.

There was kisses and tears and then the little bride was led away by her mother as John went aboard his ship.

However, John's term of enlistment will expire in four months.

TIGHT SKIRTS INJURIOUS

Woman Doctor Says They Mean Less Exercise

"Fashion is retarding the physical development of women, was an assertion made by Dr. Jennie Gray in an address delivered before the Junior Suffrage Association of Toronto. The subject of the address was the possibilities for women in nation-building.

Dr. Gray declared that the tight skirt was leading to women taking a car even for distances as short as several blocks. Walking was one of the greatest factors for physical development which the city dweller possessed, and walking to business, instead of using the cars, was a health opportunity that should be seized upon. The future race of Canadians depended on the women of to-day and their proper physical development. Such development was not possible with the styles now being worn. While the modern nations do not have the women bind their feet, as does China, the binding together of the ankles in such a way as to force the women to walk in a deformed manner was countenanced.

The health enjoyed by Canadians to-day was due to the fact that their forefathers lived the hardworking outdoor life that made for physical development. With the ever-growing city life such work was impossible for many, and showed the need of sufficient outdoor exercise outside working hours. The physique of the future generations depended on such being undertaken.

Replanting the Forests

Over twelve thousand letters have been received at the Dominion Government Forest Nursery Station at Indian Head, Sask., and almost two and three-quarter million trees distributed for planting on the farms of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. To accommodate this constantly increasing demand, a branch nursery has been established near Saskatoon. Nine inspectors supervise these prairie-farm plantations, and give personal advice to the farmers, and the Forestry Branch, Ottawa, issues bulletins free of charge to anyone interested in this work in Canada or elsewhere.

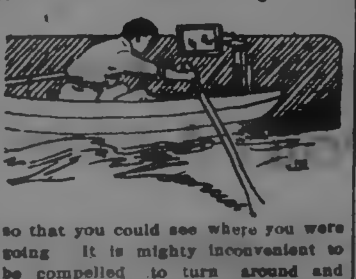
MIRROR FOR SKIFF

It Enabled the Oarsman to Watch His Course

How many times have you wished you could row a boat facing the bow



so that you could see where you were going. It is mighty inconvenient to be compelled to turn around and watch your course. It's an easy thing to do away with this bother. Adopt the automobilist's plan for seeing behind him and put an observation mirror on your boat.

The thing can be done at small cost and it greatly adds to the pleasure of rowing. The frame is made of four pieces of wood jointed as shown in the sketch so that the mirror can be adjusted to any angle. The frame is made so that it can be detached and carried away when the boat is not in use. The oarsman sits facing the stern of the boat with the mirror in front of him. He can see just where he is going in the mirror which is focused on the water in front of the boat.

Modern Drama Decadent

Preaching at St. Paul's Cathedral, Canon Alexander deplored the decadence of the modern drama and of public taste. "I suppose," he said, "no thoughtful person can regard with satisfaction the wave of morbid sensationalism which has crept over the national consciousness, creating an art, if we call it so, which is full of the vulgarity from which all true art is always and inevitably free, and which moves in a wholly different world from that which gave us the phrases and situations of "Measure for Measure," "Othello" or "Romeo and Juliet."

Lucien Libecq, a fourteen-year-old boy living near Boulogne, accidentally shot himself in the stomach while playing with a revolver. In spite of his injuries, he cycled a distance of seven miles and worked for four hours before telling his employer what had happened. A doctor was called, and the boy was removed to the hospital to undergo an operation.

ABOUT BIRDS

olumn of Interesting Facts on the Bird Kingdom

e humming birds of South Amer are quite fearless of man. They readily enter the open windows if they see flowers.

The Sparrow

the greatest enemies of our birds are the house cat and English sparrow. Cats kill vast of young birds while they yet in the nest or shortly after it, while the English sparrow not molest our native birds to great extent. Yet it has simply possession of their habitations crowded them out.

The Curlew

curlew, a bird of Eskimo that to fly south in enormous flocks within the past ten years become y extinct. An explanation been discovered in the fact that pampas lands of Argentina, where birds used to winter, are now un cultivation for wheat. So does prove enemy to the lower animals, when pursuing a harmless vege diet.

Our Friends

A French naturalist asserts that if world were to become birdless, could not inhabit it after nine time, in spite of all the sprays poisons that could be manufactur for the destruction of insects. The and slugs would simply eat up orchards and crops.

The Busy Sparrows

A naturalist has made the follow observations as to the amount of performed by a pair of sparrows a single day during the nesting season. The mother bird left the nest at 3.50 a.m. to find worms, and the search was continued by both parents throughout the day, one hundred and eighty journeys to and from the nest having been made up to 7.15 p.m.

Fear the Aëroplane

Cartoonists have amused themselves with fancying how the birds feel when flying machines loom on their horizon, but the birds themselves give token of their opinions by vacating any community where a flying machine contest is in progress. They evidently fear this new species of winged life. It is thought that in time they will become accustomed to the monsters.

Perfect Builders

Did you ever pick up an abandoned bird's nest and observe how round it was on the inside? No cup rim could be more perfect. Don't you wonder how the bird, with neither rule nor compass, can make her nest so round? Well, she does it easily. She builds the nest about her breast, turning round and round in it, and its circular character comes naturally and inevitably. The circle is found everywhere in the buildings of the lower animals. The straight line, on the other hand, they can never achieve.

Fond of Birds

Mr. John D. Rockefeller is very fond of birds and other pets. His wife also has a great love for them. On their estate of 10,000 acres at Pocantico Hills he has laid out a large feeding ground for his birds; on tall trees cages for pigeons and other birds have been placed, while there is a separate building for hundreds of pheasants, partridges and feathered creatures of all colors. Eighteen hundred partridges arrived at this bird paradise the other day and joined thousands of others that had been brought before them from foreign lands on the tank steamers of the Standard Oil Company, that return from every foreign shore; and multitudes more are to be added. Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller walk through their park, feeding these beautiful creatures, who come at their call and who seem to know and love those who have made such careful provision for them.

Will Remove Fruit Stains

Vegetable and fruit stains on the fingers can be removed by dipping the fingers in very strong tea for a few minutes and then washing them in clear, warm water.

Grease the Saucepan

If bright saucepans and kettles have to be used over a smoky fire, smearing a little grease over the bright part will prevent the smoke from blackening the metal. If washed after use in hot water, the pan will be as bright as ever.

To Improve Cakes

When using dripping for making a cake, add a few drops of essence of lemon or the juice of a lemon, and it will be found that this will not only remove the fatty flavor which cakes so often have when made with dripping—especially mutton—but will very greatly improve the flavor.

Coffee Stains Removable

The most difficult of all stains to take out are those made by coffee. With care, however, the stain can be removed from the most delicate silk or woollen fabrics. Rub the mark gently with a little pure glycerine, then rinse it in lukewarm water, lay a cloth over the damp part on the wrong side, and press with a cool iron until dry. Do not wet more of the material than is absolutely necessary.

ON THE MEDICINE SHELF

Some Simple Remedies That Should be in Every Household

There are a few inexpensive medicines which may be considered almost necessity in every household, especially in the country. One of these is boracic (boric) acid, which should be purchased in the form of a fine, white powder and used for dusting wounds or for allaying excessive perspiration. In saturated solution, this acid is among the most generally useful antiseptics known to physicians. In this form it is used as a mouth wash, a lotion for inflamed eyelids, a wash in catarrhal conditions of the middle ear and for various other purposes.

Peroxide of hydrogen is another antiseptic which should be always at hand. Diluted with from one to four parts of water it is useful in cleansing cuts, wounds and sores and is also an excellent mouth wash and gargle for sore throats. Clear or diluted it is soothing to mosquito bites, bee stings, and the like, as well as being antiseptic. In full strength, sprayed into the nostril or applied on absorbent cotton, it is one of the best remedies for controlling nosebleed.

Epsom salts are another cheap and valuable medicine. These are used principally as a laxative but are also efficient as a local application for erysipelas, ivy poisoning, etc., when used in a solution of ordinary strength. When there is even a suspicion of inflammation and a laxative is desired, castor oil is the safest and surest, and modern pharmacy has robbed it of much of its old-time nauseating taste.

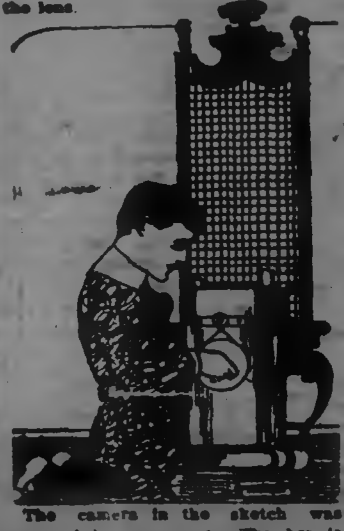
MOVING PICTURES FOR AMATEUR USE

Camera and all Can be Made at Home by Following These Directions Carefully

Why not take a few moving pictures of the family with your own machine? The process is extremely simple and the apparatus is not necessarily complicated. The camera box, in the first place, must be deep enough to hold the film in the bottom in a succession of layers.

The lens to be used must be capable of taking 16 pictures a second. A lens from an ordinary hand camera having a focal length of 3 inches is sufficient, provided it has also the speed, and most of them have. The width of the camera from front to back is determined by the focal length of the lens.



The camera in the sketch was prepared by an expert. The box is 16 inches high and 3 inches wide, with the depth depending on the focal length of the lens. The inside of the box must be painted dull black and black paper pasted firmly around all joints so that it will be light proof.

The lens is set in the box about 4 inches from the top. The back of the box should be hinged so that it can be opened and at the places where the back fits onto the box strips of black velvet should be pasted so that the back will fit absolutely tight against the front and admit no light.

A reel for the film is placed on the inside of the top of the box. Or, rather, two metal holders are placed there to hold the reel of film. The film unrolls downward and there should be a strip of black velvet on the back of the box against which the film bears as it unrolls. Partitions are set in grooves cut in the boards forming the sides of the box which shape a hopper-like cavity directly behind the lens. The ends of these partitions over which the film is unrolled are covered with black velvet and these ends bear lightly against the strip of velvet fastened to the back of the box, the film slipping between the two and being held by them so that it will not move except when pulled through by the roller of the shutter. A wire staple guide is placed under the bottom board of the partitions.

The most important thing about the camera is the shutter. This is a cylinder of wood and is 2¾ inches wide and 1¾ inches in diameter. A ¼ inch steel rod is inserted in each end for use as an axle. A rectangular opening is cut through the cylinder to admit light at certain intervals, and two tooth-like projections are set in at a distance of ⅝ of an inch from a line drawn directly through the centre of the mortise, as shown in Fig. 2A and in such a manner that they will be 1¼ inches apart. The mortised hole through the cylinder is 1 inch wide and ¾ inch high. This is the size of the individual pictures on the film. These sprocket-like projections that we are putting on the cylinder must be just far enough apart to engage the holes in the film and pull it down as the cylinder is turned so that there will be a fresh film exposed when the mortised hole again gets in line with the lens and the film. It will be seen, therefore, that the utmost accuracy must be used in placing them. There are two sets of these pins or sprockets on each side of the cylinder. Figs. 2A and 2B must be studied carefully and the directions followed exactly. The sprockets should move the film just ¾ of an inch at each turn.

The shutter and film are turned with two grooved pulleys on the outside of the box. One of these pulleys about 1 inch in diameter, is attached to the axle of the cylinder-shutter and the other or drive wheel, 5 to 5½ inches in diameter, is placed below it. The belt must be crossed between the two pulleys, as the drive would otherwise be backward and very awkward. The adjustment of the cylinder-shutter in the camera must be carefully made. When completed and the camera loaded with a roll of film the drive wheel must be turned so that the cylinder-shutter makes 5 complete revolutions per second, thus giving 16 exposures.

A MOST UNUSUAL PEPLUM BLOUSE

The tunic is not alone a feature of the new skirts, it is also seen on many of the blouses. A woman will quickly recognize the practical side as well as the decorative side of this. A blouse or two like this will do service with several skirts and will always appear to be a new costume. The blouse illustrated, No. 8291, has a drop-shoulder, a full length sleeve and a box pleated peplum. Other features that render it smart are the V-shaped neck and the draped effect at the bottom, which is brought about by the fitted lining. As shown here, it is fashioned of one of the new Japanese flowered silks and is appropriately combined with a plain skirt of pongee in the natural color.

These silks average 36 inches in width and may be purchased from $1 a yard and up.

To make this blouse in size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 36 inch material.

Plain linen is again favored for children's clothes, and nothing is fresher or more suitable for the small coats and dresses. No. 8296 is a girl's coat developed in plain blue linen with collar, cuffs and straight, stitched belt of blue and white plaid. The coat has a front yoke cut in one with the sleeve and back, and collar that fastens high in the neck.

For a child of 8, this model requires 2¼ yards of 42 inch linen, which may be purchased from 30 cents a yard and up.

No. 8296—sizes 2 to 14.

VANDYKE POINTS A SMART NEW FINISH FOR THE POPULAR TAFFETAS TUNIC

Taffetas lends itself well to pleatings. One of the smartest little frocks seen for some time has a short, accordion-pleated tunic finished at the bottom with Vandyke points; the effect is unusual and new.

Another pretty costume shows a side-pleated tunic.

In No. 8094, is shown the effectiveness of the fad for combining plain and figured materials; the bodice is developed in terra-cotta silk voile and the skirt is brocaded charmeuse in the same shade. A crush velvet girdle with a soft tied bow in front gives the required note of contrast.

This dress may be made in size 36 with 3¾ yards of brocaded material and 3 yards of contrasting material for the bodice.

Voile ranges from $1 a yard and up; and charmeuse may be purchased from $1.75.

The black taffetas frock shown in No. 8116, is rendered very pleasing by the pointed, gathered overskirt. The colored plaid of the bodice and upper tunic are also distinctive.

In size 36, this design needs 6½ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8094—sizes 34 to 44.
No. 8116—sizes 34 to 42.

Historic Conduction

Some repairs have recently been made to the tower on St. Paul's Cathedral, in London, and during the course of the work the discovery was made that a part of one of the original iron bar conductors was erected about 140 years ago, under the supervision of Benjamin Franklin. This bar, which was inside one of the towers and so not exposed to the weather, was still in a good state of preservation.

A STRANGE CASE

Of course, life could not be sustained in the average human being at that temperature, and there will be much inquiry as to what sort of a person is this patient or what sort of a thermometer was used in taking the temperature.

Painful Swellings Reduced Muscular Strains Ended

Such Troubles Now Quickly Rubbed Away By Powerful Remedy.

If you have any muscles that are strained and weak, that are frequently subject to rheumatic pains; if you have any painful swellings that refuse to go away—get busy with Nerviline. This is the very sort of trouble that Nerviline is noted for curing quickly. "I have proved Nerviline simply a wonder in reducing a hard, painful swelling. It followed an injury I received in my left leg and caused me great pain and discomfort. The muscles were strained and sore, and no other remedy gave the ease and comfort I got from rubbing on Nerviline. There is a soothing, pain-relieving power about Nerviline that touched the root of my trouble. Nerviline reduced the swelling, it destroyed the pain, it brought my limb back to perfect condition." The experience of Mr. Bowen, whose home is in Middlesex is not unusual. Thousands are proving every day that muscular pains of every kind, chronic rheumatism, lumbago, neuralgia and sciatica will yield to Nerviline when nothing else can possibly cure. Nerviline is an old-time family pain remedy, used [illegible] years with great success. The large family size bottle costs 50c, trial [illegible] 25c at all dealers.

"GUILTY BUT INSANE"

In the memorandum accompanying his veto of the bills to maue permissible a plea of "guilt but insane," in murder cases, Governor Glynn sas:

> "While both bills indicate a sincere attempt on the part of the persons interested in the subject to substitute something better for the existing law, I am constrained to the opinion that the subject is one which will require further investigation and discussion before the existing law is amended."

This manifests a correct apprehension of the topic, which at best is one fought with difficulties. Indications of newspaper and professional opinion during the discussion which preceded the disposal of the question which came before Governor in this instance, affords ample reason to believe that the general public will concur in the wisdom of the Governor's conclusion.

The terms of Governor Glynn's comment carry with them quite unmistakable the implication, that he considers the existent law relating to pleas in murder cases, susceptible to improvement, and that he looks forward to a time, presumably not far distant, when some important changes will be carried into effect.

But Governor Glynn rightly holds this is a metter in which care should be taken to do nothing premature. As the Governor says, further investigation is necessary. Up to now the course of procedure open to defendants indicted for murder, aas been based on twe pleas—"Guilty" or "Got Guilty."

To make available a third plea, partaking in some respects of the character of each of the other two, yet identificable with neither, would be an innovation so serious, as to require conclusive establishment of its claims, before including it in the law. Evidently the Governor regards it as a theory which is not sufficiently proven to justify gubernatorial sanction, and therein he manifests the sound conservatism which should accompany executive scrutiny of topics of this nature.

Brick Hurled Through Window After Door Is Barred By Chain.

New York, April 18.—A tray containing diamonds worth $15,000 was taken from a jeweler's store on Broadway in the theatrical district, tonight by a robber who jumped into a waiting taxicab and escaped pursuit. The jeweler Michael Rosenthal, his daughter, his nephew and a salesman were in the rear of the shop. They heard the crashing of a brick through the plate glass window, and saw the tray taken through the opening, but found their pursuit barred.

Unknown to them until too late, a chain had been attached from the outside door knob to a bar imbedded in the wall, with padlock neatly fitting at both ends wrapped in tape to deaden any noise made in the attaching process. Before the four could snap the chain they saw the robber speeding away in the cab.

Detectives were started on the case with a description of the robber furnished by the jeweler's daughter.

Many Cooks in Famous Inn Stood Over Forgotten Well

The Saracen's Head is one of the oldest and best-known hotels in Dudley and district. In the smoke-room are fine specimens of well-preserved oak beams. Somewhat extensive repairs were being made to the house recently and the workmen discovered more than one old well covered over and with nothing to show their existence. One of these wells was in the kitchen where for the best part of a century the cooks have stood over it preparing food for Masonic and other banquets, to say nothing of the daily meals. A piece of sheet-iron beneath the flag-stone was all the covering. When "plumbed" it was found to be 70 feet deep, and there was a considerable quantity of water in the well. WOMEN OFFICIALS

All the Public Positions in Froissy Are Held by Women

In the little French village of Froissy, in the department of l'Oise, on the borders of l'Isle de France and Picardy, which has a population of between 500 and 600, all public positions are held by women.

The station-master is Mme. Taillefer. Her husband is a guard. It does not trouble him that he has to take occasional official instructions from his wife. He knows that if she were a guard and he the station-master the home would suffer.

Froissy gets its daily mail delivered by a woman postman, while it is the business of another employe des postes to see the outward mail aboard the train.

In Froissy there is no such person as a male barber. All the men's heads are placed at the mercy of Mlle. Jeanne Marchandin, who, with skilful hands, shaves or cuts the hair of all her friends.

The most striking and interesting figure in the community, however, is Mme. Drahoa Marchandin. Hers is the task of heralding all important public events with drum music—weddings, for instance. She has an erect martial figure, strongly marked and humorous features.

There is also in this little town a woman road mender, and, lastly, a young woman telegraphist, who keeps Froissy in touch with the outside world.

An English Woman Was Attracted to Farming in Alberta

Mrs. Hamer Jackson is one of the most remarkable women farmers in the Dominion of Canada. She handles a square mile of land in the Red Deer district of Alberta, which is devoted to mixed farming. Mrs. Jackson was formerly a journalist in England, and became interested in Canada through the emigration authorities. Shortly after making her first trip to Canada she took over 30 people and placed them on her land in Alberta. She had no previous knowledge of farming methods, but as an evidence of what a woman of intelligence and resolution can accomplish Mrs. Jackson, through her individual efforts, placed these people on her farm. She is her own managing director, and has nothing but thoroughbred stock on her farm. She housed her people in tents in the first instance, but soon had all the necessary buildings erected.

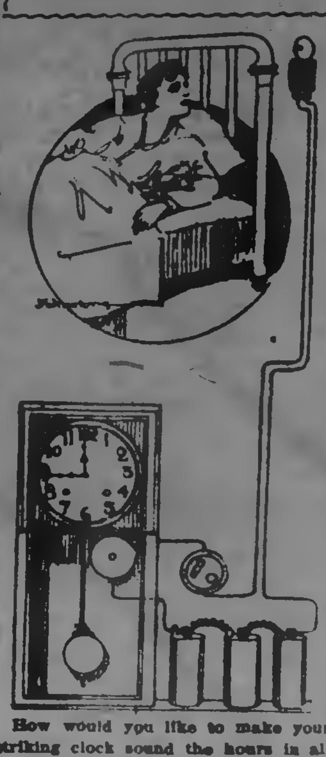
Performing Horse Dies

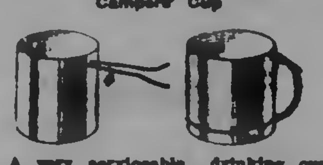
The death occurred of a wonderful performing horse, Alpha, which belonged to Mr. R. D. C. Shaw of Great Hale. The animal, which had performed before several members of the royal family, could play the national anthem on a harmonium, could write its own name on a slate with chalk held in its mouth, and could do difficult sums in the first four rules. Another horse, Little Bete, also belonging to Mr. Shaw, accompanied Alpha on show, and together they could play "Home, Sweet Home," with bells fastened on their feet.

SEVERAL GONGS FOR ONE CLOCK



How would you like to make your striking clock sound the hours in all parts of the house? It is sometimes a great convenience and it can be easily arranged. An electric battery and a few length of insulated wire to connect a bell or buzzer are all that is necessary. Connect one wire to the hammer and one to the gong on the striking clock. Then set up your bell or buzzer where you want the strike to be repeated and connect the wires with the battery. The hammer falling on the gong will close the circuit and the extra bell will ring every time the hammer falls. A single stroke bell is best for the purpose, but a vibrating bell or buzzer can be used.

Campers' Cup



A very serviceable drinking cup can be made from an empty baking powder can. A length of good stout wire is all that is necessary. Two holes are made side by side near the top of the can and the wire passed through them, with an even length on either side. The strands are then brought together and twisted to form the handle and then passed around the bottom of the can on opposite sides, being twisted firmly together when the ends meet. This twist about the bottom of the can should be made as tight as possible to prevent the handle from slipping off.

FIGHTING PLANTS

Thorns, poisons and Daggers Used in Their Defence

Plants have to defend themselves from their enemies in the same way as men. They have to fight with each other for room enough in the soil to live, and the weaker plants often go under in the struggle for existence. The battles of plants, however, are mainly fought against the animals and insects which are always threatening to destroy them.

Many plants have wonderful weapons for their protection. The thorns of the rose bush, bramble and gorse prevent cows and horses from eating them, as well as keeping off snails and slugs. The cactus family of plants have a formidable armor of prickles and daggers. The plant known as the Spanish bayonet is armed with taper-pointed spears that have file-like edges. Some plants, such as the ragged robin, have sticky stems, covered with fine hairs to which insects stick if they climb up to try to steal the honey.

Many plants use poison as a means of protection. The sun spurge has a poisonous juice which kills any insects which approach it, while the poisonous properties of the deadly nightshade are well known.

The common bladder wort, an aquatic plant, not only defends itself against insects and animals, but catches worms and fish for its food.

Perhaps the most original means of self-defense is that possessed by a strange plant called the rattlesnake iris, which grows on the prairies of America. When ripe its seeds give a rattling noise very similar to that made by a rattlesnake. This is greatly feared by animals, who will never go near the plant.

Baseball in England

Baseball has invaded at least one school ground in England. With the aid of a diagram of the diamond and a more or less accurate description of the game cut from the papers, the youngsters of a London County Council school equipped themselves for the fray. A piece of broomstick served as a bat. In stern adherence to the rules of the game the pitcher provided himself with a hard heavy ball also. He understood it to be his duty to hurl it as fast as he could. Unfortunately the players were not able to perform the miracle of the American champions and at the end of ten minutes the catcher was weeping and the first baseman was staunching the flow from his wounded nose, while centre field was hopping around on one foot. Baseball is off for the present in that school.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Growing Old Gracefully.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

NOW that my mother-in-law has begun to dye her hair and talk sweetly of how late in life it was before her father and mother turned gray, and that she must have the prevailing family trait, I've begun to think a great deal about that side of life

What a marvellous thing it is to grow old gracefully, to greet white hairs with staunch philosophy and let the wrinkles of smiling cheerfulness make the beholder forget those less lovely wrinkles of age and care

Why do men accept age with a saner philosophy than women? To be sure, we all rebel when Father Time insolently slaps his paint brush across our faces and begins to etch the first tell-tale wrinkles with which he writes his ineffaceable tale, but your average man doesn't resort in a panic to wrinkle creams and hair dye when he sees crow's feet. He sighs a little and makes the best of it

The Philosophy of It.

Of course there's considerable likelihood of his fussing over a premature bald spot, and secretly he may buy lotions and mange cure until some one finds him out, but he recoils with hearty scruples from the dye pot, unless he's a musician or a lady-killer of pronounced frivolity. Yet the number of women who desperately resort to this age eliminating hypocrisy is daily attested by the prodigious number of masseurs and hair doctors who spring up in our cities like unwholesome mushrooms, preying upon the weaknesses of womankind. I don't believe a wrinkle cream factory ever went bankrupt. And there's a new one on the market every week. One walk through a department store will reveal a new demonstrator with the best ever ready to impart the bloom of youth to any cheek for a quarter.

"There is a philosophy to it, too, I suppose," I reflected, glancing askance at the unlovely rusty frou-frou of hair above Mrs. Penfield's brow. There must be a vital reason back of this different attitude of men and women toward an age-old problem. Men, of course, are mad over the curving loveliness of youth; the older the man the more he admires it—and women know it. Naturally, the knowledge forces them into competition with younger women, and, rather than resign her prestige, the older woman flies to the paint pot and the cream jar and successfully—sometimes—imitates the natural beauty of the younger.

Why, I wonder, do men insist upon loveliness in women when women, who are a notoriously color-loving sect, accept untold physical imperfections in men? Is it because man, the conquering brute, has been taught to think he can have what he wants, and woman must take what she can get? It's likely a survival of cave man days.

Women Always Kinder.

Watch the men beautiful women marry. Adonis would usually come out laps ahead in a beauty race. But a handsome man rarely marries a homely woman unless she's so clever he can't get away. Even then he'll consider himself grievously cheated in life's game, and he'll cast furtive sheep's eyes of admiration at every lovely woman he sees. Yet a beautiful woman will frequently give a beautiful devotion to an ugly man

The reason? Men, I think, are on the whole a more impetuous, illogical crowd than women. They delight in superficialities, provided those superficialities are sightly. There isn't the same incentive to selection. A man isn't so often looking for a meal ticket as a woman. The woman sees the ugly man, and a swift charity makes her kind to him. Women are always kinder to men than men are to women. She finds that he's interesting and decent, and instantly her interest goes beneath the shell of his physical imperfections and sees the more beautiful things beneath. If he's likely to be a good mate, that's enough for her

Not so the man. He sees first and last the sweeping eyelash, the soft pretty blush, the bronze mist of hair. They stir his senses, with a grand, illogical impetuosity he doesn't care whether there are beautiful things inside the beautiful shell or not.

"Beauty," one man once said to another, seeking, bromidically enough, to discourage the other's attentions to a beautiful, frivolous, brainless doll, "beauty is only skin deep, my boy."

"Well," said the son of Adam, glancing across the street at a girl's pretty face, "that's deep enough for me, old top!"

There you have in a nutshell the masculine attitude

AS times change heroes change. Once the hero was a Napoleon. Then he was a Jeffries as immortalized by Mr. Gibson in the picture honored by the Luxemburg Galleries in France. Then he was the ball player. Now he is the TANGO king.

Let his new glory be recognized in art as in life. Michelson pays his tribute to the new hero in a spirit of sincerest homage.

Make way for the Wizard of Syncopation. He hasn't the punch. But he has the kick. He thrills the young He galvanizes the old. He punctuates life with a new emotion. He makes men forget work. He makes women forget Bridge. He is the hour's Champion.

What True "Decorum" Means

DECORUM," says Theresa Tidy, who wrote succinctly and pointedly for the guidance of the young women of [illegible], "is desirable in all persons.

"Decorum is a practical demonstration of respect for religion, decency, and all laws and customs which are not opposed to morality.

"Virtue will incline us to decorum, and good taste will perpetually warn us against any breach of it.

"Any departure of it is inexcusable.

"To pay due respect to the forms of religion and to the rites of humanity is an imperative duty.

"By too much humility we may offend our associates, and by too much ostentation we disgrace ourselves.

"Decorum is the just mean between these two extremes.

"Delicacy of sentiment is a refined species of decorum which teaches us to conceal that which is improper or unnecessary to discover, and to avoid touching upon those topics which may possibly give pain to others.

"Great sensibility, joined to a proportionate strength of mind, produces delicacy, without which we cannot possibly gain esteem or even respect.

"Public depravity destroys decorum, and with it politeness and taste, and always ends in the decline of literature.

"We must, however," warns Mrs. Tidy, "be careful not to let our observance of decorum be carried so far as to induce us to comply with useless or evil customs merely because they are customs.

"To set public opinion at defiance in all things is ridiculous, and lays us open to well founded censure; but to risk ridicule and mockery, when we must either do so or sacrifice virtue or delicacy, is to act well and wisely.

"A false sense of decorum is the occasion of much indelicacy.

"To it we must credit the general adoption of any indecent or unbecoming style of dress.

"Young females, ignorant of the boundaries of true decorum, fear that by declining compliance with what is adopted by others they shall be stigmatized as prudes, and thus really deserve to be charged with immodesty lest they should be falsely reproached with being guilty of prudery.

"Let our young readers ever remember that prudery is not modesty, but an affectation of it, and that, consequently, so long as they really feel that any fashion or usage is offensive to delicacy their non-compliance with it is highly commendable, and will never cause them to be reproached, except by those whose reproach is the highest compliment they can receive next to the praise of the good.

"What the vicious and immodest censure will always obtain the praise of the virtuous and delicate, while effrontery and indelicacy not only disgust and offend the virtuous, but elicit the secret sneers and sarcasms of the vicious themselves.

"There are few who are so lost to all sense of what is right as not to pay virtue the indirect homage of censuring in others the very things in which they themselves offend."

Words of Wise Men

All sensuality is one, though it takes many forms; all purity is one.—Thoreau.

I never knew a man of letters ashamed of his profession.—Thackeray.

The commons, faithful to their system, remained in a wise and masterly inactivity.—Mackintosh.

The pleasures of the palate deal with us like the Egyptian thieves, who strangle those whom they embrace.—Seneca.

The reform that applies itself to the household must not be partial. It must correct the whole system of our social living. It must come with plain living and high thinking. It must come with a true acceptance by each man of his vocation—not chosen by his parents, or friends, but by his genius, with earnestness and love.—Emerson.

Selected Menu Novelties

By Ann Marie Lloyd

SALTED ALMONDS.

Pour some rapidly boiling water over the almonds, leave them for a few minutes, skin, and dry them thoroughly. It is as well to place them in the oven if they are to be used immediately, but they must not be allowed to brown. Pour a tablespoonful of good salad oil into a small frying pan, heat it thoroughly, put in the almonds, and fry them to a golden brown. Have ready a sheet of white kitchen paper, place the almonds in the middle, dust with fine salt, fold up the sheet of paper lightly, and toss the almonds until they are all coated with the salt. Open the paper and leave them until they are quite cold.

MUTTON TAILS.

Cut in half, cover with water, add an onion, stuck with two or three cloves, a sprig of parsley, and sweet herbs, and salt to season. Simmer until tender. Remove the tail. Drain well. Coat with dissolved butter, and sprinkle thickly with breadcrumbs. Brown under the griller. Strain the liquor in which it was boiled, flavor it with lemon juice, thicken, brown with a few drops of caramel, heat, and pour over the browned portions of tail.

PRUNE SAUCE FOR SUET PUDDING.

Wash well and soak half a pound of prunes in just enough water to cover them for 20 minutes. Simmer them in this water until they are soft enough for you to be able to remove the kernels easily. Add the strained juice of a lemon, a dessertspoonful of sugar, and a little powdered cinnamon. Simmer again for 10 minutes. Stir well, pressing the sauce as smoothly as possible. If too thick, add a little boiling water.

MILK JELLY.

Milk jelly is not difficult to make, and we cannot see why your efforts should result in a curdled mass. Put a quart of milk, an ounce of gelatine, three ounces of caster sugar, and a long strip of lemon rind into a saucepan. Place over a gentle heat until the gelatine is dissolved, stirring well from time to time. Strain. Leave until about to set, and then pour it into a mould previously rinsed out in cold water. Leave in a cool place until firm.

"FAGGOTS."

Mix together a pound and a half of well minced calf's liver, half a pound of equally well minced pork, a chopped onion and a teaspoonful of mixed sage and thyme, and salt and pepper to season. Place in a steamer over boiling water, and leave for half an hour. Leave until quite cold. Add three well beaten eggs and three ounces of fine breadcrumbs. Mix well. Form into cakes, place in a pan, pour in a little gravy, and bake to a golden brown.

TOMATO SAUSAGES.

Put a pound of sliced tomatoes into a saucepan, add a small piece of butter and a sprinkle of celery salt, and simmer over a very gentle heat until soft enough to be passed through a fine sieve. Season the pulp with salt, pepper, and a little piece of butter. Bring it to the boil. Leave until quite cold. Mix with a pound and a half of sausage meat. Press into skins or form into cakes. Tomato sausages must be used as soon as they are made, as they do not keep.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

My sweetheart and I had a dreadful misunderstanding a year and a half ago and for six months we tried to make up, but did not succeed. In a fit of despair, he married a girl whom he had only known a very short time. A few months later he found out that she was no longer true to him and he obtained a divorce. Now he and I both realize our folly, and he is urging me to marry him. Kindly advise me just what I should do in this case. I have always loved him and know he loves me dearly. Do you think my life with him will be a happy one with his first marriage between us?

LIBERTY BELL.

SO you quarrelled, did you, you and your sweetheart, and made a mess of your lives, and you are heartbroken and the sweetheart is miserable, and now, what shall you do?

Dear heart, it's hard to say. You've made your omelet, and now you're going to try to put the eggs back in the shells. Well, perhaps you can do it.

Some people, they say, can. I've never seen many of them. Have you?

Not quite so stable as a rock, is he, this young man of yours? It seems to be quite easy for him to change his mind—and his heart, doesn't it?

How did you feel when he married the other girl? Were you happy then? And when he divorced her—so soon, did that please you?

How do you know that the girl he married really was untrue to him? Just because he tells you so?

What was it you quarrelled about? It must have been something really serious or it wouldn't have been so hard to get over it.

Was he jealous, suspicious, exacting? Or did you observe a tendency in him to say things that were not quite true? Has he changed since then?

What is it you think you love about him?

Think a long time, little girl, think a long time—and then make up your own mind and act as you think best—and take the consequences.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Interchangeable.

"Dyspepsia is often mistaken for love," remarked the cynic.

"Not nearly so often as hunger," said the practical man.

Fairly Caught.

"So their wedding was a great surprise?"

"Yes, indeed. Everyone thought until the last minute that he would sidestep."

Car Would Be Useless.

"Would you like to have all the property in the world divided equally?"

"Oh, what's the use! It would be my luck to draw an automobile and have no money to run it."

Muddled.

"Did that Psychic Phenomenon read your wife's mind?"

"No, I knew he couldn't. Her mind is never clear."

Conservative.

"Does he run his car at a high speed?"

"Well, he will never be fined for loitering."

And There Is No Skipping.

Mertie—Wouldn't you like to be a mind reader?

Marie—Dear me, no. Why, it would be impossible to read the last chapter first.

Secrets of Health

Even Genius Must Obey Nature's Rule

By DR. L. K. HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins)

L. K. HIRSHBERG

A GENIUS is said to be he who has the capacity for taking pains. Not pains, however, in the physical sense of the word. Stoics, Spartans, Indians, Mohammedans and others, who school themselves to the cold as well as to irritants, cannot be said to be geniuses

A genius is one who is much like gold. People who have neither are forever talking about both.

Another silly platitude about genius maintains that fortune and genius are far from good friends. "Fortune has rarely condescended to be the companion of genius," said Isaac Disraeli

What Genius Needs.

On the contrary, the true genius is typified by Edison, Cardinal Gibbons, Marconi, Wilbur Wright, Dr. Howard Kelly, Rudyard Kipling, John D. Rockefeller, J. Pierpont Morgan, Andrew Carnegie, Alexis Carrell, and a vast abyss of others, all of whom lack none of this world's goods.

A genius must needs have more than the ability to take pains. He must be rigorously industrious, patient, persistent, broad in his sympathies, disrespectful to all dogmatic sciences, professions and occupations, and with a keen pleasure in the association of ignorant people as well as others

No individual, be his ancestry [illegible] ucation what it might, who moves and [illegible] in one [illegible] one set, one social group, one neighborhood, or one stratum of society, can ever measure up to the definition of genius.

Genius in all its pride and strength is full of human nature, tolerance and feeling. It is never present in a cold-blooded, icy, prudish person.

Genius is inexhaustible and eternally different and original. The feelings, the muscles, the thoughts and the power of a genius are renourished constantly. Thus again the genius differs from the usual "authority." The latter banks upon the capital with which he began. Only a little compound interest on that is his new pabulum.

Like Other Humans.

There can be no theory about genius. All the facts speak for themselves. Just as the broad term Rational Animal includes all mankind and has definite facts of nature behind it, so the name Genius contains comprehensive facts.

A genius is a man of muscle, mind and emotion. Imagination, thoughts and feelings must all be present.

The hooting, scoffing and ridicule heaped upon budding genius is at times unchanged until a coming generation distinguishes the hidden springs of conquest left behind. Genius is often perforce compelled to create the very taste which is to appreciate it.

Just as there are many things in heaven and earth unrecognized by man, which must be forced into his ken, so there are many needs of the human kind, which only the wonders of a genius can bring into the understanding.

Answers to Health Questions

L. S., New York—What is good for flat hair?

Wax the hair with mustache wax and brush out and up. It is also advisable to massage the scalp every day. The daily massage and brushing will give life to the hair

M. A., Philadelphia—I have been getting sick at the stomach, have headache and grow chilly at times. Ten months ago I was bitten on the finger by a pet dog. It wasn't a very large bite, and it was not treated for a week afterward. Hot water and peroxide were put on it also by me.

The dog was killed, but my finger still pains me. Do you think it should pain this late afterward? Are my other troubles due to that bite?

The only security from a dog bite is not to kill the dog! If the dog is a pet that has never been out among mad or fighting dogs and cats, it could scarcely have had rabies. If the dog is killed, this is never certain, even if the brain shows anything.

On the other hand, if the dog is kept chained up and watched, it will die within a few days or a week, if it has hydrophobia or rabies. No mad animals can live very long.

In any case all bites must be immediately cauterized with nitric acid, even if a permanent scar is left. The preventive treatment of Pasteur should be begun. If the dog is alive and well after a week's time, this may be stopped.

In your case, you seem to have been bitten by a well dog that never was bitten by other dogs. So you may feel assured that you are all right and dismiss the whole matter from your mind. Pains in old bites or scars are usually due to thinking about them and keeping your attention on them. None of your symptoms are those of hydrophobia. For rabies kills animals and mankind within a much shorter time than three weeks after the first symptom appears

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, has a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4630, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Suggestion For Making Croqu Game For Dark Nights

Sometimes a game of croquet to be curtailed because of the tro in finding the arches or wicket the dusk. The wire is so near color of the ground that as soo the light of day fades a bit i necessary to have some one le each wicket before the player m the shot. A good way to obviate difficulty is to get a short lengt white rubber tubing and slip it each arch so that it will cover top. This will make the arches s out against the dark background o earth in the evening. If desired, tubing or the entire arch ca painted with a phosphorous paint will glow at night.

WEARING MOURNIN

The Custom of Wearing Black the Dead is Dying Out

The request of an Englishma title in his will that no mou should be worn for him is an ius of the disrepute into which the national custom of wearing bla dead relatives is falling amongs smart set.

The managing director of o the largest mourning warehous the West End said it was bec no rare thing for ladies to funerals in half-mourning, suc greys, heliotropes, and even for to go attired in dark Oxford Few people wear crepe or w weeds, and even where black is a tendency is to go into colors at the earliest opportunity.

So great is the falling off i allegiance to black that the mou wear department of the big dry stores, formerly a very imp section of the business, is no least important. Many firms d even trouble to devote a speci partment to it. A famous co who lost her husband and son ferent times on each occasio clined to wear mourning, thoug loved them both dearly. A funeral of her son, who was a sportsman, she, and the other bers of the family, appeared in ing costume.

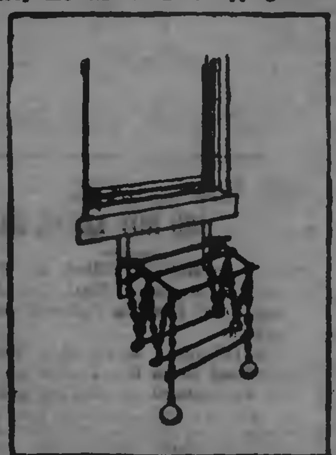
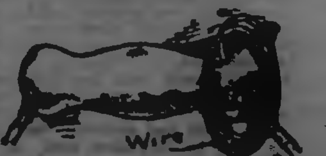
Novel Fire-escape

A novel and apparently effective fire-escape has been patented. It is of the ladder type, but, instead of being rope, as are most ladder escapes, is of iron or steel chains, with rungs of the same metal, and is, of course, noninflammable. Short horizontal arms with slightly upturned ends to keep the ladders from slipping off accidentally support the escape outside the window. By means of rings at intervals of its length the ladder is looped and it takes only an instant to shove the rings off the arms and let the ladder drop its full length. This is an advantage over most room fire-escapes, as they usually have to be hunted up and placed in position, and sometimes, in the case of ropes, are not entirely to be trusted.



FLAMES CANNOT HURT IT.

Cool Kettle Handle



Although a wooden handle on a kettle is supposed to protect the hand, it frequently happens that the handle absorbs enough heat from laying on the metal part of the kettle to cause severe burns. Besides, it has frequently happens that the handle is burned or charred. A good way to prevent both of these happenings and keep the handle cool is to attach a coil of wire to end side of it, as shown in the sketch. This keeps the handle away from the kettle, and while it may get warm will never get hot.

AWNING FOR WINDOWS

Simply Made From Roller Blind—Easily Put out of Way

Though the cost of living has gone up in most things and all of the new-fangled household apparatus costs more than the old, still there is an exception in the matter of awnings for the windows. A person who wants an awning of the very newest type without paying a lot of money for it can get one easily by utilising a window shade. The shade should be a little wider than the window where the awning is to be used. Make a wooden case for the shade and roller, with a slit in the bottom so that the shade can pass through. The wooden case is to protect it from the weather. Put a pair of screw eyes in the window frame about the height of the top of the bottom sash. Secure a piece of heavy wire or a small iron rod and bend it in the shape of a U with the bottom square and the width of your shade. Take the wooden slat from the bottom of the shade and put the rod or wire in its place so that the bottom of the U will fit in place of the slat. The ends of the rod or wire should be bent at right angles so as to pass through the screw eyes. Then when you want to put your awning down over the window simply pull down the shade. The wire or rod will make it go outward. It would be well to paint the outside of the shade. It can be painted in red and white alternate stripes to conform to the general appearance of awnings of the same style.

A BRONCHIAL COUGH, PERHAPS WEAK THROAT USE "CATARRHOZONE"--DEAD SURE CURE

Wonderful Success Reported in Thousands of Bad Cases.

How many thousands are there who would gladly pay any sum to be cured of bronchitis or catarrh. Many could be cured if they would just use common sense in selecting their remedy.

Bronchitis of course is an inflammation of the bronchial tubes which were made for the passage of air alone and neither the moisture of an atomizer nor the liquid of a cough syrup can get where the trouble really is. The diseased parts can only be reached by a remedy that can force its way through all the breathing organs. Doctors who have used "Catarrhozone" say it is the only rational cure for bronchitis. It cures by inhalation.

You breath in its healing balsams, inhale its soothing antiseptic vapor and relief is immediate.

Simple to use, delightful and pleasant—nothing compares with Catarrhozone which is the cure of the day for all bronchial and throat troubles.

Mr. H. B. McLaughlan, the well-known representative of Parke and Blackwell, Toronto, says: "I have used Catarrhozone for years and can honestly say it is the only remedy that relieves me from a painful attack of Bronchial Catarrh. The inhaler for Catarrhozone is always in my pocket and I simply couldn't get along without it. I firmly believe Catarrhozone is a wonderful remedy."

Large size suffic-tnt for two months' use, guaranteed, $1.00; small size, 50c; sample or trial size 25c. Sold by dealers everywhere.

A Gill Net Seized.

Lindsay Warder: A seizure of a gill net was made on the upper Scugog river by Fishery Inspector N. Brady on Thursday afternoon. The taking of such a net which when used at this time of year would mean the depletion of the maskinonge and annihilation of them later on is a commendable work on the part of the inspector. The net was about sixty feet long, and ten feet deep with a four inch mesh.

Lindsay Post: Unless petitions for street watering are properly signed, and unless ratepayers on certain streets petition for street watering the dust will blow at its own sweet will as far as the town council is concerned. At last night's council session during the consideration of the auditor's report, the statement was made that certain streets in town were being given water service, although the ratepayers were not paying for it.

A Joke on the Police.

At 10 o'clock Saturday night some boys in Chambers street, just at the rear of Oak Hall, framed up a joke on the local cops. They pretended to be engaged in a fierce fight. The crowded streets were quickly depleted of some 500 pedestrians who went to see what the trouble was. At the south end of Chambers street the police had some difficulty in keeping the crowd regulated. Those nearest the sham battle entered into the spirit of the joke and alternately cheered and groaned. The cops took some minutes to learn that it was only mimic warfare.

Wild Ducks Were Starved

Mr. Hartshorn, who with Mrs. Hartshorn, of this city, has been visiting New York and Connecticut friends, for some months, returned to the city on Saturday morning. Mr. Hartshorn told the Times that a month ago he was in a part of the State of Connecticut where there are flats frequented by wild ducks in their Spring pilgrimage North. The excessively cold weather had frozen the water covered flats. The State spent $10,000 for grain to feed the ducks. However hundreds of thousands of these game birds deburred by ice, from diving for their submarine food, perished.

Mr. Hartshorn picked up the frozen bodies of several ducks. They were so emaciated as to be only so many bundles of feathers and bone. Mr. and Mrs. Hartshorn spend their summers at Chemong Park.

SHOT WIFE WHEN SHE DID NOT LEAVE DANCE

Mrs. Nora McBain Killed at Party Given in Maccabee Hall, by Jolly Bachelors' Club, a Colored Organization.

New Orleans, April 18.— Because she refused to go home with her husband but insisted on staying and taking part in a fight between two other women at a colored people's dance in Maccabee hall, 626 State street, last night, Mrs. Nora McBain, 1601 French street is lying dead at Hanley's morgue.

Her husband, Chester McBain, 25 years old, a waiter, is being held at police headquarters, alleged to have fired the shot which resulted in the woman's death. McBain and Samuel Stanton, 34 years old, a porter, were arrested near Eighth and Peach streets shortly after the shooting took place by Officer William Donahue.

About 200 colored people of this city and from nearby towns assembled at the dance which was given by the Jolly Bachelors' club under the direction of Charles Scott. During the evening the colored folks drank punch "hesitated" danced the tango, Maxixe and other fancy steps of the terpsichorean art. Everything went smoothly until time for the breaking up of the party which was shortly before 3 o'clock in the morning.

The punch had started to get in its work by this time and a fight is said to have started in the hall between two colored women, Maud Herron and a woman known as "Miss Nanny."

The Herron woman, according to those left in the hall, was getting the worst of the impromptu bout and ran from her antagonist into the ante room. There she met Mr. and Mrs. McBain and a number of others were assembled.

Woman With Baby in Her Arms Among Those Who Perished in Tenement.

New York, N. Y., April 18.— Fourteen persons are known to have been killed and four injured, one mortally in a fire in a five-storey tenement house on Eighth avenue, near Forty-seventh street, early Friday. The firemen continued their search when a check of occupants of the building showed several to be missing. All of the bodies recovered were so badly charred as to render identification almost impossible. The fire started in the basement of a five and ten-cent store on the first floor, and spread rapidly up the stairway. Many occupants of the apartments escaped by fire escapes.

Part of the building was used as a boarding house and three of the bodies taken from the top floor are believed to have been transient roomers. They were burned to death while trying to make their way to the roof.

MEMBERS EXPECT NO BATTLE ON REDISTRIBUTION OF SEATS

Members of Special Committee Have Met Objections With Conciliatory Spirit

Ottawa, April 20.—The end of the session is now in sight. Notice has already been given of morning sessions—and that means the beginning of the end—although actual morning sittings will not likely start until next Monday. With morning, afternoon and evening sessions, rapid work will be made of the order paper. It is the general expectation the House will be able to adjourn by May 24.

Premier Returns This Week.

As for the C.N.R. question there is no change in the situation and will not be until the return of Premier Borden some time this week. An official announcement is expected shortly after his return. As for the redistribution bill, the committee has been working quietly for the past few weeks and an interim report will be laid before Parliament this week, dealing mainly with the Western rearrangements of seats. The present outlook is that the bill will not prove very contentious. The Liberals will have some objections—that is only natural—for everyone cannot be pleased. However, the objections will only be to isolated cases. There will not be—for there cannot be—a cry of gerrymander.

Conciliation and Harmony.

Conservative members, led by Hon. Robert Rogers, have tried to meet every objection and proposal of the Liberals fairly and squarely. The Liberals have met this attitude with the same spirit, the result has been that a committee which was expected to be a scene of a continual row, has been marked so far by conciliation and harmony.

WOMAN IS CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER

Mrs. Deverney Arrested in Connection With Mrs. Gogreve's Death.

New Orleans, April 20.—Mrs. May Deverney, a midwife of 1834 Dublin street, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter last Thursday morning. When arraigned before Judge Fisher of the first city criminal court she was released on a bond of $2500, after entering a plea of "not guilty."

According to an affidavit filed against the woman by District Attorney Chandler C. Luzenberg, Mrs. Grace Gogreve of 1816 Dublin street died after being treated by Mrs. Deverney.

The case was called to the attention of the district attorney several days ago by a number of residents of the neighborhood. A preacher was among those who called on the district attorney. He is said to have alleged that Mrs. Deverney has been implicated in several such cases.

When seen by an Item reporter in the first city criminal court Mrs. Deverney declined to discuss the case further than to deny her guilt and express surprise that such a charge could have been made against her.

MAY FREE GIRL WHO STOLE AND HOLD MAN

New Orleans, April 20.—Just as sentence was about to be pronounced upon Lily Harris, in the first city criminal court Thursday, Assistant District Attorney Henry Landfriend called a halt in the proceedings as the result of revelations made to him at the last moment in a heart-to-heart talk with the girl, who had pleaded guilty to larceny.

Mr. Landfriend brought out a case in which the influence of a man with a strong will-power over that of a weak one was forcibly illustrated, and as the result the girl may go free and the man in the case, who was not named, be prosecuted.

Lily Harris admitted stealing $20 from her mistress, Mrs. Thomas M. Reed of 1206 Carondelet street, and she was about to be committed to the parish prison. Mr. Landfriend questioned her. He learned that a man had forced her under threats to commit the act for which she was arraigned and pleaded guilty. Mr. Landfriend issued orders for the arrest of the man instanter. He will be taken before the court Friday if arrested.

SCHOOLBOY IS HELD AS SLAYER OF CHAUFFEUR

Gifford Shot And Robbed Clute and Threw Body in Ditch Says Police

Albany, N. Y., April 20.—Malcolm Gifford, Jr., the 18-year-old son of a wealthy manufacturer of Hudson, N. Y., is in jail here tonight charged with the murder of Frank J. Clute, a chauffeur.

Clute was killed on April 1, 1913, while driving an unidentified man to Troy from here. The passenger shot Clute in the back of the head, robbed him, threw his body into a ditch and fled. The slayer is known to have worn a gray overcoat and a light fedora hat.

On that night Gifford who had been expelled from a private school a month previously, but never had gone home or notified his parents of his dismissal, left the house of a friend, Derrick Boardman, in Troy, ostensibly to attend a dance. He had on a dress suit, a gray overcoat and a light fedora hat, it is said. Instead of going to the dance immediately, he disappeared.

Several hours later Gifford appeared at the dance. Witnesses before the grand jury today said his clothing was soiled. The next morning, it was testified, he put his overcoat in one friend's suitcase, his hat in another, borrowed a cap and left for home.

Recently property belonging to Clute was found under an eave of the house where Gifford stayed on the night of the killing.

A pair of gloves of the same brand Gifford was wearing, detained by detectives were found near Clute's body These detectives declared Gifford attempted to hide when they apprehended him at Chatham Mass, last Tuesday. He was brought here and his detention kept a secret even from his parents until today.

Clute was shot with an automatic revolver, Authorities say Gifford owned such a gun. Gifford could drive a machine. An attempt was made by the slayer of Clute to start his automobile after the killing. Footprints in front of the crank showed this. Tht footprints have been preserved and now are in the custody of Dist. Attorney Harold D. Alexander, who obtained the indictment.

FALSE TEETH STOLEN; OFFICER SUSPENDED

Reported "Robbery" in Canal Street Is Peculiar.

New Orleans, April 20.—The alleged theft of false teeth, valued at $4 from a case in front of a Canal street 'dental parlor" Wednesday night caused the suspension of Patrolman Paul R. Kertz by Superintendent of Police James W. Reynolds Thursday morning. According to the peculiar report made by the owners of the case, the lock was opened, the teeth taken and the case relocked. Several valuable pieces of gold in the case were not touched.

The policeman was suspected because the "robbery" occurred on his beat.

THOUSANDS OF RESCUITS WOULD AID ULSTER'S FORMIDABLE ARMY

Reinforcements in Large Numbers Would be Drawn From Protestants of England, Scotland, and Other Parts of the Empire in Case of Trouble

London, April 8.—For long the freest and most orderly country in the world, England has almost forgotten the civil wars which in former days rent the nation asunder. London itself is not without its memories of internecine strife, and in the presence the roses are again to be picked in Temple Garden, if the army can be used in the coercion of Northern Ireland, as Cromwell used it to impose his wishes on Scotland and other parts of the country, if once more the realm is to be overrun by rival military forces as in 1688.

The prospect is by no means so remote as writers for some Liberal journals in Canada seem to think. The people of Ulster, who number 1,000,000, or one quarter of the population of all Ireland, will not submit to the conditions of the Home Rule Bill, forced upon Mr. Asquith by the Redmond party. They will not give up their long-cherished privileges of full British citizenship. Possessing most of the industrial wealth of Ireland, they will not furnish a hostile legislature at Dublin with the revenue wherewith to deprive them of their civil and religious rights. Determined Protestants at heart, they will no more subject themselves to clerical government than did the Scottish Presbyterians who, centuries ago, signed the solemn League and Covenant in Greyfriars' Churchyard, Edinburgh. This is in brief a statement of their position.

Military Force of Ulster.

In their determination the Ulstermen are adamant. If the Home Rule Bill goes on the statute books in its present shape a few weeks hence and if a Legislature is set up later at Dublin, certain things will inevitably follow. The Provisional Government already organized, will forthwith come into being at Belfast, and it will have at its back an army of 100,000 sworn to defend the rights and traditions of Ulster. This great military force, is well trained and well furnished with arms and, most important of all, its personnel is fired with patriotic zeal and religious convictions. Those considerations make it a formidable army and no doubt remains that in case of trouble it would receive thousands of Anglican non-conformist and Orange recruits from England, Scotland, Canada and other parts of the Empire.

PREMIER ASQUITH IGNORES THE SAD ULSTER SITUATION

Colonel Chaloner Asks if Mr. Asquith Will Order a Judical Inquiry

London, April 20.—Although Ulster is out of the set programme of the commons for the time being, Mr. Asquith had to withstand a brisk fire of questions on the matter when he came into the House to-day, fresh from seeing the King at Buckingham Palace.

The leading interrogation stood in the name of Colonel Chaloner, who asked the Premier

"I See No Reason," He Said.

"Whether in view of allegations of an unauthorized plot to overawe Ulster, he will take steps to secure a judicial inquiry into the whole matter,"

Mr. Asquith's answer was laconic. "I see no grounds for a judicial inquiry into the alleged plot against Ulster," he replied, whereupon Mr. Bonar Law immediately asked the Premier to reconsider his reply in view of the gravity of the matter.

To Repeat Question.

The Opposition leader intimated he would repeat the question to-morrow Mr. James Hogge thereupon put a further question, "did the Premier know that the sworn testimony of officers of the army and navy and Irish constabulary, existed with regard to facts which were sufficient to arraign the Right Hon. Gentleman for high treason."

"I know nothing of it," replied the Premier. The atmosphere in the House was getting sultry in a double sense as further questions relative to the details of Sir Arthur Paget's communications with his officers were fired at the Premier.

HUMAN LIFE TRULY TOLD.

One of the truest stories told of human life, although somewhat pessimistic in tone, was that given in the Princess Theatre last week by Curley Monnett, which says:
Life Of Man

Life Of Man.

When a man comes into this world he comes without his consent. When he leaves it, it is against his will. During his stay on earth, his time is spent in one continuous round of contraries and misunderstandings. In his infancy he is an Angel, in his boyhood days he is a devil, in his manhood days, he is everything from a lizard up. In his duties he is a fool. If he is a poor man he is a poor manager. If he is rich he is dishonest but considered smart. If he is in politics, he is a grafter and a crook. If he is out of politics he is an undesirable citizen. You can't place him if he goes to church on Sunday. If he goes he's a hypocrite. He stays away he's a sinner. If he donates to Missions he does it for show. If he fails to give up he is stingy and a "tight wad" When he first comes into the world, they all want to kiss him; before he goes out they all want to kick at him. If he dies young, there might have been a great future ahead for him. If he lives to a ripe old age he's only in the way, and living to save funeral expenses. Isn't life a funny proposition after all?

$100,000 SUIT FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

Bangor, April 20.—Within a few days there will come to trial in the supreme court here the suit of Miss Elizabeth Garmong of Des Moines, Iowa, against John B. Henderson, of Washington, son of U.S. Senator Henderson to recover $100,000 damages for alleged breach of promise of marriage. The case had been assigned for Tuesday, but owing to the illness of the plaintiff who had for some time lived here, the trial was put over to the last of the term, and may not come up until April 24.

Just before leaving for New York today, Mr. Henderson, made a complete denial of all of Miss Garmong's statements. He concluded: "At her urgent request, I extended a favor to her which she now uses as a basis for her claims set forth in this suit. I never asked her to marry me.

REPEAT PERFORMANCE OF QUEEN ZEPHRA POPULAR ATTRACTION

The repeat performance of "Queen Zephra" in the Grand Opera House tomorrow night is by special request from the patronesses of the production in Peterborough, who are desirious of showing their appreciation of Mr. Booth's manifold courtesies, and whole-hearted interest in the local young people whom he so admirably trained, by asking for him one big benefit capacity house on this repeat occasion. From a financial point of view to Mr. Booth, the talented and gentlemanly director of "Queen Zephra" his second offering in Peterboro unfortunately was a disappointment. Hence the whole company of local talent have urged upon him this repeat performance tomorrow night, with a view to attracting a record audience to see and hear a high class and refined entertainment given by our own young people at the popular prices of 15, 25, 35 and 50 cents. Tomorrow night will be the last opportunity of seeing and hearing "Queen Zephra," a great musical spectacle which appeals to the most refined taste. All lovers of song, dance, and scenic presentations should attend.

A MASTER MARINER

The great liner fills the public eye, but the greater part of the world's work on salt water is done by the "tramp" steamer, and it is the "tramp" captain who is the real hero afloat. There have been few finer feats of seamanship ever accomplished than that of Captain Charles Charleton, of the Liverpool ship Harold, a master mariner of rare courage and resource. Unable to get officers for his ship at Adelaide, Melbourne, or Sydney, Captain Charitton took the amazing resolve of navigating his ship home with his crew, all of whom, with the exception of two men, were foreigners. He brought her safely into Queenstown Harbor, after a voyage of 15,000 miles, during which he was his own skipper and mates as well. Captain Charleton went for stretches of six weeks without removing his clothes, and slept on the poop of the ship on a cabin chair during most of the 108 days the voyage lasted.

SECRET OF LONG LIFE

From Japan comes the secret of long life. It is in the form of twelve commandments, as follows:

1. Arise and retire early.
2. Sleep six to seven hours daily in a room perfectly dark with open windows.
3. Spend as much time as possible in the open air.
4. Eat meat only once a day.
5. Drink moderately tea and coffee, and do not smoke or drink.
6. Take a warm bath every morning.
7. Give up silk garments for woollen ones.
8. Rest one day a week and in that day do not even read or write.
9. Avoid warm places, especially those heated artificially.
10. Re-establish your exhausted organs with identical animal's organs.
11. Avoid getting excited and do not fatigue your intellect.

And the twelfth commandment is the most interesting one:

12. If you are a bachelor get married without delay; if you are a widower, contract a second marriage immediately.

MENDING HUBBY'S CLOTHES

It makes all the difference in the world to the way a man is "turned out" if his wife knows just how to mend his clothes and keep them in order.

Darning That Can't be Seen

If a man tears a jagged rent in a coat, or some other garment, with a look of despair on his face he's almost certain to declare, "Now that coat's done for!" But it is just then that the really clever little needlewoman steps in with a "Not a bit of it, John! I'll be able to mend it so that the rent is scarcely visible!" This is how it is done. First of all, a wee bit of the coat lining is unstitched, and from the small edges of the material left over at the seams a few threads are pulled out. Now comes the most delicate task of all—the darning of the rent with the threads worked in exactly the same direction as the weave of the material.

The Size of the Stitches

Size your stitches so that they are about the same length as those used in the weave of the cloth, and be careful not to draw them too tight. With the tear neatly darned, a damp cloth should be placed over the repair, and then it is pressed with a very hot iron. Be quite sure that the cloth is wet, and don't on any account go on with the pressing after it has become dry, or else you'll make the coat shiny. You'll be delighted and surprised with the result. Truly, it's very difficult to find the rent.

Patches That Last

When repairing men's underclothes, circular patches are by far the most durable. As they are round, they don't strain any of the rest of the garment unduly. Commence by cutting out a round piece of good material; it should be large enough to quite cover any threadbare portions. Then lay your patch in position. Start running stitches in a very tiny circle in the middle of the patch, and continue rounds of these stitches until you have come to the edge of the patch. Such a renovation will last for years.

The Stomach First

That the formation of a human being begins with the stomach is the contention of several scientists of high repute.

In Venice there is a cafe which has been open day and night for one hundred and fifty years.

Coral and Kindness

Queen Helena of Italy has set a new fashion in Rome. For the last few years the coral fishermen of Torre del Greco, near Naples, have had bad times. No one wanted the red stones of the seas. They appealed to the Queen, and the consequence was that at a Court ball at the Quirinal, instead of the magnificent pearl necklace which she usually wears, Queen Helena wore round her neck six rows of coral, and her beautiful hair was crowned with a diadem of diamonds and coral. Coral at once became the fashion. Old coral ornaments that have slumbered for years in their cases are being furbished up, and the jewellers are being besieged with orders for the blood-red stones. Queen Helena's kindness has succeeded, and the fishermen of Torre del Greco are happy again.

The farmer then fired a gun to frighten the tramps off, but the charge entered the neck of the woman, Rose Ann Nicholl, and she fell dead. The farmer surrendered to the police.

Scotsman Murdered in Mongolia

A British employe in the Chinese Telegraph Service reported murdered by a robber chief in Inner Mongolia turns out to have been George Grant, a native of Skelmorlie. Mr. Grant was about thirty-six years of age. For some years he was on the staff of the Glasgow Post Office, but being of an adventurous disposition, service in China attracted him.

Greedy Mackerel Captured

Extraordinary scenes were witnessed at Skerries, Ireland, when, with the flow of the tide, mackerel arrived in such multitudes that the water was thick with fish. Before them rushed great shoals of herring fry, which the mackerel were hotly pursuing. Boats at once put out, and big catches were made. Many fish leaped clean out of the water in their mad chase of the fry, and were captured by people walking along the beach.

Fatal Experiment in Hanging

Had he not been killed instantaneously he could have released himself. A brother and sister described O'Hare as a most happy boy, but fond of adventure.

Visitors Lost in Caves

A party of visitors at Corsham, near Bath, had the disagreeable experience of being lost for several hours in the underground caverns of Pockeridge Quarry, where the famous Bath stone is worked. They lost their way in the subterranean passages, their candles and matches became exhausted and for hours remained in absolute darkness and afraid to move.

Late at night they were rescued by a search party.

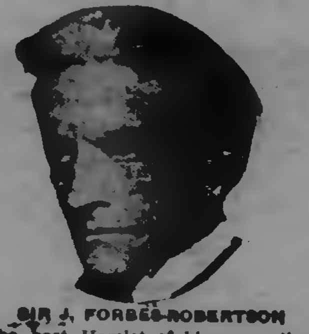
ACTOR AND AUDIENCE

Forbes-Robertson Feels Stimulated by Sympathetic Audience

It is not easy to interview Sir J. Forbes-Robertson, but for that very reason, when he has been safely "cornered," the opinions of the distinguished actor on his profession and theatrical matters in general are all the more interesting. Like almost all those who have risen to distinction on the stage, he was intended for another walk in life, taking to acting against much well-meant advice. Needless to say, he has not since repented. He thinks the drama has improved all round. "Within the past few years the most amazing advances have been made in connection with the stage. The general level of theatrical work is higher."

Forbes-Robertson, who has influenced so many people, believes the actor is also greatly influenced by his audience.

"'How does an audience affect the actor?' It is essential for the actor to be in sympathy with his audience—that is the very life-blood of the part; and the quality of sympathy differs not so much in degree as in quality—between, say an academic, intellectual, or popular audience. It almost seems as though some magnetic current were passing from audience to actor—some indescribable psychic element which stimulates the actor in the artistic creation of his characters. The more keenly he responds to such a subtle influence the more acute is his sympathetic interpretation."



SIR J. FORBES-ROBERTSON
"The best Hamlet of his generation"

Asked again what were the two elements making for successful acting, the famous tragedian answered:

"Passion and reflection; the danger is that in the whirlwind of passion the actor may be overwhelmed. The sense of control should be acute. For example, the player will find the use of tears a dangerous expedient—one becomes choked, and is apt to lose control. In my own case I feel all emotional scenes, under favorable conditions, very strongly, but I never dare let myself go. Acting is one of the imaginative arts, and depends for its success largely upon the reflective powers; really it demands the same insight and imagination which we look for in the other arts."

A MOST UNUSUAL PEPLUM BLOUSE

The tunic is not alone a feature of the new skirts, it is also seen on many of the blouses. A woman will quickly recognize the practical side as well as the decorative side of this. A blouse or two like this will do service with several skirts and will always appear to be a new costume. The blouse illustrated, No. 8291, has a drop-shoulder, a full length sleeve and a box pleated peplum. Other features that render it smart are the V-shaped neck and the draped effect at the bottom, which is brought about by the fitted lining. As shown here, it is fashioned of one of the new Japanese flowered silks and is appropriately combined with a plain skirt of pongee in the natural color.

These silks average 36 inches in width and may be purchased from [illegible] a yard and up.

To make this blouse in size 36 requires 3½ yards of 36 inch material.

Plain linen is again favored for children's clothes, and nothing is fresher or more suitable for the small coats and dresses. No. 8296 is a girl's coat developed in plain blue linen with collar, cuffs and straight, stitched belt of blue and white plaid. The coat has a front yoke cut in one with the sleeve and back, and collar that fastens high in the neck.

For a child of 8, this model requires 2¼ yards of 42 inch linen, which may be purchased from 30 cents a yard and up.

No. 8291—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8296—sizes 2 to 14.
Each pattern 15 cents.

VANDYKE POINTS A SMART NEW FINISH FOR THE POPULAR TAFFETAS TUNIC

Taffetas lends itself well to pleatings. One of the smartest little frocks seen for some time has a short, accordion-pleated tunic finished at the bottom with Vandyke points; the effect is unusual and new.

Another pretty costume shows a side-pleated tunic.

In No. 8094, is shown the effectiveness of the fad for combining plain and figured materials; the bodice is developed in terra-cotta silk voile and the skirt is brocaded charmeuse in the same shade. A crush velvet girdle with a soft tied bow in front gives the required note of contrast.

This dress may be made in size 36 with 3¾ yards of brocaded material and 2 yards of contrasting material for the bodice.

Voile ranges from $1 a yard and up; and charmeuse may be purchased from $1.75.

The black taffetas frock shown in No. 8116, is rendered very pleasing by the pointed, gathered overskirt. The colored plaid of the bodice and upper tunic are also distinctive.

In size 36, this design needs 6½ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8094—sizes 34 to 44.
No. 8116—sizes 34 to 42.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

FASHIONS AND LUNACY

German Doctor Attributes Extreme Dressing to Derangement of Mind

"A certain proportion of lunatics," said Dr. Hols, a German mental alienist, "probably three per cent. owe their troubles to the influence of fashion; that is, to women's fashions. This does not include the vast number upon whom fashion acts indirectly in an injurious sense, for instance, to tight-laced women who suffer from hysteria. Also it does not include thousands of indirect victims whose nervous systems are undermined through disappointment with their dressmakers, jealousy of other women's clothes and inability to pay modistes' bills. If these cases are counted, then a third of woman lunatics are victims of fashion."

"The greatest of all dangers for women of between 40 and 50," said Dr. Hols, "is a too minute attention to clothing and to changes of mode. When a young woman is unreasonably keen on fashion, that may mean mental disease; but when a woman getting on in life does so, that almost certainly means a mind unbalanced.

"One sign of all half-lunacy is an entire lack of sympathetic and human interests and a fussy self-concentration on one's own petty, often insignificant, needs and imagined needs. This concentration is petty and insignificant when in an elderly woman it takes the form of dress. Women with grown-up children, perhaps grandchildren, who persist in leading fussy, 'worldly' lives, who think only of their complexions and their hats, are nearly always half way towards insanity."

OUR POINT OF VIEW

We have yet to hear of a young man who made anything by marketing the wild oats he sowed.

If you take the trouble to investigate you will find that the man who doesn't count for anything in the community has a wife who keeps a boarding house.

We are informed that a scientist has discovered that ragtime is a cure for insanity. Good news. Now let us hope that with the least possible delay he will find a cure for ragtime.

We congratulate the month of April on the progress she is making in living up to the designs on the covers of the April magazines.

Found the Cause The Rest Was Easy

Dodd's Kidney Pills Quickly Cured His Kidney Disease.

How Hudson Marchbank, After Suffering For Five Years, Found Quick Relief and Permanent Cure in the Greatest of Canadian Remedies.

Marchbank, King's County, N. B., April 20.—(Special.)—After suffering for five years from kidney disease, brought on by a strain, Hudson Marchbank, Esq., the well known farmer of this place, is again a strong, healthy man, and another grand cure for Dodd's Kidney Pills has been put on record. In an interview, Mr. Marchbank says:

"About five years ago I hurt my back from lifting, and it developed into kidney disease. My back pained me all the time, and I was very much troubled with headaches. My appetite was fitful; I had a bitter taste in my mouth in the mornings; I perspired freely and my perspiration had a disagreeable odor.

"I used liniments and plasters, but they did not do me any good, and as there were other symptoms that my kidneys were affected, I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. After using two boxes, my back was completely cured, and my kidneys have not troubled me since."

When Mr. Marchbank decided that his kidneys were the cause of his troubles the rest was easy. Almost any of the neighbors could tell him that Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure diseased kidneys.

AFRAID OF THE PEOPLE

In the organs of Irish Nationalists and British Radicals there is much denunciation of the aristocratic and privileged classes because Home Rule for Ireland is opposed by the whole population of Ulster. But there are various forms of privilege. Whenever the British people have had an opportunity to pronounce upon Home Rule for Ireland the proposal has been rejected. Clearly recognizing that they could not secure a verdict from the people in favor of the coercion of Ulster, the Liberal and Nationalist politicians entered into a private compact to give Home Rule in defiance of the people.

These haters of privilege, says the News, therefore occupy this position At the risk of civil war they are forcing a reorganization of the United Kingdom. They will not submit the issues involved to a general election. They dare not have a referendum on a proposal which has never been before the constituencies. By the votes of Irish Nationalists alone in a British Parliament, they are driving one of the most loyal elements in the United Kingdom out of their hereditary and long-established political relationship. If this is not "usurpation," and "privilege," and "domination" it is treason and cowardice and a denial of the very principles of responsible government.

Performing Horse Dies

The death occurred of a wonderful performing horse, Alpha, which belonged to Mr. R. D. C. Shaw of Great Hale. The animal, which had performed before several members of the royal family, could play the national anthem on a harmonium, could write its own name on a slate with chalk held in its mouth, and could do difficult sums in the first four rules. Another horse, Littel Beta, also belonging to Mr. Shaw, accompanied Alpha on show, and together they could play "Home, Sweet Home," with bells fastened on their feet.

ROYAL LOVE AFFAIRS

Dan Cupid Sometimes Supersedes Tradition

The romantic love story of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria and his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, provides a striking illustration of what a woman of inferior rank may have to suffer for marrying a royal personage. The archduke who is heir to the Austrian throne, declined to marry any of the royal ladies offered for his choice, for he had fallen in love with a maid of honor, the beautiful woman who is now his wife.

Although the emperor at last gave his sanction to the marriage, imperial honors were denied the bride, and it was only after some years that she and her husband wore down the prejudice which existed against her, and she was created a duchess by the emperor—a title which conferred upon her privileges more in harmony with her dignity as the lawful wife of the future sovereign. By the terms of the marriage settlements, however, the archduke's wife cannot become empress, nor even her children succeed to the imperial throne; although it is pointed out that royal marriage settlements have, before now, been set aside.

THREE FAMOUS SCIENTISTS

Dr. Andrew Wilson, Dr. Gordon Stables and Dr. Lascelles Scott, the famous English analyst, have all personally tried Zam-Buk and expressed themselves convinced of its great healing value.

Mrs. St. Denis, of Thompson St., Weston, Winnipeg, suffered long with eczema; and finally her doctor said only Zam-Buk could cure her—another fine tribute of a scientific man to this great herbal healer.

Mrs. St. Denis says: "The eczema broke out on my nose and one side of my face. I could get no sleep because of the irritation and pain, and my face was in such a shocking condition that for two months I did not go out of the house. I applied remedies and my doctor treated me, but without effect, until one day he said that the only thing which would be likely to cure me was Zam-Buk. I procured a supply and to cut a long story short, in a few weeks Zam-Buk cured me completely, leaving no scars."

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for cuts, scalds, burns, eczema, scalp sores, ulceration, inflammation, piles, etc.; also as an embrocation for rheumatism, sprains and sciatica. All druggists and stores at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. [illegible]

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Some Useful Hints For Those Who Have Children at School

Don't make the mistake of bundling up your child's throat every time it goes out. In the morning after its bath pour cold water over your hands and rub its throat, chest and back with it. Then rub it with a coarse towel. If you do this you find your child will be immune from colds.

See that your child's feet are kept dry. Overshoes are indispensible, as they can be taken off at the schoolhouse, leaving the feet warm and dry.

Be sure that your little girl's hair is perfectly clean. It should be washed every two weeks. Whenever your children's hands are washed teach them to dry them thoroughly and if they chap rub them with mutton tallow.

Remember to look carefully at your children's eyes and teeth. A small toothbrush with bristles that are not hard and plenty of boracic acid water solution must be used daily. Teach them not to swallow this solution although it is not poison.

Impress your children with the idea that they must not rub their eyes with their fingers, as they can infect them. Neither must they put their fingers or coins in their mouth. Teach them to keep their mouths shut when out of doors. To habitually breath through the nose will often prevent one contracting the germ of cold.

Visit the school and see that the chair in which your child sits and the desk in front of him is the right height. Look at the ventilation of the room. Insist upon plenty of fresh air. It is of more importance than heat.

Visit the school at least twice each term; talk with the teacher and encourage her in every way you can to co-operate with you in laying the foundation not only of a "book" education, but of an education in good morals and good sense.

CALM VERSUS BUSTLE

The Efficient Woman Works Quietly and Knows Value of Leisure

Falstaff's saying, "It were better to be eaten to death with rust than scoured to nothing with perpetual motion," comes to mind when one notes the many busy-nesses of some modern women.

"Rushed to death!" she cries. "So much to do, so little time," and away she patters to attend a committee meeting or address a convention or "see somebody" about something. And it never occurs to her that this odd world would wag along just the same if she did none of these things—in fact, she would be highly indignant were such an insinuation made.

The woman of real executive ability goes about her duties quietly; she mentally organised her work. Whether she moves about in her own house or engages in outside endeavors, she is calm and composed—and effective. She has, moreover, a sense of proportion which enables her to recognise how much of her energy and time can profitably be given to any one thing.

You will find that the really efficient woman is not busy with her busynesses all the time. She knows the value of leisure and that hurry and haste never produce the best results.

How Perfume is Used

Some women burn pastilles and ribbon of Bruges to scent their rooms. Some use scented handkerchiefs. A few pin their faith to incense, and put it in a red-hot iron spoon which they carry about their apartments. Others use a scent syringe and waft white rose, violet, or heliotrope over themselves and their belongings.

Blind Telephone Girls

The Maryland School for the Blind found a new field of work for blind girls. It graduated six well trained telephone operators who are able to render first-class service with the regulation switchboard. Hearing and touch supplement the loss of sight.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest

In the Ticket Line.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

MARY and I were going away to a neighboring town on a week-end trip and I had asked Mary to meet me at the station.

"You get the railroad tickets," I said over the 'phone, "for I'll probably be a little late and I'll just get there in time to join you and rush for the train."

I was, however, a little earlier than I had expected. When I entered the waiting room Mary was already in a long line bound for the ticket agent's window and didn't see me.

Now an honorable man has an almost religious respect for the etiquette of a waiting line. The man who breaks through to a better place without duly waiting his turn he regards as an inferior species of yellow dog he'd like to kick and kick hard. Therefore, rather than conspicuously beckon Mary out of the line and take her place, I decided to let her manage her own affairs, buy the tickets as we had originally planned and keep the sanctity of that line preserved.

An Old Artifice.

You can imagine my horror and surprise when in a temporary halt Mary slipped deftly ahead, smiled bewilderingly at the man behind her and kept her new and better place with a pretty air of defiant resolution. He raised his hat and let her stay—what mere man would not?—and the line moved on, but I was honestly ruffled. I had learned something new about my wife—petty, to be sure, but revelatory, too, in its way. Mary had about as much respect for the ethics of line-keeping as she has for a great many other scruples of mine. And she was evidently not averse to playing forth her sex to gain an advantage over a mere man, who, by all the laws of decency and gallantry, might not protest when his displacer was a woman—and a young and pretty one at that.

The line was long, for it was Saturday and a holiday. Mary waited a while, manoeuvred cleverly again and slipped ahead. She smiled deliciously at the man she had displaced, and I reddened and gritted my teeth with shame for her. For an instant I had an insane desire to step up and speak furtively about the utterly unscrupulous way she was demoralizing an otherwise orderly line. I refrained in the end, for I fancied she wouldn't try the same trick again.

I was mistaken.

Mary dropped her handkerchief—purposely or not, I could not make out. The man in front of her picked it up and in the slight disarrangement of the line she went ahead again, this time with disastrous consequences. There was an elderly gentleman with a red face just behind her now, and in response to her delightfully confidential smile he merely stuck out his chin and glared.

Inventories Her Purse.

"Keep your place in the line, lady!" he snorted indignantly. "Everybody gets his or her turn and it's only fair you should wait, too. If you women want equal rights, you can't have privileges, too."

Mary stared into his churlish face with beautiful insolence.

Grimly he stepped out of the line and motioned her back.

"I was ahead of you, madam," he boomed wrathfully, "and ahead I'll stay!"

Mary's face flushed furiously.

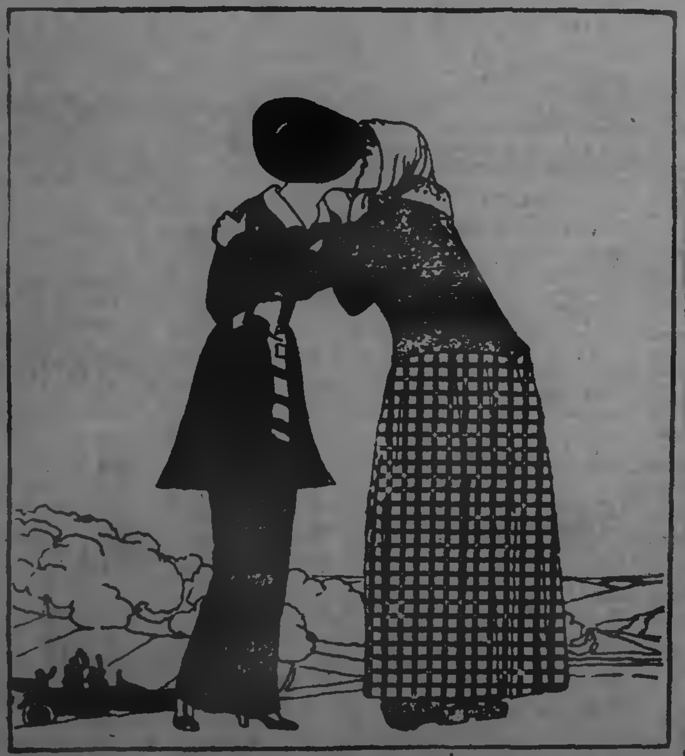
"How dare you speak that way to me!" she exclaimed haughtily. "I have fully as much right here as you. Besides I'm in a hurry."

A disgusted Greek chorus of men advised the irate gentleman to shut up, which he reluctantly did, and, tossing her pretty head, Mary kept her third place in the line. I suppose I should have interfered, but I was so thunderstruck at Mary's pretty, unscrupulous disregard for the privileges of others that I merely gritted my teeth again and stayed where I was. After some slight altercation in the line Mary moved on to buy our tickets.

Now mother usually has her money all ready. Not so Mary. She removed from her handbag a ridiculous square of lace meant for a handkerchief, a sheaf of memoranda, a package of hairpins and laid them on the ticket shelf. She dropped a small pink purse mirror that hurtled to the feet of the stout, indignant old gentleman, who furtively kicked it. She held up that line while she dug for evasive nickels and dimes and squealed when some one returned the pink mirror. Then she sweetly packed up her handbag again and kept the line waiting while she did it.

It's things like this that give men their opportunity of making ironic fun of the ways of women.

What Story Do You See in This Picture?



TWO girls in affectionate greeting on a country hillside. One has just arrived in her auto. Unmistakably, the other is fresh from the fields or the dairy house. There is the savoir faire of the city in the form and manner of the one. Her awkward formlessness reflects the life of the other.

From her dainty boots to her jaunty hat the city girl represents the last word in fashion. To the other style means comfort, service and almost Puritanical plainness.

It might appear that two distinct social castes were, unaccountably, meeting on a common level. Mistress and milkmaid, perhaps—drawn together by some unusual tie.

But the girls are SISTERS—the Paris artist who drew the picture tells the secret after first making you guess.

They played together about their mother's knee; grew up together on the farm; studied together in the country school; dreamed the same dreams.

A wealthy relative finally whisked the one away to the city. After a while she looked at herself and thought of Cinderella. Then, one day, she longed for her best beloved.

What appears in the picture as a great difference between the two girls is only—CLOTHES!

Store in a dark recess of a closet the heavy shoes, the full calico skirt, the shapeless waist and the head kerchief. Weave a Merlin spell with La Mode—and could not one imagine a pretty episode on the green of the Country Club?

SEEK BEAUTY IN SUNSHINE

Two Interesting Poses of Lucrezia Bori.

Spanish Singer Explains "Solarification"

By Eleanor Ames.

WERE you ever solarized?

Solarification is the modern, scientific cure-all.

It is the latest Fountain of Youth. It is the most approved means of rebuilding worn out bodies, of resting tired heads, of increasing the efficiency and resisting power of the human organism, of driving out dangerous and insidious germs, and of storing up energy for the future.

Solarification really means nothing more expensive nor difficult nor complex than systematic and purposeful sunning.

It means literally "basking in the sunshine." It means absorbing the subtle and powerful elements which go to make up the sun and are thrown off from that orb in the form of vapors and gases all charged with vital qualities.

The efficacy of sunshine as applied to human beings is no new discovery. It dates back to the ancient Persians, who were Sun Worshippers, turning their uplifted faces to the rising sun and worshipping with ecstatic fervor.

It remained for Lucrezia Bori of the Metropolitan Opera, she of the flute-like voice, to apply the warmth of the sun to the restoration and preservation of the singing voice. She comes from a country where the land is bathed in sunshine all the time. She confesses that she could live without food far easier than she could exist without sunshine.

Here in America she found some essential lacking in her life. She imagined her wonderful voice was losing the quality of tone which had won her fame.

Medical specialists refused to see anything wrong with her physical being. Then one day when she stood in the window in a perfect flood of sunshine, the nature of the lack came to her.

"It is the glorious sunshine that I need!" she cried.

"That day I began to study the means of best becoming properly solarified," she explained later. "I felt that I could hardly wait to get the proper amount of sunshine back into my system. Why, I had been starving, actually starving here in your great America for sunshine.

"And so I evolved a regular systematic daily sunshine regime. I made a scientific study of solarification.

"I knew the sunshine of my own country. I did not know the sunshine of America. No national attribute varies more than sunshine. The sun of the North is not the sun of the South. Neither is the sun of the East the sun of the West.

"I was sensible enough to know there is great danger of becoming oversolarified, just as one may become overmagnetized. The two conditions are almost parallel. I began by taking sun baths every day in my home. For a certain time I would sit in the sunshine, absolutely relaxed and letting the sunlight saturate my body. Then I went for long walks in the open air, always keeping in the sunshine. The first I noticed was the slump of energy I felt when there was a cloudy day.

"Gradually I learned to take just the right amount of sunshine to get the best results. There is no hard and fast rule which will fit all cases.

"Each individual will have to learn for herself how much solarification she can stand with best results.

"I know now when I have comfortably filled my system to attain the best results, and I try never to oversun myself.

"I have been to many of the famous health resorts of the world, and I have enjoyed many of the different kinds of baths and magnetic treatments which are intended to build up the system, but not one of them equals the effects of solarification.

"I feel exhilarated, buoyant, full of life and energy and alertness when I am properly solarified. I sing in perfect tone and with no exertion and without fatigue. I feel the years fall off my shoulders. I think clearly, and have a sane, sympathetic outlook of life, and I am full of happiness and good cheer.

"Let me advise SUNSHINE. I believe, properly applied and persistently advocated, it would put the divorce courts out of business, and it would make all of us more beautiful."

Great Novels in a Nutshell

Charles Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities"

Condensed by Helen S. Gray

THE scenes of this book are laid in London and Paris just before and during the French Revolution. Mr. Lorry, a trusted employe of Tellson's Bank, is accompanying to Paris Lucie Manette, for whom the bank is trustee. He breaks the news to her that her father is not, as she has always thought, dead, that he has spent 18 years in the Bastile without trial or accusation. They find him mentally a wreck, unable to tell his name; "105 North Tower" is the only name he knows. He is in the care of a former servant, Defarge. They find him busy making shoes, a trade he had learned in prison to help him endure his confinement. Through his daughter's care he recovers his faculties.

The extravagance of the French nobility is described. One of them has four attendants to serve him with chocolate. At his morning reception the men wear little pendant trinkets that chink as the wearers move. One of them, the Marquis of Evremonde, after leaving the reception, drives through the city and kills a child. That evening his nephew, Charles Darnay, calls to see him and declares that the name of Evremonde is more hated than any other in France; that, if he ever becomes marquis, he will devote his life to redressing the wrongs that have been done to the serfs on the estate.

His uncle replies that he intends to die perpetuating things as they are. That night the father of the child that had been run over stabs him in his bed. A year later, when the assassin is hanged, his comrades vow to exterminate the whole race of Evremonde.

Before asking Lucie to marry him, Darnay asks her father's consent and says he is living under an assumed name. Dr. Manette checks him from telling it and says if he wins Lucie's love and marries her he may tell him on his wedding day.

In July, 1789, the mob storms the Bastile and releases the prisoners. Defarge goes to Cell 105 North Tower and looks under the stones in the floor and chimney for hidden papers. Not long after the Evremonde chateau is burned to the ground.

Darnay receives a letter from the steward he had left in charge of his property, saying he had been imprisoned because of his loyalty to him and begging him to come to his aid. Without telling Lucie and her father, he goes to France and arrives just as the edict is issued banishing all emigrants with penalty of death if they return. He is arrested and thrown into prison. Lucie and her father go to Paris. As he had served 18 years in the Bastile, he is now in high favor with the new government. His influence saves his son-in-law from the general massacre and secures his acquittal at his trial 15 months later.

Darnay is rearrested the same day at the instigation of Mme. Defarge, one of the leaders of the mob. At his trial the papers Defarge had found in Cell 105 are read aloud in court. They contain a full account of the reasons for Dr. Manette's imprisonment. He had been compelled to attend a dying woman and boy one night by the Marquis of Evremonde and his brother. The latter had stolen the wife of one of his tenants. Her young brother resented it, and a sword fight followed, in which the boy was mortally wounded. The woman's husband, a delicate man, had been harnessed to a cart and used for a horse until he died. The blow killed her.

Dr. Manette reported the affair to an official. Whereupon he was seized and thrown into prison for knowing too much. The dead boy and woman were Mme. Defarge's brother and sister.

Darnay is condemned to die within 24 hours. The shock throws Dr. Manette into a relapse. Mme. Defarge's vengeance now demands the heads of Lucie and Lucie's child, and even of her father to make the job complete.

Sydney Carton is in Paris. There he meets John Barsad, now a spy and trusted prison official in the employ of the government. Under threat of exposing his past history Carton gains admission through him to the prison where Darnay is, exchanges clothes with him, renders him unconscious with some chemical and has him carried out unconscious, placed in a carriage with his family and drived to Calais. The ruse succeeds because of the strong resemblance between the two men.

Carton then goes to the guillotine in his stead. He does this for love of Lucie. He once had told her in what regard he held her and said he knew it was useless for him to think of ever marrying her, as he was a slave to drink, had wasted his life—and was powerless to reform.

Things to Avoid.

He—Let's have a secret marriage.

She—But then we will get no wedding presents.

He—So much the better. We will have no duplicates to dispose of.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

How "Misfit" Medicines Cause You Many Ills

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

YOU are hungry. You have a good home. You go there and you eat. The potatoes, the bread, the ham, the milk, the apples are all known to you. You do not take any wild chances, winter or summer, in eating possible poisons.

Foods that are strange, or unknown to you, you do not try. You stick wisely to the old standbys.

Not so, however, with drugs and potions, pills and powders. You seem rather with these God's whole work to undo. With unknown mixtures under fancy names you war upon your bodies, and with new physic you mar your physical engine. A medicine gilds your tissues according to the frankness, sincerity and systematized education of the ones who give it.

A man, ignorant himself, often begins his own injuries and sufferings. Luckily, wise powers assert these dangers in definite ways. No doctor knows whence comes the tint and fragrance of the rose. Nor does he know why many medicines show themselves.

The majestic works of nature, unhappily, are not always manifest; that is to say, all poisons do not give warning and the dangers of some tinctures, elixirs and specifics are not always plain to the eye.

Many internal agents, swallowed upon experiment or at some one's advice, produce skin blemishes and cutaneous rashes, which are miscalled skin diseases.

Some Harmful Ingredients.

Just today a young girl visited me in great trepidation. One of those well known "pavers" who use bricks called "good intentions" had induced her to take a medicine.

She was convinced that she was very ill. Inquiry at once disclosed the truth.

As some comedian said, all that is necessary to become a millionaire is to tell a person how bad he looks. Then tell him you are certain he has the pip. It follows at once that he will buy a carboy of pip remedy.

Among the eternal ingredients of many "unknown" and "secret cures," belladonna, bromide of potash, iodide of potash, arsenic, strychnine, antimony, tartaric acid, quinine, morphine and alcohol are present.

All of these have the curious capacity to cause rashes, hives, "eczemas," boils, red skin, red noses and other dermal eruptions, which put scarlet fever, smallpox and a host of epidermal maladies to shame.

Effects Become Chronic.

Unless a dermatologist knows that you are addicted to drugs, or have been one of those innocent tipplers who are forever taking medicines, he may be so far deceived as to put you in a pest house, diagnose your disturbance as leprosy, or decide that you have measles or gangrene.

Just as all forward looking men and women have many enemies that know not why they are so, but, like village curs, bark when their fellows do, so many of these skin eruptions, started once by some accidental, chemical ingredient, originate a whole series of them.

The first one "sensitizes" the tissues, so that ensuing ones have less trouble and require smaller amounts to stir up the trouble.

Answers to Health Questions

W. W., Norristown, Pa.—Can psoriasis be cured?

Yes. The X-ray has cured some, and so has a mixture of pyrogallic acid, chrysarobin and resorcin, which you should get from your family doctor.

* * *

Barber Doctor—What do you think of bandoline? Is egg shampoo good?

Anything used to curl straight hair injures its texture. Egg shampoo is a dangerous practice.

* * *

J. H.—I am [illegible], work in a railroad office, and have not been able through illness in my family to take a vacation for years. I've lost lots of flesh. What shall I do?

Go to the man next in position to the president of the road, or to the president himself, and have your position temporarily changed. You need more fresh air, sunlight and better food. See to it that you obtain more sleep, and do not wait over two or three hours for your "fodder."

A bottle of creamy milk and some buttered crackers between full meals will help you mightily.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie:

I have a very nice, respectable gentleman friend. He has been with me a short time over a year and appears to think quite a lot of me.

But what I can't understand is: He occasionally takes out other girls, especially to dances, which he knows I am not allowed to attend. He sometimes denies it.

FAIRY.

IF your young man wants to take other girls to dances, Fairy, I don't see what you're going to do about it. Do you?

You aren't allowed to go yourself, you say, and he probably likes to dance. That's all there is to it.

If he knows that you don't want him to go and he still keeps on going, he doesn't care enough for you to care what you want. That's perfectly plain.

Why should he? Why do you think he is in love with you? Has he told you so, or does he just bring you a box of candy now and then and spend the evening when he doesn't know just what else to do with himself?

Why should you think that you have a mortgage on his affection or on his character or on his conduct in any way?

No. If this young man wants to take other girls to dances and cares whether you like it or not, he ought to tell you that he intends to do it. And if you can't stand it, then you must both take the consequences.

I wouldn't lose much sleep worrying about this particular young man if I were you, Fairy. I suspect he isn't fretting very much about whether you want him to dance or not.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

THE day after Willie Leghorn invited Dickie Duck to learn to fly he was going through the meadow, when he met Willie going toward the pond.

"Where are you going?" asked Willie.

"I am going to have a swim," replied Dickie.

"I wish I could swim," began Willie. "Would you mind teaching me?"

"You don't want to swim," answered Dickie. "Your feet have no webs and you would get drowned."

"Suppose you take me for a ride on your back," suggested Willie.

"I couldn't do that," said Dickie.

"Please do," pleaded Willie.

"I want you to remember that you asked me for the ride and not I you," said Dickie, as they went down toward the duck pond.

Willie got on Dickie's back when they reached the water, and for a time they sailed merrily around the pond, until suddenly Dickie dived down, while Willie held on for dear life. Dickie came up again, and Willie said to him:

"Please don't do that again. I-I-I-I'm nearly drowned."

Dickie went down again and stayed a little longer, and when he came up Willie pleaded with him so earnestly that the duck landed him on the shore. Then he said to him:

"Remember, Willie, you asked me for the ride, and you should always do unto others as you want them to do to you. I don't want to learn to fly, and you—well, you better stay away from the water."

THE PHOTOGRAPHER'S ART

Camera Models Not Always the Prettiest Girls

A photographer who was called on to pick five beauties from a group of 100 for the purposes of a picture group selected five girls very quickly. A spectator gasped at his choice. "I shouldn't call these the prettiest!" he exclaimed.

"They're prettiest for photographers," answered the photographer, who proved his point by the result.

Here's one part of the secret: There are "photographable" faces, and the artist in photography knows the trick of picking them, as well as that other trick of making the most of them before his camera.

The quality of being "photographable" in any special degree is not commonly discernible to the average person. Many famous camera models make a good living by the discovery of this quality.

Of course, looking charming in front of a lens is something, too, of a mental gift. There can be no doubt that many women look their best before a lens. What is an ordeal to other women is to them a stimulation, an incitement to sparkle. Women with the gift naturally have a great advantage, quite aside from the advantage furnished by strictly facial charm. Their "look" is attractive as well as their "lines." Their eyes, instead of looking set and "starey," look interested—quite as if they were looking into the eyes of a friend. That is certainly a part of the sitter's trick—to make friends with the lens.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Royal Ladies Dispose of Dres

There is a custom existing am most royal ladies, as well as am others who spend large sums on dr

gowns that are put out of their wa

the money so realized is used to d large dress agencies in Paris have transactions are conducted by chief dressers of the various ro ladies, and the former are allowed sales.

Neither Queen Mary nor the Germa
Empress, however, ever sell the cast-off dresses. Queen Mary's of gowns are given away to poorer dependents of royalty, or a distributed through certain charita agencies to poor gentlefolk. The man Empress disposes of her cast dresses in much the same way, cept that they are practically given to people in some way or oth connected with the Court.

The history of many royal dress

NEW ENGLISH CHAMPION

Charlie Mitchell Says He Can be Found

Charlie Mitchell, the veteran English heavyweight who has not lost interest in the game, says:

"The man who says the fighting instinct is dead in Great Britain is a fool. I wish all the problems of life were as easy to explain. The British so-called champions have of late years been boosted into prominence, they have not fought their way to the front. As soon as they did one or two decent things in public they were hailed as world whippers when, as a matter of fact, they were a little better than novices, and had no right in the limelight at all.

"As soon as they jumped into a man of any class they were dropped out and made us, as a nation, something of a laughing stock for the world.

"It needed only a French middleweight to come over and knock out our best heavyweight to make us fully realise where we stood in the game of fighting. How would we feel if a German repeated the French boy's victory?"

SPRAINS AND FRACTURES

What Can be Done Until the Doctor Comes

A sprain is due to the stretching and tearing of the ligaments around a joint. It is usually accompanied by great pain and swelling. Hot water applications are the best to relieve the pain and to reduce the swelling. The joint should be kept absolutely at rest. A very good way to secure this is to strap the joint for some distance above and below, with adhesive plaster, layer upon layer. If there is a weak spot in the dressing it can be strengthened by an extra layer or two. Care should be taken that the strapping is not so tight as to interfere with the circulation. It is comparatively easy to determine this by noting whether the part below the strapping remains warm. If it does not, you may know the circulation has been seriously interfered with. Loosen the bandage sufficiently to allow the blood to move. Remember that a severe sprain often takes longer than a fracture to heal and at best is a difficult thing to treat satisfactorily.

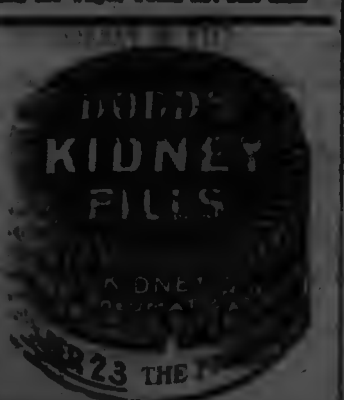
WOMEN WHO RULE

Father Minds the Baby While Mother Works

The district of Willesden is a perfect paradise for a certain type of husband. There is no need for him to go out to work; his wife will see to that. All he need do is stay at home and mind the baby. He has a job for life, and practically nothing to do.

It is no uncommon thing for a husband to mind the baby while his wife goes to work. This arrangement is due to the peculiar industrial conditions of Willesden, where there are many laundries and factories, and female labor is much in demand. Although it 's cheaper than male labor would be at the same class of work, the wages are good considering that only five days a week are worked in the laundries, the women not being required on Mondays. As much as from $5 to $6 a week can be earned, $5 being a common wage, even for girls.

Consequently the women rule the industrial world of Willesden. The positions of man and wife are reversed. There is no need for the man to go to work. Not only would he be unsuitable for the job, but the labor and the wages would not suit him.



WOMEN AS MILITARY SPIES

One Lady in the Secret Service Who Followed the Dictates of Her Heart

Military spies of the fair sex are comparatively common. Some years ago a young English lady attached to the secret service was told off to secure, if possible, certain army secrets of France. With the hope of being successful, she attracted the attention of a member of the French headquarters service, who promptly fell in love with her. Her conscience, however, reproached her with the traitorous part she was playing, and finally she found herself returning the affection of her victim. As a consequence she resigned her post and was led to the altar by the young officer.

At the time the Rock of Gibraltar was being turned into a strong fortress a young German girl took up her residence there, and a large number of the officers became victims to her charms. A middle-aged major, however, suspected that the fascinating fraulein was a spy in the employ of Germany, and during a few discreet chats he had with her he discovered that she knew a good deal concerning guns and other matters. After communicating with the War Office, he politely but firmly requested the German girl to return to her native country.

There is always something new under the sun for the people who travel to throw into their hand travelcases and now we have an envelope which contains leaves of soap, each leaf enough for one hand washing, nothing left over to put away and get wet—a very good thing when one is far away from civilization, where the dirt sticks just as fast as at home.

CLEARS THE HEAD, OPENS THE NOSTRILS STOPS SNEEZING, CURES CATARRH

You Get Instant Relief by Inhaling the Soothing Vapor "Catarrhozone."

Catarrh is bound to come with this weather. Slight colds become more offensive and sickening every day. The inflammation extends further into the head. Soon the ears begin to buzz and ring. The head aches, the eyes pain dreadfully, the nose gets plugged up and this forces the patient to breathe through the mouth. Vile filthy secretions are forced back into the throat, requiring a great deal of coughing to keep the air passages free. Finally, this foul matter finds its way into the stomach, causing Dyspepsia and general ill-health. By this time the patient has SYSTEMATIC CATARRH, which saps strength, depletes the vital energies till consumption is the unhappy result.

There isn't the slightest use in trying to cure this condition with tablets, snuff or spray. Such treatments are wholly inadequate. You must employ Catarrhozone the only remedy that possesses power to kill the germs of Catarrh. The healing vapor of Catarrhozone is carried by the air you breathe to the most minute cells of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. Its antiseptic medication goes everywhere that air can go. No case is too chronic, no person too old—everybody that has catarrh of any kind can be cured by this grand treatment which is endorsed by thousands of physicians throughout America, who say: "The only way to permanently get rid of Catarrh is to use Catarrhozone."

TWO MONTH'S TREATMENT GUARANTEED TO CURE. PRICE $1.00; small size 50c; trial size 25c. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Local Schools Open

Yesterday morning shortly before 9 o'clock hundreds of bright faced girls, full of innocense and as many boys full of the other thing wended their respective ways towards the various schools for the first time since the Easter vacation. A good attendance is reported for yesterday.

A Very Old Bible.

Mr. W. H. Dunsford, manager of the local branch of the Commerce has a bible printed in London, Eng, in 1667. This belonged to Mr. John Dunsford, of Tiverton, Devon, who, in 1693, was sent by the family to South Carolina "to seek a safe and comfortable asylum from intolerance and persecution."

Yesterday morning at eight o'clock the city sweeper was run over the Hunter Street pavement. Dust flew in clouds until Hunter Street looked as though enveloped in a fog. Merchants very naturally made a kick when the pavement was sprinkled.

Garbage Collector Get Off.

The charge against William Hare, garbage collector, with cruelty towards a horse, was dismissed by Magistrate Dumble. Evidence by Sanitary Inspector Spence was to the effect that the horse was not in a fit condition to use. Dr. Rogers said the horse was suffering from lamanitis.

Interesting Anglican Service

Last night the Lord Bishop of Kingston was given a luncheon at Coleman's restaurant. The occasion was a celebration of St. George's Day, when a service was held, later, in St. John's church. At this service the new church at Brownton was discussed. The service of last night was inaugurated by Rev. Mr. Price of St. George's church to whom St. John's gave hearty co-operation.

A Too Modest Farmer.

Yesterday morning a farmer from an adjoining township was talking to two friends on Simcoe Street. He spoke somewhat thusly "I bought a lot of high grade seed wheat in Toronto, paying $1.85 a bushel. I have about 20 bushels left. I want to get rid of it, but I am ashamed to ask $1.85 and freight charges for the wheat to farmers. "The same son of the soil last Christmas sold turkeys to city people at 8½ to 9½ cents a mouthful, according to size of the purchaser's mouth.

A Beaver With Quills

In the office of the Peterborough Lumber Co., on Hunter Street, is the skin of a small porcupine. Thereby hangs a tale. It seems that, days ago, a young man who was clerking in the lumbt ocampe determined to get a beaver. He set traps. Some of the lumber jacks learning of this and knowing it is illegal to catch beaver, killed a young porcupine, sprang one of the traps, and left the dead porky in the trap. The clerk brought the porcupine triumphantly to camp and displayed his beaver. He now wants that beaver skin

Mr. J. A. Culverwell's Generosity.

Bowmanville Statesman: Next Sunday (Easter) the choir of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church will appear in gowns. The gowns and caps are a gift generously donated by Mr. J. A. Culverwell, C. E., of Port Hope. This is not a new departure on the part of Mr. Culverwell, as he has already presented similar gifts to St. John's Anglican Church, Port Hope, of which he is an active member; also to the Baptist Church, Port Hope, and to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Cobourg.

A Chemong Bridge Aftermath.

When the bridge that floats across the broad bosom of Chemong Lake was being rendered asunder by the drifting ice floes, an automobile driven by Mr. Frank Fountain, who was accompanied by a number of friends who had been out in quiet meditation in Ennismore, reached the shore on their eastward journey. The ice looked suspicious. Still the party pluckily took the risk. As they got some 50 feet east of the Ennismore shore, a yawning gap, some three feet wide threatened their safety. They put on full power. The auto gave a noble leap and the party reached Chemong village just as the bridge was torn away.

Lindsay Burglars' Hiding Place.

Lindsay, April 18.—The hiding place of a band of thieves was discovered on Friday afternoon by chance, when the Chief of Police and Constable Foster were out on a business mission.

In making this search the officers wended their way to the G. T. R. bridge, which crosses the Scugog in proximity to Durham-st., east, when a hunt through the vacant property close by, which is covered with an undergrowth of willows and cedars, revealed the "hide" located in the bushes, and within this hidden resort were found wrenches, chisels and various tools which are used by burglars in perpetuating their crimes.

Further Bridge Particulars.

Supplementing a report of the disaster of Sunday whereby the Chemong floating bridge was destroyed, contained in yesterday's Times, we learn further, that it just took ten minutes to twist the bridge into ruins. One hundred feet on the Smith side of the mile span was buried or sunk beneath the ice, and another part was carried down 200 yards.

Those who attended late mass at St. Martin's Church, had to drive 08 miles around the head of the lake. All phone connections on the far side of the bridge have likewise been severed as the cable ran across the bridge. J. P. Scollard, the Ennismore postmaster, had to drive around the lake yesterday morning, but he intends leaving a team on this side and work across by the ice and by boat.

A Clever Italian Violinist.

A pathetic scene was enacted in the film at one of the local movies yesterday. A high class Patrican Mexican girl, Alice, marries Juan Fernandes. A year after marriage Alice presents her lord and master with an olive branch that has shed the comforting shade of happiness to their wedded life. Alice, enters the stage, we mean, the handsomely adorned drawing room, bearing in her arms a slant eyed Chinese baby. This baby might have been borrowed by Alice for the picture. Next, Alice is stolen from her husband by bandits hired by a former lover. Poor Alice is hustled to a cave presided over by a white-haired witch. The witch is 4 ft. 2 in. in height; Alice is 5 ft. 8½ in. On her entry the witch gives Alice a shove and this high class Mexican Senor, mother of a Chinese baby, falls prone to the ground. Great are the movies! However, talking of the movies, did you hear the Italian violin player now at the Royal? If not, hear him an laugh, not at his playing which is excellent, but at the clever monologue work he gets off

Governor-General's Visit.

Col. Clegg, Col. Young, Major Walker and President Basil Hall, of the Board of Trade, were a deputation re a programme for the reception to H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada, who will visit Peterborough on June first. The Governor-General will be accompanied by H.R.H. Princess Patricia.

It was decided to arrange for a reception to the distinguished visitors in the armouries, a civic address of welcome, a drive around the city, a trip over the lift lock, and a luncheon. A mounted escort, a guard of honor and a royal artillery salute will be furnished by the military authorities if acceptable to His Royal Highness. This program to be subject to any change necessitated by the time at disposal, and the approval of the Governor-General, to whom it will be submitted.

Whilst it is not certain at what hour the Vice-Regal party will arrive, it is anticipated they will reach Peterborough in the morning and leave for Port Hope after luncheon. They will visit Cobourg in the evening.

The Mayor, Major Walker and City Clerk Armstrong will draft the address of welcome.

Chairman Reception Committee.

Ex-Ald. Gordon's resignation from the Reception and Legal Committee left the chairmanship vacant. On motion of Ald. McIntyre and Duffus, Ald. A. H. Stratton was appointed chairman of the Reception and Legal Committee.

Ald. F. H. Dobbin was appointed member of the committees vacated by ex-Ald. Gordon.

Mr. Taylor's request was tabled pending the Engineer's report as above outlined.

TURNS ON GAS; LIGHTS MATCH; IS BLOWN THROUGH HOUSE

Shevport, La., April 21.—Driven to desperation, presumably by domestic troubles, Connie Bills, aged about 35 years, this afternoon went to his home in the Queensborough section, locked the doors of his bedroom, stuffed wads of paper in all the cracks, turned on the natural gas and sat down to await death.

Before the fumes of the escaping gas completed their work Bills determined upon a last smoke, and after rolling a cigarette struck a match to light it. Instantly there was a terrible explosion, which shook that entire section of the city and wrecked a portion of the Bills' residence. Bills' body, thrown by the force of the explosion through a window, was badly crushed and burned, and tonight he lies in Schumpert Memorial hospital in a precarious condition, his death being expected hourly.

Fire followed the explosion, slightly damaging the residence, but the prompt arrival of the fire department checked the flames. Bills, cut and bleeding, was picked up and hurried to the hospital in an automobile by Joseph E. Johnston, member of the legislature, whose home is near the scene of the explosion.

When picked up Bills declared with bitterness that some woman whose name he did not mention was "responsible" for what had happened. The records of the district court show that Bills was divorced from his wife Mrs. Louise Bills, February 14, on grounds of habitual intemperance and cruel treatment.

ASK BRITAIN TO PAY PART OF COST

Publishing Interests to See Postmaster General Regarding Canadian Business.

London, April 21.—Practically every newspaper and magazine interest in Britain is represented in the deputation to-morrow to Postmaster General Hobhouse to endeavor to persuade him the time has arrived for the Home Government to bear part of the cost of the sea carriages on British magazines to Canada. Mr. Harry Lawson, of the Daily Telegraph leads the deputation. Sir George Riddell is also participating. The deputation arises out of a recent intimation from postmaster General Pelletier, which has been construed here to mean that the Canadian government may be unable to continue such generous carriage terms to British magazines.

UNION STATION PLANS READY

"Finest Building of Kind in Dominion" at Last Nears Reality, Montreal Says

Montreal, April 21. — The Grand Trunk and C. P. R. have now decided on the plans for the Toronto Union Station which, it is estimated will cost between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000. They will be submitted to the Railway Board about May 15 and when accepted the work will proceed at once. Information to this effect has been given out by the Grand Trunk officials, who point out that the cost of the viaduct, which is part of the big terminal scheme for Toronto, is not included in the figures quoted. The viaduct, which will cost $3,000,000, will be a matter for latter consideration.

Railway officials who have seen the plans for the station say when finished the depot will be the finest of its kind in the Dominion.

"MUTT & JEFF" ON TRAVEL BENT

The new "Mutt and Jeff" is called "In Panama." In it, Bud Fisher's two comical characters lend their valuable aid in the formal opening of the big canal. This play represents a new era of musical comedy production, inasmuch as it embodies all of the elements of good entertainment, including farce comedy, extravaganza, drama and travesty, all shaped into a musical comedy of the approved sort. Gus Hill has given the new boo magnificent production from every point of view. The musical score is entirely new, from the fertile brain of Leo Edwards who has a number of big successes already to his credit. Owen Dakis and Bud Fisher wrote the story, and, of course, the side-splitting antics of his brain people are of his own brand. The scenic production excels anything ever offered in a play of this character and spectacular mechanical effects are shown which produce genuine thrills. The music is fully up to the standard of a Grand Opera, costuming and dance numbers savor of the best Broadway ever knew. A chorus of girls, who are really pretty and who know how to sing, dance and look bewitching, give zest to the entertainment.

"Mutt & Jeff" has proven to be the most remarkable success of a decade, and, contrary to predictions, it's second season was even more prosperous than its first and the present fear bids fair to excel either of the other two. Even though there is a well defined and interesting plot, it is at times hardly evident, so great is the laughter that follows every scene, however, it was designed for laughing purposes only, first, last and all the time, and when that end is accomplished, "Mutt & Jeff" have fulfilled their duty. The new "Mutt and Jeff" comes to the Grand Opera House on Monday April 27th. Seats will be on sale at box office and manager suggests that you secure them early.

WOULD CANADIANIZE ALL THE FOREIGNERS

Plan to Restrict Immigration Advanced by Ministerial Association.

Toronto, April 21.—"We want a definite report on the question of how to Canadianize the foreigners coming into this country. And we want to know whether or not we have the right to exclude any of these people."

These were the explicit instructions given to a special committee of the General Ministerial Association by Rev. Dr. R. N. Burns, the president, yesterday, after a long discussion by the association on the question of immigration. The special committee, of which Rev. Dr. Turnbull is convenor, was appointed two weeks ago and made a general report at yesterday's meeting. They were asked to go more into detail.

"It has been suggested that only 5 per cent. of the total number of foreigners of each nationality already in Canada be admitted annually," said Dr. Burns. "This would enable us to assimilate them as they arrive. But the question is, can we exclude any?"

CANADA DEPENDS ON U. S. FOR COAL NEEDS

Between Montreal and Moose Jaw Dominion Relies on Importations.

Ottawa, April 21.—Canada's dependence on the United States for its supply of anthracite coal is a point strikingly indicated in the report just issued by the Commission of Conservation, on the Conservation of Coal in Canada. Practically all the most populous portion of Canada lying between Montreal, Quebec and Moose Jaw, Sask., relies solely on The United States for its supply of anthracite coal. Further there are indications that the United States may, in the comparatively near future prohibit the export of anthracite and, as the only anthracite deposits thus far discovered in Canada are confined to the area near Banff, Alta., it is of great importance that suitable substitutes be found as soon as possible.

DOCUMENT OF LOCAL INTEREST 100 YEARS

The Times was yesterday shown a very interesting historical document of local interest. It is the original parchment, signed by King George III, one hundred years ago today commissioning Mr. Charles Stewart, father of Mr. James Stewart of this city as Lieutenant in the British Army.

The late Mr. Stewart left the army in 1833 on half pay and settled in Melrose, Scotland, until 1847, when he disposed of his property and removed to Edinburgh, Scotland, with his wife and family, four sons and two daughters. He died in 1856 at a good old age. His widow [illegible] in 1877. Two of his sons died when young but the remainder of the family are alive and well. The only one who came to Canada was James, now residing at 240 McDonnell St., City. His father's regimental coat imported, also his commission friend can be seen in the window of A. M. Laidlaw, Fashion Craft, Hunter St.

The Commission.

Is signed, "George R.P.D." It reads "In the name and behalf of His Majesty George the third, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, etc, to our trusty and well beloved Charles Stewart, gentleman, greeting. We do by these presents constitute and appoint you to be Lieutenant in that company, whereof—Esq. is captain in our Nineteenth or First Yorkshire North Riding Regiment of Foot commanded by our Trusty and well beloved Lieutenant General Sir Thompkins Kilgrove Turner, Knight.

You are therefore carefully and diligently to discharge the duty of Lieutenant——by exercising and well disciplinng both the inferior officers and soldiers of that company, and we do hereby command them to obey you as their Lieutenant and you are to observe and follow such orders and directions from time to time as you shall receive from your Colonel ——or any other your Superior officer according to the rules and discipline of war in pursuance of the trust hereby reposed in you.

ORDER ADMIRAL FLETCHER TO TAKE VERA CRUZ CUSTOM HOUSE CUT OFF SUPPLIES

Offensive Measures Taken by President Wilson While Angry Politicians Disagree as to How Much String He Should be Given

NO DECLARATION OF WAR, U. S. DARE NOT SEIZE THE FOREIGN BOAT ON THE HIGH SEAS

Washington, April 21.—While Congress is debating the Mexican situation, President Wilson has ordered Rear Admiral Fletcher to seize the Vera Cruz Customs House, and prevent Huerta from getting his several million rounds of ammunition and 200 field guns, on a German ship bound for that port.

The orders went out from Washington early to-day, when it became apparent that the delay in Congress was accruing to the advantage of Huerta.

No Word From Fletcher.

At noon the Cabinet was in session, and so far as was known, no word had been received from Admiral Fletcher of his action. The orders, officials said, left to the Admiral's discretion when and how to act. As there is no blockade, the American forces could not interfere with the German steamer. The orders were to seize the guns and shells after they had landed, or to seize the Customs House to prevent their landing, and thus keep them from going to Mexico City.

No Question of Authority.

Officials declared that President Wilson had ample authority for his action without the approval of Congress.

Meanwhile, both House and Senate re-convened, and the Senate went to work on the resolution of approval of the President's course.

The orders went out to Admiral Fletcher at daybreak, after President Wilson and Cabinet officials had been in conference since 4 a.m., mostly over the telephone.

The orders to the Admiral it is said, conferred the broadest authority upon him, and directing him that, if necessary, he take the town of Vera Cruz, as well as the Customs House, to prevent the landing of the munitions.

Officials here said the Admiral might act in several ways. He might wait until the German steamer had landed her cargo unmolested, and then take the Customs House and the munitions, or, when the German steamer comes into port he might seize the customs house, and if the guns were landed, they would come into possession of the American forces.

CIVIL WAR IF IT COMES, WILL NOT BE CONFINED TO IRELAND

Uprisings in London and Elsewhere Would Follow Coercion --Government Now Losing Prestige

London, April 21.—The London stage is traditionally Tory in sentiment, but it often reflects popular feeling in the country. This week a turn at one of the music halls is virtually a eulogy of the navy and, inferentially, of the army, at the expense of the Government. It should here be remarked that there is just as much suppressed feeling in one branch of the service as in the other over the proposed coercion of Ulster. A comedian at this theatre remarks: "This Ulster is very uncomfortable." Another, referring to the Ministers, observes: "They'll all be resigned soon." Still another hit, much appreciated by successive audiences, is to the effect that if a robbery is to be well performed, the job should be entrusted to a Welshman. The reference, of course, is to Mr. Lloyd George and his career as Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Government Losing Prestige.

Comedy aside, it is generally admitted that the Administration is losing prestige. For one thing, it has been in office eight years—a long time for a British Government. Much as we in Canada approve the Lloyd George legislation, that legislation has antagonized many interests and cost the Ministers many friends, though it may have won them a still greater number. The Marconi scandal will not down, and during the last few weeks the Government's reputation has greatly suffered through the bungling of the War Office in Ireland, and through the Ministers' quibbling when the question was raised in the House of Commons. Mr. Seely was made the scapegoat, and Mr. Asquith partly saved the situation by taking over his portfolio. But in this country the electorate like straightforward, plain dealing, and I have little doubt that the whole episode has done the Liberal cause irreparable harm in the constituencies.

QUEEN ZEPHRA AT OPERA HOUSE TO-NIGHT!

The repeat performance of "Queen Zephra" will be offered to-night at popular prices within the reach of all. This presentation is due to the expressed wishes of all members of the local company of ladies and gentlemen and little folk by whom "Queen Zephra" has been performed in this city so charmingly, with a view to tendering a benefit to Mr. H. J. Booth, in recognition of his very acceptable services as director of the piece. This will be the last opportunity of seeing "Queen Zephra" in Peterborough, and the patronesses of this big musical spectacle bespeak a record-breaking audience at the Grand Opera House to-night. And the production is worth a capacity house.

CENTENARIANS' SOCIETY

Old People of Japan Members of Curious Club

A curious society was formed by Count Okuma, the Japanese ex-Premier. It is called the "Hyakunen-Kai," or the Society of Centenarians. Count Okuma, who believes that under proper conditions we ought to be able to live for 125 years, is its first President. Persons of 90 years and over are eligible for membership. About 500 members met at its first assembly at the Count's house. The oldest person present was a woman of 112, who traveled a long distance to Tokio to meet her fellow centenarians.

Some of the aged members drove in carriages and jinrickshas, but many walked. They were all intensely interested in each other, and compared notes as to teeth, deafness and use of spectacles. Count Okuma delivered an address. It was observed, however, that most of the audience failed to catch his words, and, giving up making ear trumpets of their hands, fell into a pleasant drowsiness, lulled by sunshine and the voice of the speaker. The meeting was voted a great success, and they all look forward to many repetitions of it.

WRECKED ON DESERT ISLE

Sailors Lived For Six Months on Ice-Clad Rock

News reached North Shields of the safety of twenty of the crew of the sealing schooner, Sea Bird, belonging to that town. The vessel was wrecked and for six months the crew had to exist on a desert island which is frequently covered with ice and snow.

The Sea Bird struck a sunken rock in the neighborhood of Prince Edward Island, in the Southern Ocean, and speedily sank. The three boats were launched and provisioned before she went down, and for the next six months the crew, who numbered twenty-two, were marooned on a desert island.

Their sufferings were terrible, but they made a shelter of a marquee and a cave in a mountain-side. There was no wood on the island, but sea elephants were shot, and their blubber burned. The men's food consisted chiefly of penguins, albatross and seals. Two of the men died from the severe exposure, but the other twenty were rescued by a whaler and landed at Capetown.

TANNING BY ELECTRICITY

Better Leather Is Produced in Much Shorter Time

A new electric tanning process, invented by the Swedish scientist, Dr. A. Groth, and applied on a practical scale in an English works, is attracting much attention, and one of the prominent electrical firms is to take it up for commercial use. With this method, the hides are put in special vats along with metal conductors, so as to carry out an electrolytic action, and this will tan the hides in much less time than usual, for instance, six weeks as compared to several months. Leather of better quality is produced in this way, and the method gives a perfect and solid tanning. Various electrical devices in the shape of regulators, also safety apparatus for over current, make the process almost an automatic one.

Though found in poor soils, and in the same localities, the Red or Norway pine, is less common and less valuable than the white pine. It grows to a height of about 150 feet, having a large diameter, and can be easily recognized by its reddish bark. The long, slender needles, which grow in pairs, are half-round, and are more or less covered with a glaucous bloom.

The wood of the Red pine is used extensively for interior building purposes. This variety is valuable for planting as a landscape tree on account of its beauty of foliage and rapidity of growth.

Amongst the most valuable and best known of our native conifers is the Pitch pine. It usually grows to a height of 50 feet. The bark of the trunk has scales like the covering of an alligator. The color of the foliage is lighter than the White pine; the needles are stiff and coarse and in bundles of three; the cones are large and very much broader than those of the White pine, the scale being armed with a stout, sharp spike at the middle of the outer margin. The cones remain on the tree after the winged seeds have been shed, so that one of the easiest ways of recognising the tree is to look for these broad, short cones hanging from the older branches.

The Grey, or Jack pine, is a small tree quickly distinguished from all its neighbors by a dark reddish bark upon the trunk, and gray-green foliage clustered on short branches, giving a sombre aspect to the tree. After the seeds have been scattered from them, the small, short cones cling for several years to the branches. Under adverse conditions of soil and moisture the Jack pine is very hardy and thrifty.

The pines, which are the harps of the lonely places, are very susceptible to the wind. When stirred by the breezes, they send forth strains of music which delight the ear. When in a meditative mood there is no place more luring than a fragrant pine wood, filled with the musical undertone of its own soft and low murmurings, for courting that quietness, so essential as a preparation for the incoming of high and noble thought.

Setting aside the economic value of the pines their magnificent beauty should alone render them worthy of protection and preservation. Therefore we should use all our influence to save them from destruction, and should see that no tree is needlessly sacrificed.

UNTIDY ATHLETIC GIRL

Her Methods Sometimes Very Crude, Says a Colonel

The "athletic girl" came in for a "dressing down" from Colonel Sir Thomas Holdrich, in distributing prizes at the Princess Helena College, Ealing. Nowadays, he said, there was a tendency in sport to mistake the means for the end, and games now ought to be the whole end and aim of one's existence. The "athletic girl," for instance, was not altogether worthy of imitation, for if she did not wholly succeed in getting in the front rank she was too apt to show her disappointment. She was not always as tidy as she might be, her methods were sometimes exceedingly crude, and her manners—well, she had none. He did not by any means consider such a girl the most adorable of her sex.

Potato-and-Cucumber Salad

Boil potatoes in the skins, and let cool. Then remove the skins and cut the potatoes into small dice. Chop a medium-sized onion fine. Pare two fresh, crisp cucumbers, cut in four lengths, and remove the largest seeds. Cut into dice. Mix the potatoes and cucumbers together lightly with a silver fork. Pile in salad bowl, and sprinkle with the chopped onion. Pour mayonnaise dressing over all, and sprinkle with finely minced parsley.

SAVED BOXING GAME

Referee Eyton Tells of a Quick Decision With Much at Stake

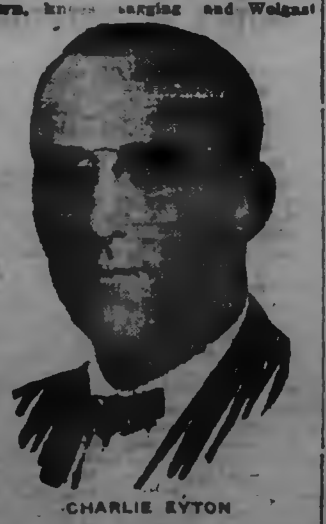
"I'll never forget the Wolgast Memsic fight," said Charles F. Eyton, who has refereed all the big bouts in Los Angeles for years, to a newspaperman recently. "The liveliest three minutes of my life, that meant new life or death to boxing in California, were those of the ninth round March 17, 1911. The boys were to box 20 rounds. The gate approximated $18,000. A deputy, representing the district attorney and accompanied by 50 detectives, announced that if the law was broken, all would be arrested.

"The fight was a test case and the fate of California boxing was at stake.

"With this on my mind I sent Wolgast and Memsic on their journey. I decided the public deserved first consideration. The men who paid should get their money's worth; the champion and challenger must get justice; the law must be adhered to. Only one who knows boxing can appreciate my position.

"With the end of the eighth, I saw that, barring a lucky blow, Wolgast would win. I was deciding when to stop the bout. The detectives had been talking to each other excitedly. A knockout meant the death of boxing. Knowing this, I wanted to do justice to George Memsic. Not to save the game would I have stopped the contest while he had a chance.

"With the ninth, Wolgast started body punishment, fighting Memsic about the ring. The detectives started jumping up again and I had to think quicker than ever. After a hot exchange I saw Memsic stagger, hands down, knees sagging and Wolgast starting to swing. Memsic's hands went up, but before Wolgast could land I stepped between them.



CHARLIE EYTON

"The excitement was intense, but my action brought its own reward in the legal proceedings which followed, we were vindicated and boxing is stronger in California than it ever was."

WHAT IS A COOK?

She is a Bacteriologist For One Thing —Read This and See

Madame, do you know that you are a bacteriologist? The chances are you didn't. Every time a woman goes into the kitchen to cook she becomes a bacteriologist in proportion as she is a good cook. Perhaps she will not call it that, but that is what she is, nevertheless.

It is well for people to understand that there is a lot of bacteriology about the kitchen and to study it as bacteriology. The process of making bread rise is innoculation, pure and simple. Bacteria are introduced into the mixture of salt and water and flour in the form of yeast, and this bacteria gets to work right away, forming a gas which causes the bread to rise. It is the heat and water that help things along. Mould and yeast belong to the same bacteriological families and there are a lot of others of the samd sort.

Of course, most of us who cook don't know things by these terms. We do not know that when we put in the yeast we are innoculating the dough. And there may be a number of other forms of innoculation that we do not know, either.

But it is well for every woman to remember that she is the bacteriologist in charge of the family laboratory and inform herself in ways the best she can find to the end that in her innoculations of the food with heat and salt and other chemicals she doesn't introduce other things that will incubate into bacteria that are not nearly so healthful as the yeast that goes into the bread.

A clean kitchen and a clean cook make the finest sort of laboratory and bacteriologist for family uses.

Encouraging Timber Growing

With a view to encouraging the growth and profitable marketing of English timber, the English Forestry Association issued an appeal to timber owners for information as to the class and quality of the timber they may have for sale during the next few years.

The association is paying special attention to suggested new markets for underwood, English oak, and native-grown larch.

Flowers at Funerals

Members of the Church of St. Barnabas (Anglican), Toronto, were urged by their rector to discontinue the practice of placing flowers on the graves of relatives. "Do not place flowers in the cemetery, where they wither and die, but bring them to the church and we will place them on the altar," said Rev Mr. Powell.

TAFFETAS, FLOWERED AND PLAIN, FAVORED FOR AFTERNOON FROCKS.

Every season there is a rumor that taffetas will be worn but, for some reason or other, American women have always refused to take them up to any extent. This season, however, it looks as if they were going to. These new taffetas are of wonderful quality; supple enough to be crushed in the hands like chiffon. There is an American made taffetas called "Pussy Willow" that is quite as perfect as it is possible to make it. The French houses are using cerise and chartreuse tints for evening and the darker shades—tete de negre, blue and wine color—for daytime wear.

It is an effective fad to combine chiffon with taffetas as illustrated in No. 8122. This is an afternoon dress of tete de negre figured taffetas, with bodice and tunic of chiffon, in the same shade; the flounce at the bottom of the skirt is of chiffon also.

This frock may be copied in size 36, with 5¾ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8061 is also developed in taffetas in a deep, rich shade of bordeaux. There is an unusual sash starting at the front of the bodice, crossing in front and extending around the hips to the back, where it terminates in two long ends. It catches up the tunic over either hip, to give the puffed effect which is a feature of so many of the imported models for spring.

This dress may be copied in size 36, with about 4 yards of 36 inch material.

Taffetas average about 40 inches in width and range in price from $1 a yard up.

THE FICHU ONE OF THE MOST FEM ININE OF FASHIONS

For the southland just now and a little later for the beaches or mountain resorts the filmy bordered cottons are much favored. Many of these cottons are so much like silk in effect, that at a glance the difference is not to be told. There are lattice designs, striped designs and charming checks with borders of flowers; one of the newest of these shows a border that closely resembles wool embroidery. Such a crepe is used to fashion the costume shown in No. 8261. It is a plain white crepe with the border giving the effect of being slightly raised to look like wool embroidery.

These crepes may be purchased from $1.25 a yard and up.

This dress may be copied in size 36, with 4½ yards of 36 inch material.

In No. 8246 a very dainty dance frock is shown made up in taffetas.

The V at the throat is filled in with net and the ruffles of taffetas forming the tunic and fichu, stand out just enough to be smart.

This dress may be made in size 36 with 3¾ yards of 36 inch material.

Taffetas may be purchased from $1.25 per yard and up.

Sugar as a Cure

Sugar is a splendid medicine for the heart in certain diseases of this organ. Dr. Stanley E. Renyer, of London, reported in the "Lancet" the cure of a woman of seventy-seven with "rapid, irregular, feeble pulse, cyanosis and attacks of paroxysmal breathing" by the administration of four ounces of lump sugar every twelve hours, gradually diminishing the dose, for several weeks.

THE QUICK CHECK

The citizens of Pittsburg are having the finest kind of political excitement. The mayor, Joseph Armstrong, has recently made a number of appointments to important municipal offices. Immediately after the appointments were announced a hue and cry was raised in the newspapers of the city, including those which had supported Armstrong for mayor, that the men were notoriously unfit; that some of them were convicted criminals and others had been guilty of scandalous conduct. The matter came to a climax Tuesday evening in the meeting of the council. By a unanimous vote the mayor was requested to remove these men from the offices to which he had appointed them. It was a stunner to the mayor who, it is said, has up to this been in complete control of the council. But the vote was unanimous and there was not a voice raised in the meeting in defense of the appointments. The situation is certainly unusual. That the charges at least struck home may be inferred from the fact that two of the men thus attacked immediately resigned thus saving the mayor the necessity of removing them. Others are said to be contemplating the same course. The incident is very instructive, both for its positive and its negative lessons.

Sciatica Vanishes Instantly If Nerviline Is Used

CAN YOU BEAT THIS CASE ?

No ordinary liniment will even relieve Sciatica. Nothing but the most powerful kind of a remedy can penetrate through the tissues and finally reach the Sciatic Nerve. You can always depend on the old-time "Nerviline." Nothing made today is as good for Sciatica as Nerviline was when first produced, about forty years ago. All this time the same old "Nerviline" has been curing Sciatica, Lumbago, Rheumatism, and is considered to be without an equal in relieving pain or soreness anywhere. " 'Nerviline' couldn't be made stronger or better," writes James E. Edwards. "The way it cures Sciatica is to me simply a miracle. For years I suffered frightfully. I ruined my stomach with internal dosing. I rubbed in gallons of oils and liniments—none were strong enough. One good rubbing with Nerviline relieved. I kept on rubbing and shortly was cured. My father cured Rheumatism in his right arm and shoulder with Nerviline, and my mother cured herself of chronic lumbago with Nerviline. Our family simply swears by Nerviline and we are never without a 50c. family size bottle in our home. We find that for internal pain, for coughs, colds, earache, such minor ills it is a veritable family physician."

VINDICATING THE LAW

Among the various "lessons" taught by the execution of the four gunmen is that the way of the transgressor to the electric chair is hard. Every resource of human ingenuity is employed in his behalf. That the four slayers of Rosenthal finally paid the death penalty is an impressive vindication of the law.

Legal delays allow the just sympathy for the victim to fade In its place arises a maudlin sentimentality for the slayer. It feeds on his youth, or his age the dependency of relatives and his protestations of innocence. Every conviction for a capital crime, no matter how clearly proved, that is not based on a confession, finds multitudes who cry injustice. The protests against the execution of Henry Clay Beattie were stilled only by his own final confession.

Here the confession of one of the gunmen fortunately clears away all doubts. It emphasizes the credit due Gov. Glynn for his firmness in the face of some pressure. It adds to the laurels of Dist-Atty. Whitman, who to the end. But above all, the episode of the gunmen marks a has fought the public's battle triumph of law. It is great vindication lor NeU York. Its effect cannot but be far reaching.

HOW IT FEELS TO PASS AWAY

Man Pronounced Dead is Still Living and Well

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 21. — Says John C. Wheeler, an aged resident of Grand Rapids, Mich., but who was born in Kent County, Ont.

"I believe I have the most wonderful experience of any human being living," he said. "I have practically died and lived again. Not long after graduation I was swimming with a number of companions when I suddenly went down. It was several minutes before my friends missed me and when they finally located my body I was unconscious.

"A doctor was summoned from half a mile away, and when he arrived he pronounced me dead. I was taken to my boarding house and another doctor, who lived a mile away, was sent for. He too pronounced me dead.

"While the fact that I regained consciousness after so many hours is not so remarkable, it is remarkable that, while apparently dead. I was never more fully alive in my life. But I was a part distinct from my body. I could tell the persons about me and everything that happened while I was unable to move. During those hours I discovered many things. Much was revealed to me that would sound preposterous to relate. But the one thing I do remember is the queer sensation of dying.

VIEWS OWN BODY FROM ABOVE

"Dying is delightful; of that I am sure. After losing consciousness my body. I am told, sank to the bottom of the lake, but the other self seemed to float away from my body and soar above the water. I looked down and could see my body.I saw the rescuers find it and place it on the bank. I then seemed to return to the fleshy prison and again became part of it, but was incapable of giving it volition.

"I exerted all my strength, but I could cause no movement of the muscles. Finally I seemed to secure a firmer grasp on things, and almost instantly regained consciousness. In the fleeting moment between the conscious and the unconscious state the thought of returning to life was repugnant. It seemed like a return to prison after a tour of the outside.

"Prior to that experience I had been an agnostic, disbelieving in a hereafter or a spiritual state of existence; but now my whole point of view of life is changed. I have never since doubted the spiritual existence. A man is double, and the body is not a part of him. I don't want to be classed as a spiritualist; in fact, I don't care to be labelled at all, although theosophy comes nearest to my belief. I believe in reincarnation and that death simply turns a man inside out.

"I teach the divinity of every human being. Had God endowed some with virtues and created others with a tendency toward crime, it would have been an injustice. Each man is endowed the same as every other, and the responsibility of making the most of life is thrown on the individual."

It was this philosophy that Mr. Wheeler set out to teach in his lecturing tour. His ideas on eugenics, social problems and religion were not always taken kindly, and in thirty small towns he encountered mob violence. On one occasion he was attacked with clubs and shot at.

In 1903 he came to Grand Rapids in failing health. With money contributed by friends a home was built for the kindly old philosopher in Ivanrest and there he has lived ever since. Every day, winter or summer, he has walked the eight miles to Grand Rapids, spent several hours reading in the Ryerson public library, and walked home again. His scholarly appearance is accentuated by a high, bold forehead, while a snowy beard and white fringe of hair give him a very venerable appearance. He is slight of build, wiry and quick of motion, and he believes he will reach the century mark.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents

THE MEN WE WANT.

Sir.—The account in your valuable paper of the attempt to put an outsider over us instead of our King has made us all mad clear through. I would think that even those in our city who are running round after a certain vote yet would learn better. But no, they would still sacrifice liberty to their own ambitions or their own business interests because they think the others can "deliver the goods." An attempt is being made to break up a certain Protestant benevolent association in our city, a place where people can come together and learn afew things about what is going on around them. But it will not succeed. There are no, jealousies, nor politics there: it is freedom only. When we see the way some of our parliamentary representatives trim their sails to their professional, business or political interests, it makes us sick. Smooth men, deep men, shallow men—all kinds, try to ho the public up in their quiet way. We want men who are better than that— no weaklings and time-servers and crooks who wake up only when there is something in it for them. The man who was not afraid to take a stand in our dark hours is the man we want—able, a first class speaker and always ready to show for why he does a thing.Both parties are in this We must not think of one party only, but send men to both conventions to try and rescue both parties or else bring out an independent man.

Look at that banquet at Winnipeg. Look at the way our provincial public school grants have gone. Look at the liquor question. Mr. Whitney was honest and fearless, but he aint there now. Many people are just it all over because a man is a nice man. Their hearts are bigger than their brains. and a few dollars likely bigger than the nice man and the brains together. Are we weak or are we strong, or only an old bundle of playthings ?

Amused French Officers

Some seventy-five French naval officers who visited London were invited to unravel the mysteries of the "Entente Cordiale" puzzle, which was presented to each visitor by Major Tudor Craig. This puzzle is of the jig-saw kind, and when put together represents either the Tricolor of France or the Union Jack.

It is the invention of one of the men employed by the Incorporated Soldiers and Sailors' Help Society, which turns out a multitude of things, made by men who have been injured in action. At the Society's Toy Stall several of the French captains purchased sets of English soldiers for their children.

Frying Need Not Smell

If the disagreeable smell of frying pervades the house, examine the bottom of the frying-pan, and you will find it covered with burnt fat which smells as soon as it is hot. To prevent the smell besides washing the pan with strong soda water just after it has been used, it is necessary to boil it out in a larger vessel with soda in the water. [illegible] use, put in some clean water, and the smell will no longer exist.

THE NEW MORALITY

A New York Woman's Ideas on Better Conditions

Grace Isabel Colbrone of New York, discussing "The New Morality," said: "The New Morality is to my mind really the old morality revived. I mean the morality of the New Testament. The Christian church to-day is not teaching this. When the early Christians fought for their faith, it was not for a church doctrine, but for a doctrine of civil service. Nowadays you can start a church any day in the year. Witness Mrs. Eddy and Billy Sunday. And you will get rich over it, but when you start a doctrine of social service you are in danger of being crucified." On the equality of birth Miss Colbrone was quite clear "Put one hundred babies in a row," she said, "and no one could tell by looking at them, which was born in a hovel or in a palace. Everything that each little body needed is provided by the land, and everyone born is an increase of wealth to the land, because everyone has a mouth, it has also two hands to work and provide for that mouth; yet every little child is the supreme egotist and it is the duty of the mother to teach it the rights of its brothers and sisters. Applying this to the community morality would only be best developed when individuals consider the rights of others."

IMPORTANCE TO THE RACE

The Development of Women is of National Value

In the course of a lecture Dr. A. T. Schofield, of London, England, remarked:

"The better developed the woman, both physically and morally, the more marked the improvement of the race. Whereas man's physique is no longer so important as it was—for modern inventions have replaced mere muscle —the woman's body is always important, since she is the bearer of the coming race.

"That nature herself recognises the greater value of women is proved by the fact that during the siege of Paris, when the population was badly fed or starving, nearly all the children born were boys. So you see Nature only makes girls of good material, whereas she will make boys of anything."

Dr. Schofield also stated that women had better memories than men, quicker intuition, better instincts and more tact. The only people who acted by pure reason were all in lunatic asylums. Sane people acted by a combination of reason and instinct called common sense. Women, too, had better color vision than men. The spirit of women was the spirit of the race. The one thing a man never forgot was what he had learned from his mother.

WHY HOT WATER CLEANSES

The Effect of Hot and Cold Water Upon the Skin When Washing

We know by experience that when our hands get dirty it is necessary to wash them in warm water to thoroughly cleanse the skin, though all do not know why hot water cleanses better than cold.

Through the pores of the skin an amount of natural fat and perspiration is always escaping. This grease forms a layer on the surface of the skin, to which the particles of dust and dirt adhere. To get the dirt away from the skin it is necessary first of all to dissolve or liquefy the grease. Cold water cannot do this, for it has the effect of chilling the grease, and so making it more solid. By washing our hands in cold water we can remove only that superficial dirt which has not become firmly embedded into the oily layer by which the skin is covered.

On the other hand, hot water has the effect of melting the grease upon the surface of the skin, so that the particles of dirt which have adhered to it are loosened and can be easily washed away. Soap assists the loosening of these dust particles.

Trepanning "Silly Geese" To Make Good Citizens

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

THE Cave Man's bride is going to be trepanned. She is the person who ran away from her perfectly good husband with what she called a Cave Man, and then she wrote and told her husband just what she had done and why she did it.

"I know you are a great deal better man than the man I love," said the Cave Man's bride in the letter she wrote to her husband.

"I know he is a coarse brute—vulgar, cruel, rough, uneducated—I know you are a gentleman and a man of honor—I choose the other man—because—he's a Cave Man and I'm a Cave Woman, and I'm going to run away with him and live in a cave for the rest of my life. If he beats me I shall love him for it.

"Forgive me and forget."

She ran away with the Cave Man—and he didn't take her to the cave at all. He took her to a cheap boarding house, and made her pay the board.

And when her money was all gone and she couldn't pay his board any longer the Cave Man ran away; no, he didn't run—he walked—and it was whispered that there was some one with him—another person—who wanted to be a Cave Woman, too.

And now the friends of the Cave Man's bride, as they called her in the pretty stories that the newspapers printed at the time of the elopement, are gathering around her, and they have decided that the reason she wanted to be a Cave Woman was because she fell out of a high chair when she was 4 years old and made a dent in her skull.

Many Ideal Patients.

A celebrated surgeon has decided to perform a celebrated operation and lift the piece of skull from the dent in her brain and see what that will do.

I know at least a score of people who would be ideal patients for him. And four of them are afflicted with the Cave Man form of paresis.

I know a man who's been a perfectly good man for years. He had a nice little family and a nice little place in the world—and he filled it very nicely, till one day he read a book about the Abyssmal Brute.

He borrowed it from a little girl just out of a co-educational college, who had borrowed it from the centre-rush in the football team.

Somebody had told the Centre-Rush that he was the very spit and image of the hero; that's why he did his best to spell his way through it—but that's another story.

The nice, good-humored, decent man got hypnotized with the Abyssmal Brute idea—and he began to frequent gymnasiums and to stand on his head in the bathroom of mornings.

He wanted his meat rare, as near raw as he could get it—and he took to singing wild songs all about "From the desert I come to thee" and such barbaric refrains as he could learn from travelling bands of near-Hawaiian singers in near-Bohemian cafes.

His wife was quite amazed. She had never thought of calling him a Cave Man, though there had doubtless been times when she would not have denied that he was a good deal of some sort of a brute—but she had always tried to keep her ideas on that subject a dead secret.

The girl who lent the man the book about the Abyssmal Brute was enchanted. She was a Cave Woman, she suddenly discovered, and here walking about right in the very same street with her was a Cave Man—a sweet, darling of a dear Abyssmal Brute.

A Philanthropist's Chance.

So she fell in love with him—oh, madly in love. She couldn't eat and she couldn't sleep and she trembled with fear when she saw the Cave Man, and she yearned with rapture when she didn't see him.

She was a queer little creature, with spectacles and a rather muddy skin, and nobody had ever made very desperate love to her, so she and the Cave Man had a perfectly gorgeous time being "Abyssmal."

Until at last people began to talk—people never do "understand" these primeval affairs—and the poor Cave Woman turned into a red-eyed, weeping, humiliated little girl, whom nobody wanted, and the Cave Man had to go out and look for a job somewhere else, and his wife's relatives insisted that she take her children and go far, far away from the Abyssmal Brute.

The world we live in just now is full of Abyssmal Brutes and women who think they would love to love them.

It's the fashion to be a Cave Woman and to run away with somebody else's Cave Man. Poor things, poor things, they are the same sort of people who went crazy over the blue glass fad when it came in, and who always follow Ram Chuddah and this and that Mahatma.

They danced through Europe with the dancing bigots—in the middle ages—and they follow as unerringly as a June bug follows the light the flare of any torch that beckons crudely to them from the crowd.

I wonder if trepanning would really do any of them any good. If it would there's a chance for you, Mr. Philanthropist.

Open a trepanning hospital this very day and let's trepan all the sentimental geese—men and women—out of existence, and make them over into decent, sensible citizens.

Dear, dear! What a nice, clean, sensible world we shall have!

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE.

Dear Annie Laurie:

When I was down at the rink the other day skating alone, two boys came up behind me, one saying: "May I introduce you to ——." I did not catch the rest of the sentence, for just then I stumbled and fell; then one of the boys (I did not know either of them in the least) helped me up, and I went in as quickly as I could.

If I had not fallen, and if they had continued to follow and talk to me, what could I have done without creating a scene? SKATER.

LITTLE girl, let me tell you something an old colored mammy I used to know told me.

I had been to a candy pull, and had done things which were not nice with the candy—smootching people and tangling people's perfectly good hair—and when the colored mammy took me home she made remarks. I tried to excuse my actions by saying over and over again: "But this was a candy pull, don't you see—nothing but a candy pull." The mammy listened to me with pursed lips and eyes that got bigger every minute, then she said: "I ain't never heard dat candy pulls is no excuse for nothin'; manners is manners whether you'se in church in de pew or at de candy pull a-making taffy. Manners is manners de roun' world over, an' you done forgot yours dis day, and I certainly is 'shamed of you."

Now little skater, manners is manners—in skating rinks or out of them.

When the young man picked you up from your fall you did quite right to thank him cordially and then get away as quickly as you could.

If they should "speak to you and follow you, what shall you do?"

Just skate up to some group of friends and pretend you don't see the boys who are following you at all.

When you have done that you will not have any one following you.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

OF course you are not to think of any web ever spread by a naughty insect, because this is not that kind of a net at all. Nevertheless, it is a very subtle web, exquisitely fine, so fine, in fact, that you can't see it—unless you stand a good ways off and keep your eyes away from HER. She spins it with WONDERFUL skill, using arts that are a secret owned by womankind. She spends immense care in spinning it. She spins a little of it every time she looks at her own eyes in the mirror, every time she studies her own smile, every time she dresses or tests a bit of color against the cream-white of her skin.

And when she is through and just waits for some one to fly into the web—always hoping that it will be the RIGHT one—she never looks as if she ever had heard of a web. What is more surprising is that you can get all tangled up in the web without knowing what is happening to you!

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

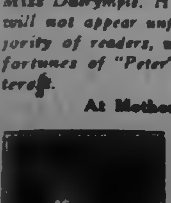
The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

At Mother-in-Law's.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

MARY and I have a certain routine which we practice with deadly regularity.

We always dine with Mary's mother and father on Saturday night. This means that I hate Saturday with a malignant hatred, for I'm pretty sure to hear what a wonderful match Mary could have made if she hadn't lost caste and married me.

What's more, Mrs. Penfield is one of those women who cook by the calendar. She has certain days for certain dishes, and Saturday I always know exactly what I may expect. I know of nothing more discouraging than to look ahead each week and think: "Hum! Monday's cold meat day; Wednesday, beef stew day, etc." It throws an inevitable damper over your homeward trail. I imagine Mr. Penfield's stomach is worn into certain daily trails by now, and a change of diet might kill him. Only a woman with a lazy mind, of course, will develope such a habit, but you'll find if she does, she'll hide righteously behind the excuse of systematic regularity. She'll tell you her mind is a machine, and the more machine-like she can run her life the happier she is. As a matter of fact, she hasn't sufficient resource or energy to think up new things.

A young fellow in my office once said: "You know, my wife is the smartest little cook I ever heard it. She knows just what proportion of salad and vegetable and meat to have so that they balance tastefully and healthfully; she knows the chemistry of things, she knows just what ought to go with what, and the philosophy of variety. We always have something new. I look forward to my dinners with genuine delight. No restaurants for me!"

"Hang on to her, my lad!" said I fervently. "There's only one woman in a thousand wise enough to realize that cooking is a science and not a burden."

On Saturday night at Mrs. Penfield's I know very well that we shall have lamb chops and stewed tomatoes—we always do. Once on our way there I murmured reminiscently: "Lamb chops and stewed tomatoes!" And Mary thought for the minute I had gone mad. Then we quarrelled.

There came a Saturday when Mrs. Penfield's maid had departed for just cause in a terrible rage. When we arrived my esteemed mother-in-law was limping painfully about and sighing—she always limps and sighs when she has to do something she doesn't want to do—and the minute we appeared she began to tell us of the tremendous amount of work she'd had to do.

Now I've noticed a singular thing about women of Mrs. Penfield's type. They complain bitterly when a maid doesn't get through her work quite as quickly as they think she should, and they speak some of how ridiculously little there is to do after all. BUT—when one of these women has to do all the work herself, instantly that same modicum of labor swells to most alarming proportions.

"I only have to finish the tomatoes now," she said this time, "and then I'll be ready. No, Mary, I don't want any assistance. Dear knows, you've worked hard enough yourself without a maid." Which I rightly interpreted as a slam at me for condemning Mary to maidless cookery.

At supper that night the tomatoes looked decidedly queer. They were full of floury lumps. Mrs. Penfield flushed.

"Usually," she said, avoiding her husband's somewhat humorous glance, "usually Nora thickens tomato with cracker meal—but—but there wasn't any and I'm sure I've heard of using flour before, haven't you, Mary?"

"I have," said I promptly, "and you mix it with water first and stir it in."

Mrs. Penfield looked aghast.

"Why," she exclaimed, "I merely sprinkled it in loose. I—I've seen people sprinkle it in gravy!" And she didn't have wit enough to realize that the coalescence of grease and flour was quite different from flour and bubbling hot tomato juice. Imagine a woman who has kept house 25 years not knowing how to thicken tomatoes!

Was it merely a pose, or has she entrusted so much to other hands that she has quite forgotten what she ought to know?

Does a man lose his grip on his business that way? Never.

Too Warm.

Imp—That slim, consumptive looking chap? He is a professional fire eater.

Force of Habit.

"Habit is hard to overcome," remarked the man with the sore throat.

"Yas, sah," answered Col. Bludd, "it is, sah. I suppose, sah, that if a man drank watah from birth to old age, sah, he would find it hard to get along without it, sah."

Hungry.

"Have you ever visited the Arctic region?" asked the man who was seeking information.

"Oh, yes," responded the traveller. "I spent one entire night up there. And I do not believe that I had a dozen square meals the entire time."

Really Important.

"He seems to be a man of importance in the community."

"He is. Two-thirds of the citizens have sworn to shoot him."

A Matter of Habit.

"She seems to be a creature of habit."

"Yes, she has gone to the same mountain resort to spend every honeymoon. And two of her weddings were in the winter."

Secrets of Health and Happiness

How Your Nose Betrays Your Ideals and Habits

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

IT is barely possible, as the poet said, that any nose may ravage with impunity the rose. The perfume thus inhaled, however, will add no bouquet to some characters.

The disposition, the temperament, the prejudices, the racial customs, the family habits and the breadth of view of an individual may be read from the shape of her or his nose.

The nose on your face is by no means as inscrutable as the weather vane on a steeple. But a dozen directions of Old Boreas may there be read. The configuration of a nose, however, shows a millennium of characters.

Cyrano de Bergerac need not have fought duels about his nose to show his own belligerent, as well as ardent, nature. The nose speaks for itself.

The bigotry and narrow-mindedness of many an individual is emblazoned forth in the pinch beaked, curled under tip to his proboscis.

Roxelane, who was born a slave in Russia, would never have been loved and made queen by Soleiman the Magnificent, Sultan of the Ottoman Empire, about the time Columbus discovered America, had her nose not shown him her sweet self. It was a trifle retrousse.

The Saracens, like some of the Jews of German descent, as well as far eastern ones, have humped up noses. These are often mistaken for hooked noses, because the upward hump makes the nostrils seem to curve under.

The retrousse nose is typical of some Irish people and Russian Jews. The latter, however, are apt not to be so flat. Sweetness, love of religion, feminine beauty, fickleness, wit and intelligence are associated with these daintily turned up types.

Thin, quivering noses with a sharply ridged spine indicate nervousness, chicanery, cunning and skill. Want of mental equipment, broad-mindedness, adaptability or efficiency is shown, at times, by a thick nose with heavy nostrils.

An extraordinary degree of intelligence, liberality of thought, open-mindedness, freedom from personal bias and family opinions is exhibited in the straight, symmetrical, well balanced nose.

A nose of this shape is mathematically and sculptorily what is found upon the Apollo Belvedere.

Beauty of the nose is interlinked intimately with sweetness of temperament, mind and character.

Moreover—and this is of vital importance in training children as well as college students—the bigotry, nervousness, selfishness and other defects of training in the home, as well as at school, have not only a lifelong, but often a racial, power upon the shape of the nose.

It is, indeed, curious and remarkable to find how your habits of thought, even in advanced life, play upon the shape of the nose. One alert reader of characters has often startled his acquaintances by "guessing" from the shape of a passer-by's nose what he was.

Answers to Health Questions

A. N.—What causes coated tongue?

The fur on the tongue appears when the fluids of the stomach are disordered. Lack of acid causes a dry, thick, white coat. Excess of acid causes a pale, thin, moist, gray fur.

MISS L. L., Toronto, Can.—I am perfectly well, but weigh only 110 pounds. I am pale and pimply in the face. Is milk better than buttermilk?

Drink plenty of rich milk between meals, and buttermilk with meals. Eat butter, eggs, steaks, lamb, poultry, fatty meats and plenty of fruits.

You should eat between meals and devour as much fresh bone marrow, apples, oranges and iron-containing vegetables as you can.

Your blood needs iron and arsenic, and these are best had in wholesome foods, fresh air and sunlight.

R. K. W., Bloomington, Ind.—Is excess of fat a disease? Is it attended with loss of strength? Can medicines be used to reduce flesh?

Not always. Not real loss of strength. You feel weak, but actually are not. You must exert yourself more and neglect the "sensation of weakness," which lies. No drug can be safely taken to reduce flesh.

An inquisitive man is a creature naturally vacant of thought itself, and, therefore, forced to apply to foreign assistance.—Steele.

Men of genius are often dull and inert in society; as the blazing meteor, when it descends to earth, is only a stone.—Longfellow.

There are men of convictions whose very faces will light up an era, and there are believing women in whose eyes you may almost read the whole plan of salvation.—Fields.

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

"DON'T you think it's about time I went skating again?" asked Brer Rabbit of his good wife, one night when the moon was shining brightly.

"Yes," began Mrs. Rabbit, "if you don't drown yourself like you did the last time."

"You are making fun of me," whined Brer Rabbit. "That's part of the fun when you go skating."

"What do you mean?" asked Mrs. Rabbit. "I don't think getting drowned is much fun."

"I mean, it's fun getting wet," replied Brer Rabbit.

"Well," said Mrs. Rabbit, "if you go skating again you must tie a piece of wood to your back so that you won't get drowned."

"All right," answered Brer Rabbit, as he went over to the woodpile and got a stick of wood. "Tie it on."

Mrs. Rabbit fastened the stick across her husband's back with some twine.

"Put it up and down," began Brer Rabbit, "then it won't be in the way."

"No, I will put it cross-ways so you won't fall in any more holes," said Mrs. Rabbit.

"That's a good idea," said Brer Rabbit, as he started out the door, sideways.

Mr. and Mrs. Squirrel were seated on the bank of the lake when they spied Brer Rabbit coming.

"What are you doing carrying wood at this time of night?" asked Mister Squirrel. "You look like a walking woodpile."

"I'm not carrying wood," replied Brer Rabbit. "That's my life preserver and it will keep me from sinking if I fall in the water again."

"Ha! ha! ha!" laughed Mister Squirrel. "That's a good one."

"I guess I won't go skating tonight," said Brer Rabbit as he turned and started home. When he got to his house his wife said:

"Did you have a good time?"

"No," answered Brer Rabbit. "Mister Squirrel made fun of me. He called me a walking woodpile."

"You just get in bed and forget skating for a while," said Mrs. Rabbit, trying not to laugh.

EARLY POETS LAUREATE

Office Three Centuries Old But Title Assumed Much Earlier

It is almost three hundred years since "rare Ben Jonson" was formally appointed Poet Laureate, and during this lapse of time not a few of the illustrious names of English literature have been associated with the title. Jonson, Dryden, Southey, Wordsworth, and Tennyson are still names to conjure with, though many of their laureated predecessors are but pale ghosts in oblivion, and of many even the mere shadow of their names does not stand.

The term laureate is of hoary ancestry. It is probably as old as the art of poetry itself, for the custom of crowning the victor in a contest dates from very early times, and the wreath of the laurel tree, sacred to the god Apollo, was a trophy eagerly coveted by the poet or hero of the Greeks and Romans long years before any mention in history of our Druidic and early British forefathers. Spenser expresses aptly the idea: "The laurel, meed of mighty conquerors and poets sage," he calls it, and the word thus became closely identified with literary or military distinction. "Laureate letters" in old times were the despatches announcing a victory, and the epithet was officially bestowed by each university on the poet presenting the most brilliant Latin Ode.

The first of modern poets to be publicly crowned appears to have been the Italian poet and humanist, Petrarch, who was so honored in 1341. The office of Poet Laureate in England, however, was not legally recognised till 1616, when it was instituted by letters patent and given to Ben Jonson. Court-poets had doubtless existed before this; minstrels and versifiers were part of the royal retinue, and it is on record that Cœur de Lion had a special "versificator regis," Gulielmus Peregrinus by name. Chaucer is the first Englishman known to have assumed the title. This he did on his return from diplomatic missions abroad, and in 1398 he obtained the annual grant of a tun of wine for life. For the first two hundred years the appointments were irregular, their line only becoming unbroken and continuous from the creation of Richard Edwards in 1561.

When Jonson was appointed he was granted a yearly pension of $500, with the additional grant of one tierce of Canary wine out of the King's store. This latter allowance was commuted in favor of Pye for $135, but the emoluments varied considerably, as Dryden received $1,500 a year and then butt of wine, whereas Tennyson drew only $360 from the Lord Chamberlain, in whose hands the appointment had been placed, and $135 from the lord steward in lieu of the Canary.

Poteen Manufacture

The Poteen "industry" in Donegal, which it was thought had been stamped out, would seem to be revived. Two captures of stills have been made by the Inishowen police. The last was discovered in the mountain district of Glengad. All engaged in the "industry" made good their escape.

Fought 2,000 Years Ago

There was discovered, near the port of Talamone in Italy a large ossuary, or place for the deposit of the bones of the dead.

The discovery is one on the scene of the battle of Telamon, fought in the year 225 B.C., during the invasion of Italy by the Gauls, when the invading hordes were defeated by the Romans.

The ruins of a Temple of Thanksgiving, erected by the Romans in memory of this victory, were unearthed in 1892.

Child Hero's Effort to Save "Mummie"

Evidence was given by a boy of six at the inquest at Arundel on his mother, Mrs. Greenfield, and his four-year-old sister, who were drowned in the Arun. He said that he and his mother and sister were dropping stones into the water, when his sister lost her balance and fell in. His mother jumped in after her, and witness also jumped in. He could not see "Mummie," and so he scrambled out again. His father, a postman, said he could not understand how the boy managed to get out. The child was swum out, but he had only had one swimming lesson, when his father taught him strokes on a mat.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

SCHOOL COURSES FOR TOMMY ATKINS

Education Not Compulsory But Promotion From Ranks Depends on It

When a man joins the British Army he has not necessarily done with school attendance. While he may always go as a volunteer, in certain circumstances he is compelled to go, whether he likes it or not.

A good education is quite as important in the Army as anywhere else. Recognizing this fact, the authorities established well-equipped schools in every garrison town at home and abroad. No charge is made for attending them, and books and stationery, together with expert instruction, are supplied free of cost.

All recruits are examined as to their educational acquirements shortly after joining. No man is actually compelled to attend school, unless he wishes to become a non-commissioned officer. Still, he will find it advantageous to do so, as, until he secures a certificate proving him to have a certain standard of knowledge, he will not get promotion. The result is he remains a private throughout his career.

Three different classes of educational certificates are recognised in Army schools. A first class certificate, which is necessary for promotion to sergeant-major, or a commission from the ranks, means a sound knowledge of history, geography, arithmetic, composition, and map-reading.

In addition to these compulsory subjects, a candidate for a firstclass certificate can take up modern and Oriental languages, shorthand, and typewriting, together with fortification, tactics, and military law.

For second and third class certificates the subjects are fewer in number and the qualifying standards less advanced. Still, they are not to be secured without hard work. A sergeant or corporal must have a second-class certificate before his promotion is confirmed, and a lance-corporal must have a third-class certificate.

School attendance takes place in the afternoon, when the day's parades are finished and each session lasts for one hour and a half. Once having put his name down to attend, he is not allowed to withdraw until he has either attended for three months or else secured a certificate.

Army schools are directed by specially-trained men belonging to the Corps of Army Schoolmasters. On passing a competitive examination, they enlist in the corps for a term of twelve years, and are appointed to a garrison school. After a period of probation they are given the rank of warrant-officer. From this, if they persevere, they may eventually rise to an inspectorship.

They then receive honorary commissions as lieutenant, with a prospect of retiring as captain or major at the age of fifty-five. As such they draw from $2.50 to $4.00 a day, and are eligible for pensions of $1,000 a year.

Army schoolmasters, like all other soldiers, wear uniform while on duty, and are always under military discipline. In the event of misconduct they may be tried by court-martial. Their pay begins at 60 cents a day, and rises to $1.60, with rations and quarters, and certain allowances.

The children of married soldiers are entitled to the benefit of free education in an Army school. They are taught by the same staff, and use the same premises, but at different hours from those given up to the adults.

In a sheltered spot, outside the churchyard gates, in the village of Anwick, Lincolnshire, is a huge stone, oval in shape, known locally as the "Drake" stone, and an object of particular interest to the villagers on account of a legend attaching to it.

The stone, originally in an open field, was for time out of mind an object of great superstition; it was said to mark the site of a vast hoard of riches, and that it was guarded over by the devil who had a cave under it. Several attempts were made to secure the treasure, but every one was a failure. Then one, more courageous than the others, yoked a team of horses to the stone, but the chains snapped asunder, the devil appeared in the form of a drake and flew off in a cloud of smoke. The stone then became the haunt of imps, and was avoided by all who knew anything of its history.

One dark night the stone disappeared and daylight revealed a pool of water, which added to the superstition, but on investigation it was found that the constant digging for the hidden riches resulted in its sinking down so that it was lost to view.

Eventually the stone was recovered and was removed to its present position almost under the shadow of the church.

Pioneer Steamship Line

The Cunard Line was a pioneer in the evolution of ocean traffic. Samuel Cunard, the founder of the firm, was a Nova Scotian. It was in 1838 that Cunard and his associates obtained a Government subsidy for a fleet of four ships to carry the mails to and from England and the United States, but it was ten years later before the first ship was in commission.

RHINOCEROS SHOOTING

The rhinoceros is a strange beas When a bullet hits a rhino no one ca say with any certainty what he wi do. With most animals one has a ver fair idea as to what will happen; bu with the rhino, no. Some peop go so far as to say that the rhin does not know himself. Sometim he will spin round like a humm:n top, but squealing like a pig; sudden off he will go straight as an arro There seems to be some method i his madness, though, for when h does go he goes, or rather come straight for you. Then it is time fo the tree, thorny though it be. A other times, when not knocked ou of time by the first shot, he remind one rather of an engine whose drive has turned on steam a bit too quickly so that the wheels skid; this is simp his preliminary turn in your directio and then, with as little loss of tim as the engine, down he comes at yo snorting and puffing rather noisily This is another case for the tre Sometimes there is no tree, anywa not close enough, and then an anthi must do to get behind; it is as we to have one or the other. At othe times the beast will simply mak straight off as an ordinary well-minde animal should. All the same, it i this uncertainty that adds so great to the zest of the game.

To clean a white straw hat rub with a slice of cut lemon; rinse with cold water and stiffen by brushing with a brush dipped in a weak solution of gum and water.

A mixture of one teaspoonful of black ink to a saltspoonful of liquid gum will do much to brighten a black straw if rubbed well into the interstices of the plait with a stiff brush.

A soiled rubber raincoat can be scrubbed with automobile soap, wetting only a small surface at a time and drying it.

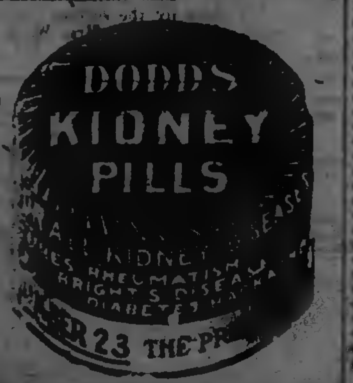
Though Queen Mary is known to have excessively simple tastes in all matters relating to her dress, nevertheless Her Majesty's wardrobes are of necessity far more elaborately filled than are those of most of her subjects.

The Queen's gowns are kept in a large robe-room adjoining Her Majesty's bedroom in her personal apartments. The walls of this apartment are lined with large mahogany wardrobes divided into two sections, one for the State robes worn at Courts and other State ceremonials, and the other for the Queen's ordinary dresses.

The State section of the Royal wardrobes contains from fifty to sixty gowns, which are termed Court robes; two of the wardrobes in this section contain gowns worn only as a rule during a visit to England of a foreign Sovereign.

Apart from the foreign gowns, Her Majesty's State robes and dresses fill from eight to ten wardrobes. Each is "dressed" on a steel model and hung from a plated rail that runs lengthwise through the wardrobe at the top. The wardrobes are all satin-lined throughout. Her Majesty's ordinary dresses fill from five to seven wardrobes.

The wardrobes are in charge of the head robe maid, who has three assistants. Overnight the head robe maid receives instructions as to the gowns Her Majesty will require and the hour when each will be wanted the following day, and it is the robe maid's business to put out each of these gowns at the time mentioned.



Postman Walked 138,700 Miles

The oldest rural postman in the Newry district, Ireland, Owen M'Ateer, has retired after a service of over thirty-eight years, performed between Newry and Bessbrook. As his official route averaged ten miles per day, he walked, he calculates, 138,700 miles during his career.

Farmer's Drink of Milk

A prominent West Country farmer who was present at the opening of a new co-operative milk depot at Bath declared that he had not drunk a glass of milk for twenty years before attending this gathering, when he had a drink, "for the novelty of the thing," and was delighted with the taste.

Till a few years ago the Italians were among the most temperate peoples in Europe; but with the growth of industrialism and social luxury an enormous development has been witnessed of the bar system.

The marked increase in direct crime and insanity due to the abuse of intoxicating drink roused the attention of the Government, and a Bill for checking the evil was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies, prohibiting the sale of liquor to children and drunkards, limiting bars to two for every 500 inhabitants in the smaller towns, and one for every 500 citizens in the larger centres. The latest figures show one street bar for every 159 inhabitants.

The Fact Remains

No amount of misrepresentation by the peddlers of alum baking powders, no juggling with chemicals, or pretended analysis, or cooked-up certificates, or falsehoods of any kind, can change the fact that

Royal Baking Powder has been found by the official examinations to be of the highest leavening efficiency, free from alum, and of absolute purity and wholesomeness.

Royal Baking Powder is indispensable for making finest and most economical food.

Toronto Real Estate Man Here

Mr. J. D. McGregor, of Messrs. McGregor and Gifford, the well-known Toronto Real Estate Agents, is a guest at the Snowden House. Mr. McGregor has just completed a large deal in real estate in the village of Keene. He called yesterday on Messrs. C.J. Carroll & Co., live wire real estate men.

Local Boy on T.C.S. Board.

At a reunion meeting of the Trinity College School Old Boys at the Zeta Psi Fraternity, the following officers were elected: Hon. President the Headmaster; President, Gordon Osler; Vice-President, Col. Sweny, Percy Henderson; Secretary-Treasurer, Peter G. Campbell, 118 St. George street, Toronto.

Another Old Book.

As the local papers seem, at present to be full of stories of old books, it might be mentioned that Senator McHugh of Lindsay, was a guest at the Snowden House yesterday en route to Ottawa. In conversation with the Times, the Senator noted that he owns a "History of Ireland," by Sylvester O'Halloran, printed in 1736.

Indians Pay for Their Jag.

Albert Smoke, Richard Henry, and Richard Perry, the three Indians who were remanded last week on the charge of being drunk in Buckhorn, a local option district, appeared before Magistrate Edmison yesterday morning and pleaded guilty. They were each fined $20.00 and costs amounting to $27.33 and given until June 1st to pay it.

It Was Not Syrup.

The practical joker got one put over him on Saturday afternoon when he entered a wellknown harness shop and picked up a large vessel which looked like a real can of maple syrup. The proprietor was out at the time, and the joker, can in hand, beat a hasty retreat for home. The can which contained oil, was returned shortly afterwards by another party, no questions being asked as the event caused much merriment.

A Pool Room Penalty.

The fine was paid. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for Sullivan. The case of David Parsonson, George Patterson, of Lindsay, and Edward Donahue, of Peterborough, charged with being frequenters of the pool room. His Worship reserved judgment for one week.

An English Criticism.

Last night "Peterborough's pride" the 57th Regiment, had a marchout headed by both bands. As the boys in red, marching down George street, turned east on Hunter street, an evidently recent arrived English immigrant and his lady stood watching the procession. The boys walked with martial tread, in perfect alignment and wheeled like seasoned veterans. At the corner, a private's lower button of his tunic became loose. The soldier stooped to remedy the accident. The Englishman remarked to his affinity: "Look hat the bloomin' 'ump on 'is showlders. 'E's no British soldier!"

Chemong Lake of Old.

Yesterday afternoon a Times Scribe had a chat with Mr. Brock, the Simcoe street jeweller. Speaking of the recent Chemong Lake bridge trouble, Mr. Brock said he was at Chemong Lake, in 1865, en route to his camp on Buckhorn Lake. At that time, Ennismore township was practically uninhabited. He and his chums used to paddle over to Ennismore, which was nothing but the forest primeval, and cut tent poles. Thirty seven years ago he was at Chemong Lake. The floating bridge was then built and Martin's Mill was Bridgenorth's only industry.

Duck Shooters Damage Lighthouses.

Lindsay, April 20.—A rapid inspection of the different structures which warns the vessel owner to look out for danger on the Scugog River was made by Mr. Neddo. He reported that several window sashes would have to be replenished with glass, through the carelessness of hunters when out duck shooting. In fact, he was imbued with the feeling that it was deliberate and intentional, this wanton destruction of Government property. Last year a handsome reward was offered for information that would lead to the conviction of those vandals, but a prosecution has never as yet followed.

Repairs Being Made

A gang of men were at work yesterday morning renewing the foundation under the blacksmith shop just west of the Hunter Street creek bridge. It will be remembered that the Times first reported necessary repairs being made to the lower tier of masonry below this bridge, which was carried away by ice. Part of the East and North corner of the building has, presumably owing to injury to the bridge, sunk nearly two inches. Cracks nearly an inch and a half wide have been caused by that portion of the building sinking. Chips of wood have been inserted in some of the crannies to help support the building. It would seem that the use of dynamite, the explosive force of which is downwards loosens a creek bed and thus the swiftly flowing water in the Spring time washes out the soil and undermines masonry or concrete.

SPRING FISHING

According to the advertisements all fishing resorts are alike, they are the best ever, but if fishing is better anywhere than it is in Algonquin Park, we do not know where it is. There is a great variety of fish in these waters and they are always hungry. The one place where you can afford to fish is where the fish are numerous, big and delicious in flavor, and that point is Algonquin Provincial (Ontario) Park, so the fishermen say. Speckled trout may be caught after May 1st and the open season for salmon trout is from December 1st to October 31st the following year. Drop a line to Manager, Highland Inn, Algonquin Park Station, Ont., for booklet and all particulars, or get in touch with Grand Trunk Agents. By the bill it is forbidden to use the word "maple" in connection with any article of food resembling maple syrup or maple sugar which is not actually pure maple syrup or maple sugar and standards are set as to what constitutes purity in these articles.

Toronto Firm Objected.

A representative of a Toronto firm which styles itself "Maples Limited" appeared to urge that the bill should not prevent the continued use of this firm name, but the committee was of the opinion that the use of even this firm name would constitute an attempt to evade the law and it will consequently be prohibited except in connection with maple sugar and maple syrup that are the pure article. "Nothing that is not pure maple sugar or pure maple syrup shall be so labelled," was the slogan of the committee and they showed scant sympathy for the companies that came making objections.

NEW YORK MAYOR CARRIES TAILSMAN

Small Gold Frog Considered Protection From Violent Death.

New York, April 22.—As Mayor Mitchell was leaving the New York Press Club a personal friend congratulated him on his escape from the bullet fired at him by the aged crank. The Mayor smiled and reaching into his vest pocket pulled out a small gold frog attached to his watch chain.

"My talisman did it," he said, "no harm can come to me as long as I carry it."

Then he explained. In Costa Rica last fall he was entertained at the home of a prominent citizen. After the entertainment his hostess presented the little frog to him. She said it came from a burial mound left by a prehistoric race, but enough was known to say that it was a sure talisman against death by violence.

"Do you know," said the Mayor, "that just before this shooting occurred, I remember, by accident I touched the little frog."

MAN 91 YEARS OF AGE MARRIES WOMAN OF 61

Waco, Texas, April 22.—J. H. Alexander, aged 91 years, general dry goods merchant of Pattont this county, has obtained a marriage license to wed Mrs. S. E. Bradley, aged 61. Alexander's first wife died two months ago. The marriage license was presented as a gift from the County Clerk

HE REFUSED TO MARRY HIS STENOGRAPHER AND IN TROUBLE

Manufacturer is the Defendant in a Breach of Promise Case

Toronto, April 22.—Claiming that she lost other opportunities in life" through her alleged lover's indecision and dilatoriness in putting off their wedding day, and in finally refusing to marry her, Miss May Davis is suing George Wettlaufer in the Jury Assile Court, for $15,000 by way of balm and compensation. The action is being heard by Mr. Justice Latchford.

According to the lady's story, as outlined in the statement of claim, she was engaged as stenographer and bookkeeper by Mr. Wettlaufer, in Buffalo, in 1906. Relations were very pleasant, culminating in August or September in an alleged agreement of marriage. The date of the happy event, however, was not fixed at that time.

"Two or three years ago," continues the statement, "the defendant moved to Toronto," leaving the plaintiff in Buffalo. He is said to have visited her, however, from time to time, and "discussed the approaching marriage."

Refused to Marry.

Matters still being in an indefinite state up to a few months ago, Miss Davis came to Toronto and pressed to have the date set, Mr. Wettlaufer then "utterly and absolutely" refused to carry out the alleged agreement. Hence the present action.

Mr. Wettlaufer, in his defence, denies any promise to marry. Further, he declares that on November 8th, 1908, Miss Davis signed a document which "released and discharged him of any form or claim for breach of promise." This alleged release names a consideration of $700, and purports to protect the defendant from all "action or actions."

Only a Bluff.

In reply to this defence, Miss Davis, through her counsel, comes back with the statement that this lengthy agreement was given to satisfy a brother of Mr. Wettlaufer. She admits that she received $100, but declares that the release was not to be binding, and that Wettlaufer repeated his promise of marriage after the alleged release.

BRITISH DRINK BILL NOW $835,000,000

Consumption of Alcohol Liquors in United Kingdom Increased $25,000,000 In Single Year.

London, April 22.—Great Britain's annual drink bill, to which attention as usual at this period of the year, is called by the United Kingdom Alliance of Temperance Organisations, shows a greatly increased consumption over 1912. The total amount expended for alcoholic liquors in 1012 was nearly $835,000,000, more than $25,000,000 above the 1912 figure. The average expenditure works out at $18.10 per head.

Since 1909 per capita expenditure on drink has increased by nearly 87 cents. The papers generally contend that this does not mean that the nation is growing less temperate, but simply means a period of sustained prosperity.

"Heavy drinking and good trade," says the Daily Mail, "go together. It sounds and is appalling enough that we are spending on drink a sum equal to four-fifths of the entire national revenue, that a working class family should waste nearly a sixth of its income on liquor (and that is the annual expenditure if we omit total abstainers and children under 16) but it is an improvement on what has gone before. Macauley reckons that in 1688 the English people consumed 90 gallons of alcohol per head. They now only drink a little over 28. In 1750 there was one public house to every six homes and every 47 people. Now there is but one public house to every 70 homes and 330 people. Drunkenness too, besides having virtually died out as a social accomplishment, has steadily diminished among all classes."

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Moderate winds, with a little higher temperature.

PRIME MINISTER ASQUITH IS PUT IN A BAD CORNER

Refuses to Answer Insistent Demand for Judicial Probe by Mr. Bonar Law

London, April 22.—The usual verbal musketry took place in the Commons to-day over Ulster. The Premier before the assembling of the House had a long interview, with Sir John French, who resigned as Chief of the General Staff.

In the Commons, Mr. L. S. Amery asked the Prime Minister if he would say when he intended officially to notify General Gough that the assurance conveyed to him in the War Office memorandum of March 23 had been repudiated. Mr. Asquith replying: "As I have already stated I do not consider any further notification necessary."

Parliamentary Stage Management.

Mr. Amery—"Are we to understand that the repudiation was merely a piece of Parliamentary stage management?" (Opposition cheers.) No answer was returned. Mr. Amery then asked whether the officers of the army were in future to interpret any official instruction or memoranda which they might receive from the Army Council in the light of such speeches as might subsequently be made in Parliament by Cabinet Ministers and if they were to regard such speeches as superseding instructions received by them through the proper official channels.

Mr. Asquith—"No, sir. Circumstances of this case are obviously exceptional and cannot be taken as a precedent.

Captain Allison asked the Prime Minister if he would state under which paragraph of the King's regulations authority was given officers commanding units to allow officers or men to go on leave when the unit to which they belonged was ordered to the district to assist the civil authority in which such officers and men were domiciled.

Exceptional, Says Premier.

Mr. Asquith—"Such cases are exceptional and each has to be considered on its own merits. It is impossible to cover them by regulations."

Mr. George Terrell asked the Prime Minister whether the Irish Commander-in-chief had informed certain officers that the Belfast Police would have orders to seize some concealed depots of arms belonging to the Ulster Volunteers, and take forcible possession of the old Town Hall, Belfast, and whether any orders were given to the police in regard to the matter.

DELIGHTED AUDIENCE

Saw Last Performance of Queen Zephra at Opera House.

Mr. H. J. Booth gave his farewell performance of the charming musical spectacle, "Queen Zephra," at the Grand Opera House last night.

The audience was not as large as it should have been, the merits of the piece calling for a crowded house. The offering was perhaps the best of the series, and punctured by demonstrative applause on the part of those fortunate enough to be present. "Queen Zephra" has offered the music and stage scenic-loving citizens of this city opportunity for seeing and hearing high class presentations at popular prices, performed by local talent under the skilful direction and training of Mr. H. J. Booth, of Boston, who during his visit to Peterborough has made many warm loyal friends whose best wishes will go with him to Renfrew. Last night Mr. Booth in graceful terms, publicly thanked all who had taken part in and attended the performances. He made a glowing tribute to the ladies and gentlemen and little folk who had sustained so admirably the respective tasks alloted them in this merry musical extravaganza, which has won continental popularity during a run of many years.

PUT BAN ON MUSIC

Playing on Sunday in Confectionery Stores is Taboo.

Erie, Pa., April 22.—Playing the boom, boom tango numbers and dreamy waltzes in confectionery stores on Sunday must cease. The police yesterday clamped the lid down.

This follows action taken some time ago in stopping piano playing in "movie" shows. An ordinance forbids music on Sunday in public places in the city.

Patrons of the "homes of the soda' last night supped their drinks sans music, as a result of the police order.

JURY DISAGREES IN VIVISECTION CASE

Philadelphia, April 21.—The jury in the case of Joseph A. Sweet, the University of Pennsylvania professor charged with wanton cruelty to dogs, in failing to care for them properly after vivisection operations, was discharged yesterday after the foreman reported that an agreement could not be reached. The case had been in the hands of the jury for more than 46 hours.

No one with a camera was allowed within range when the Duke of Connaught and party reached Montreal yesterday.

THE SPRING ASSIZES

The Spring Assizes open here on April 28th, with Chancellor Boyd presiding.

Thos. Brightman, of this city, claims the sum of $2,985.54 from M. J. Quigley, of Toronto, the action arising out of a loan. The plaintiff claims the above amount and also costs of action. Hall Medd and Davidson are representing the plaintiff, and G. N. Gordon, agent for Henderson and McGuire, of Toronto, for the defendant.

Samuel Althouse, a laborer residing in Belmont, claims damages from the Ontario Rock Company of that township, to the amount of $4,000, for the loss of his right eye, which he claims was caused by negligence and improper protection on part of the defendants. Peck, Kerr and McElderry are acting for plaintiff, and Beatt, Blackstock, Fasken, Cowan and Chadwick of Toronto, for defendants.

Sees Menace In White Bread

The eminent scientist—PROF. LE TULLE, of Paris, recently made a remarkable statement regarding food conditions in France. It is even more applicable to this country—he said:

"France has changed an essential of her nourishment. White bread is made more and more starchy, and is less and less nourishing. THE RICH PRODUCTS WHICH ARE EXTRACTED GO TO FEED THE PIGS. The baker now utilises only fifty per cent. of the wheat elements, whereas fifty years ago he utilised eighty-five per cent.

The "rich products" referred to, which are "extracted" from wheat, are the mineral elements—phosphate of potash, iron, sodium, etc. These elements are absolutely essential to proper nutrition of body, nerves and brain, yet they are nearly all thrown out by millers just to make the flour look white and pretty!

The lack of these invaluable phosphates is one of the chief causes of nervous prostration, dullness, languor, constipation and other ills—big and little.

In the making of

Grape-Nuts FOOD

all the "rich products" of wheat and barley, from which the food is made, are retained.

A regular ration of Grape-Nuts is not only a delicious part of the meal, but admirably supplies the mineral salts which the ordinary diet often lacks.

WORLD'S LONLIEST SPOT

An English historian has finally decided on the loneliest spot on the earth. Tristan [illegible] it is called, and it is an island [illegible] hundreds of miles away from its nearest neighbors. A [illegible] in a boundless ocean, no matter which way you go. It is rocky, with a solitary mountain 1,000 feet high. A shepherd community lives there, farmers, cattle raisers, etc. In the valley of the island are fertile fields where potatoes are grown, and the food of the people consists of beef, fowls and fish. The island formerly produced many fruits and vegetables, but they can no longer be grown there, for the island is overrun by rats which escaped from a ship and the people have never been able to rid themselves wholly of them.

Messages for the Future

The modern Historic Record Association has formed a novel plan of delivering messages [illegible] to their descendants [illegible] years from now.

Two envelopes of durable Japanese vellum are sent to each member, with the request that genealogical memoranda, [illegible] and photographs be enclosed. They sealed envelopes will be deposited in lead-lined steel chests. One will be stored with the association's collections in the New York Public Library, [illegible]

A copperplate [illegible] will direct that the other chest be put in a vault near the Cheops pyramid in Egypt. In this way the [illegible] is taken against possible destruction by war or natural causes.

The [illegible] will also contain documents, tablets and photographs [illegible] [illegible] of the present day.

BUSINESS-LIKE QUEEN

Her Majesty Superintends Expenditures of Royal Household

Queen Mary believes in prompt payment. She never lets her housekeeping bills run on, and she is very [illegible] to details. Each tradesman must send in a bill with the goods on delivery, even if it is only soap and candles. All bills are filed by the Clerk of the Kitchens, who enters up the amount to the account of the various tradesmen. All accounts made out in detail [illegible] Master of the Household [illegible] King and Queen at the end of each month. Her Majesty is the chief scrutineer, and [illegible] to draw attention to any [illegible] of expenditure. The Queen abhors the idea that carelessness, waste and extravagance should be considered Royal prerogatives, and sets an admirable example of good management. After the accounts have been passed they are promptly paid by cheque, through the Treasurer of the Household.

A Safe Port

A total loss of one ship only, in more than a quarter of a century, is a unique record for any port. Halifax harbor (Nova Scotia), which makes the claim, is one of the safest in the world. No other port in Eastern Canada has so clean a sheet. At most, if not all, of the competing ports—including New York—on the same coast, ships have to wait for the tide, whereas at Halifax the mariner has no such embargo on his movements.

OLESOME FOOD FOR KING'S SAILORS

ential Bill of Fare on War Vessels and Many Delicacies [illegible] Price

[illegible] the past decade the dietary [illegible] has altered greatly [illegible] better. Gone are the days of [illegible] so full of weevils that they [illegible] be rapped on the table [illegible] eaten; of salted meat so tough [illegible] that it could be manufac[illegible] into snuff-boxes; and of beer [illegible] water which, through long keep[illegible] wooden casks, was as often [illegible] quite unfit to drink.

[illegible] of which the Elizabethan sea[illegible] received a gallon a day—has been [illegible] by rum; while the water [illegible] is now kept in iron tanks, [illegible] are refilled from the shore, or [illegible] distilling apparatus on board, [illegible] intervals.

[illegible] modern ships are fitted with [illegible] so Jack receives his fresh, [illegible] baked loaf every day of his life. [illegible] is also a refrigerator on board, [illegible] is stowed enough fresh meat [illegible] to last every man in [illegible] for a month, so the sailor [illegible] longer subsisting on salt beef [illegible] within a few days of leaving [illegible].

Like a Big Hotel

[illegible] modern battleship, in fact, only [illegible] about two days' salt meat—[illegible] is in the refrigerators [illegible] is then carried merely as [illegible] by," to be served out in very [illegible] circumstances.

[illegible] ordinary daily menu of every [illegible] the Navy is 1 pound of fresh [illegible] ½ pound fresh meat; 1 pound fresh vegetables; 4 ounces sugar; ½ ounce of tea, or 1 ounce of coffee for every ½ ounce of tea, if preferred; ½ ounce of drinking chocolate, or 1 ounce of coffee if preferred; ¾ ounce of unsweetened condensed milk; 1 ounce of jam or marmalade; and 4 [illegible] preserved meat as one day [illegible] in harbor, or two days while at sea.

Mustard, pepper, vinegar, and salt are served out as required, while ¾ pound of biscuit or 1 pound of flour is issued instead of the bread if the latter is not available. A man over the age of twenty receives one-eighth of a pint of rum daily, but those who desire it can receive money instead.

Origin of Grog

The rum itself, to all men except warrant and chief petty officers, is served out in the form of "grog"—three parts of water to one of rum. It is called by this name as the mixture was first issued by Admiral Vernon in 1740, for he, from the fact that he wore breeches made of a stuff called grogram, was known to his men by the nickname of "Old Grog."

The sailor, in addition to his stated ration, is granted a messing allowance of 8 cents a day by the Government; and with this sum he can purchase extras from the stores on board. All the ordinary articles, such as bread, meat, vegetables, tea, coffee, cocoa, condensed milk—everything, in fact, except rum—can be bought in this way, but additional delicacies like tinned salmon and rabbit, raisins for puddings, dried beans and peas, pickles, [illegible], etc., can be procured if required.

All these articles are of the very first quality, and as they are bought by the contract department of the Admiralty in enormous quantities, there is no doubt that Jack gets the finest value for his money.

Economy is Possible

A man, [illegible] take up his full allowance of pro[illegible] [illegible] one-third of [illegible] vegetables, but for the remainder, if he likes, he can be paid their equivalent value in hard cash.

Once a month each sailor can buy one pound of tobacco free of duty. It is issued in [illegible] for 24 cents a pound, and as many officers smoke nothing but this brand, it speaks well for its quality. All this tobacco comes from special tobacco plantations in South Africa, and could not be bought ashore under $1.50 a pound.

A DUTCH PROPOSAL

In Holland a Suitor Goes Through a Curious Form

A curious old custom still exists in many provinces in Holland. If a young man is in love with a girl, and wishes to ask her hand in marriage, he goes about it in the following manner.

He buys a small, sweet cake and, wrapping it up in soft paper, proceeds to the house of his inamorata. Upon his arrival he is ushered into the midst of the family circle. Without a word he walks up to the young woman he wishes to make his wife, and he lays the cake on the table before her.

If she accepts his offer, she takes up the cake and eats it. Sometimes, though Dutch, she is coquettish, and tortures the young man by turning it over and playing with it before she decides to bite it, and then enraptures him by eating it to the last crumb.

If, on the other hand, she wishes to have nothing more to do with her admirer, she quietly wraps the cake in its covering and puts it back on the table. In this case a young man takes up the cake, satisfied with his refusal, and with a "Vaarvoel [illegible]" leaves the house. The mat[illegible] is then kept a profound secret by all the members of both families, and the suitor would never [illegible] of [illegible]

If, however, the cake [illegible] [illegible] and the suitor is accepted, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] if he can afford to take his wife for a wedding journey [illegible] [illegible] wedding journey, of all Dutch[illegible] men. The girl, in a case of this sort, [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] for about six weeks. At the end of that time [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] this, as it is not thought [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible] by young [illegible] with to marry.

Wealth From the Forests

[illegible] to [illegible] the fifty to sixty per cent. [illegible] formerly left in the woods by the [illegible] to [illegible] per cent., by a combination of three [illegible] industries, [illegible] paper-making, wood distillation (in a modified form), and the manufacture of resin oils. Practically all the valuable constituents from the stumps, tops, branches and defective stems which would otherwise be left to rot in the forest are then converted into useful commodities.

Royal Patronage and Liquor Ads.

Father Ratot of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, [illegible], sent a petition to King George asking him to forbid the use of his Royal name and title or the word "royal," or any word indicating Royal patronage, in any liquor advertisement anywhere within the Empire.

MUNICIPAL FORMS ALWAYS IN STOCK

SIMPLE REMEDIES FOR SLEEPLESSNESS

Sometimes a Change of Food is Necessary, at Others a Stimulant or Warm Bath

Sleeplessness arises from a great variety of causes, and one has to choose his remedy according to the nature of his own particular malady. There is the primary form of insomnia, in which the brain remains active and supplied with too much blood because the [illegible] have lost tone. Anaemia may be the cause, or excessive tobacco smoking. The proper remedy is removal of the cause, but anything that will draw the blood down into the body helps to bring about sleep.

A glass of hot milk or a cup of beef tea will often do this and when the feet are cold these remedies are [illegible] by a hot-water bottle. Then there is the secondary insomnia, due to some cause outside the brain, such as dyspepsia, mental worry, cough, physical pain, etc. Except in the case of dyspepsia, attention to food is of no great value in these forms.

Overwork is another potent cause. In this case a warm bath, followed by some stimulant, generally proves quite effective. But the appropriate stimulant has to be discovered by experiment. When the brain is tired out a large cup of hot weak tea will often send one to sleep if it is taken after getting into bed. Beef tea is even a better remedy in this case.

Then there is elderberry wine of very good [illegible]. Milk punch with hot milk, whisky, and nutmeg is a remedy both in mental and physical exhaustion, and better, in some cases is "Bristol milk," made with hot milk and sherry.

These are most effective when the sleepless person is unaccustomed to the use of stimulants. But they have their dangers. Mark Twain tells how, when he suffered much from insomnia, he began the search for relief by drinking a glass of beer before going to bed.

"This gave a little relief for a short time. Then I exchanged my beer for a small prescription of whisky. This worked the desired cure—for a time. But then he found he needed a larger dose and so sought another remedy and found it. Yes, sir, an infallible remedy. This was a child's German grammar, and he never got through a single page before sleep came along.

"As to late meals, most people have [illegible] [illegible] of hours elapse between a substantial meal and bed time. But an empty stomach is worse than a full one. When the last meal is taken two and a half or three hours before going to bed, something—a few biscuits or a sandwich, etc.—should be eaten in case of sleeplessness.

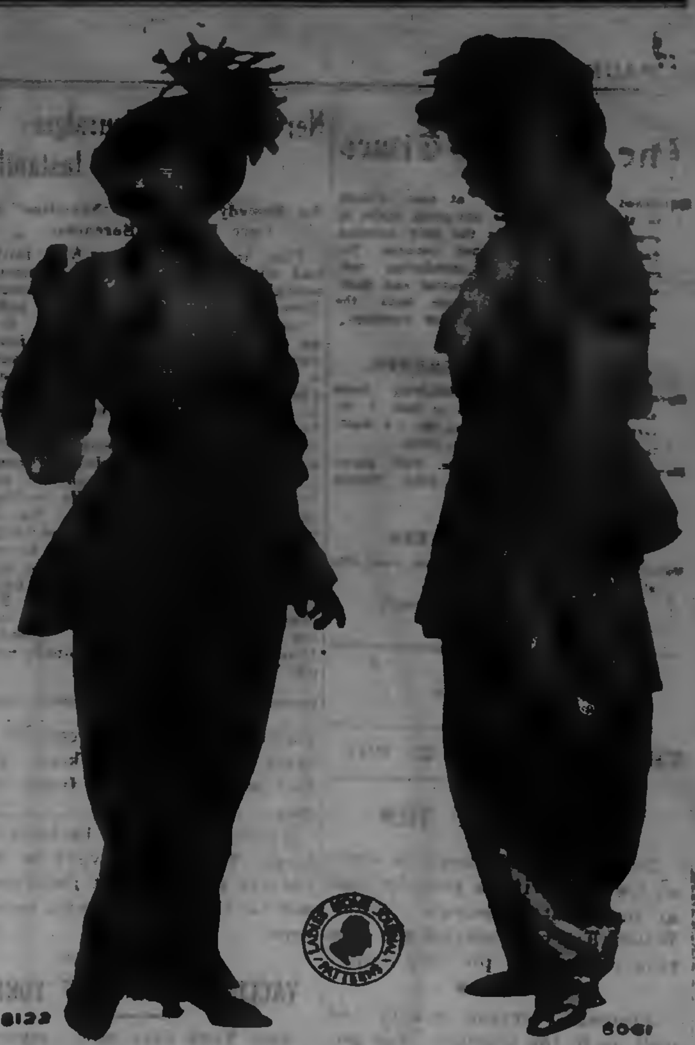
Coax Your New Gloves

Before wearing new kid gloves, if they are [illegible] [illegible] a damp cloth for an hour, they will be [illegible] [illegible] put on. The damp causes the kid to become more pliable and to stretch to the shape of the hand without splitting or cracking. If rubbed with a piece of stale bread every time they are taken off, it will be necessary to send them to a cleaner's much fewer times.

BATTLESHIP BUILDING

Two Thousand Men Can Work on One at a Time

Some interesting figures are given by Mr. Alexander Richardson in the "Naval Annual" regarding the number of man-hours required to build battleships in order to support the contention that two years is too short a period for the completion of the larger and more powerful ships of the present day. The battleship of fifteen years ago, having a length of 390 feet and a displacement tonnage of 12,950 tons, involved in the construction of the ship 5,273,256 man-hours, at 52 hours per week and 50 weeks per annum. This required, for the hull alone, the employment for two years of over 2,000 workmen. The first Dreadnoughts required 5,600,363 man-hours, and the Iron Duke class, of 580 feet in length and 25,000 tons displacement, involved 7,300,000 man-hours, or about 2,800 men for two years. Only about 2,000 men can be engaged on a ship without getting in each other's way. The corresponding figures for the construction of propelling machinery are equally interesting. The reciprocating engines of the Dreadnought of fifteen years ago, of 13,500 horse-power, required 1,789,0[illegible] man-hours, while the turbine machinery of to-day, of more than double the power, requires 1,850,000 man-hours. The small increase is explained by the fact that, whereas in the case of reciprocating engines only some [illegible] per cent. of the cost was for material, the remaining [illegible] per cent. being for labor, the material for turbines, much of it machined ready to hand, absorbs 72 per cent. of the total cost, leaving only 28 per cent. for labor.



TAFFETAS, FLOWERED AND PLAIN, FAVORED FOR AFTERNOON FROCKS.

Every season there is a rumor that taffetas will be worn but, for some reason or other, American women have always refused to take them up to any extent. This season, however, it looks as if they were going to. These new taffetas are of wonderful quality; supple enough to be crushed in the hands like chiffon. There is an American made taffetas called "Pussy Willow" that is quite as perfect as it is possible to make it. The French houses are using cerise and chartreuse tints for evening and the darker shades—tete de negre, blue and wine color—for daytime wear.

It is an effective fad to combine chiffon with taffetas as illustrated in No. 8122. This is an afternoon dress of tete de negre figured taffetas, with bodice and tunic of chiffon in the same shade; the flounce at the bottom of the skirt is of chiffon also.

This frock may be copied in size 36, with 5¾ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8061 is also developed in taffetas in a deep, rich shade of bordeaux. There is an unusual sash starting at the front of the bodice, crossing in front and extending around the hips to the back, where it terminates in two long ends. It catches up the tunic over either hip, to give the puffed effect which is a feature of so many of the imported models for spring.

This dress may be copied in size 36, with about 4 yards of 36 inch material.

Taffetas average about 40 inches in width and range in price from $1.50 a yard up.

No. 8122—sizes 34 to 42.

OUR POINT OF VIEW

Now a leading physician comes forward with a plea for pie at breakfast. Though Ralph Waldo Emerson settled the question in favor of pie long ago.

Almost everyone in city as well as in the country can go along for a long time without any more frost, or the kind of stuff that looks like it.

Some of the citizens who were coming up George street yesterday morning about 8 o'clock had to inhale gasoline from a car with a poor mixer. Gasoline served up in that kind of style does not smell or taste good. Why make people who walk smell of an taste it?

ANOTHER LESSON

New York has a strict law against the indiscriminate sale of weapons. The man who tried to kill Mayor Mitchel last week had to go to Jersey City, New Jersey, to obtain his revolver. If New Jersey had a law similar to that of New York, the difficulties of the murderous criminal would have been substantially increased. Probably, he would have secured a revolver anyway; but undoubtedly he would have had a harder time in getting one, and there would have been so much greater opportunity for the forces of law and order to intercept him.

Laxity in the enforcement of laws prohibiting the sale of weapons, as well as the criminal folly of failing to adopt such legislation, is responsible for the depreciation in the price of human life in many communities. Every time a demented man, such as Mahoney, who tried to kill Mayor Mitchel, commits an outrage, it is an unanswerable argument for the strictest possible enforcement of laws which aim to keep the fool and the criminal from the gun.

There will always be fools at large. There will always be revolvers for sale. But there need not be always fools with revolvers!

Nerviline Ends Neuralgia Brings Relief Instantly

No Remedy Like Old "Nerviline" to Cure Pain or Soreness.

That terrible ache—how you fairly reel with it—that stabbing, burning neuralgia—what misery it causes. Never mind, you don't have to suffer—use Nerviline, it's a sure cure. Not an experiment, because nearly forty years of wonderful success has made a name for Nerviline among the people of many different nations. "There is nothing speedier to end Neuralgic headache than old-time 'Nerviline'" writes Mr. G. C. Dalgleish, from Evanston. "It is so powerful and penetrating that it seems to eat up any pain in a minute. My family couldn't get along without Nerviline. We always keep the 50c. family size bottle handy on the shelf and use it to end chest colds, sore throat, coughs, earache, toothache and pain in the back. My wife swears by Nerviline. For cramps its effect is astonishing and we believe it is better and speedier than any other household family remedy."

VACCINATION IN NEW YORK

New York City now reports just four cases of smallpox. Were it to have as many in proportion to population as Niagara county has just had, the great city would be nursing 50,000 persons down with that mediaeval scourge. These, at least, are the figures of Dr. Williams, deputy state health commissioner, in charge of the smallpox situation. He explains that Niagara and Chautauqaa counties have been strongholds for about 15 years of the anti-vaccination sentiment, due in part to Dr. John W. Hodge, who publishes there an anti-vaccination paper of wide influence.

The anti-vaccinationists' theory sounds well, whenever set forth. But what do they say of the regularity with which the disease—one of the most loathsome known to man— breaks out as soon as any part of the civilized world lifts the rigors of its vaccination law? The endeavor to get along without this means of prevention has been made over and over again, and it always works out sooner or later in the same way.

Let the legislature, now considering this subject, send a committee of three impartial men to Niagara Falls to make a study of that city's recent experience.

LOCAL LICENSES.

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir,—It was pleasant to see by your paper this morning that all the local licenses were renewed, and particularly glad to note that an additional license was granted to Mr. George Lipsett, of the Maple Leaf Hotel, Ashburnham. Mr. Lipsett is a man who can be trusted to run a good clean law abiding hotel. I think, however that the License Commissioners might go one step further and grant several more licenses to the cheaper class of hotel. There is a portion of the community that is very inadequately provided for. River drivers, farm hands, etc., cannot afford to pay $1.50 a day for board. They are only in the city for a few days or possibly a couple of weeks. Boarding houses do not cater for such transient visitors. By licensing two or three more hotels in this understanding that they abide strictly by the law and give cheap rates to short time guests, the laboring class would benefit and it would do away with a great deal of the excessive drinking caused by concentration of drinkers in a few bars. You know that thirty men in one bar will drink a great deal more liquor than the same thirty men spread throughout thirty bars.

LICENSE INSPECTOR FORCED TO RESIGN

His Firm Borrowed Money From License Holders in His District. Some Restitution.

Toronto, April 22.—That the Provincial License Department as administered, by chief License Officer Eudo Saunders will not permit any of their inspectors or commissioners to meddle with the regulations was shown clearly this morning during the investigation, into the conduct of Paul Morand, the License Inspector of North Essex.

Directors of the Morand Canning Company, of which he is President and chief stockholder, having a controll interest, had borrowed money from two license-holders in his district.

The subject was introduced by Mr. C. M. Bowman, Liberal member for North Bruce, in the Public Accounts Committee, and Mr Morand appeared to explain the circumstances. He told the committee that he had not intended to break the regulations, and had not known that he was doing so. He had not personally borrowed the money. Mr. Saunders, he said, had explained the situation to him on his arrival this morning, and had told him that he had no choice but to resign, and this he had done.

Mr. Saunders said that he had never heard of the case until to-day, but it had always been the policy of the Department to demand the resignation of any of their officers, commissioners or inspectors who borrowed money from license-holders. Mr. Morland, he was persuaded, had broken the rule technically, and not intentionally, but none the less the Department had no choice but to request him to hand in his resignation.

FOUNTAIN FOR CHICKS

Keeps the water Clean and Minimizes the Spilling

It's not a bit of trouble to keep the chicks from fouling their drinking fountain if you have the proper kind of a fountain. Of course, some of these porcelain affairs made for the purpose are expensive, but a tin tomato can is just as good. Cut the tin about 3 inches from the bottom of the can in a V-shape and push the cut piece inward. Then fill the can with water up to the opening. The chicken cannot get its feet in the can and it is so well protected that outside dirt cannot get into it, although the opening is plenty big enough for the chick to get all the water they need.

SALVATION ARMY IN THE FAR NORTH

Indians Rapidly Becoming Civilized—They Like Their Uniforms and the Band

After an absence of over thirty years from his home in the little village of Slingsby, Yorkshire, Major "Bob" Smith of the Salvation Army took a longing to see his old mother again and got leave of absence for the trip home. Before leaving Canada he told an interesting story of his work among the Indians and the changes that are coming about by the ever-advancing tide of civilization.

In the early eighties Major Smith and his two brothers came to Canada and located at Winnipeg, and in that city the major was converted and began work with the Salvation Army. For the last fourteen years he had charge of districts among the Indians in British Columbia and Alaska. For ten years he worked in Alaska with his centre at Wrangell. The four previous years he was in British Columbia among the Zimshian Indians and in Alaska. In the southeastern part he dwells chiefly among the Thinget tribe. He has also worked among the dying race of Hydah Indians on Queen Charlotte Island and Prince of Wales Island, B.C.

The work is making wonderful strides, he said. Every year sees the old order changing among the Indians. The growth of the mining centres in Alaska is causing a big influx of white people. In the last decade there has been a decrease of 14 per cent. in the Indian population, and the tribes are gradually dwindling down.

Old Burial Custom

Speaking of the old customs of the Indians and their heathen superstitions he said that these were fast disappearing. One custom at the burial of a person was to inter the body but a few inches below the surface and build a log hut over the spot and around the grave, place the deceased's belongings and scatter food on the ground. In these death houses he has seen sewing machines and clocks left by the departed's relatives.

The old unwritten law that members of the same tribe must not intermarry is also being relegated to the past, and members of the same tribe are now being joined in matrimony. In the village of Killisnoo, where he has one of the eleven stations under his supervision, the Major had 100 soldiers in the corps, and on one of his visits he conducted 15 weddings.

The story is told that Killisnoo got its name through a young Scotchman who, with a companion, was captured by the Indians. The adventurous pair were to be put to death, but the execution was postponed and the Scot, suffering from the exquisite torture of having his life hanging by a thread and the uncertainty of the day of doom, is stated to have shouted, "Kill us noo." The Indians liked the sound and so the village got its name. What happened to the prisoners is not known.

Indians Enterprising

And the village called Kake is also in the Major's district, and it is not very long ago since white men carried their lives in their hands in visiting the place. Not so now, civilization is wiping all this out. Trapping, hunting, fishing, logging are the industries the Indians chiefly follow. There are many enterprising men among them and this is shown by the number of gasoline launches that they now have plying up and down the river.

In many instances the Major has to do his missionary work through an interpreter. Many of the officers are Indians and of their work and devotion to duty Major Smith speaks highly. They make smart figures in the Army uniforms, which greatly appeal to them. As musicians they are very successful and they are especially good at singing.

ORIGIN OF BOOT HEELS

Women First Wore Them so They Could Not Travel

It is said that the heels now worn on shoes had their origin in Persia, where they took the form of flat wood on sandals to raise the feet and prevent them from the hot sands.

It was many years afterward that this fashion was introduced into Venice, but the reason for its adoption in this case is said to have been quite different. Here the originators of the fashion were jealous husbands who reasoned that their women thus equipped would not venture far outside the precincts of their dwelling. These heels were called "clogs," and in order to satisfy the vanity of the wearers and perhaps to sweeten the pill—that is, the discomfort of appearing in them—they were elaborately adorned, sometimes being encrusted with gold and silver. The height of the clogs determined the rank of the wearer.
